THE ARMY'S HEALTH.

A new Army Council Instruction which has just been issued gives particulars of the new organization of the Hygiene and Pathology Services for the Army. The main objects of this new organization are of vital interest to soldiers in particular and to the commonwealth in general, among them being the safeguarding of the health and efficiency of the Army by men who are recognised leaders in hygiene and pathology, the utilization of the latest knowledge affecting the health of the troops, and the furthering of research as to disease in overseas possessions.

A further object, none the less important, is the creation of an organization within the Army Medical Service, which will furnish inducements to officers who have made a special study of hygiene or pathology to perfect their knowledge by increased research.

With unhappy memories of "Number 9's" which seemed to be the only stock in hand in some necessarily limited pharmacopoeias, and unpleasant recollections of the stiffening effects of vaccine injections, one might be tempted, in a peevish moment, to regard the Army medico about as highly as the country esteemed George IV. One of the greatest marvels of the war, however, was the absence of epidemics, and the high standard of the health of the British troops generally. For this we are indebted to the excellence of the Army Medical Service.

Time was when disease was an infinitely greater obstacle to victory then the enemy in the field. On the eve of Agincourt dysentery broke out in the camp of Henry V and so great were its ravages that out of a force of 24,000 archers and 6,000 men-at-arms only 900 men-at-arms and 5,000 archers remained efficient. What the sick parade was like one shudders to think, and it is better not to inquire too profoundly into the nature of the language in the company offices or the M.O's uarters.

To take a more recent example we have the ill-fated Walcheren Expedition in 1809, when 40,000 soldiers under the command of a holiday general, Lord Chatham, were landed on a fever-stricken island at the mouth of the Scheldt. The force was utterly prostrated by disease, to combat which hardly the simplest medical appliances were available. After the French style a duel followed between the Foreign Secretary and the Secretary for War, but the country would doubtless have gladly sacrificed this mild sensation to have secured immunity from the pestilence for the British soldiers on the Continent.

In the region of pathology and hygiene both the British and American Medical Services have performed brilliant work, the common object of their labours leading to the employment of cumulative intellect and resource to an extent hitherto unknown. How far Science aided our efforts in the Great War was fully and ably demonstrated in several of the papers read at the recent meeting of the British Association, and it is eminently satisfactory to learn from the new Army Council Instruction that this good work on behalf of soldiers is not only to continue but to be adequately fostered. A well paid Army to be thoroughly happy must also be healthy.

CUTTING DOWN.

EXTRACTS FROM THE DIARY OF A THRIFTY CUSTOMER.

Sept. 20th.—Drew 300 marks and left Pay Parade determined to go steady for next 14 days. Fired with new born zeal for thrift, went to Y. M. Cinema. Spent 3 hours and nix marks. Returned to billet—tired but triumphant. Thence to "kip" to dream of cigarette issues, writing paper, concert parties, lectures and other "buckshee" pleasures. 300 marks still intact.

Sept. 21st.— Harrison arranges 5 Mk. Football Sweep. One man wanted to compete. Will I? Very virtuous after yesterday's victory for economy, feel I can let myself go to this extent. Song: Two hundred and ninety five marks!

Sept. 22nd.—Meet "Spotty" on route for Cologne Races. Asks me to accompany him. Don't care for races, but fond of "Spotty" and anxious to cure him of his extravagant habits of which his passion for gambling is one. So accept invitation. Despite my counsel, "Spotty" persists in throwing all his cash coursewards and quickly drops 200 marks, his explanation of how he just failed to win 750 marks betraying an uncanny knowledge of the higher mathematics. If only he'd another 100 marks, knows what he'd back. Resist temptation to help "Spotty" to plunge more deeply, but, in weak moment, enquire for horse's name . . . . Put 150 marks on "Standstill." It does! Balance in hand 145 Marks.

Sept. 23rd.— Recall resolution of Sept. 20th and decide to go to "Man and Superman" to escape temptation to yield to greater extravagance. Safe for 3 hours, anyway! Arrive at Deutsches', remember urgent necessity for improvement of "Spotty's" dramatic tastes which incline to the lighter forms of the drama. So book 2 seats and conscript his unwilling body into one of them. Furious discussion after performance, centreing round character of Ann Whitfield. Adjourned to Ring Cafe where discussion continued, though nothing settled except wine bill, leaving 100 marks on which to continue steady.

Sept. 24th.—"Spotty" and I on "Peg" for absence from previous night's roll call. Awarded 1 day's "Excused Pay" and silently curse Shaw's stimulating drama. Depressing letter from "the only girl in the world" who complains of my epistolary shortcomings, and opines that "I'd love her more loved I the army less," — and "isn't Chris Powell rather a nice boy"? Dismiss "the only girl" and her "Powell" in one all embracing oath, and console myself with a Fraulein of dubious charm but seemingly insatiable thirst. Mark! How it falls! On my last 50.

Sept. 25th.—"Yorky" having made night hideous by vain attempts to learn the instrument, decides to raffle his melodion. Don't want the wretched thing, but do want peace, so take a 1 in 8 chance in the hope of obtaining possession of the box of concentrated noise and throwing it into the Rhine. Left with 40 marks whilst "Sam Soon" in adjoining bed, wins the "prize" which he understands about as well, and performs twice as long as did its former owner.

Sept. 26th.—Learn I'm next on list for Demob. May go any day. Borrow 100 marks from various quarters and embark on urgent souvenir hunt . . . . Return with many parcels and 12 marks.

Sept. 27th.— Take out subscription to "Cologne Post" to keep in touch with things out here.

Sept. 28th, 29th, 30th, Oct. 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Stick to resolution of the 20th ultimo.

October 4th.—Hurrah! Fall in for pay!

E. J. TELLUM.

CAN YOU WRITE?

The Editor will be glad if officers and men of the Rhine Army will contribute to this paper. The need for contributions is the greater now that so many of our regular writers are leaving for home. All accepted articles etc. are paid for and may be on any topic likely to interest the troops on the Rhine. The Editor hopes for a hearty response to this invitation. Lack of a finished literary style need deter no one from submitting something. Provided the subject matter is interesting, the Editorial staff can supply any deficiencies. No contribution should exceed 500 words and even shorter ones will be welcome.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views on Many Topics.

TRAVELLING ON ALLIED RAILWAYS.

Sir,—May I be allowed to take up the cudgels on behalf of "English Lady" in her point re travelling facilities over the Belgian railways. "One who marched through Belgium" argues that if the writer had looked about her on her journey through Belgium, she would have noticed the ruined state of the permanent way and realised how badly the Belgian railways were in need of money.

Did French railways escape damage then? I not only fought in Belgium and marched through it, but also observed on my tramp through part of the devastated area of France how these railroads had suffered. Yet we are given special concessions, concessions which Belgian railways should extend in like manner to the wives and families of officers and men of the British Army for obvious reasons.

The point with regard to British railways is of no account. The British are on the Rhine for a purpose, not for pleasure. INFANTRY.

DRINKING CAPACITY.

Sir,—In reply to "Fair-play" I would say that I am quite familiar with the enormous drinking capacity of the Germans; having been in a position many years to act as hostess in so called high circles.

All men may like to drink more or less, but here they don't call it real hospitality unless one greets their guests at the door, so to speak, with bottle and glass.

Even at private dinners these are not left out of sight, from the moment of arrival till departure. And an afternoon tea is not complete, or considered "swell" without wine or champagne.

The German—not to mention the other sex—must have a bottle before him on every occasion, be it joy or grief, and isn't satisfied, like other nations, with a glass or two, but consumes bottle after bottle.

So this sort of thing on a Rhineboat is nothing new or at all remarkable.

AN AMERICAN.

WHY RAISE THE HAT?

Oh "Skipper" what a great idea!
What subtle wave of brain
Has lead you to propound a plan
By which in later life I can
Salute yet once again.

That old time courtesy with which
We raised our bowler hat,
Could only be a real success
If one provided, more or less,
A brim both hard and flat.

And now that hats of other shapes
By fashion are decreed.
The task of raising them with grace,
When meeting ladies face to face,
Is difficult indeed.

Let me but proffer a salute
How happy I should be,
For I have studied in the part
To make it quite a work of art
A thing the girls should see.

That little touch behind the ear,
That finished "follow through,"
The hand so smartly cut away
Will cause my lady friends to say
"I like that style, don't you?"

And yet another thought occurs
Why I should like your plan.
It serves to keep their memory green
Lest they forget that I have been
A military man!!!!

PRICES WHICH VARY.

Sir,—We are all aware that prices in Cologne shops vary considerably so far as the troops are concerned, principally because of the reduced value of the mark and the impression which has been created by Tommy himself that he is indifferent as to prices so long as they do not run into double figures.

I believe it is an Order that the prices of all articles shall be clearly marked. In the case of the better class shops this is carried out and the purchaser can then judge of the value of the article, but it seems to me that present high prices are induced by the troops themselves.

My advice to shoppers is to ask the price, shop warily and promptly decline to be a party to profiteering. At the same time he should make the shopkeeper understand the reason for his refusal to buy.

On the other hand the authorities should to my mind take drastic action in any gross cases which come to notice. Profiteering in wine should be brought to a close and each seller made to display the card which was in evidence in the early days of the occupation.

NIGHT HAWK.

MESSENGER DOGS.

Sir,—Can any of your readers give me information as to what was the daily ration given to our messenger dogs during the war and how was it given to them? I might mention that one I have acquired — a collie — is off colour and the Vet. has recommended that I put him back on to the old diet that he was born and bred to. DOG.

THE CANTEEN SYSTEM.

Sir,—Recently reference was made to the American Y.M.C.A. Hut at Coblenz, but the system in operation at the light refreshment counter was not mentioned, nor have I seen it in operation at any of the canteens in Cologne.

Briefly it is as follows:—

A price-list of goods for sale is hung in a prominent position, (which can be read at 10 yds. distance). At the end of the counter is a pile of small cardboard trays; the customer takes one or more and collects what cakes etc., he desires from large trays laid along the counter, as he passes along, and pays for what he has collected at the cash desk at the other end of the counter. Attendants along the counter supply ices, or drinks.

Taking note of the price-list a customer can calculate the cost of his refreshment and practically have the exact amount ready when he gets to the cash desk.

I do not claim that this suggestion will solve all difficulties, but it many help.

AYCHELPEE.

THE WINE TAX.

Sir,—A few days ago there appeared a notice in one of the German newspapers here, whereby British and Allied troops and subjects residing in Cologne were informed by the Burgermeister that on and after the 15th of September, taxes have to be paid on every bottle of wine consumed by us.

This was pointed out to the writer and a party of English friends visiting one of the cafés. We told the manager that the German papers were no authority to us and we shall pay when we see the order in the "Cologne Post" which is the only paper on which we rely in Cologne.

The German threatened us with the police as we refused to pay. Will you please be good enough to insert this in your paper and let us know what we have to do in order that we may know how to guide ourselves in the future?

(The order regarding payment of the Wine Tax was issued by the British Military Governor of Occupied German Territory under whose authority the Oberbürgermeister puts it in force. The order in full is given on page 4 of this issue.—Ed.)

MEDALS FOR ALL.

Sir,—I notice with pleasure that some of the workers connected with our organisation are opposed to the suggestion that the 1914-15 star should be issued to workers of the Y.M.C.A.

I for one out of respect for the feelings of the fighting man shall decline to wear it, because as I have contended all along it was a decoration intended for fighting men and should be worn by them alone.

A special medal for such workers who have done good work, is another matter, but to put Y.M.C.A. workers on the same footing as men who fought in the trenches is absurd. As a matter of fact war medal issues have to my mind been made on wrong lines. The fighting man who after all alone counted has been the last to be considered. Y.M. WORKER.

SALUTING DIFFICULTIES.

Sir,—The letter of K.R.R. voices a complaint I have often heard from junior officers and I am glad he has brought the matter forward.

The difficulty he mentions is increased when officers wear extra small stars or crowns on the shoulder-straps as so many do.

In the case of a short man like myself it is practically impossible to tell the difference in the case of a tall officer, between a second "loot" and a major, while a full "loot" and a Lieut.-Colonel appear the same.

One must be abreast of and taller than the officer to properly distinguish the marks.

It was a great mistake I think, to permit any variation of the standard uniform with the stars and crowns on the braided cuffs. The bands of braid thereon are an additional great aid to identification. TANKER.

GERMAN WOMEN IN OUR CLUBS — A PROTEST.

Sir,—May I be permitted through your columns to protest against the VI. Corps Club being used for the entertainment of German women?

On more than one occasion I have noticed these persons being brought in to dinner, and it hardly seems to me to be quite fitting,

Apart from the unpleasantness of having to subject English ladies to the embarrassment of sitting at the next table to people who drown the band in their efforts to assimilate soup, it is surely not the intention of the founders of the Club to turn it into a public restaurant.

If anyone wishes to dine with German acquaintances there are surely plenty of German restaurants where they may do so quietly and unobtrusively.

We who have wives, feel it a great privilege to be able to entertain them at the Club, and feel sure that they in their turn do not desire that this privilege should be extended to the women of the nation we have so recently been fighting.

CLUBLOVER.

POSTAL ORDERS.

Sir,—May I point out how badly some of us have been affected by the G.R.O. issued last week, limiting the purchase of postal orders to 10/-.

A married man I know is in the habit of sending the equivalent of 500 marks per month to his wife. When the rate was at 52, he drew 500, but was only able to obtain postal orders to the value of £1 during that month. The remainder he had to hold.

Meanwhile, the rate fell to 70. — He drew anotner 500, and was unable to obtain postal orders again, and at the present time he holds 1500 marks, vainly trying to send them to his wife, and at the same time, losing considerably, by the fluctuating rate.

Could not power be given to Company Officers to ascertain whether these cases are bona-fide ones and not "dishonest profiteering," and then be allowed to issue a written permission for obtaining money orders for transmission to England over the value of £1.

What makes a good Football Ground?

By Col. Sir Henry G. Norris, M.P.

(CHAIRMAN OF THE ARSENAL FOOTBALL CLUB, AND LATE DIRECTOR OF FULHAM.)

Given the right frame of mind, and seated in a comfortable arm-chair, it would be about the easiest thing in the world to dream of a football ground which would please everybody who wanted to attend the matches at that ground. In the first place, of course, the dreamer would see himself in a comfortable seat in which, leaning back and smoking at his ease, he could watch the players. In fair weather or foul this seat would be there, and there would be no need to worry about the elements, although in the depth of winter the addition of a foot-warmer might be advocated.

Again, travel to and from the ground would be made in comfort, and there would be no crushing at the turnstiles before the match or at the exit gates when it was all over. Alas! such dreams are never likely to come true, and the ideal football ground, like the ideal of anything else, is not likely to be attained.

In the first place, of course, the public wouldn't pay for it, and although it doesn't always work out that way football clubs should be run upon business lines which means that they should be able to pay their way—that the receipts should meet the expenditure.

THE SHILLING GATE.

Even this season already there have been in some parts of Britain organised attempts to persuade people to stay away from football matches because the big clubs unanimously decided to increase the pre-war price of admission from sixpence to one shilling. How the agitators against the shilling gate expected the clubs to carry on at the old price of admission I don't know. In actual revenue to the club the increase means an advance of fifty per cent, on pre-war price only, for threepence of every shilling goes to the Government by way of Entertainment Tax. I confidently hope that if we at Highbury have a good season we shall be able to meet the increased cost of everything in the football line, but it is doubtful if there is a single club in the country which would have finished on the right side if the old price of sixpence had been retained.

It must be remembered, primarily, that this fifty per cent. increase is absorbed at one bite by the fifty per cent increase which the clubs are paying to their professionals. So it is obvious that the clubs which were only barely paying their way before the war will not do that even with a shilling gate unless the average attendance goes up considerably. Increased expenditure has to be met on every hand, and to take one item only I should say that at a rough guess the travelling and hotel expenses of a football team this season will be three times as much as before the war.

A MILD AGITATION.

Possibly I am wandering from the subject, but after all it is not so irrelevant, for even the mild agitation against the shilling gate shows that the spectators will only pay a limited amount for their football, and clubs must of necessity cut their cloth accordingly.

At Highbury we have big schemes on hand, and we are out to make the new home of the Arsenal Club a good ground from every point of view. But those schemes of ours have to be proceeded with very cautiously. Our experience with the stand is a case in point. I believe it is one of the finest and biggest in the country—nearing the ideal, in fact—yet we wanted to make it even more comfortable by putting seats with arms throughout. Then the war came to stop the work, and now—well, you probably have some idea of the price of chairs!

At the present moment too, we are in a bit of a quandary, for the ground is not doing what it was intended to do in the way of providing accommodation for spectators, which is the same as saying that is it not ideal. Our architect tells us that we ought to get 70,000 people on the ground in comfort. Statistically, he is probably quite right, and if we could pick up each spectator and place him in his appointed and allotted space, I rather imagine we should carry out the architect's ideals. Unfortunately, the people get packed near the entrances, while there is yet plenty of room away from them, and in our very first match this season we had to close the gates when, if the crush near the entrances could have been relieved, we could have found room for thousands more.

HIGHBURY NOT IDEAL.

Obviously, the good ground is one around which the spectators distribute themselves evenly, and so that all have an equal chance of seeing the play. But for the time being, at any rate, it is quite impossible to make another way in at Highbury, so we have to be content with something less than our ideal.

Even as it is, the public could help very materially towards the ideal from this point of view if they would make a point of arriving at the ground at least half an hour before the time appointed for the kick-off, and take up their stand in a position where they would not be the means of preventing others from entering the ground. As a rule, this jamming near the entrances is caused by want of thought, not want of heart, but it is none the less distressing to the management.

However, so far as the Arsenal ground is concerned we are by no means satisfied. We want more covered terraces, more turnstiles, more exits, but unfortunately they cannot be obtained without more money, and until we have paid off some of the debt which is hanging over us, further large expenditure seems impossible. It is human nature to grumble, and we don't object to—in fact we have asked for—legitimate grumbles, but I just want to say this. We have had an attendance of 50,000 already this season. If each one of those fifty thousand would take up only one share in the fortunes of the club—that is one pound each—then our ideal ground would soon be there.

TO VIEW THE GAME.

It is nothing more than ordinary commonsense from a director's point of view that every man who pays to see a football match should be able to see it: to get an uninterrupted view of the game. There are some grounds, though, which are far from the ideal in this respect, and the Crystal Palace enclosure, where the F.A. Cup-finals are played, is one of them. Practically any number can be got on the ground, but I am afraid that quite a few of the 120,000 people I saw there some years ago did not see a lot of the game. But to provide a football ground on which, say, 140,000 people could get a comfortable and uninterrupted view of the game, would mean an expense over which, at the present price of things, even a Football Association might well shudder.

The huge ground at Hampden Park, Glasgow, comes much nearer the ideal than does the Crystal Palace, and it is a wonderful sight to see it packed with excited onlookers on an International match occasion.

I have hinted that the good ground should be easily accessible, and I think our choice of a site at Highbury comes comparatively near to the ideal in this respect. There are two stations just outside the ground, while tram and 'bus services from many parts pass quite near. Naturally there is a scramble for these 'bus and tube services after a match, but we can't help that. We take it that to the companies concerned a football match is a business proposition, and that, as far as they are able to do so, they will take most strenuous steps to deal with the crowds which want to attend the games.

OUR NEW COMPETITION.

Another Chance For Football Form Followers.

Competition No. 2.

Over a thousand coupons have been received from entrants to our football competition No. 1, so that in the event of there being only one winner a substantial sum of money awaits him.

The rules of the contest appear below together with the coupon for "Football Competition No. 2," which contains a selection of twelve matches to be played on Saturday, Oct. 4th.

The last day for sending in coupons, each of which must be accompanied by one mark, is Friday, Oct. 3rd.

Coupons must be addressed:—

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 2,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S.40 Rhine Army.

List Of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Thursday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

52nd K.L.R.'S INTER-COMPANY LEAGUE MATCH.

An inter-company League match took place at Romlinhoven on Thursday, between A Coy. and D Coy., 52nd K.L.R. From the start D Coy. worked hard to open their account but they found A Coy.s' defence too sound for their liking. A Coy. then gave the home defence trouble. Up to the interval there was no score.

About ten minutes after the interval, Taylor scored for D Coy. The same player registering another the following minute. Faced with this big reverse A Coy. tried hard to reduce the lead but when about twenty minutes from the end the full back helped a shot from Capt. Foss into the goal they slacked off considerably. The final came with D Coy. the winners by 3 goals to 0.

A.C.U. SIX DAY'S TRIALS.

The full results of the Auto-Cycle Union's six day's trials for motor-cycles, sidecar-machines, and three-wheeled cycle-cars, at Llandrindod Wells, have now been announced subject to confirmation by the committee.

Of the 115 machines which had entered, 111 started on the Monday, and 81 finished on Friday night. The awards were distributed in the following manner:—Gold medals, 22; silver medals, 36; bronze medals, 14. Nine of those who finished failed to secure any award.

The team prize was won by the three B.S.A. riders ("A" Team), with 557 marks. The other teams, in the order of merit, were:—Scott (539 marks), Rover (536), Enfield (526), Sunbeam (521), Blackburne (519), Matchless (507).

AQUATIC SPORTS.

1/6 West Yorkshire Regiment's Interesting Function.

THE PRIZEWINNERS.

The above sports were held at Nepteen Baths, all preparations being made by the German Baths officials, who were by no means the least enthusiastic amongst the spectators. A varied and interesting programme, drawn up by Capt. Rees, M.C., was witnessed. The most exciting event of the day was the Inter-Company Pole match. What the teams lacked in skill, they certainly made up for by their energy and enthusiasm.

In the afternoon, the prizes were presented by the wife of Brig.-General Potter, commanding the 2nd Northern Infantry Bde. In replying on behalf of Mrs. Potter the General commented on the splendid record achieved by the Battalion in all branches of sports since coming into Germany.

PRIZE WINNERS.

High dive:—1, L/C Megson; 2, L/C Hodkinson; 3, Pte. Sykes.

100 yards:—1, Cpl. Hume; 2, Sgt. Turner.

Egg and spoon race:—1, L/C Schulze; 2, Pte. Keeling.

Relay race:—1, "B" Coy.; 2, "D" Coy.; 3, "A" Coy.

Plunge (Distance):—1, Pte. Sykes; 2, Pte. Catling; 3, L/C Smith.

50 yards race:—1, Sgt. Barker; 2, Pte. Settle; 3, Sgt. Hailstone.

Running spring dive:—1, L/C Megson; 2, Pte. Sykes; 3, Pte. Eyre.

Nightshirt and candle race:—1, Pte. Catling; 2, Pte. Conboy.

STOOLBALL REVIVAL.

Proposed Establishment Of An Association In Sussex.

Major W. W. Grantham, J.P., well known as having revived the ancient Sussex game of stoolball, is still working hard to foster a wider knowledge of, and a keener interest in, the game.

At Lewes the other day a conference on the various details of the game, which he had arranged, was held, among those present being Mr. Ishiburo Yoshida, C.M.G., first secretary, Japanese Embassy. A motion, expressing the hope that Major Grantham would consider the possibility of a Sussex Stoolball Association being formed, was passed, and Major Grantham said he would be pleased to consider the matter.

Two interesting stoolball bats were exhibited by Major Grantham. One was used by him in the historic matches which took place at Lord's on Aug. 31, 1917, May 18, 1918, and May 24, 1919, and which he is presenting to Lord's; and the other was one which has been presented to him by the Princess Louise Military Hospital (Chailey) Stoolball team.

Y.M.C.A. FOOTBALL SHIELD.

1/6th West Yorkshire Regt. v. 11th Bn. Queen's.

The above teams met in the 2nd round at Blucher Park on Thursday. The Queen's, winning the toss, decided to play with the wind in their favour, with the result that they kept the Yorks defence busy and had hard lines in not taking the lead; but they only had themselves to blame, for they missed an open goal, their centre shooting wild. Play was now taken to the Queen's goalmouth where 2nd Lieut. Hunter, taking a goal opening, scored for the Yorks. Half time arrived with the Yorks leading 1—0.

The second half commenced with the play in favour of West Yorks which ended in a good run down the field by Cpl. Butterill whe beat the "goalie" with ease. The Queen's forwards were now playing a pretty game their inside left being very smart indeed. He was the best player on the Queen's side. The Yorks defence wa a firm as a rock their half-back playing very well.

Result:—
1/6th West Yorks Regt. 2.
11th Queen's 0.

GOLDEN MELODY.

Tuning Up For Cesarewitch Handicap.

GATWICK AND PONTEFRACT RESULTS.

Golden Melody certainly enhanced his Cesarewitch chances by a ready win over Ivanhoe and Happy Man in the two miles handicap over the galloping Gatwick course. The mount was entrusted to a little-known youngster named Speck—who is apprenticed to Escott—who shaped well at the finish, and he would not have to put up more than one or two pounds overweight if he renewed associations with the horse in the Cesarewitch, which will be the Melody's next race, as he will not be saddled for the Newbury Cup.

Gatwick details:—

Field Selling Plate:—Irish Fair 1; Red Flyer 2; Montludier 3.

Willow Selling Handicap:—Prevoyant 1; Simon's Craft 2; Chaplain 3.

Stayers' Handicap:—Golden Melody 1; Ivanhoe 2; Happy Man 3.

Crawter Nursery:—Pretty 1; Hebe 2; Betsy's Barn 3.

Redhill Welter Handicap:—Little Cell 1; Polygonum 2; Sea Song 3.

Gatwick Plate:—Kentish Cob 1; Neil-Girl 2; Handsworth 3.

Pontefract Details.

Leeds Three-Year-Old Handicap:—Flying Duck 1; Enniskeen 2; Rescue 3.

Town Two-Year-Old Selling Plate:—Nellie Allenby 1; Black Peter 2; Jaylan 3.

West Riding Autumn Handicap:—William Allenby 1; Black Lamb 2; Radiacy 3.

Newby Nursery Handicap:—Willblend 1; Redwings 2; Wendy 3.

Byram Plate:—Alderton 1; Sanitarium 2; Dornoch 3.

Nosteh Plate:—Hanway 1; Flying Squadron 2; Auramine 3.

LONDON BETTING.

Cesarewitch Stakes.

(Run Wednesday, Oct. 15. Two miles and a quarter.)

100 to 9 agst Gay Lord, 3, 7 (t and o)... Cottrill
100 — 7 — Golden Melody, 6, 6 3 (t and o) Gore
100 — 7 — Alasnam, 3, 6 (t and o)...R. Day.

Betting on the Cesarewitch.

After Golden Melody had won the Stayers' Handicap the following transaction on the Cesarewitch was noted:—

7000 to 600 agst Golden Melody (t)

Golden Melody.

Golden Melody seems to wipe out quite a lot of Cesarewitch aspirants, writes "Robin Goodfellow" in the "Daily Mail." All the form linked up with Ivanhoe and Happy Man goes into the dustbin. A prominent jockey with a mount in the big handicap, viewing Golden Melody as he stood in the unsaddling place, said he would "keep us thinking," and it certainly was a fine public trial for a horse weighted at 6st. 3lb. Speck, though, goes a little beyond this, and he will probably have to declare 3lb. overweight.

COL. SIR HENRY NORRIS, M.P.

"London's football knight" is the title bestowed by his many admirers on Col. Sir Henry Norris, Chairman of Woolwich Arsenal, who contributes a splendid article in to-days issue. "Six feet of humanity, invariably carrying an umbrella and wearing the air of a philosopher" is the description of him given by a well-known journalist, and his is a case where appearances are very deceptive. It was mainly due to his efforts that London football came more and more into the limelight; and to him is due the uplifting of the Arsenal club. The results of his foresight are accruing to-day.

He has been a director of Fulham and while in this position, took a leading part in opposing Chelsea's admission to the Southern League, this opposition resulting in Chelsea entering the Football League. So, there are to-day three of London's leading clubs who owe a great deal to the Member for Fulham.

Thick As Blackberries.

Tips for the Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire are as plentiful as blackberries at this period of the season. The majority are mostly bad or indifferent; but once now and again the "good thing" justifies itself.

Another Tetrarch.

Those who took notice of The Drummer when he was being saddled would have banked on his being of the Roi Herode breed. so much like The Tetrarch is he: but reference to the card disclosed the fact that he is a son of Book.

A Quaint Toy.

The Brussels griffon is probably the most whimsical-looking of all the toys, and he has the heart of a terrier behind that impish face which makes him different from most. Men seem to take to him as much as women.

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

Leave Club Concert.

A delightful concert was given at the Leave Club on Thursday by Miss West's choir. This choir had only met together during the last ten days, but the results were quite excellent. The concert began with a solo "Friend of mine" charmingly sung by Pte. Browning after which the choir sang various part songs among which were:—"The Chafers," "Upidee," and "Annie Laurie" rendered with good tone and finish. Miss West herself then played two attractive selections on her violin, the Valse Triste by Sibelius and a Norwegian Folk Song. Pte. Hallwell was the next soloist and his song "My old Shako" met with well deserved applause.

Deutsches Theatre.

"Man and Superman," generally admitted to be one of the best things our Dramatic Company has done, was last night revived at the Deutsches Theatre by special request. As was only to be expected, Shaw's play again admirably acted, filled the cosy theatre to overflowing. The performance will be repeated to-night.

Rhine Army (Male Voice) Choral Society

New members are wanted for the above society. It was formed in January last and has been the means of providing much entertainment for the troops of the Army of Occupation, both in Cologne and the outlying districts of the occupied areas. Demobilisation has greatly affected its membership, but it is thought that amongst the troops still left in Cologne, there must be many men who would welcome the opportunity the Society offers of sustaining their interest in choral music. It is to those men that the Society now appeals.

The First Rehearsal.

On Monday next the first rehearsal for the new session will be held from 5.45 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the Church Army Soldiers' Club, Antoniter Strasse, (in the lecture room on the first floor). Thereafter rehearsals will take place each Wednesday, Friday, and Monday at the same time and place. Any officer, N.C.O., or man possessing a voice of reasonable quality and being able to read very simple music at sight, is cordially invited to attend the first rehearsal.

"The Jesters."

I am glad to see that the "Jesters" continue to do bumper business at the Palace Theatre. Those who have not yet heard Miss Mabel Martin sing divinely, Mr. Chas Lewis "ventriloquise" and tear paper with great skill; Mr. Joe Morley play the banjo brilliantly, Miss Jessie Mountjoy entertain at the piano charmingly and Messrs Frank Hook and Harry King provoke peals of laughter, then waste no time. Next week I hear the "Jesters" are due at Solingen.

Comprehensive Entertainment.

In the great hall of the Central Y.M.C.A. on Thursday to the accompaniment of old English music and folk songs a demonstration of English country dances was given by soldiers who had been taught in the classes of Miss Daking and her trained staff, who danced with the soldiers. The raised sides and the galleries of the hall were filled with many hundreds of interested spectators and after the demonstration, an orchestra appeared on the scene and general dancing was enjoyed till 9.30 p.m. I was particularly gratified to see two poilus dancing with our own men; and I overheard them asking Miss Daking whether they might join one of her classes. I also noticed some soldiers dancing with their wives who were the only ladies other than members of the Y.M.C.A Staff who were allowed in the hall.

Leave Club Whist Drive.

With a score of 151 Pte. Cox won the first ladies' prize at the whist drive held at the B.E.L.C. on Thursday, while Pte. E.A. Tallis won the second ladies' prize with 148, and Cpl. Eveleigh got the 3rd prize with a score of 146. The gentlemen's prizes were awarded as follows;—1, Pte. J. Sutcliffe, (137); 2, Pte. Menore, (136); 3, Pte. Cort, (135). Gnr. J. S. Foote was a splendid M.C., while Leut. Hailey again presided.

In Few Words.

Frank Collinson, the brilliant pianist of the "Tonics" and the G.H.Q. Jazz Band, has now gone home demobilized. He leaves behind a host of friends and admirers of all ranks.

Satisfaction is expressed on all hands at the re-opening of the Cologne Opera House which after the strike, resumed its merry career yesterday evening. A full house witnessed an excellent performance of "Tosca".

JACQUES.

PROFESSIONAL GOLFERS.

Eight leading professional golfers played at Raynes Park on Wednesday in aid of a fund for the widow and children of Tom Ball, who was engaged by that club at the time of his death last spring.

The morning stroke competition was won by Abe Mitchell with 71, a fine score considering that all the tees were set back to the fullest extent. He was somewhat weak in his approaching over the first nine holes, but played a splendid long game, and putted soundly.

Ted Ray and Rowland Jones tied at 72 for second place, followed by Harry Vardon 73, James Braid 73, A Herd 75, J. Ockenden 76, and George Duncan 77.

Two four-ball matches were played in the afternoon. Ray and Ockenden stood three up on Mitchell and Duncan at the turn, and won by two up and one to play. The golf was better in the other match. Vardon and Braid were two up at the turn on Herd and Jones, and three up at the fourteenth hole, but they lost the next three, and the home hole being halved, the game ended all square.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Saturday, September 27th, 1919.

Surface wind between S.W. and S. 10 to 15 m.p.h. Weather fair but cloudy at times. Moderately warm. Fair visibility.

FOOTBALL GOSSIP.

(By Novo).

The failure of many of the pre-war "cracks" to get into the list of goal-scorers is surprising. The cases of Hampton and Stephenson (Aston Villa), Shea (Blackburn Rovers), Freeman (Burnley), Jefferis (Everton), Pagnam (Liverpool), and Peart (Notts County), are only instances by the way but they serve to show how old marksmen are being held.

* * *

Coventry City are not finding the Second League so pleasant after all. In five games they have scored only one goal and lost 20. It is not surprising therefore, that they were at the foot of the table with a cypher in the points column.

* * *

Notts Forest may not be going very well this season, but the policy of the directors in not making weekly changes in the team will likely bear fruit before long. At any rate the players cannot complain that they are not being given a chance to settle down.

* * *

It has been often noticed this season how Newcastle United seem to improve if they are the first side to score. In several of the matches they have played so far, there had been nothing brilliant about their forward play until they managed to get a goal, after which there seemed to be no holding them.

* * *

West Bromwich are to be envied, for they possess an all scoring forward line. It would be interesting to know what the Aston Villa directors think of Crisp, to whom they gave a trial and then turned him down because he was considered too small. There are several little 'uns in the League who have other qualities.

Unusual Wagering Incident.

"Sporting Life" hears of a man having a "pony" double on two horses at Newmarket last year, and although both horses won the backer lost money. He, however, had the unusual experience of being on one horse in a race over which there was no betting, while in the other event he was on one of two deadheaters, which started at long odds on. Though the same thing did not happen at Wolverhampton this week, we hear of more than one backer who laid slight odds on Rich Gift, and lost over the transaction.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Curran And The Giant.

Plymouth will have the opportunity of seeing Fulton, the 6ft. 5in. giant, in action against their favourite, P.-O. Matthew Curran, on October 10.

Nothing Doing.

Canute easily landed the odds of 5 to 2 laid on him in Belgium at the Stocke races. Offered for sale for £400, he failed to elicit a bid.

What Coventry Missed.

It is one of the ironies of fate that Wilson, the new 'Spurs centre-forward, should have formerly played for Coventry City. This club badly needs a goal-scoring forward.

Amateur For The Villa.

It is many years since an amateur played for Aston Villa's League team, and the debut of R. Sloley, the Corinthian forward—he hopes to play to-day—in the famous claret and blue colours will be watched with interest.

Billy Fry And Charlie Webb.

The management of the Liverpool Stadium are prepared to offer a purse of £150 (including expenses) for the match between Billy Fry, of Tylorstown and Charlie Webb, of Bow, who have signed "Sporting Life" articles to box 20 3-min. rounds at 9st 9lb for £100 aside.

Victorious Suzanne.

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen won the ladies' singles championship at Le Touquet, defeating Mrs. O'Neill, while A.E. Beamish won the men's singles.

Alasnam.

Alasnam is a colt by the Franco-American sire, Alpha II., out of Sunny Lass, and his only appearance this year was in a sprint won by King's Idler at Sandown in June.

Yearlings Sale.

At the Brussels Tattersall's eighteen yearlings were offered, and the highest price was £340 for a filly by Cornimont—La Milo. The others sold at prices ranging between £40 and £200.

Brompton F.C.

In future the New Brompton F.C, will drop the word "New," and be known as Brompton. The F. A. Cup-tie between Ashford and Maidstone, next Saturday will be played at Maidstone by arrangement.

Chances of Promotion.

The Tottenham directors are very pleased at the style in which their reserve players have risen to the occasion, and now that the critical question of the quality of the understudies has been so satisfactorily answered, there is optimism as to the chances of promotion.

Good Day's Work.

Ernest Barry, the world's champion sculler put in a good day's work in the Richmond district on Tuesday.

London to Bath.

Hart's run to Bath and back to London, a distance of 216 miles, is fixed to start next Tuesday.

Mr. Balfour At St. Andrews.

Mr. A.J. Balfour took part in a medal competition at St. Andrews on Wednesday. He started with Mr. Anthony de Rothschild.

Good N.H. Stakes.

One or two of the Wolverhampton directors having discussed their Boxing Day Meeting, it has now been decided to give £1,000 a day in stakes.

Much-Talked-Of.

Andrew Wilson, the much-talked-of Middlesbrough player, was at Tynecastle, Edinburgh, on Saturday, playing for Dunfermline Athletic against the Heart of Midlothian Reserves in a Central League game.

At A Premium.

Owing to various happenings good jocheys are at a premium in Belgium. Ashworth sprained his wrist at Boitsfort; at Spa Morjau prained his foot, and Heapy hurt his leg, while Garnier has been put down for a fortnight.

Manchester To Blackpool Walk.

The Victory walk to be held on Saturday, October 4, under the auspices of the Lancashire Walking Club promises to turn out a great success.

Boxing Nursery.

The Stansfield Boxing Club—nursery of such well-known boxers as Sid Smith, Bob Marriott, Charley Thompson, and the late George Williams—have secured large premises at Bermondsey.

Mr. W. Parrish's Races.

Mr. W. Parrish contemplates bringing a number of chasers to England for the National Hunt season, and next season he may have all his horses trained again in England.

Benefit Match.

The Cardiff City directors have decided to give their popular trainer, Capt. George Latham, M.C., a benefit match on Oct. 6. Swansea Town have accepted the invitation to play in the match at Ninian Park.

Keenest Rivals.

The news that Inman and Reece have signed articles to play a billiards match of 15,000 up for £100 a side will whet the appetites of the many enthusiasts who have for years missed no opportunity of watching perhaps the keenest rivals in any game.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Have You Seen a "mo' Bike"?

An amusing story of the adventures of an amateur motor-cyclist is at present going the rounds. It is told that an officer in the neighbourhood of Bonn, who was the lucky possessor of a motor-bicycle was approached the other night by a friend who was in desperate haste to keep an appointment. For this reason he borrowed the said "mo'-bike," promising to return it the following morning. He subsequently turned up bearing a piece of the clutch and an explanation. "I was throbbing along in fine style," he said, "when for some extraordinary reason the engine gave a cough and stopped. After some difficulty, I started up again but forgot the engine was in gear, so that it dashed from under my legs. When I saw the machine last, it was careering towards Cologne at about 50 miles an hour." What the owner of the bicycle thought and said is not recorded.

Selling to Tommy.

They say that history repeats itself. Almost any Tommy would prove that in his own experience. Take the following examples for instance:—On going home on leave for the first time after a year or two in the "Danger Zone" everybody must have noticed when approaching the quayside at Calais or Boulogne the crowds of French women, girls, boys and old men diving in and out amongst the ranks of the happy "blighters" marching to the ship. Their cries of "souvenirs", "oranges," "to-morrow's 'John Bull'" and "watches" always have a welcome sound in the ears of those bound for "Blighty.' On arrival at Victoria the Tommy had another kind of "barrage" to go through. Here he was surrounded by numerous English folk and pressed to have some refreshment. Cries of "buns" "tea," "bread and butter" filled the air.

A German Barrage.

In Germany the Tommy still has his barrages to contend with. Alighting from a tram at some of the "haltestellen" on the outskirts of Cologne after an evening in the city, he is at once surrounded by a dozen or so German womenfolk and girls and boys—the din of the barrage is awful. "Eine mark 'peers'" "'peers' eine mark" is yelled on all sides. With difficulty the Tommy shakes himself free, the tram is already out of sight and the sellers of 'peers' retire into the darkness, awaiting the arrival of the next tram.

Ways and Means.

Quite a noticeable personality in Cologne is the "Frau" who uses her head as a means of carrying parcels etc. which are usually too cumbersome to be carried by the hand. Not a day passes without one seeing women walking majestically along and crossing busy thoroughfares with apparent indifference to the continuous stream of traffic. This was particularly noticeable the other afternoon when a women was seen making her way through the maze of traffic that is always to be seen at the rear of the Cathedral and the approach to the Hohenzollern Bridge. Besides two good sized boxes wonderfully balanced with the aid of a small cushion, evidently to make the carrying of articles in this way more comfortabe, her hands were occupied in leading two small children across the road. This must be an everyday experience to the German public who took no notice whatever of what looked like quite a clever performance.

The wine tax.

A new official order regarding the wine tax is now in force in Rhineland. When wine (including sparkling wine) is purchased in bulk, i. e. in quantities of twelve bottles or more, the wine tax will not be paid by members of the Allied Forces. In such cases a certificate stating: (I) Number of bottles purchased, (II) Sum paid, (III) Name of wine merchant, (IV) Nature of wine, will be given to the vendor. This certificate will be signed and stamped by an officer. When wine is purchased in quantities of less than 12 bottles the wine tax will be paid. This order came into force on September 15th.

Harvest Festival.

To-morrow (Sunday) Harvest Festival Services will be held at the Garrison Church (57 Schildergasse). The ladies of the Q.M.A.A.C. will be decorating the Church from 2.30 p.m. on Saturday and will be grateful for gifts of flowers, fruits or bread. The services will be as usual—at 10.30 a.m. and 6 p.m. The Holy Communion will be celebrated at 8 a.m and after the morning and evening services.

Army Lists.

We understand that a limited number of sets of the Monthly Army List for the period, July 1915 to December 1918, during which copies were not on sale, as well as for the period, August 1914 to June 1915, are now available for officers of the Army and others. Applications for sets or individual copies should be addressed to the Secretary, War Office and marked (C 2) so as to arrive not later than October 31st. No remittance should accompany such applications, as no distribution will be made until after that date. A communication will be sent in due course to applicants when the distribution has been decided upon, as it may be possible that the applications received may exceed the number available for sale.

Re-Echoes.

Inadequate available rolling stock is apparently responsible for the coal shortage in Germany, and not lack of the commodity itself.

A new type of pocket knife, containing, as well as a miniature tool outfit, a telescope corkscrew, is a souvenir now in great demand.

Farewell dinners to officers about to be demobilized have been very frequent in the clubs lately.

The departure from Cologne of Lieut. Duffin, officer-in-charge of the N.A.C.B. Clubs will grieve his many friends.

Overheard in the sleeping quarters at Riehl Barracks, after long argument—1st voice: "Only fools are certain". 2nd ditto: "Are you sure?" 1st., voice "I'm—positive".

A small fare for soldiers is charged on the tramways in French occupied territory. This we are informed is to prevent misuse of the cars.

After our S.O.S., and the verses which followed we were delighted to hear a comparatively recent London success played in a cafe the other evening.

If you are ever in Wiesbaden on a Sunday you should not fail to attend the orchestral concert at the Kurhaus. It is perhaps the finest orchestra in Rhineland and the performance commences at 4 p.m.

During the "Cologne Post" advertising campaign, which begins next week, thirty-six cinemas in Rhineland will exhibit screen notices. The campaign should be an unqualified success.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Signaller C. Thorne, Wireless section Rhine Army, Signal Coy. and A. Steel A. I. Army General and Commercial College Cologne.

AROUND AND ABOUT.

UTILITY HOMES.

Men who have roughed it in dug-out and trench will appreciate the significance of the change which is coming over the home. Husbands may not know it, but there is a revolution pending. The Army has returned expecting comfort, and soldiers do not find it sitting gingerly on the edge of frail drawing-room chairs. The old-world drawing-room in moderate homes is doomed, and the inlaid chair with it. The 'couch' is giving way to the 'Chesterfield,' and the Victorian round-chair in a few months will be seen only in the antique shops. In fact, the drawing-room is going to be the ante-room as the housewife sees it, a combination of the workman's 'best parlour' and my lady's boudoir."

DEEP WATER PHOTOGRAPHY.

Details are available of the method by which a remarkable photograph of the wrecked liner Laurentic was taken at the bottom of the Atlantic ocean off the coast of Donegal. A camera was enclosed in a watertight iron tank with a glass porthole. A diver then took it down and electric bulbs were lowered from the salvage steamer to provide light for the picture. An exposure of ninety minutes was given and an admirable picture of the wreck was secured.

RATS AND BAD TELEPHONES.

An official of the Board of Agriculture states that there is a large increase in London of the Alexandrinus rat, the black rat. This destructive animal comes from the East and is known in its native place as the tree rat, being famous for its climbing abilities. According to this official it is quite possible that one of the causes of the present bad telephone service may be the damage done to the cables by these rats. The insulating material used for cables is partly composed of fat which has a great attraction for rats of all kinds. It is said that numbers of rats have recently been seen crossing the streets of the city on telephone wires.

OLDEST FREE LIBRARY.

Though the oldest of the municipal public libraries represented at the Southport congress of the Library Association—those of Manchester—date only from 1852, quite a number of English towns had free libraries of a sort as early as the beginning of the 17th century. Norwich opened a free library in 1608, and Dr. Toby Matthew Archbishop of York, assisted a Mr. Robert Redwood to found a similar institution at Bristol in 1615. Leicester, too, had a free library in 1632, and in 1653 Sir Humphrey Cheetham founded the noble Cheetham library at Manchester. Despite many ups and downs these and other similar town collections remained in use until, for the most part, incorporated in modern municipal libraries.

COLD LIGHT.

Now that the Greenwich Experimental Station has commenced operations, we may hope that some method of producing artificial light less prodigal than the existing methods may be evolved. At present we make light by heating certain substances until they are incandescent, and in the most efficient light some 96 per cent, of the energy producing it is wasted as unnecessary heat—in most cases, indeed, not 2 per cent. becomes available as light. Users of electric light, have to buy a whole sheep to get a single chop. When electric light and gas engineers discover how to make cold light, as does the firefly, whose light represents practically 100 per cent. of the energy at the back of it, the fuel problem will be enormously simplified.

DENBY DALE'S PEACE PIE.

Denby Dale, a West Riding village famous for its festival pies, is considering whether it will celebrate Peace in accordance with its usual custom. The village has five gigantic pies to its credit. The first was made in 1788, to celebrate the recovery of George III.; the second in 1815, to mark the conclusion of peace between England and France; the third—a Repeal pie—in 1846; the fourth, to commemorate the 1887 Jubilee; and the fifth, in the same year. The Jubilee pie weighed over two tons and cost £250, but was so "high" that it was uneatable. Another was made, and this furnished a meal for over 3,000 persons. It contained 47 stones of beef, one calf, one sheep, 48 stones of flour, and 100 stones of potatoes.

TRAGIC FERMOY.

Fermoy, now added to the list of Ireland's tragic names, is a charming little town of County Cork, on the Blackwater. Three centuries ago, in the adjacent Kilcoleman Castle, Edmund Spenser wrote the immortal "Faerie Queene," while as the agent of the Government, he was carrying out the merciless Elizabethan policy, in association with Sir Walter Raleigh. Turn now to Spenser's "View of the Present State of Ireland," with its horrible details of repression, and you may be able to form some idea of the long and bitter memories of South-West Ireland. In 1598 the poet-oppressor was driven out of Kilcoleman, and had to fly in a destitute condition to London.

PHOTOGRAPHY.

(XXIV.)

By LIEUT. W. ROBERT PATTERSON.

Amateur photographers are usually impatient to see the results of their efforts; they become restless when the shopkeeper suggests a delay of a week or so. I have already advised amateurs they should learn to develop their own plates and films. Some have replied that they could not be bothered with the encumbrance due to the necessary paraphernalia. But there is no need to be encumbered at all. In Cologne we have at least two institutions—and I shall be glad to hear of others,—which have excellent dark rooms on their premises, well installed. These are the Y.M.C.A. in Friesenstrasse and the Rhine Army Bookshop in Hohenzollern Ring.

* * *

Nor need the beginner feel anxious as to results, for if his exposure has been correct as regards duration and the power of light at the moment, the instructors in photography will lend him all assistance and coach him up in the various processes. All amateurs will find this not only economical but likewise instructive.

* * *

And another thing! Now that the autumn is upon us, those of us who really intend to make photography a hobby, should attempt that most fascinating branch—pictures in their natural colours. The varied autumn tints, yellows, reds, browns and indigos, lend themselves, to such work, particularly when illuminated by direct sunlight. It is a good plan for all to learn something of the values of colour and shade. Charming studies of flowers may be made and admired long after the blooms themselves have gone the way of all living matter. Portraits of those dear to us may be retained, in their natural "nuances," for quiet inspection in later years.

* * *

The simplest things, too, present a sweet beauty of their own when reproduced in colour,—for instance, an old grey ruin, crowned with dark and light verdure, and with bright moss between the fissures,—nothing in a plain photograph, perhaps, but delightful when viewed through a colour-plate.

* * *

This branch of photography is more expensive, it is true, than the simple process but I consider it worth both the trouble and expense. One does not print them on paper; the negative itself becomes a positive by immersion in a prepared solution, and may then be employed as a lantern-slide. Such plates are also used as panels, giving a most beautiful effect against the light. They may, too, be arranged several together round an electric lamp and, here again, the effect is pleasing. Sunrises and sunsets are good subjects, too, producing splendid depth of colour, with clear-cut outlines. Having been properly developed, fixed and varnished, the plates may be preserved almost for ever.

THE PRONUNCIATION OF GERMAN.

The troops in Rhineland, with foresight and much to their credit, are rapidly acquiring a knowledge of the German tongue. It is going to be of extreme assistance to some of them in the future.

I feel it my duty, however, to warn them against learning the 'Platt', i. e., the Rhineland dialect, the tongue of the the proletariat. Never learn your German from the peasant or other humble, however estimable folk.

It may prove useful to one in many cases, to understand the dialect, but for those who intend to use the German language later for commercial, military, diplomatic and other reasons, I strongly advise the student to imitate the pronunciation and acquire the phraseology of the educated people here.

Most of the young soldiers with whom I have spoken in Cologne on the subject of pronunciation are able to "make themselves understood" as one says. Nevertheless, this is not sufficient.

The 'ch' and the 'ü' seem to present difficulties to many of them. Now, there are two kinds of 'ch' in German as in Scottish pronunciation. Let us take, as an example, the word 'Nachricht' which signifies 'news', and we shall discover that the two 'ch's' which occur therein, are entirely distinct sounds.

Before an 'a' or an 'o' or an 'u' the 'ch' is equivalent to that of the Scottish word 'loch' signifying 'lake' as in 'Loch Lomond'.

It is called a 'guttural' sound which means that it is uttered in the throat. When it follows either 'e' or 'i' it resembles more the soft sough of wind through leafy branches. One must always bear in mind that it should never be pronounced as in English 'sh', such as in 'shame'.

Now, ask an educated German to give you the pronunciation of the following words and listen attentively!

Ach.	Loch.
Echt.	Geruch.
Ich.	Nachricht.

The 'ü' is sounded like the French 'u' as in 'tu', 'vu', etc. I know only one place in the British Isles where the natives pronounce approximately this sound, and that is Glasgow.

But it is not difficult to acquire, if one will but practise thus:—Open your mouth and pronounce aloud the vowel 'ee' as in 'meet', 'feet', etc. Then gradually, and very slowly, purse and protrude the lips as though to end up with a whistle, and continue to sound the same 'ee'.

If you pay particular attention you will notice a change in the tone of this 'ee' as you proceed. In fact, it becomes, by degrees, some other sound, and, when the lips are thrust forward and pursed, so to speak, as in the act of whistling the vowel then produced is no more 'ee', it is the German 'ü' and the French 'u'. The German 'u' is equivalent to the English 'oo' in 'boot', or in 'book'.

Now, ask a German to pronounce the following words for you!

Buch.	Bücher.
Mutter.	Mütter.
Tuch.	Tüchtig.

Ask him to tender you a few more examples.

And then study with all your might for our country needs linguists. German will be very necessary in the future.

RAILWAY STRIKE STARTS.

GOVERNMENT REFUSES TO BE COERCED AND WILL USE FORCE IF NECESSARY.

LEAVE AND DEMOBILISATION CANCELLED.

NO TRAINS.

ENGLISH RAILWAYS AT A STANDSTILL.

The general railway strike with which England has been threatened for months is a fact! The spasmodic disturbances which have occurred at intervals during this year have given the public a forecast of the perils and discomforts of a general strike. No one will seek to minimise the gravity of the situation which has arisen, and the time has come when the Government must either govern or surrender to organised force. The interests of the nation are before those of a section of its workers. It is certain that the nation will not be forced into accepting the railwaymen's terms.

The earlier happenings, since the National Union of Railwaymen, launched its ultimatum, were reported in yesterday's "Cologne Post". Thursday was spent in negotiations between the Government and the Railwaymen's Union.

Abortive Conference.

The result of these conferences, which culminated in a meeting with the Prime Minister at Downing-street lasting three and a half hours, was the issue by Mr. Lloyd George's private secretary of the following official statement:

The Prime Minister, with Mr. Bonar Law, accompanied by other members of the Government, discussed fully and frankly the whole situation from the point of the National Union of Railwaymen. It was agreed to have a further discussion to-morrow (Friday) at twelve noon.

Beyond this bald statement no official information about the progress of the negotiations was available. Had the Government however not been willing to reconsider these terms in the light of any representations which the railwaymen might wish to make, obviously they would not have been ready to parley further with Mr. Thomas and his colleagues, especially under a public threat of a strike on the expiry of a short time limit.

Pre-determined Action.

At the same time the threat to call a general strike at midnight on Friday was a serious obstacle to a peaceful settlement by negotiation. All branches of the union had been instructed not merely to hold themselves in readiness to strike but actually to cease work on Friday night unless in the meantime they received countermanding instructions from the Executive Committee. The Government were therefore in presence of a strike not simply threatened, but actually declared, and by the terms of the railwaymen's ultimatum the strike could only be called off if the Government made a new and more favourable offer by noon on Friday.

It is announced that the point of view of the Government is that nothing more grave could have happened to the country at the present time. The country is just beginning to rehabilitate itself after the exhaustion of war, to get its industries going and to set the wheels once more revolving to take part in the general world trade. Any stoppage of our trade at present must necessarily be disastrous and nobody can exaggerate the importance of that aspect of the strike. It is pointed out by the authorities that the strike in their view has taken place with great precipitancy. There seems to be no reason at all why it should come now. It is taking place because of a supposed fear on the part of the railwaymen that their wages are going to be reduced below their present level but they have an absolute guarantee that the present wages will continue at least until the 21st December and will keep at the present level until there is an appreciable change in the cost of living.

Force of Arms if Necessary.

The Government considers that to bring about a strike just now is extraordinarily callous and shows complete disregard to common public interest. The attitude of the Government is that now the matter has reached this pass the strike must be resisted and fought with all the forces of the country.

A good deal of organisation exists already, viz:— specially prepared organisation to deal with the distribution of food supplies. If necessary all motor vehicles will be commandeered for the purpose. Whilst it is hoped that the matter can be settled without civil disturbance the Government is determined to see it through. Wherever it is possible for volunteers to do the work, when they are ready to volunteer protection will be given them where necessary. It is a strike against the community under conditions which the Government considers unreasonable and if necessary it is going to be fought with the full resources of the country on the side of authority.

How London Received the News.

London received the first news of the great strike with feelings of incredulity and even levity. Young people in the trains returning homewards from the city seemed to regard the matter as a huge joke with prospects of extra holidays, but as the evening wore on with warnings from all sides of the paralysation of food and other supplies the matter quickly assumed a serious aspect, and London is now awaiting what is going to happen next.

Crocodile Tears.

Mr. J. H. Thomas has issued a statement in which he says:—"This is the saddest day of my life. It is with deep regret that I have to announce a failure to arrive at a settlement. No effort has been spared by the Executive Committee to find some bridge that would avert a crisis the consequences whereof it is impossible to foresee."

Mr. Thomas hopes that the members of the Union will realise that neither disorder nor rioting will help their cause. Damage to property will not be countenanced.

A Sympathetic Union.

A special executive council meeting of the London and Provincial Union of Licensed Vehicle Workers was held last night to discuss what action the Union is prepared to take. Mr. Smith, the organising Secretary said: "This Union has never been a party to allowing its members to blackleg for any other section of transport workers and I don't see any reason why we should alter our policy on this occasion."

No Leave or Demobilization.

The War Office announces that owing to the railway strike all leave and demobilization is suspended forthwith. It is further announced that the railways will be guarded by troops, but no arrangements have yet been announced for the running of trains by troops.

BEAUTIFUL ADVENTURE.

D'ANNUNZIO'S MAD ENTERPRISE CANNOT CONTINUE.

During the last twenty-four hours the international situation at Fiume has considerably improved. Italy has now realized that D'Annunzio's adventure, though beautiful in itself, is extremely dangerous and is destined to create endless embarrassment for the Government, which is already facing a difficult situation. The leading newspapers throughout Italy are now rallying to the support of the Government, but political controversy is still raging between the supporters and opponents of the Premier, Signor Nitti.

The national subscription on behalf of Fiume, which was expected to yield one million Lire in two days, yields instead only a few thousand daily.

PEACEFUL BLOCKADE OF RUSSIA.

The Supreme Council yesterday decided to take legal advice as to whether there is any satisfactory formula under which the Allies may peacefully blockade Bolshevist Russia. It is suggested that the Powers enforcing the blockade would warn merchant vessels against entering the prohibited zone and might pay compensation for a ship which was forcibly prevented from proceeding.

Precedents for such blockade—that is, without a previous declaration of war—can be found in the blockade of Greece in 1916-1917 before the fall of King Constantine and the blockade of the Venezuelan coast by British, French and German naval forces in 1903.

FUTURE OF SPITZBERGEN

IMMENSE COAL FIELD DISCOVERED

The Supreme Council at Paris yesterday approved the report of the Spitzbergen Commission giving Norway political sovereignty over that island. During the war we destroyed the wireless station and other establishments erected by the Germans at the Ebeltoft Harbour, and hoisted the British flag. The Germans also made use of Spitzbergen as a submarine base. A few days ago the Scottish Exploring Expedition under the direction of the well-known Arctic explorer, Dr. Bruce, returned after completing an exhaustive geological survey of the island. They discovered rich seams of coal estimated to contain five million tons in one square mile. The Foreign Office has already guaranteed the rights of established exploring companies without regard to the future sovereignty of the island.

AUSTRIA FILES ITS PETITION.

On account of the disastrous condition of her food and fuel supplies, Austria is said to be about to declare herself bankrupt and place her Government in the hands of the Allied Missions now in Vienna.

KNOTT NOTIFIED.

REPUDIATED BY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

"All statements which have appeared in the newspapers relating to future trade relations between Great Britain and Germany, and to schemes for controlling imports and exports, which have emanated from one of its responsible officers are deprecated by the Chamber. Such statements being unauthorised, do not receive the approval of its members. Neither the Council nor the members of the Chamber were consulted on the subject, and the statements were made entirely without their cognisance.

"A resolution was passed disapproving of Mr. Knott's action and calling upon him to resign his position as Honorary President of the Chamber.

"It was furthermore decided that the title of the Chamber in the future should be "British Chamber of Commerce, Cologne" instead of "British Chamber of Commerce in Germany," which has been the title up to the present.

For and on behalf of the British Chamber of Commerce (pending incorporation)

Assistant-Secretary."

The above statement is printed exactly as received from the British Chamber of Commerce, Cologne.

It is their own summary of the proceedings at a special meeting of members held at the Hotel Disch on Friday evening, a meeting to which we were not invited.

Behind this repudiation of the ex-Honorary President, Mr. C. Knott, lies an interesting story, culminating in a grandiose but unworkable and onesided plan of trade operations, an investigation by a Daily Mail sleuth and the discarding of Mr. Knott by the British Chamber of Commerce, Cologne.

It was on the 1st August, the day on which Mr. Knott succeeded to the Honorary Presidency, that the title "British Chamber of Commerce in Germany," was adopted. Although trade and trading conditions in occupied territory have afforded unbounded scope for the operations of such a body, Mr. Knott went much further afield. He went to Berlin, where he spoke with Herr Erzberger and others. Then he announced his scheme, the main feature of which was to be a clearing house in Berlin for trade between England and Germany and a system of permits which were described as for regulating trade but which practically amounted to commercial espionage.

Heralded by the publicity accorded the proposal of this self-constituted go-between Berlin and London, Mr. Knott went to London to see Sir Auckland Geddes, President of the Board of Trade, who was, however, too busy to grant him an interview.

The London Chamber of Commerce and commercial men generally looked askance at the scheme and began to ask "Who is Mr. Knott?" The Trade Correspondent of the Daily Mail found him and questioned him about the scheme.

"I am on a confidential mission from the German Government to the British Government. Therefore I cannot discuss it now," he said.

"Then the scheme originates with the German Government?" pursued the correspondent.

"I would rather not discuss that now. The simple aim is to show the British people that the Germans do not want to dump their goods here. They do not, on the other hand, mind our sending our goods there."

"Are you working with the London Chamber of Commerce?"

"No I am not."

In a subsequent article the "Daily Mail" printed a record of some of Mr. Knott's business activities but Mr. Knott failed to keep an appointment he had made with the writer of the article.

He was en route for Cologne. When he arrived the Chamber of Commerce lost no time in giving him his quietus.

OPERA STRIKE OVER.

England may be trainless, but Cologne has the opera again. The strike of the chorus and ballet at the Opera House is over. It has ended, after lasting a week and involving a loss to the authorities put at 70.000 marks, in a compromise between the municipality and the strikers. The claim of the strikers was in the case of men, an increase of salary from 2,410 marks a year to 6,0 0 marks, and in the case of women, from 2.000 marks to 5,040 marks. Under the settlement, married men have been granted an increase of 550 marks a year, unmarried men 340 marks and women 300 marks. "Tosca" was presented on Friday night, and music lovers again have the prospect of happy evenings before them.

ARGUE—BUT LOAD THE GUNS.

The Esthonian Minister to Finland states that peace negotiations with the Soviet must not cause a break in the united fighting front of the Baltic States, which must continue to be maintained while negotiations are proceeding. In view of probable Bolshevist agitation and propaganda a neutral zone should be established between Esthonia and Soviet Russia.

The Ministry of Health is now preparing a new set of regulations which will make the building of wooden houses permissible.

FRENCH-ASQUITH.

ASSERTIONS, DENIALS AND RECRIMINATIONS.

The French-Asquith controversy is taken a step further by the publication yesterday of the ex-Premier's reply to certain remarks made by Lord French in the new preface to his book "1914." In this preface Lord French has replied to Mr. Asquith's criticisms contained in his speech on the 3rd of June. He emphatically denies that he has ever stated that the Army in the Spring of 1915 had as much ammunition as it could use in the next advance. Mr. Asquith's present reply is contained in a letter to a correspondent in which he says "What you call the controversy between Lord French and myself is not of my seeking. I preserved complete silence: but when Lord French, apparently in pursuit of a vendetta against the fame and memory of a great soldier and a former colleague of my own—Lord Kitchener — who can no longer speak for himself and to whom Lord French stood under strong personal obligations, proceeded, in my judgment, to falsify history, I felt bound to intervene."

With regard to the two letters of warm commendation and appreciation of his services from Mr. Asquith, cited by Lord French, Mr. Asquith remarks that it was his practice to convey with all possible emphasis to the General in supreme command in the field an expression of confidence and encouragement, but if he had known then what Lord French has avowed since — that at the date of this last appreciative letter Lord French was engaged behind Kitchener's back in manoeuvring to upset the Government at home, it is probable that the communication would have been couched in somewhat different terms. Mr. Asquith concludes his letter with: "To have a bad memory is a misfortune, not a crime. But people who have bad memories should not attempt to write their own or other people's lives."

CLEMENCEAU'S HOMAGE.

FINE TRIBUTE TO BRITISH EMPIRE.

In his speech in the French Chamber on the Peace Treaty M. Clemenceau spoke of the solidarity with which the Allied plenipotentaries had produced a scheme out of a political and material chaos of the most complicated nature. He made a graceful allusion to the story of Mr. Lloyd George's question: "Would you have won the war without Great Britain's help?" His answer was "No."

The Premier spoke with emotion of the events of March and April 1918, and showed that England and France in those serious circumstances gave a proof of the most perfect solidarity. Continuing, M. Clemenceau said: "What made the action of the United States so fine was that they came to fight in order to pick up the challenge of one who had said: 'Our future lies on the water.' Nothing obliged American statesmen, nothing obliged America to come, but the American Army did come at the precise moment when despite our courage we were resisting across our ruins, and America brought us hope."

Referring to the extensive use of the English language at the Peace Conference, M. Clemenceau pointed out that Britain had increased her population since the eighteenth century by two or three hundred millions, whose language was at present the most widely spoken in the world. "I thought," he said, "that we ought to show a spirit of generosity towards the men who had come to shed their blood for us. Their plentipotentiaries considered that they owed it to their people to speak their own language. Could we refuse it?" He spoke with deep emotion of the heroism of the American, British, Canadian and Australian troops and particularly recalled the sacrifices made by the Australians. "Are we," he exclaimed, "to refuse to those men, to Mr. Hughes, to Sir Robert Borden, to Mr. Massey, the gratitude we owe them? The same blood is in their veins. Never would England secure from them a vote contrary to the interests of their own countries. I have found them to be friends of France. Must there not have been something in the minds and hearts of these men from the confines of the Pacific to induce them to spring to arms and come to us, to equal in courage anything known in history. Do you not realise the solidarity which is being created and that it is folly to reproach us with having introduced them into the Council of the League of Nations?"

M. Clemenceau's tribute caused loud applause.

THE 200-BOTTLE MEN.

Apropos our recent letters from modern Munchausens on the subject of wine consumption the fact which is stronger (not stranger) than fiction has just transpired. It concerns the President of the German Republic! The leaders of Germany are continually urging the necessity for counting every penny; therefore, the details of the entertainment of Ebert and Noske during their recent visit to Darmstadt are severely criticised. Luncheons and dinners cost nominally £218, exclusive of wine, of which over 200 bottles were consumed; £10 was spent on motor-cars and £21 on floral decorations. The cost of the entertainment falls on public funds. Germans are remarking that they have all the expense of an imperial régime and none of its dignity.

Arrangements were completed yesterday for over twelve thousand men to return from Archangel via Leith and Hull.

WOMEN IN CLUBS.

6th CORPS CLUB AND GERMAN GUESTS.

Reference has frequently been made in these columns to the social amenities—without which life would indeed be humdrum—provided by the VI Corps Club in Cologne. Such references have invariably been eulogistic of the manner in which the institution is managed. Consequently, in view of the protest of "Clublover," which appeared yesterday in the "Editor's Letter-Box" column, in which the writer objected to German women being entertained in the Club's precincts, a representative of the "Cologne Post" had a chat with the officer in charge. "There is absolutely no truth," he said, "in the suggestion that Clublover makes, that German women are wilfully permitted to be entertained in the Club of which I am in charge."

"As far as my own knowledge goes," he continued, "no German—either man or woman—has ever been a guest, but should this by any extraordinary and isolated chance have happened, the visitor must have been introduced by a British officer and have been to all outward appearances a British or Allied subject, speaking the English language fluently."

Our informant went on to say that every precaution was invariably taken to ensure that the Club's doors were open only to legitimate members. On more than one occasion officers had complained to him that German women were taking a meal or some form of refreshment in the lounge. Investigation had, without exception, brought conviction that the complainant was mistaken, bona fides of a positively unquestionable nature having been produced, proving the identity of the person in question.

In some cases, admitted the officer of the Club, superficial evidence appeared to be so positively concrete as to justify the complaint, but the explanations of the individual whose nationality appeared to be under discussion were sufficiently convincing to leave not the slightest doubt in the mind of the enquirer as to her being a native of a friendly country.

"Only a day or two ago," proceeded our informant," I had occasion to approach a female diner who wore no external badge of identification to enquire the right of her presence. The lady in question replied in perfect English but displayed great indignation at the fact of being questioned. She resolutely refused, beyond verbal declaration, to prove to what country she belonged, and I had consequently no alternative but to ask her to leave the club.

"Getting back to the point, however," the speaker continued, "it appears fairly obvious that the writer of the letter which appeared in the "Cologne Post" yesterday is woefully ignorant of the elementary etiquette of club life. If be were present when the offending women were supposed to have made their appearance I should have imagined that his first instinct would have been to find the individual responsible for the place with a view to having enquiries made, and, if his suspicions were confirmed, of having the people removed."

OUR HOLY PLACE.

SAVING YPRES FROM DESECRATION.

British newspapers welcome the statement made in the Belgian Chamber by the Minister of the Interior, who declared that in concert with the British authorities it has been decided to keep the Cloth-hall, market, cathedral and adjacent houses at Ypres in their present state, and that steps have been take to preserve them from vandalism. As the Minister stated, these ruins will constitute a place of pilgrimage whither members of the Allied nations will come to honour the memory of their countrymen who fell while striving to keep inviolate the remaining shred of Belgian soil. To Britain, whose men for four long years, exhibited superb tenacity and unmeasured heroism in defending the region around Ypres this decision is particularly welcome.

No convention has yet been formed for settling the final allotment to Canada of part of the ramparts of Ypres and the Porte de Menin, but the Belgian Government has agreed to the request of the Dominion that the emplacement where General Mercier fell shall be allotted to it with a view to the erection of a museum on the spot. British colonial soldiers share with the troops from England the honour of defending this ground in no mean degree.

GERMAN AS PRIVATE.

JOINED BRITISH ARMY IN 1914.

Can a German join the British Army? Speaking in perfect English and ignoring the services of an interpreter, a German resident in Cologne declared before the Summary Court yesterday that he served in the British Army from August 1914 until he was discharged as medically unfit in December 1914.

"And would you have continued to serve in the Army but for this rejection?" asked the President of the Court. "Yes" was his reply.

He was charged with being in possession of certain military clothing, his defence being that he was minding them for an R.A.S.C. corporal at present on leave.

The case was adjourned for the attendance of an essential witness.

ROYAL WARRANT.

PAY OF WARRANT OFFICERS N.C.O.'s AND MEN.

TWELFTH ARTICLE OF THE SERIES.

6. The trades of all arms and departments classified in five groups (A—E) are shown in detail in Table 3. After a soldier has been enlisted for a trade in one of the groups he will be eligible for advancement in that group to a higher class or rank, but will not be transferred to any other group unless he is remustered in another trade in a different group. Soldiers of the rank of private will be classified according to qualifications. There will be universal standard tests for each trade for all arms, and soldiers will be placed in their appropriate class according to their qualifications. Should a soldier after having been placed in a class subsequently fall below the standard prescribed for that class, or fail to show diligence in his duties he will be disrated to a lower class or he may be removed from the tradesman's groups altogether.

Increments dependent on service will be subject to a satisfactory standard of military efficiency. Service in a class will count for increment in any higher class to which the soldier may be promoted.

No soldier will be paid under paragraph 5 who does not belong to a trade shown in Table 3.

7. Service during which a soldier is paid under paragraph 2 will count for increments under paragraph 5, in the case of transfer to a tradesman's group.

8. Clerks hitherto paid under Articles 821, 835, 880, and 1009, Pay Warrant, will be paid as tradesmen. In the absence of instructions to the contrary, promotions by time will continue as laid down in those Articles, but no increments will be given for length of service in a particular rank. The question of increments and conditions of promotion generally for clerks are under consideration, and are subject to revision.

9. The term "regimental quartermaster-sergeant" in the tradesmen's groups denotes quartermaster-sergeants who are in charge of stores or equipment for a group of companies or equivalent units, and such other cases as may be specially authorized by the Army Council.

General Conditions.

10. Detailed tables for each arm and branch, where the ranks or appointments are not provided for in paragraph 2 or 5 are appended in Table 2.

11. As from July 1, 1919, non-commissioned officers of the Royal Artillery, Royal Engineers, and Royal Army Ordnance Corps will be graded as follows for pay:—

Royal Artillery, Corporal, 1st corporal of the band, becomes lance-sergeant. Bombardier, 2nd corporal of the band, becomes corporal. Lance-bombardier becomes lance-corporal.

Royal Engineers, Corporal becomes lance-sergeant. 2nd corporal becomes corporal.

Royal Army Ordnance Corps, Lance-sergeant remains lance-sergeant. Corporal becomes lance-sergeant. 2nd corporal becomes corporal.

12. Men and boys who are unskilled at any trade on enlistment will be paid at normal rates (paragraph 2) while learning a trade, and until they passed the necessary trade test for classification as tradesmen.

Men who have a trade on enlistment, and are enlisted for service under one of the tradesmen's groups, will be paid in their group under Class III, from the date of enlistment although not actually working at their trade while doing their recruit drills. After passing their recruit drills they will be paid the rate of the class for which they are qualified.

13. (a) Engineer pay, corps pay, war pay, proficiency pay as hitherto provided for in the Pay Warrant, service pay, and Army of Occupation bonus are abolished for soldiers who draw pay under this Warrant. Additional pay and working pay remain as hitherto, unless specifically modified by the present Warrant, but are subject to revision at an early date. Soldiers drawing pay under this Warrant will have no claim to any additional or working pay which may be abolished in consequence of such revision.

(b) Additional pay under the following Articles of the Pay Warrant is abolished for all those who draw pay under this Warrant: Articles 748, 750 (b) (c) (g) and (k), 905, 906, 910, 920, 1003, 1011, 1022, 1023, and 1030. Additional pay above 6d. per day under Article 750 (a) is also abolished.

(c) Working pay under Articles 845 and 946 to 951, Pay Warrant, is abolished for those who draw pay under this Warrant. Where a soldier is employed on tradesmen's duties he will receive the appropriate pay for the trade, according to rank, group, and class, in substitution of pay under paragraphs 2, 3, and 4 of Table 1.

(d) The deductions of 1s. 6d. per day provided for in Articles 872 and 873 of the Pay Warrant are abolished for those who draw pay under this Warrant.

14. The existing separation, parents' and dependents' allowances and the concession granted by Army Order 1 of 1918, under which the allotment from a soldier's pay in order to qualify for separation or dependents' allowance is issued from public funds, will continue until December 31, 1919. The future of these allowances from that date is subject to further consideration for all who are now entitled to them.

A FEW SIMPLE FACTS.

In the whirlwind of insistent demands for higher wages, shorter hours, altered control and better conditions, the average man, even among those joining in the shouts, needs to clear his mind of the resultant confusion, and get down to a few elementary and undeniable facts which alone can form a basis for the possibility of obtaining those improvements so widely desired.

Are not the following statements quite obviously and necessarily true? And if so, is not any action contrary to each or any of them clearly to the detriment of the community and thus to the individuals who depend, as we all do at every hour, upon the production and services of that community?

WAGES. Money being only valuable as a token of what it will bring us in goods or services, wages cannot be measured by mere figures, but alone by what those figures will purchase. If increase of true wages is desired, it means that more commodities and more service are needed for the sum at our disposal. Otherwise it is meaningless. A rise of wages all round means that before anything we need can get to us it has cost more to produce, more to transport and distribute. Our own individual increase thus has to cover all the other increases on the various stages of everything we buy. Clearly, this is worse than useless.

SHORTER HOURS. Hours must be short enough to comply with the calls of health and to give fair opportunity for reasonable leisure and recreation. That of course; and in some employments a good deal remains to be done in this connection. But more than this is harmful, for it means that during all that decrease of time less wealth is being produced for general distribution (hence keeping prices up), or that less service is being rendered to the public generally, which means less convenience for everybody.

RESTRICTIONS ON PRODUCTION. This can only mean that the amount of commodities and their accessibility to everyone, workmen and their families included, is lessened and the price increased. It is obvious that the more there is in the market the greater is the share easily attainable. You cannot share what does not exist. Big production and facile transport mean wealth and low prices for all. And the excess of any commodity over the national requirements means that we can barter it with other lands for those of their products which we need for our own trade or comfort and which otherwise we cannot obtain.

LABOUR, MANAGEMENT AND CAPITAL. No one of these can keep things going without the other two. What the terms of co-operation between them may be is a matter for adjustment. Unless we are to return to the primitive state of every family subsisting on what itself can produce, foregoing everything else, labour must have its work directed by management and its opportunities created by capital. And outside its working hours, the comforts, amenities and even amusements depend on organised brains and money employed to those ends.

DIRECT ACTION AND STRIKES. In days now past, when labour had no political power, no immediate promise of dealing with its own problems by constitutional means, strikes were, though wasteful and reacting on the strikers and their dependents, a natural weapon. But now, when Labour is conscious of its numbers and of its consequent power when so large a proportion of the manual workers have become instructed in economic and political subjects, they must recognise that the constitutional means within their grasp are the only justifiable ones, are indeed those which they aspire to control when their turn of Government comes. And since every strike means direct loss of goods or business that would otherwise have been added to the nation's stock; and this reacts on other industries; the nation, and especially the working-class, is each time the poorer; for, once more, there is less to share.

Surely these facts must be obvious. Why continue to impoverish the nation? We all want more—not money, as figures, but more for our money. Then, that everyone's share may be the greatest possible, we must have the maximum of production with the best possible distribution, management, and expansion of trade, all of which mean more goods and lower prices.

Meantime, by constitutional means, by wise organisation and co-operation, by seeking all means of better understanding (through Whitley Councils or otherwise) of all grades of industry, by steady education on to-day's problems, difficulties can be adjusted, and increasing loss averted.

JUST A LETTER.

With a sandbag containing the day's mail slung over his shoulder, the post orderly came down the communication trench whistling cheerily.

The Sub. had just returned from a tour of the front line and meeting the "bearer of good tidings" caused him to break off rather spasmodically and grope in the depths of the sandbag from which he finally produced a small parcel of mail which he handed to the Sub. with the remark "Officers' Mess Sir."

Hastily glancing through the parcel, the Sub. found and pocketed a pink envelope addressed in dainty handwriting and bearing the faint fragrance of a delicate perfume. Making his way to the dug-out that was for the time being the home of the company officers he tossed the parcel on the table with the remark "Mail from Blighty" and the joyous shout that greeted his words would have caused the head of many a fair damsel in Blighty to flutter in sympathy.

As each member possessed himself of his letter or periodical the Sub's hand strayed to his pocket while his eyes searched the dug-out in the hope that a quiet corner might present itself.

There were plenty of vacant seats but then who could read a letter from "her" amongst such din and chatter.

No, there was a quiet spot he knew of, just a short distance away and thither he went and seating himself drew out his precious missive and settled down to the enjoyment of its contents.

* * *

Ten minutes later a dazed and speechless Subaltern stared with unseeing eyes at a cloudless sky, that suddenly had become dark and lowering. The letter was crushed in his hand. Surely it could not be true: surely she could never be so heartless.

After a few agonizing moments he smoothed out the letter and commenced to read it again. Yes it was true! and those hard cruel words seemed to sear his brain.

".....there is a new lot of Engineers in huts on the golf course now. The Major is a very nice man and mother is simply infatuated with him. Poor man he is not strong enough to go to the Front.....but I think our engagement was a mistake dear..... so write and tell me you don't mind....."

A few minutes longer the Sub. sat there alone with his misery, then rising he stumbled off to his own dug-out leaving the heart rending missive behind. Life was hardly worth living now, still there was the attack in the morning, and his platoon's objective was a German pill-box; anything might happen, who could say?

My batman found a crumpled letter and an envelope addressed to Douglas and brought them to me. I read the letter. I wonder.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.
Our Readers' Varied Views on Many Topics.

GERMAN WOMEN IN OUR CLUBS!

Sir,—Bravo "Clublover" for your letter on the subject of the admission of German women to our clubs. Publicity was very necessary.

I cannot imagine that the authorities of the VI. Corps Club are parties to this deplorable practice and I trust they will make an example of the officer who has the audacity to escort a German woman into a club.

The way out of the difficulty is to make the wearing of the brassard compulsory and certainly a condition of admission to the club at the same time reserving the right of demanding further proof of identity. The brazen impudence of these German females is only equalled by the lack of feeling and tact shown by their escorts.

CLUBLOVER II.

Sir,—With reference to Clublover's letter, German women are not allowed to use the VI Corps Officer's Club. Should the presence of one be suspected, the officer accompanying her is questioned as to her nationality, and, up to the present, in no case has a German woman been found in the Club.

Should any officer suspect the presence of German women in the Club it is his duty to immediately draw the attention of one of the officials to the fact.

J. W. HAYLIN, Major.
Hon. Treasurer.
VI. Corps Officers' Club.

BUSINESS NOW.

Sir,—Have any of your readers observed that the whole tone of life in Cologne has greatly changed in the past month or two?

The atmosphere of a military occupation has been transformed into one of money-grabbing and sordid commercial self-interest.

All our resorts are invaded by hordes of nondescript dealers, many of them most undesirable people.

The talk is all of finance and bargaining. It makes one sick to see the influx of many of the worst elements in the business world—people without a thought of the millions who have laid down their lives that they might carry on their callings in security, — literally trampling over the graves of the dead to snatch their miserable profits and commissions.

No; I feel that is is no longer the fine thing it was to be part of a conquering army occupying the territory of a fallen foe.

To-day seems to be the day of the huckster and bagman rather then the soldiers, — alas!

W.W.R.

SALUTING DIFFICULTIES.

Sir,—Has Tanker realised the wisdom of carrying stars on the shoulderstraps? It must be obvious that the continual alteration of such badges spoils a tunic, whereas pips on the shoulder are altered very easily.

How often during the war did an officer change his rank? One day he was a company commander with the rank of acting captain, next day a second lieutenant.

Tanker thinks braided cuffs are better than shoulder titles because the braid is an aid to identification. How often may I ask is a Lieut.-Colonel taken for a full "loot" or vice versa?

JAQUES.

PREFERENCE FOR TOMMY.

Sir,—Why are German girls so partial to the military section of the Cologne-Bonn tram service?

I don't mind surrendering my seat to a member of the other sex at any time, but when there is plenty of room in the civilian coaches, surely Gretchen ought to go there.

But being a girl and only human after all, she knows where true courtesy is to be found, and travels with Tommy.

BULL DOG.

WHY?

Sir,—How is it that some officers cling to the idea of leathered tunics?

Agreed the tunic required some reinforcement in order to get it to stand the wear and tear of active service, but is it necessary in Cologne that officers should walk about with leather at the elbow point of the sleeves?

It creates an entirely wrong impression.

JACKO.

FRIENDLINESS TO GERMANS.

Sir,—A soldier's statement appeared in "The Times" a few days ago that there were Anglo-German marriages in Rhineland. Although it has been officially denied is it to be wondered at that such statements should creep into the Press?

Walk down the Hohestrasse or go into the cafes, etc. of Cöln and you will observe the Germans greeted in many cases as "long lost brothers."

Although allowance can be made for the British spirit, and Cupid is responsible to a large degree, should not a little restaint be exercised? — especially when one realizes that less than twelve months ago these Germans were torturing our prisoners, bayonetting our wounded, and generally proclaiming "Gott strafe England."

It is deplorable that so many of our countrymen in England have shown ignorance of a war since the German delegates crossed No Man's Land to receive the armistice terms.

How can we, as Britishers, sing "Land of Hope and Glory" when the demobilized officer tramps the streets in quest of a living salary; the selfish employer rejects the idea of engaging his former employee because the latter through wounds will not be as useful, or profitable, as he was.

If the lessons of the war do not remain indelible on the minds of most of us then the time will not be long before Mars again threatens the shores of old England.

When one is tempted to fraternise would it not be only just and rigt to catch a glimpse in one's mind of the hundreds of thousands of wooden crosses which do the lonely battlefields, and realize that although the war ha mellowed in the background there are countless numbers whose lives will never be the same to them again.

A MAIMED OFFICER.

SUGGESTED EQUIPMENT IMPROVEMENTS.

Sir,—Now the Army is drifting back to a peace time footing the question of improving the equipment of the fighting man will doubtless be taken in hand. I believe that quite early in the Occupation officers were invited to express their views on the subject, it being apparent that the fighting man is best qualified to express an opinion on the point.

Improvements suggest themselves in the carrying of the ground sheet which to my mind should be discarded in favour of a light waterproof coat or lenghtened. At present it is carried under the flap of the valise which means that equipment has to be taken off to remove it. Meanwhile a man gets wet.

Another point is the entrenching tool. It has struck me that means by which this part of the equipment could be brought into action quicker might be devised.

Other improvements come to mind, but I will leave them for discussion by others.

P.E.F.

DRAMATIC COMPANY'S SERVICES.

Sir,— The Officers, N.C.O.'s, and men of the British Rhine Army Dramatic Company strongly resent the persistent rumours that they are in receipt of salaries for their services with this Company.

I beg to state that Officers N.C.O.'s and men who work for the Rhine Army Dramatic Company do this entirely in their spare time and receive no remuneration whatever.

I should be grateful if you would give this full publicity in your issue of to-morrow.

S. E. PERCY
Officer i/c. British Rhine Army Dramatic Company.

WAR MEDALS FOR ALL.

Sir,—Whoever is responsible for granting the '14—'15 star to Y.M.C.A. workers who served overseas during the period stated is only doing that which is quite right.

Those splendid people did not merely serve in back areas, as anyone with experience "in the line" knows.

True it is that the Y.M.C.A. and kindred bodies did not establish themselves in the frontline actually, but they have been well under shell fire. Thousands of men have been and are still grateful for services rendered.

It ought also to be remembered that a great many of these workers have been further afield than France. They have risked their lives in submarine infested waters, waters wider, more dangerous and not quite so close to a dressing station as the front line sometimes was.

In any case, they are much more entitled to the medal than those who came out just prior to the armistice, saw no fighting and who, from all appearances, were the first to wear the ribbon.

PLEASED.

A QUESTION OF GENDER.

In a recent issue the difficulties of the gender question are referred to.

It would, no doubt, interest some of your readers to know that the word for feminine is weiblich and is derived from the word Wein, the woman, and that the woman is not of feminine gender but is neuter.

Students, however, should have no difficulty in recognising the gender of the words quoted, das Fräulein and das Mädchen, as all nouns ending with the deminutive "chen" or "lein" are of neuter gender.

Thus Fräulein denotes little Frau and Mädchen little maid or little girl. When a man wishes to be very affectionate to his wife he calls her "Frauchen," while she would call him "Männchen" both the man and his wife thus becoming "neuter gender."

THE WINE TAX.

Sir,—What is the reason for the removal of the Order exempting British troops from the payment of the tax on wine?

Is it that unscrupulous individuals have been saddling Tommy with the consumption of the greater part of the total, thus escaping their liability? This struck me as a reason.

With one German consuming the contents of 58 bottles on one steamer trip to quote your correspondent I should have thought the German authorities would have received sufficient revenue from their folk alone.

WINE.

PAYING TRAM FARES.

Sir,—With reference to the warning order just published that British troops in the occupied area will require to pay their fares on the trams on the ratification of the Peace Treaty.

Might I suggest, through the medium of your paper, that the British Authorities arrange for the Tramways Committee of Cologne, to display posters in the cars on all routes, showing the cost of tickets from the starting points to all the main stops.

This would enable the men to be sure that they are paying the regulation fare only, as, without some means of letting them know the various fares, it would be quite easy for the conductors to give them a ticket for, perhaps, quite double the distance they wish to travel.

"FAIR PLAY".

THEATRE SUPPERS.

Sir,—We all know that it is possible to obtain "snacks" at the Officers' Club before the Opera. Could our friend, the Officer in charge possibly arrange for something more solid, either before or after, as an alternative to "Häring-Salat" and such like stuff?

R.S.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

The leaves in their robes of russet
Whisper 'tis time to die
Let us join our friends the flowers
Together in death we'll lie.
For the summer is past and over
The sunbeams that kissed us fled.
The zephyrs have turned to autumn winds
'Twere better that we were dead.
So a last farewell they whisper
To the swallows that southward fly
Then gently down to their mother earth
They float with a lingering sigh.

16 GOALS TO NIL.

Heavy scoring in 5th Hants inter-company football match.

Splendid Shooting.

In a match on Thursday at Bergisch Bon "A" Coy beat "D" Coy by 16 goals to nil. The heavy score was chiefly due to the splendid shooting of "A" Company's forwards, and the perfectly placed corners of Pte. Henson, three goals coming in quick succession from his corner-kicks. The chief scorers for "A" Company were Pte. Gingele (6) Lieut. L. F. Sharp (4) and Cpl. Johnson (3). "D" Company put up a plucky fight but stood no chance against the perfect play of "A" Company.

FOOTBALL GOSSIP.

(By Novo).

Millard has proved a "find" for Birmingham as a leader of the a tack. Godfrey, in three games, had scored once, Millard in his two outings against South Shields and Coventry, got two in each game.

* * *

Bury are having rather a lean time of it so far. Probably no other club in the League has suffered more from injuries to players than the "Shakers." The roll call totalled 19 for 5 games.

* * *

South Shields completely held Tottenham, up to half-time, in last Saturday's game, but after the 'Spurs had scored early in the second half, the "Seasiders" appeared to lose all heart and finally retired beaten by three clear goals.

* * *

What trouble many clubs are having with the centre-forward problem. Half of the Frst League teams have had to make changes, some of them having already tried three, whilst of the Second League clubs only eight centres who opened the campaign have retained their places in each game.

* * *

Newcastle United's trips to London this season, have attracted 45,000 spectators on each occasion, and if the figures were possible it would be rather interesting to know how many of them were Tynesiders.

* * *

Watch Cresswell, the South Shields back. He has come in for quite a lot of praise recently, and played two exceptionally fine games against the 'Spurs. He was the outstanding back at White Hart Lane and it is not surprising that Peter McWilliam looked envious. Cresswell was nearly booked by the 'Spurs a few months ago and several of their officials were heard sighing "What a miss."

* * *

The Corinthians have issued their programme for the first half of the season, and their list includes games with the Varsities, Fulham, and Queen's Park, the Scottish amateur club. For the second half of the season it is hoped to arrange games with some of the First League teams.

* * *

Fulham have discovered a real live centre forward, who they reckon is the "goods." His name is Cock, and in two games he has scored four goals. It was not until after the third game that the "Cottagers" directors turned their attention in his direction, after having tried two other players.

* * *

Leicester City officials are rather disappointed with George Jobey who has not realised expectations as a centre-forward. Jobey generally plays in the half-back line and Newcastle United could have informed the Leicester folk that he was not a centre, for they tried him in that position in one of the Cup Finals with Bradford City.

* * *

Newcastle United new forward line of youngsters promised great things. Robinson, outside right, will star the bill "some" day as also will Wilson the centre forward, but I'm thinking the "Magpies" will ere long have another forward line. No names, but Newcastle ever favoured Scotsmen.

* * *

P. O'Connell, the famous Irish International half-back, and Bradford, the Scottish League keeper, will not be long with Dumbarton and Norton respectively. Bradford has yet to re-sign.

* * *

Irvine Thornley, the ex Manchester City captain, who was largely instrumental in getting South Shields into first-class football, is now leading Hamilton Accies attack and going great guns.

* * *

Everton when playing in London, will confound football form. When in the metropolis, they have three stars in Kirsopp, Chedgzoy and Harrison available, these being still in khaki, and stationed there.

BALZAC v. McGOORTY.

There is strong talk at present of the principal event on the card for the much-awaited reopening of the "Wonderland Francais," the "premier" Parisian boxing club, taking the shape of an international encounter, the principals being Balzac, middle-weight champion of France, and Eddie McGoorty, the proposed date being some time during the first fortnight in October.

Will He Beat The Record?

The National Trotting Horse Breeders' Association have arranged to hold a trotting meeting at Parsloes Park, Barking, Essex, on Thursday, October 9, the whole of the proceeds to be given to St. Dunstan's-day After-Care Fund for Blinded Soldiers and Sailors.

An interesting programme is being prepared, and Mr. Walter Winans will drive one of his famous horses in an attempt to create a record.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Sunday, September 28th, 1919.

Wind South-west to West 5 to 10 m.p.h. Weather mainly cloudy, perhaps occasional showers. Moderate temperature. Clear visibility.

TURF TOPICS.

Cesarewitch Form: Some Notes and Notions.

By "Jerry M."

On Monday last came the news that Silonyx had broken down and had finished his racing career. Turning up the sporting papers on Wednesday it was indeed surprising to find in the London betting that Silonyx had apparently been supported on the previous evening for large sums at 500 to 20, 33 to 1,25 to 1 and finally closed at 25 to 1. Indeed to anyone not knowing "the game," Keysoe and Silonyx read as representing the best business done. Within 45 hours both horses appeared in the "Latest Scratchings." We have before pointed out how little reliance can be placed on these quotations. A moment's reflection will doubtless convince the Turf student that the best business is of necessity done quietly, and often does not leak out till long after, while the "dud" stuff is given prominence. Bookmakers always get the best information and no one knows better than they the "goods to put in the shop window."

* * *

Something of a record was put up by Fox at Wolverhampton on Monday, he being concerned in two dead heats. Both finishes being very similar. Fox persevered when his chance looked hopeless, getting up in each case practically in the last stride to make a dead heat of it.

Always a popular horseman, his services will doubtless be even more eagerly sought after, after such a brilliant display.

* * *

The mid Autumn Handicaps continue to provide the chief interest for Turf habitues. Although the betting on the Cesarewitch has hung fire somewhat since the withdrawal of Keysoe, this is a wise attitude on the part of backers as the running of various events during the next few weeks can have an important bearing upon it. In Friday's Newbury Cup for instance it is possible for several of the Cesarewitch candidates to be in opposition, viz: Queen's Square, St. Eloi, King John, Greek Scholar, Unitoi, Silver Bullet, Langdon Hills, Limpfield Control, Splutter and Polictinelle. In fact it is a miniature Cesarewitch and the winner is sure to become a first choice for the latter event. It must be remembered that this race entails a 10 lb. penalty on the winner so that a close second would perhaps be better served for the bigger prize at Newmarket. The Duke of York Stakes to be run four days before the Cesarewitch can also shed some light on form. So a waiting policy is to be commended. There is a possibility of a brisk market on the Cambridgeshire within the next few days. Several heavy commissions are about to be launched and the present quotations will be turned "topsy turvy." My Dear and Zinovia however are ones that the layers will take no liberties with. Here again interim running will have its effect.

FINEST FOOTBALL TEAM.

Leading Light Plumps For Aston Villa Club.

Peter McWilliam's statement to the Daily Sketch that the Newcastle team of a few years ago was the finest that ever stepped on a football field, including the famous Preston North End eleven which first introduced the combination game to English football, has aroused keen criticism in Midland football circles.

A leading light in Midland "Soccer" circles boldly contends that the Aston Villa team which won the League Championship and Cup, and then beat the hitherto undefeated Glasgow Rangers in the same year, was the most brilliant set of players who ever juggled a ball between goal-posts.

"The Newcastle eleven," he says, writing to the "Daily Sketch," "were undoubtedly a clever combination, but look at the Villa team for the year mentioned. It included such stalwarts of the game as James Cowan (in my opinion the finest centre-half that ever played football), Howard Spencer, Freddy Wheldon, "Baldy" Reynolds, Jimmy Crabtree, etc. To many present-day followers of the game these names will be no more than a memory, but anyone who saw them play enjoyed a football treat." So that's that!

Tom Ball's Clubs.

An auction sale in aid of the widow and children of Tom Ball realised £101. Ball's clubs were bought for £25 by a visitor, who intends to put them up for auction again in aid of the fund.

"The Goods."

"This young fellow is the goods; he will go far." The speaker was an old international who is not in the habit of talking "through his hat," and the subject was young Wilson, the 'Spurs centre forward.

OUR NEW COMPETITION.

Another Chance For Football Form Followers.

Competition No. 2.

Over a thousand coupons have been received from entrants to our football competition No. 1, so that in the event of there being only one winner a substantial sum of money awaits him.

The rules of the contest appear below together with the coupon for "Football Competition No. 2," which contains a selection of twelve matches to be played on Saturday, Oct. 4th.

The last day for sending in coupons, each of which must be accompanied by one mark, is Friday, Oct. 3rd.

CRUELTY TO HORSES.

In the course of a letter to "The Field" the Chief Secretary of the R.S.P.C.A. says: "Now that many Army horses have been returned for civilian work may I point out that such horses, at all events, should not be made to follow the fashion of wearing blinkers, bearing reins, and hame reins (to which they are not accustomed); neither should they be made victims of the senseless custom of docking. Shortly before the war it was officially stated that the Army authorities would not buy any more docked horses. This wise decision had to be cancelled in war time, but it should now be upheld. The initial operation of docking must now be done under an anaesthetic and the horse does not suffer, but the after effects are painful. A horse deprived of his tail cannot switch the flies from his body. To turn a docked horse out to grass in summer time is, therefore, sheer cruelty. We have ourselves experienced during the war the horrors of fly plagues and therefore should sympathise with those horses who cannot remove the flies from their bodies because man has robbed them of their tails."

Challenge To All "Bantams."

Con O'Hara, late of South Africa, will box any first-class bantam-weight in the country at from 8st 6lb to 8st 10lb for £25 a side and the best purse, Joe Symonds, Tommy Noble, Tal Jones, or Tom Gardner preferred.

"MUSTY OLD GENTS'."

English Rugby Union Condemned By N.Z. President.

POSSIBLE BREACH.

Evans, the president of the New Zealand Rugby Union speaking at Christchurch, strongly condemned the English Rugby Union for its conservative attitude in not allowing amendments.

He declared the musty old gentlemen on the English Union should have learned some lessons from the war and cultivated a closer connection between Britain and the dominions in Rugby football. He urged New Zealand to secure confederation with other Rugby countries and to cut the painter from the English Union.

The "Daily Mail" remarks that trouble has long been brewing between the two elements in New Zealand Rugby football. The one wishes to hold tightly to the connection with the mother country and the other regards the various alterations of the rules as of more importance. It further says that the talk about securing confederation with the other Rugby countries may be lightly dismissed. South Africa, for instance, would not look at the suggestion of severing relations with the home unions and the only other Rugby playing country to which New Zealand could appeal is Australia.

Nevertheless a breach might be caused if New Zealand adopted new rules before they had been submitted to and approved by the international board and if New Zealand is determined to take this step there can be no more meetings between New Zealand and England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales.

SUNDAY FOOTBALL.

Possible Opinions Of Some Famous Players.

Much has been and is being written re the playing of football on Sundays. But what do the players say? Appended are what might be the opinions of some of our famous players on this subject:—

I wouldn't play on Sunday, I consider it very Low (Newcastle United).

Sunday football is not for a Goodchild (Manchester City).

Certainly, if it didn't disturb this modest young Mann (Huddersfield).

It is a subject on which I refuse to Speak (Preston).

The mention of Sunday football makes me Wild (Bradford City).

If is pleases, why not, its lesson will Scattergood (Bradford).

No, Sunday footballing is condemned by my Peers (Wolves).

Sunday games would be Allwright (Bristol City).

Why not follow the lead of the French (Morton).

I often played on Sundays while the wearer of a Sam Browne (Swansea).

Yes, to play on Sundays has the consent of a Bishop (Wolves).

FOOTBALL PRICES.

Complaint Lodged Against Prominent Glasgow Club.

A matter of great interest to the footballing public is announced for discussion before Glasgow's profiteering committee, which will be formed during the week.

A complaint has been lodged against one of the best-known football clubs in the city for its admission charges for reserved portions in the stand and enclosure.

It is pointed out that other clubs charge less for superior accommodation, and the complaint embodies a comparison with prewar prices.

In London and the south there is no sign of protest. The big crowds have willingly paid a shilling for admission to the cheapest portion of the grounds and five shillings for a numbered seat in the centre of the grand stand.

Clubs were forced to increase their admission prices owing to the enormous increase of expenditure, particularly players' wages.

Fine Professional Sculling Entry.

A record entry of over 150 has been received for the 51st annual North Side of the Thames and Joint Docks Rum-tum handicaps managed by Mr. W. ("Spud") Murphy. The event is fixed for Saturday, October 4.

Mal Quart d' Heure.

But for an unfortunate quarter of an hour in the first half, when their defence fell to pieces, Leytonstone might easily have made a very close fight against Crystal Palace in the first round of the London Challenge Cup at Selhurst.

BOXING CONTESTS.

Welsh Saints Perturbed By "Wild Beast Show".

RESOLUTION PASSED.

The increase of boxing contests in Wales was violently denounced in a resolution passed by the Welsh Baptist Union on Friday evening.

The Rev. D.C. Jones said boxing was reducing men to the level of tigers and must be a source of great grief to old saints of Wales to see their country turned into a wild beast show.

The Rev. Hugh Jones, seconding said the nation must demand less boxing contest reports in the newspapers.

WILDE LEAVING FOR AMERICA

Series of 8 and 10 rounds contests with U. S. Boxers.

Jimmy Wilde is about to go to America. Interviewed by the "Daily Mirror" he said a long ambitious tour had been arranged consisting of eight and ten round contests with the best boxers America can provide.

He always found Americans good sportsmen and is confident he will receive a sporting reception and fair play wherever he goes.

Beckett's Paris Engagements.

Beckett takes part in an exhibition bout in Paris on Oct. 11th. Thereafter he fulfils a fortnight's music-hall engagement in Paris.

Driscoll v. Ledoux.

The National Sporting Club season opens on Oct. 6th. The first important international match is that of Jim Driscoll against the Frenchman Ledoux over twenty rounds for a purse of £1,450.

FOOTBALL RESULTS.

Glos. Senior Cup Final.

Bristol City 4. Bristol Rovers 0.

Northern Union.

Lancs. 15. Yorks. 5.

CRACK PENALTY SAVER.

Emblam, Southend's goalkeeper, saved two penalties on Friday against Queen's Park. He also saved two against Watford on Saturday last.

Death of Noted Cricketer.

The death is announced of Frank Laver, the well known colonial cricketer who came over with the Australian teams of 1899, 1905, and 1909.

Newbury Cup Result.

1, 6/1 Silver Bridge (Hulme); 2, 9/4 Landon Hill (Donoghue); (20 1) 3, Stolor (Templeman). Two lengths; same. Also ran:—Haki (Childs); Greek Scholar (V Smyth); Unitoi (F. Lane); Silver Bullet (Brennan); Limpsfield (G. Colling); Hendon Tennis Results.

Mixed doubles semi-final:—S. M. Doust and Miss Ryan beat A. C. Hunter and Mrs. Colston 6 1, 6 0.

SAILORS' GOAL BOMBARDED.

"B" Corps Siege Park v. Rhine Flotilla R.N.

The above teams met on the former's ground at Mulheim in the return football fixture on Monday evening and a well contested and even game ended in a draw of 2 goals each.

The R.N. turned out a much better team than on the former occasion and made the Park go all the way to make a draw, the sailors leading by two goals to nil within fifteen minutes from time, when the "Lights" started business and scored two good goals through Calderbank who was as usual playing a good game, although suffering from a cold. The Park had the misfortune to lose Edwards from centre-half in the first fifteen minutes of the game, he severely damaging his left leg which necessitated his removal to hospital. This no doubt upset the whole of the "Lights" as Edwards has become quite a strong player and is equally good in attack and defence. The sailors very kindly let a substitute come on the field, but, although playing a bustling game, he was handicapped by having to play in "marching order."

During the latter part of the game the "Lights" fairly bombarded the sailors' goal but could not beat the sterling defence put up by the "goalie," who undoubtedly saved his side from defeat, and a very pleasant game ended in a draw as above stated. The game was well handled by Lieut. F. Barker R.A.S.C. who at the termination of the game called for three cheers for the R.N. which were heartily given and responded to.

PLAY: MUSIC: SONG.

Amusement and Recreation.

Cologne Opera House.

Starting to-morrow there will be adopted a new scheme for the distribution of Opera tickets. Henceforth boxes and not seats reserved for officers and other ranks will be allotted. The details issued go on to say that boxes will be for General and Field Officers and each box must be occupied by the officer for whom it is booked. Those allotted to Corps will be at the disposal of Corps Commanders and the allocation should as far as possible be by seniority and in rotation. Six boxes are to be held by the box office for General officers and for which application should be made on the day prior to the performance either in person or by telephone.

The Seats Available.

There will be 123 seats reserved for Officers, 28 for Warrant officers and senior N.C.O's and 200 for other ranks. These may be booked at the box office. Bookings will open four days in advance of each performance. Seats booked by telephone must be claimed two hours before the performance commences either by a personal call at the box office or by letter containing the money. Not more than two seats may be booked by one individual. The box office will be open daily at the Opera House from 9.30 a.m. to 1 p.m. to one hour before the performance. The telephone number is 658.

In Malen Partem.

Exuberance of high spirits is an excellent antidote for the blues; but there is a time and place for boisterous merriment. For instance when a well-known banjoist is delighting his audience with such a delicate piece of work as "Dresden China" it is hardly decorous to express one's appreciation by inane giggling. And what is more, the behaviour of the three members of the W.R.A.F. who were at the Palace Theatre on Friday evening was not in good taste.

A Brilliant Accompanist.

It does not necessarily follow that a brilliant solo pianiste is equally as successful in accompanying a vocalist. Most people, by experience, will agree. But exceptions there must be to all things and in the present case one is supplied by Miss Jessie Mountjoy. This charming young lady, who added considerably to the all-round excellence of the "Jesters" programme at the Palace Theatre last week, is equally happy whether playing a difficult pianoforte solo, supplying the instrumental part to one of her own dainty songs at the piano or accompanying the numbers of the remainder of the company. "Solingenites" will have an opportunity of hearing Miss Mountjoy's ability to-morrow night and during the week.

The Temple Belles.

An Ohligs and Solingen correspondent writes that the "Temple Belles" have much more than captured all the public fancy in those parts, and that they delight crowded houses nightly. We learn that they are lucky enough to have many good-looking members who can play female parts, who are all elaborately and tastefully frocked, and at all times and in all scenes (many of which were large, with many performers on at the same time) all the little mannerisms etc. of girls are excellently imitated. Pte. Trevor Smith looks very dainty, and gives an inimitable imitation of Maidie Scott in four songs. Pte. F. Moffatt is also very fetching as "Second Girl." He too has a nice high voice, and also, after his third song, dances well. Pte. L.A. Tiber as a lady too, also calls for special mention, and his dancing (he does a "Death Dance" as "Gaby") should prove a great attraction in future.

Other Artistes.

The male parts are quite as well done. Corporal Strong as the hero, plays in the George Lashwood style. The two comedians—Pte. Curlander and Cpl. Lambert, as waiters in the first act, and various other roles as the play goes on, are very clever, and make one shout with laughter, as does Lieut. Fulham as "P.C. Lightning". Pte. Curlander as a Jewish comedian is also very good. Reverting to the smaller parts, as "Chorus lead," Pte. J.R.Thomas makes a splendid girl, and is supported by a bevy of "girls" almost as good. All the other men are good. A very well directed and good orchestra plays its integral part in making the performance a success.

A Recital.

To-morrow evening at the Loreley Hall, Central Y.M.C.A., Miss Dorothy Nash is to give a recital of works of her own composition. She will be assisted by Miss Elizabeth Morriman, Miss Maud Hammond and Pte. Birckett. Miss Nash is a very gifted young lady and a pianist of note, so that you can look forward to something extra special. I have seen a programme and the excerpts augur well for the complete success of the performance.

Sunday Concert.

At the concert to-night in the theatre in the British Empire Club Miss Marjorie Moore's niece who has just come out from England will make her first appearance. Miss Marjorie Moore has won such artistic success with her recitals, "song and story," in which she sings, recites music, and tells stories with much charm and finish, that her songs to-night will, I am sure, add greatly to the enjoyment of the audience.

JACQUES.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Jim Jayes.

At the Leicester Corn Exchange Jim Jayes, of Northampton, beat W. McDonagh, of Nuneaton, over 15 rounds on points.

Awarded M.M.

The well-known breeder M. du Four, member of the Belgian Jockey Club, has been awarded the British Military Medal for services rendered in occupied territory.

Australians' 1920 Visit.

On inquiry at Lord's on Wednesday it was stated that no information was available yet regarding an invitation to Australia to send a cricket team here next summer.

Still Playing Cricket.

An interesting cricket match was played at Wood Green Recreation Ground on Wednesday between a Bowes Park Sixteen and J.W. Hearne's XI., for the benefit of the upkeep of the Wood Green Passmore Edwards Hospital.

Good News Of Walden.

"Fanny" Walden, the Spurs' flying outside right, is mending rapidly, and will probably be fit for duty in a fortnight's time. In his absence Lorimer is doing duty. Lorimer made rather an unhappy first appearance, but he was much more in the picture at South Shields, and evidently is going to justify his engagement.

London Rugby Opens.

Yesterday witnessed the entry into the Rugby field of the London Scottish and Rosslyn Park, the first London clubs to start the season proper in the metropolitan area, while the London Welsh went to meet Bath.

Sober Wisdom.

Mr. C.J.C. Hill is very proud of Sober Wisdom, whom he bred himself. That he thought a lot of the colt is evident from the fact that he had a genuine offer of 1,200gs, for the son of Wisemac and Sober before the Kinlet Plate at Wolverhampton.

Mr. Cottrill's New Quarters.

Mr. H.L. Cottrill has taken the Seven Barrows training establishment at Lambourn, which has been vacant for some time, and was formerly tenanted by H. Randall. Mr. Cottrill will take up his quarters there when he leaves the Foxhill establishment.

In Days Of Yore.

In pre-war days, when a football team fulfilled an away engagement, it was always accompanied by a large following. The excursion rates ranged from 3s. to 5s. for distances from thirty to fifty miles, and it was sometimes necessary to put on special trains to accommodate the crowds.

Handicapped By Injuries.

In meeting Portsmouth at Brighton the home team were handicapped by injuries to Holley, Longstaff, and Pugh, and had to bring in three reserves.

Carpenter V. Newmann.

Tom Carpenter and Tom Newman have fixed up a game of 8,000 up, Carpenter receiving 2000, to take place at the Grand Hotel, Cardiff, for the week commencing October 13.

N.C.A.S.A. Record Broken.

At Liverpool at the Westminster rood Baths, in the 75yds ladies' junior championship of the N.C.A.S.A., no fewer than four of the nine competitors broke the record.

Among The Trees.

Trees on golf courses have been condemned by many players as difficulties that present too wide a margin of luck, but they lend their touch of charm to the scene and sometimes inspire very skilful shots.

Off His Game.

Mr. A.J. Balfour played badly, in the Autumn stroke competition at St. Andrews and did not return his card, while others who failed to make a return were Lord Cochrane, Lord D'Abernon, Mr. H.W. Foster, M.P., and Mr. John L. Lowe. Lord Dunedin returned a card of 102.

To Meet The Spurs.

Crystal Palace, by beating Leytonstone at Selhurst, in their London Challenge Cup tie, earned the right to receive Tottenham Hotspur in the next round, on October 8.

Sprint Race.

In Bordeaux, a four-cornered match sprint race resulted in a handsome win for Bob Spears, of Australia, while Dupuy (France) was second, Sergent third, and Poulain fourth.

Kid Doyle, Coal-Owner.

Kid Doyle, the well known welterweight, is now domiciled at Lydney (Forest of Dean), where he has secured possession of a coal-level and employs miners to work the precious mineral.

Scored 10 Goals.

Joe Smith, the international and Bolton Wanderers footballer, keeps on adding to his crop of goals. Playing for a League side against Burnley he took three out of five. Smith has scored ten goals in his last four games.

Raymond Vittet To All At 10st.

Raymond Vittet, not being able to get a match with Bob Marriott at 10st, is prepared to meet any boxer in England at the same weight for £200 a side. Anybody posting a deposit will be immediately attended to.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Gruesome Advertising.

For the information of many enquirers it may be stated that the hideous poster that at present disfigures the advertising boardings in Cologne, depicting two emaciated specimens of humanity, the man with an arm off, is an effort of the Independent Socialists calculated to influence the electorate in the forthcoming elections. The picture is intended to convey the ghastly consequences of war against which of course, the body is opposed.

A good notion.

Another happy addition to the amenities of the VI Corps Officers Club in Cologne, is the introduction of a complete music programme, printed tastefully between red covers and decorated with gold. The repertoire comprises eight hundred numbers, all carefully grouped, any of which the excellent orchestra undertake to play by request. The writer was in the lounge yesterday discussing this latest institution when an exasperated voice floated from the writing room declaring, "If only a few pen nibs that would write were provided one could appreciate the comforts of this club completely".

"Watch em' Die"!

A remarkable incidint, which hugely tickled all who saw it, occurred yesterday in Hohe Strasse, Cologne. A vendor of dying pigs, toy balloons etc, ambled slowly along the edge of the kerb, his wares being tied in profusion to the end of a long stick which rested over his shoulder. With downcast eyes he failed to notice a spirited Tommy, riding slowly past on a motor lorry, carefully pluck the whole of his inflated stock-in-trade from the top of the stick. His expression of blank amazement when the goods were returned after the lapse of a few minutes, with suitable reward by the way, was perfectly ludicrous.

More Howlers.

An Army college instructor writes:—It has been most judiciously remarked in your paper that "even correcting examination papers has its lighter moments." Speaking as one who has been engaged in the same amusement, may I be permitted to contribute a few "howlers"? I do not believe a word exists that creates such obstacles as the word "proximo" in a dictation; the most noteworthy attempts were as follows:—"proxamo," "proxemo" "proccimo," "ploximo," "ploxemal," "ploxemon," prochsimon, "aproxemate," "proxmo," "aproxemal," and nearly all the writers must surely have seen the word in orders!

Still More Howlers.

Again, in the same piece of dictation, a sentence ran:—"Demands for the new pattern badges may be submitted through the usual channels." Numbers wrote "submited," and one man talked about "the new butter budget" and another "the useful saddle". In an essay on "Sports in the Rhine Army" a budding Macaulay wrote:—"As Napoleon said, 'An army marches on its stomach'; he might well have added, So is it kept fit by sports." And a confrère similarly states, "Napoleon might well have added that the Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton."

A Good Shunting Plan.

A system of shunting goods trains in use by the German railway authorities appears to be very efficient. The general arrangement of the shunting yard, one main line with a number of lines branching from it is the same as in England, but differs in that the main line is carried over a mound which makes a sharp rise and fall in the gradient. The train to be split up is pushed slowly, at less than a walking pace, up the main line on the side of the mound remote from the branch lines. Each truck, just before it reaches the summit of the mound, is uncoupled from the train by a shunter, stationed there for the purpose, and marked with the number of the siding into which it is to be put. As soon as the truck thus uncoupled passes over the summit and is on the downward grade it gathers speed and in consequence is some distance away before the next truck follows it, thus there is sufficient distance between each truck for them to be easily switched into the siding for which they are marked.

Happy German Prisoners.

Relatives in Cologne of German soldiers taken prisoner by the British in the early days of the war received enlightenment on Thursday night, when many of them met the trains bringing back their men to give them a welcome home. Instead of greeting pinched ill-nourished creatures as some of them expected (bearing in mind German propaganda) they were surprised to see emerge from the carriage doors tanned, robust, smiling faces. Greetings having been exchanged, the German soldiers were full of eulogy in explaining the treatment they had received during their enforced absence from the "Vaterland". Thus, tangible conviction squashed yet another German delusion.

Materialistic.

We have quoted more than once the strange advertisements inserted in the German papers by men who want to marry, Here is a girl's advertisement: "Young girl, 20 years old, with constitutional ailment, daughter of a peasant (2 cows, 6 pigs, 18 hens, 3 hams, sausages, bacon) wants a companion for life, who does not care for externals and considers good living as the main thing in life."

Re-Echoes.

There is a steady rise in the value of the mark.

It is now forbidden to fish in ponds, connected to streams which act as breeding pools.

Permission of owners of land is necessary for the hunting, shooting and killing of game.

There will be no free issue of Christmas puddings this year. Arrangements will be made regimentally as before the war.

The Army repair rates for boots and shoes have been increased. Long soleing and heeling is now 8s. 6d. a pair.

It is noticeable how khaki has given place to civilian attire in cabarets where practically all khaki was to be seen.

Signaller H.M. Anderson, 23rd. Battn. R.F. has been commended for a gallant rescue of a comrade from drowning at Hoffnungstnal on the 30th of last month.

There is an increasing number of English wives and children in Germany judging by the number of blue and white brassards to be seen.

Judging by the café crowds on any evening in the week a lot of money changes hands nightly and there seems no shortage.

Why do not cabarets change their programmes weekly? A show with the approach of the third week of a month is positively boring.

A woman in a Cologne hotel yesterday was seen to send a dish away and then commence to cry. A few minutes later she was laughing at something said by her male escort.

It is interesting to note that while the three-ply trams are favoured in Cologne, two-ply vehicles are the order at Mayence and Wiesbaden, and single trams run at Coblenz.

Cannot civilians be restrained from entering military carriages? It is a practice exclusively peculiar to the night trains; there seems to be little or no control by the civilian authorities on duty at the smaller stations.

Owing to the low level of water in the Rhine the passenger service of the Cologne—Düsseldorf Steamship Company has been suspended. This curtailment of the service will affect all river boats running on schedule between Mayence, Coblenz and Cologne.

Prizes for Echoes.

Every day we give prizes of 10 marks each for "Echoes." Contributions are invited from all readers. To-day's winners are Lieut. H.G.A. Phillimore, Light Divisional College, Rhine Army and Pte. C. White 10th Royal Hussars, B 3 ward, 44 C.C.S. Rhine Army.

OPINIONS OF THE MOMENT.

HOW TO STOP BAD PLAYS.

The Rector of St Anne's, Soho, speaking on present day plays says:—It is a regrettable thing that in the centre of London, where there are the finest theatres and the best acting in the world, plays should be staged which have a distinct tendency towards the lowering of the nation's morals. I do not care how clever an actor is, or how pretty or talented an actress may be, those of them who take part in such productions are not the friends, but the foes, of their fellow-creatures. Unfortunately, it is not art so much as the pay box that regulates our theatres to-day, but the public has a duty to perform in the matter, and can do a lot to put an end to such debasing plays. Let every man and woman who goes to see a play which offends his or her sense of decency write to the manager and tell him so. This will soon make him withdraw the objectionable production.

THE LORD MAYOR AND BROTHERHOOD.

Sir Horace Marshall, receiving the International Brotherhood Congress, at the Mansion House, said: During the last ten months, I have tried to maintain its fame for brotherly hospitality and co-operation. In my private affairs I have found that ideal to be the guiding star along life's happiest roads to life's fairest havens. Brotherhood is essential to the scheme of things. One may liken it to a golden thread running through the whole fabric and giving it both beauty and strength. More happiness comes from an acceptance of the ideal of brotherhood than from any material possessions.

LUCK.

Mme. Tetrazzini, the famous singer, writing on "Luck," says: Successful people, I am often told, believe that their triumphs are due solely to their own deserts. I suppose I am successful, but I believe most firmly in luck, and what is more unusual, in luck-bringers. Remember, I spring from a superstitious race! All around me are signs of those influences which are at work affecting my fortunes for good or ill. I know I shall have good luck if I meet a hunchbacked man; a soldier with a friar who carries an umbrella, or a wagon full of hay drawn by a white horse. Other signs speak to me of bad luck, which is, I think, a positive thing, not merely the absence of good luck as some people suppose. To find a needle on the floor the day I have to sing is most unlucky. To break a glass, to meet a load of straw, to meet nuns or priests—all these are unlucky for me. Luck alone, however, is not enough for success. Each day I work for hours at my singing. One must do all that one can with the power that is in one's self, for luck is something beyond our own control and we must be ready to fight ill-luck or make the most of good luck when it comes.

"LUDICROUS" SOFT COLLAR.

A Sartorial expert writing with regard to the crusade in favour of the soft collar with evening dress says: The idea is too incongruous to be entertained for one moment. I cannot believe that any man possessing the slightest element of good taste would ever appear at a ball or a dinner clad in a soft collar. A man usually looks his very best in evening attire, and the majority of men make a special feature of attaining that ideal when going out, and the thought alone of a soft collar in these circumstances is too ludicrous. The question of soft cuffs is an assured certainty; but the soft collar will never appeal to one man in a thousand. What sort of evening tie would be worn with the soft collar? I am of opinion that a man's neck would present a sorry spectacle after the first dance. No, the question of soft collars for evening wear, I am afraid, can be banished for ever.

THE DRAMA OF LIFE.

"All the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely players."—Shakespeare.

Life is a drama, and not a long monologue, and in that drama there is no use for the idle man or woman. The name which comes from a Greek verb means "to do" thus signifying that every actor must do a part to help on the whole, and fulfil the object for which the author created him.

In the greatest of all dramas, that of the struggle for existence, it is meant that each one should work for the progress of that Great Play, which links together the lives of men, all striving for the ultimate end, when the curtain shall be rung down, and the ears of the workers be gladdened by the words which will come from the Divine Author—"Well done thou good and faithful servant."

The problem of reconstruction seems to predominate at the present time, but for years the world has been busy with destruction—destruction of cities and towns—destruction of lives and happiness, but now another act is being performed, and the world must work, and do, in that act.

Harmony is required that this new act may succeed, harmony among the players of the drama. To some is given a part which to them seems small and insignificant, but which after all is part of the great plan of things, and that part should be performed with the whole of the energy at the disposal of the player.

It is not given to all to stand in the limelight of human affairs, while the world looks on and sees every action and listens breathlessly to every word; to such a man there is a great responsibility, but that responsibility does not lessen the duty of others who seem only to glide almost unnoticed across the stage of life.

In the production of an ordinary drama, it would not do for the thread of the narrative, or the stage effect to be lost sight of in a futile controversy, as to which are the best words to use, or a continual wrangling on the part of the players as to the best way of producing those words or actions.

But alas, we know that in the drama of life such is the case, and on all sides there seems to be a sudden cessation of work both spiritual and material, while the actors abuse one another.

The drama of life goes on and waits not for those men who are fast losing their opportunity of making good their part.

God has need of every man, and requires that he shall do his best in the world, and God will help him to reach that ideal for which the world is longing.

The individual makes up the whole, and to-day is the opportunity of the individual.

TEACHING THE RHINE ARMY.

THE ARMY GENERAL AND COMMERCIAL COLLEGE.

There has been much controversy upon the all important subject of education, and many arguments, both for and against the various schemes in operation amongst battalions in the Rhine Army.

Education with battalions is, more or less, a failure, due to the fact that the programme arranged by the Education Authorities is invariably interfered with by the daily routine as dispensed by the powers that be; for instance to-day Private Jones may be struggling manfully with the present tense of "avoir", but tomorrow he is perforce engaged in the realms below, removing superfluous grease from the company "dixies".

Of course there are often voluntary classes in the afternoons, but the average Tommy prefers to sacrifice his time at the altar of the popular Goddess "Sport".

That long-suffering individual known as the Education Officer can do nothing to remedy the state of affairs, — and has to bow to the decrees of Fate — or the battalion orderly room.

At the Army General and Commercial College this is not so; the searcher after knowledge can pursue his studies immune from priority calls from the cookhouse.

The college is a fine building in the Hansa Ring, Cologne, and is divided roughly into two portions, the general wing and the commercial wing.

The subjects taught comprise almost any, one may care to name.

The college is ably administered by Colonel Heath, D.S.O. who has a staff of capable and efficient instructors, both civil and military.

A time-table is followed, divided into four periods in the morning from 9 a.m. till 1 p.m. with a break of 10 minutes per hour, also in the afternoons from 2 p.m. till 3 p.m. except on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons when no classes are held.

Text books of all kinds are available, of which there is an almost unlimited selection in the college library.

Each student is provided with a private billet in the vicinity of the college, where he has every facility for study; in addition there are the smoking rooms where one may study with the soothing influence of Lady Nicotine.

There are several messes provided for the various branches of the college, all fully equipped and staffed with the usual mess servants — a privilege hitherto accorded only to sergeants and commissioned ranks.

Sports and recreation also have their part in the programme of this educational utopia; cricket, football, tennis, dancing and divers other sports and also Rhine trips are available.

The motif of the college is hard work, coupled with the necessary recreation and comfort — and under such ideal conditions it is no wonder that the results of each course gladden the hearts of the instructional staff. A. G. D.

WILL CARRY ON.

W.A.A.C. to Tommy:—What are you men who are so used to fighting going to do when you go home to a peaceful life?"

Tommy:—"Oh, I'm a Iright, I'm married."

NATURE

Nature is not always fair,
With all of those we meet.
She is sometimes stingy with her hair,
And lavish as to feet.

FROM EVERYWHERE.

Indigestible.—A Perthshire boy has died through swallowing a collar-stud.

Military Fashion.—There is a military touch about women's fashions.

Real Value.—According to an expert baths worth 35/- are selling at £3.

Warned.—The Birmingham magistrate promises future profiteers imprisonment.

Lifeboat Drama.—The coxswain of the Rhyl lifeboat recently saved his own son.

Irish.—"Veal and ham tongues" ar eon sale in a Marylebone shop.

Coming home.—There is a steady stream of troops from India.

More economy.—Another big naval "cut" is pending.

In exchange.—The Germans offer potash in return for cotton.

Any old thing.—Ex-officers are being trained as hotel managers.

More trains.—L.B. and S.C.R. London-Paris service is being accelerated.

Falling.—Cliff falls are again prevalent in East Kent.

Take notice.—No further mails will be dispatched to the troops in North Russia.

After more.—National Health Insurance agents are demanding more pay.

A luxury.—Record prices are being asked for fish at home.

Yankee bank.—American banks have completed arrangements for opening branches in Germany.

Epicure.—A Paris beggar having collected pence in a cafe left but returned to dine.

The penalty of greatness.—The Chief Secretary for Ireland has received several letters threatening assasination.

To retire.—Sir Charles Darling will not resume his seat on the bench when the courts reopen.

Cheerful outlook.—Mr. Illingworth's successor is to be given a free hand to reorganise the telephone system.

Another kind.—Because the Vicar discharged the organist a Grimsby choir has gone on strike.

Worse.—"Memories are bad in this district, but lies are worse,"—the Whitechapel County Court judge.

Then and now.—The tenders for Newcastle baths total £88,000 against £23,000 pre war.

Barefooted.—Some of the unemployed ex-soldiers marching to London did some of the journey barefooted.

Loud enough.—"Speak just as you do to your husband when he comes home late at night."—London Magistrate.

Higher, higher.—The uppers of Paris boots now reach half way up the calf of the leg.

The universal complaint.—Swansea Docks hoistmen struck work for more wages.

Meddling.—The American "Pussyfoot" compaign is impudent meddling.—Major Lowther, M.P.

Dear silver.—Silver has reached the highest price ever quoted—63s. 0½d. an ounce.

The next!—If there is another war it is practically certain that it will begin and end in the air.—Sir A. Denny.

As mayor.—Sir Walter de Frece is likely to become Mayor of Brighton for the coming year.

Climbs down.—Brighton has climbed down and appointed a Profiteering Tribunal.

Seaman's boycott.—The boycott of all British ships carrying Germans is to be continued.

Clergymen's union.—There is every likelihood of a trade union for clergymen who threaten revolt on the wages question.

Appealing.—Mrs. Selma Isaacs, who was recently convicted has lodged an appeal.

Woman's Eye.—Acton profiteers view with alarm the presence of women on the local tribunal.

In Danger.—The battleship "Queen Elizabeth" has had a narrow escape on the Capstone rocks.

The Bulldog Spirit.—Six Albereon miners offered themselves for transfusion of blood to save a miner's wife.

Assets.—A Bridgewater cattle dealer had garden produce valued £1 as his sole assets.

Determined.—A Hampstead suicide saturated her nightdress with paraffin oil and set light to it.

Theatre Roof Garden.—Leicester-square is to have a variety theatre with roof garden restaurant.

Plucky Rooster.—A rooster belonging to a Sheffield district farmer attacked and killed a rat.

Back Again.—Stage-door crowds outside the West End theatres are prominent once more.

The Scottish Horse.—A London branch of the Scottish Horse Association is being formed.

As Usual.—I suppose we shall find the usual public apathy over profiteering.—Mayor of Holborn.

Down.—Scotland's birth-rate for the last recorded year was the lowest since 1856.

No Increase.—Bedford council refused by a large majority to vote money for increased police pay.

Expensive Sleep.—£5 was paid for a single room for one night by a visitor to Brighton.

Carried Away.—During a football match at Llanelly a spectator dropped dead through excitement.

New Scale.—A comprehensive revision of the pay and pensions of officers in India has been approved.

Peace Time W.A.A.C.s.—The probability is that a reserve of W.A.A.C.s will be maintained.

A Nasty Drunk.—"The others got quietly and peaceably drunk, but you fouled the atmosphere with bad language"—Willesden Magistrate.

Washing Water.—Manchester swimming baths are fitted with air apparatus by which water can be used over and over again.

The only way.—If the demobilized W.A.A.C.'s formerly in service, do not take such work they will be ineligible for unemployment benefit.

Ceratopogon Pulicaris!

You may not recognise his name—but you know him quite well. He's the little stinging fly which is biting everyone who tries to enjoy the evening outdoors. He will not bite you, however, if you always use. . . .

THE LION LEADS in CURING

During the strenuous times of the past few years
Burgess' Lion Ointment
has more than maintained its reputation. it has gained increased commendation for its marvellous efficacy in removing pieces of shrapnel, splinters of bone, etc., from old wounds, healing them permanently from underneath.

Nature will always assert itself
It is useless healing a wound until it is thoroughly cleansed; it must break out again worse than before. The great success of
is that it will not heal till it has thoroughly cleared away all morbid matter. There is no danger to life in curing a bad leg by this remedy, as it does not throw back humour into the system. It cures without lancing or cutting, bringing at disease to the surface and healing from underneath in all cases of Ulcers, Abscesses, Whitlows, Boils, Carbuncles, Fatty or Cystic Tumours, Piles, Fistula, Polypus, Poisoned Wounds, and all forms of Skin Disease, Eczema, Ringworm, etc.
Unequalled as a General Household Remedy for Cuts, Burns, Stings, &c.
Proof. At 59, Gray's Inn Road, E. BURGESS has a Museum of Extractions, consisting of Tumours, Polypi, and diseased Bone; also numerous Photographs of most serious cases, which have all been cured by the Lion Ointment. BLUDGEON OF ANARCHY.

GREAT RAILWAY STRIKE BRINGS HOSTS OF VOLUNTARY WORKERS.

TIGHTEN BELTS AND KEEP SMILING.

STRIKE FACTS.

MEASURES TO MEET ALL EMERGENCIES.

Great Britain is up against the biggest organized conspiracy — "anarchist conspiracy," to use the Prime Minister's own words — it has ever had to face. On the surface it would appear to be but the latest and biggest of the industrial troubles which have racked the nation both during and since the war. The cumulative effect of these exorbitant demands, however, is so serious that at last the Government has been compelled to cry "halt," as much in the interests of the community as in the exercise of law and order.

The railwaymen's might easily prove to be the first of the fangs which are striving to reach and rend the main artery of the British Empire.

One cannot believe that blind obedience to the command of a small group of agitators will suffer itself to go to the very extreme. Many of the men now on strike do not know why they are out. They have merely obeyed orders. Others — men in receipt of £5 to £7 per week — are also out — in sympathy! One has no sympathy with either set and can but hope that sanity will speedily take the place of madness.

The solid facts remain that the Men's Executive refused even a few hours delay; that the Triple Alliance of which they form part was absolutely ignorant of their intentions; and that the men were not consulted in any way. They were told to strike and they struck. That is not the action of thinking men but resembles the automatic response of sheep. The British Nation will have none of it.

Official Communiqué.

The following official communiqué was issued from 10, Downing-street, London, on Saturday night:—

"Reports from the country indicate that the stoppage of the train service is now practically complete. No disturbances have been reported. A road transport service is being organized rapidly by the Government to ensure the food supply. The Government are receiving very large numbers of offers of assistance from all parts of the country and particularly from discharged soldiers and sailors and their organizations and are taking all necessary action to deal with the situation."

Situation in Brief.

Five hundred thousand railwaymen are idle, and the funds of the National Union of Railwaymen are sufficient to provide strike pay for a month. Officials say, however, that starvation will force the Government to negotiate for a settlement before that time.

Meantime drastic steps to meet the food situation are being taken by the Government. Hyde Park is to be used as a motor park and a centre for the provisioning of London. About a thousand lorries are available, some having been commandeered while in response to the appeal for help 250,000 offers from volunteer drivers have been received.

In a telegram cancelling an engagement at Carnarvon the Premier states that he can recall no strike entered into so lightly, with so little justification and with such entire disregard for public interest.

"The precipitancy of this action," he says, "gives the impression of deliberate and matured intention on the part of some individuals to seek a quarrel at any cost." He is convinced that majority of trade unions are opposed to "this anarchist conspiracy."

Adverse Public Opinion.

Public opinion generally strongly supports the Government in the firm stand they are taking against the strike, which on all sides is condemned as unjustified. It is considered that the railwaymen's officials have shown a complete disregard for the interests of the public, and it is realised that the Government, in refusing to meet all their demands, have been actuated solely by a sense of duty to the nation. Almost without exception the newspapers, even those which are the most acute critics of the Government, are unanimously opposed to the strike.

An official statement issued on Sunday evening says the traffic situation is unchanged.

Fight The Good Fight.

The Government has issued a proclamation headed "Fight for the Life of the Country." It appeals to every citizen to help. This can be done, it suggests, by working, by saving petrol, light, coal and food; by using the telephones, telegraphs and post as little as possible; by keeping up good spirits and by generally making the best of things. It asks for the services of volunteers qualified to work on the railways and experienced motor transport workers, especially demobilized officers and men. Special constables and wireless operators are also asked to lend their aid.

The Shipping Controller has issued an appeal to officers and men of the mercantile marine to keep the shipping running as far as possible and to re-create the spirit which saved the country during the war.

How The Nation Is Being Fed.

Food distribution arrangements are proceeding smoothly. Offers of service are pouring in from all quarters, and arrangements are being completed to make immediate use of volunteers.

Hyde Park is closed and is being used as a clearing centre for the distribution of food, especially fresh milk. The spot chosen for the milk dump is near the Hyde Park Corner entrance and is the scene of immense bustle and excitement. Hundreds of empty milk-cans sent by London shops are stacked near one main road, labelled with the names and addresses of their owners. The cans were handled by volunteers and the lorries were very quickly loaded. It was estimated on Saturday that about 4,000 cans had passed through this clearing centre. Hundreds of lorries, mainly belonging to the Royal Air Force, have already been collected in the Park, inscribed in big letters "Food only." From all the Government motor depots lorries are being rushed to various other centres for the distribution of food. About 1,000 of these lorries were available in London alone.

D.O.R.A. Proving Useful.

The Ministry of Food is also requisitioning the lorries of private firms, the register compiled during war under D.O.R.A. enabling this to be done quickly. The country has been divided into areas for food distribution. Meanwhile hundreds of telegrams are pouring in from all parts of the country offering motor vehicles and drivers for food distribution. Several hundred naval men were transferred from Chatham to London to take charge of naval motor lorries detached for the same task.

Cold Storage Reserves.

It is officially announced that besides the arrangements for distributing milk from Hyde Park the Government has provided for possible emergencies by placing a large quantity in cold storage.

On Saturday and Sunday Londoners received at least fifty per cent of their usual quantities. Lorries returning to the country with the empty churns take back also full cargoes of foodstuffs which are conveyed to Hyde Park from the docks by horse transport. Similar schemes are being applied to all big provincial centres, nearly five thousand lorries being thus employed.

Stocks of frozen meat are well distributed all over the country and full arrangements have been made for the maintenance of supplies and their distribution. Retailers throughout the country hold adequate supplies of other foodstuffs and the Government has sufficient reserves to prevent any serious local shortage.

Few Trains-Many Helpers.

The Great London termini were deserted yesterday. One train was dispatched from Crewe, the driver being an inhabitant of the town, who wanted to get home. A few other trains were dispatched from other big provincial towns. The Brighton Railway Company announced the suspension of the Continental service via Newhaven and Dieppe but the boat train to Folkestone left Victoria in the morning at its usual time with 300 passengers. The same company started a service to the Crystal Palace of three trains hourly but no trains will be run after dark. There is every hope that during the week other services will be set going. "We anticipate the position will be easier tomorrow", said the general manager, Sir William Forbes. "Already we have many volunteers and they are coming forward every moment."

The South Western Railway is gradually extending its suburban services. A number of trains were run into and out of Bristol during daylight on the time interval system. In Scotland heavily-laden trains were dispatched from Edinburgh to Aberdeen, Perth and Glasgow.

A very attenuated daylight service was run yesterday on the Brighton, Midland and Great Eastern local lines. Long distance journeys were almost entirely suspended, A crowded train left Kings Cross at 6.45 on Friday night and reached Edinburgh at 3.30 on Saturday afternoon after an extraordinary journey. The train officials were compelled to alight in order to open the gates of level crossings and shift the points. The passengers were all exhausted.

R.O.D. To The Rescue.

The only train from London to Manchester on Sunday started from Marylebone. It was driven by two officer passengers, Major Burns and Major Fay, both thoroughly qualified for the task. Changing into overalls borrowed from women cleaners they made the initial preparations in a workmanlike fashion. Passengers were hastily collected from other Northern termini and taken to Marylebone. They were everjoyed, many having been waiting all night.

Passengers arriving at Folkestone by the Boulogne boat on Saturday were unable to proceed to London until Sunday afternoon, and this delay will continue.

Pickets removed the engines from two main-line trains at Fife and left the passengers stranded.

STRIKE RATIONS.

ALL FOOD TO BE STRICTLY RATIONED.

The ration system has been reimposed and will be rigidly enforced.

The full list of weekly rations was issued on Saturday night. It is as follows:—

Meat to the value of 1/8d, bacon, 6 ozs; sugar, 6 ozs; margarine, 4 ozs; lard, 2 ozs; butter, 1 oz., and coal 1 cwt.

Milk will not be rationed, but the priority scheme on lines previously in operation will be applied locally immediately supplies begin to fail. The sale of condensed milk will then be subject to the production of a priority card.

Meales In Restaurants.

The Food Controller has also issued a new Public Meals Order by which the total quantities of meat, flour, bread, and sugar used in or by any public eating place in any week shall not exceed the gross quantities ascertained in accordance with the following scale of average quantities per meal:

	Meat.	Sugar.	Bread.	Flour.
Breakfast.....	2 oz.	¼ oz.	2 oz.	Nil
Luncheon including middle-day dinner)	4 oz.	¼ oz.	2 oz.	1 oz.
Dinner (including supper and meat tea)	4 oz.	¼ oz.	2 oz.	1 oz.
Tea	Nil	¼ oz.	2 oz.	Nil..

Post Office Arrangements.

The transport of the mails by road is being organized and extended. It is expected that a fairly efficient service will be working in a few days. Meanwhile, in view of delay to the mails, there has been an immense rush of telegrams and in consequence the Post Office has arranged an air service between London and Paris, to be used for urgent letters only.

Aerial Overcrowding.

Aerial passenger companies have been inundated with bookings and are running special services to various large provincial centres.

Two Norwegians who had flown from Paris to London on Saturday chartered a special machine to catch a steamer at Newcastle.

The Handley-Page Air Services to Paris and Brussels have been doubled, and the British Aerial Transport Company is inaugurating an aeroplane service of two trips daily between London and Birmingham.

Strikers Are Jubilant.

A big demonstration of railwaymen was held at the Albert Hall on Sunday and approved the action of their executive in calling a strike.

Mr. Thomas, who was loudly cheered, said the Executive were unanimously of the opinion that if Mr. Lloyd George had been left to himself he would have found a settlement. In another passage Mr. Thomas said:— "I cannot allow the Premier's statement to go unchallenged that we declined to grant a respite of two or three days." Mr. Thomas categorically denied this, and in concluding his speech said that if the Premier is prepared to concede to all railway servants the same principle as to the drivers and firemen the strike can cease immediately.

Mr. J. H. Thomas has issued instructions forbidding a railway strike in Ireland.

Other Sympathetic Unions.

Mr. Bromley, Secretary of the Drivers and Firemen's Union, said his Union heartily supported the National Union of Railwaymen because their demands were fair.

Mr. Robert Williams, of the Transport Workers Union, says: — "The Triple Alliance will be involved and the country will be paralyzed." No immediate action however is expected. Moreover Mr. Robert Smillie, President of the Miners Federation, said on Saturday: "There is a possibility of the miners coming out but I imagine the fight will have to be borne chiefly by the railwaymen themselves." The officials of the railwaymen say they do not want the Transport Workers to strike as they are confident that they can obtain their demands unaided.

The Executive of the Licensed Vehicle Workers' Union resolved on Sunday that, if the Government refuses to re-open negotiations with the railwaymen, they will recommend to the Transport Workers' Federation that the dispute be made a national question.

A meeting of London bus, tramway and taxi-men held on Saturday night deferred their decision with reference to striking.

Thanks To Lloyd George.

According to the official notes of the Conference between the Cabinet and the railwaymen Mr. J. H. Thomas, in conveying the decision to strike, said, addressing the Premier, "Our Executive during your absence passed a resolution recording its appreciation of the fair and impartial way in which you endeavoured to conduct the case from your side and the fair and frank way in which you endeavoured to meet us."

What The Premier Said.

With reference to Mr. Thomas's denial, the shorthand verbatim report of the Conference shows that Mr. Lloyd George, referring to the proposal to declare a strike, said,—"I would ask you to put it off, at any rate for two or three days, so as to give us a real chance of talking matters over." Mr. Lloyd George simultaneously undertook that the Government would do nothing to stop the men's notices in order to prevent a declaration of a strike, or in any way take unfair advantage of such delay.

DEATH OF PATTI.

FAMOUS OPERA SINGER'S CAREER.

Mme. Adelina Patti, the great Prima Donna, died on Saturday at Craig-y-nos Castle, Brecknockshire, Wales at the age of 76.

Of Italian extraction, she made her first appearance in opera in New York, when she was fifteen and a half, as Lucia in Donizetti's opera.

In 1888 when she made a tour of the Argentine Republic she was paid £1,200 a night, and when she retired in 1906 it was said that she had earned during her career of over fifty-six years at least £750,000 by her voice.

Mme. Patti was three times married. Her first husband, whom she married in London in 1868, was the Marquis de Caux, from whom she was divorced. In 1886 she was married to Signor Nicolini, the tenor singer, who died in 1898. The following year she married Baron Olof Cederstrom, who became a naturalised Englishman.

RAILWAY COMPANIES AFFECTED.

The number of men affected by a general strike on the leading railways is approximately as follows:

London and N. Western . .	120,000
Great Western	95,200
Midland	80,500
Lancashire and Yorkshire .	40,000
Great Central	38,000
Great Northern	35,000
Great Eastern	33,000
London and S. Western . .	25,000
L. B. and South Coast . . .	20,000
Caledonian	18,800
South Eastern and Chatham .	18,000
North British	17,800
Metropolitan District & Tubes	11,200
Glasgow and S. Western . .	9,800
Metropolitan	4,500
Total . . .	534,800

Booking clerks, attendants, etc., would swell this number to over a million, but an official at the headquarters of the Railway Clerks' Association stated that the association would not be affected.

Will the Government Impound?

The funds of the National Union of Railwamen amount to £1,500,000 and strike play, according to the rules of the union, will be distributed at the rate of 2s. 6d. a day for adults and 1s. a day for juvenile employés.

That will mean that the financial resources of the strikers will last for 4 weeks at the utmost, but it is the view of the officials of the N.U.R. that the strike will not last anything like that time. "Great Britain will be on the verge of starvation within a week," said one of the most prominent officials, "and the Government will be compelled to give in."

FEAR BEGETS WISDOM.

The Secretary of the German "Bund des neuen Vaterlands" (Union of the new Germany) which is chiefly composed of adherents of the Conservative Party, is on a visit to Stockholm. Lecturing on the Association's Peace Reform Programme he said: "Germany does not mourn her two million dead in the war but only grieves for having lost the war and dreams of revenge, for the old spirit still survives in spite of all apparent changes. Amongst all influential circles, officials, teachers and the military, a reactionary spirit prevails. Only the fear of the Entente prevents former officers from carrying out a coup d'etat, removing the Social Democratic Government and restoring the Empire."

VOLUNTEERS DISBANDED.

The Secretary to the War Office announces that it has been decided to release from their obligations all members of the Volunteer Force other than those R.A.S.C. or M.T. units still required for special transport duties. Instructions have been issued accordingly to commence the disbandment of the force.

His Majesty the King has sent a message to all the Lord Lieutenants of Great Britain expressing his appreciation of the services rendered by all ranks of the force.

NAVAL LOSSES DURING WAR.

According to an official statement issued in London the British Navy's losses during the war amounted to 254 ships, including:—13 Battleships, 3 Battle cruisers, 13 Cruisers, 6 Light cruisers, 64 Destroyers and 54 Submarines.

The auxiliary vessels lost numbered 815, among them being 244 steamers carrying coal and 246 steam trawlers.

SALVAGE EXPLOSION.

Six men were injured by an explosion at Richborough Salvage Camp on Saturday. They were burning a large heap of scrapped war material, including a quantity of tins, when the explosion occurred within a few feet of them.

WAR MEMORIAL EXHIBITION.

The Royal Academy has arranged a second exhibition of war memorial designs during October and November, including sculptured and architectural memorials, tablets, crosses, screens, rolls of honour in stained glass, etc. Detailed information will be provided for the benefit of artists and craftsmen.

WRONG DOERS

PLAUSIBLE TALES FROM THE COURT.

In the course of serving one sentence of four months for fraud, Heine von Brauser came under the notice of the British police in another direction.

He claimed, however, to be a British subject, saying that he was born in Manchester in 1897 of an English father and French mother, and where his patrician name came from being beside the point. He said his young criminal life included a ten year stay in France and employment at Krupp's during the war.

Charged with giving false information he confessed that he was born at Duren, so he is back in durance vile, under remand from the Summary Court.

STOLE FROM THE POLICE.

Heinrich Schultz, a German cook, pleaded at the Summary Court that he had no leisure whatever from morn till night. He found time however to pack up and take away from the place where he was employed—a Military Police Mess of all places—10 lbs. of meat, 5 lbs. of bacon and other Army rations. He now has leisure for reflection, being under remand pending the result of further inquiries.

DEPUTATION TO THE KING.

Thousands of members of the Federation of Discharged Soldiers and Sailors held a demonstration at Hyde Park on Sunday to call the attention of the Government to grievances in respect of the war gratuities and employment of ex-service men.

The chief speaker was Mr. Hodge, M.P., who demanded the immediate replacement of all persons of either sex occupying temporary war positions by discharged men who are competent to fill their posts.

The demonstrators included a deputation of unemployed ex-service men who had marched all the way from Manchester.

The latter received a telegram from H.M. the King, expressing his willingness to receive a deputation. Sir Robert Horne, Minister of Labour, will also receive them next week.

TWICE ROUND THE CLOCK.

The Home Secretary has appointed a Committee to consider the question of adopting for official and public purposes in the United Kingdom the twenty-four hour system of reckoning time as employed by the services during the war.

MORE AGRARIAN OUTRAGES.

The Leitrim residence of Colonel James Kirkwood was raided for arms by a gang of masked men on Thursday. The Colonel was absent from home at the time and Mrs. Kirkwood was threatened at the muzzle of a revolver while the search took place.

Two shot guns were carried off but a sum of money and other valuables, including the Ascot Gold cup, were left unmolested and no damage was done.

WHISKY RAIDERS.

It is not only the quest of arms which is the object of the constant outrages in Ireland. The search for whisky is a good second. At Londonderry on Wednesday night marauders attempted to break into the bonded warehouse of Watts' Distillery in Abbey-street. The raiders were disturbed, however, and cleared off, taking all the samples of whisky in the outer room.

PREMIER TO VISIT WOOLWICH.

As the result of a thirty minutes conference at 10 Downing-street yesterday, the Prime Minister promised a deputation from Woolwich that he would visit the Arsenal on Wednesday next. He will meet the workers and the Town Committee of Woolwich to investigate existing grievances as to discharges.

NO FREEDOM FOR IRISH PRESS.

A combined force of police and military yesterday raided the offices of the Kerry News, the Kerry Weekly Reporter and the Killarney Echo at Tralee. All three papers were suppressed and the machinery dismantled. These papers had published the prospectus of the Irish National Loan.

Fourteen Irish newspapers have now been suppressed.

POINCARÉ'S TRAVELLING.

The seven official journeys to foreign countries made since 1897 by the Presidents of the French Republic have involved an expenditure of 2,135,000 francs. This does not include the credit of 125,000 francs just voted for M. Poincaré's visit to London next month.

PROFITEERING ITEMS.

The Profiteering Acts have been extended to Ireland. Women and Labour representatives are now competent to sit on all tribunals.

Pipes, tobacco, matches, cigarettes have been added to the schedule of articles affected.

IMPUDENT LETTER.

VON DER GOLTZ TO THE ALLIED MISSION.

General Burt, Chief of the Entente Mission at Riga, addressed a letter to General von der Goltz, Commander of the German troops in Courland, asking for the names of the Germans who made propaganda for the establishment of German troops in Courland.

Von der Goltz answered by an insolent letter in which he said:—"You dare to ask me to indicate as culprits a certain number of my compatriots. I see in this pretension a grave insult against my nation and the German national feeling. I should like consequently to advise you for the future not to ask such mean things from me or from my subordinates, otherwise I shall be forced to break all relations with you and to expel every Britisher from the area still occupied by the Germans."

CAB FARES IN COLOGNE.

A WARNING TO BRITISH SOLDIERS

Several cases have happened recently where the taxi-driver in Cologne has been anticipating the increased charge that is to come into force shortly, and instead of the present regulation fare of two marks a kilometre for British troops in Rhineland has demanded four marks. This, the D.A.P.M. informs us, is all wrong, and any such attempts should be firmly resisted. Germans only, need pay at the four mark rate, until the official notification of the increase is posted inside the cabs of Cologne. This posting is expected to be done shortly, but meanwhile two marks only is the rate per kilometre for the British.

LONDON HOUSING PROBLEMS.

Of 3,000 dwelling-houses in London inspected by the London Housing Board 1,150 have been found suitable for conversion into working-class flats. The Ministry of Health has appointed a Committee in view of the clearance of slum areas.

Edmonton District Council has prepared a scheme for the erection of 2,000 working-class-houses on the Hyde estate hitherto occupied by the Royal Air Force. The estimated cost is two million pounds.

SELF-DISINFECTION.

In view of the recent decision that official recognition of self-disinfection for civilians as preventative of venereal disease is advisable, a number of prominent medical men has formed a Venereal Prevention Committee, with Lord Willoughly de Broke as chairman. Its object will be to extend the knowledge of self-disinfection and to this end it will welcome inquiries.

LABOURER BLUFFS COX'S.

A well-dressed man, Clive Aylmer. 65, described as a labourer, was charged at Marylebone with forging a cheque and thus obtaining £78 from Cox's Bank, Charing Cross. Evidence showed that he called at Cox's, saying he was Major Champion, and asked to be shown his account. After seeing the ledgers he drew a cheque for £78, which was paid. He was committed for trial.

STRIKELETS.

The strike has created a grave industrial position in South Wales. Most of the collieries will have closed by today, and steel, iron, tin plate, copper, telephone, engineering and other industries are also closing down. The majority cannot go beyond Wednesday. Other coal-fields and the Nottingham lace industry are similarly affected.

Hundreds of East Coast fishermen are idle owing to the absence of trains for conveyance of their catches to market.

Steel works at Hartlepool have shut down.

Since the strike the General Manager and four assistants have been working the pumps to keep the Mersey tunnel clear of water. Cessation of pumping even for a few hours will render the tunnel unusable for months.

Coal exports have been prohibited and all police leave stopped.

Troops have arrived at Liverpool and are guarding the stations, while a detachment has also arrived at Swindon.

In all cases food will have priority of transport. Local stocks of coal have been placed under the custody of the local fuel overseer.

All the big London and Provincial stores reported that the demand for tinned meat and fish was abnormal but the greatest rush was for tinned meat and flour.

Attempts to hoard were thwarted by refusal of the dealers to execute panic orders, customers being limited to normal quantities.

A number of Admiralty steamers have been assigned to the service of conveying yeast from the distilleries in Ireland and Scotland to convenient ports for distribution.

The Ministry of Health has despatched a malaria expert, Lieut-Colonel James, to investigate the outbreak of malaria at Fitton, near Peterborough. At present it is attributed to mosquitoes.

Owing to extreme pressure on our space the next instalment of the Pay Warrant is held over until tomorrow.

"ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH."

"In my long and varied experience I can recall no strike entered into as lightly, with so little justification and with such entire disregard for public interest."

Thus writes Mr. Lloyd George with reference to the grave cessation of work precipitated by the railwaymen of Great-Britain or rather by a few hot-headed extremists engaged in what the Premier calls an "anarchist conspiracy."

At the moment of writing we have no official information as to whether both the other members of the Triple Alliance have entered the fray, but Mr. J. H. Thomas has no shadow of doubt that the miners and the transport workers, should the struggle continue, will throw in their lot with the railwaymen.

Just at the time when the country was endeavouring to consolidate and expand the national market into a world market, the storm bursts with precipitate fury. Another social and "industrial revolution," rather different in character from that which inspired Arnold Toynbee to coin the phrase, seems to be in the making. The whole economic fabric is gravely threatened.

Into the merits and demerits of the dispute we do not propose to enter. Life is a series of fermentations and—happily for mankind — the side with justice, wisdom, and moderation on its side usually gains the day. No opportunity will be missed, we may rest, assured for the parties conferring at frequent intervals.

To us, as soldiers, one of the brightest glimpses in an otherwise sullen and sombre sky is the characteristic promptitude with which numerous ex-soldiers have again stepped into the breach.

As in August 1914, the life of the nation is endangered, and true to their finest instincts these men have once more rallied to the standard in the hour of their country's peril.

The philosophy current in certain vicious circles in this grossly materialistic age is "What do I care?" compared with which the spirit of Montaigne's days expressed in the motto "What do I know?" is eminently respectable. Happily a leavening still remains after the storm and stress of war who have sufficient thought for their fellow-man to stifle any selfish spirit.

"I have but an angry fancy; what is that which I should do?" exclaim these fervid patriots when the crisis falls. "Service and sacrifice" is their motto and will be to the end of time. Verily they are the salt of the earth.

THE MARK.

In June 1914 an English sovereign was worth 20 marks in Germany.

Early this year when our troops first arrived in Cologne the £1 note was worth about 35 marks.

On August 21st an English £1 note realised 107 marks.

On September 16th the value was 130 marks.

At a time when the fall of the value of English sterling on the American Exchange is creating a hubbub of alarm and exhortation to work and export goods from England it is astounding to find that the far greater fall in the value of the German mark attracts practically no attention in Great Britain.

It seems that, should the German exchange be noticed at all, it is with a complacent serve-them-right air that the Englishman dismisses the subject. Yet, the fall in the German exchange is a considerable factor in the rise on the American exchange against us. To the uninitiated this may seem difficult to follow but it is really very simple.

The depreciated value of the pound in America occurs because we owe for imports more than we can pay by exports: therefore we have to buy dollars to settle our account instead of sending goods—result up goes the dollar and down goes the pound sterling.

But why do we import more than we export — well one reason is lower production due to short hours and war weariness, another the lack of shipping and dock facilities, another the cost of coal, but yet one more is that we have lost the German market and therefore our exports in that direction are stopped. We have lost it because the mark originally worth 1/- has fallen to less than 2d and the Germans cannot afford to pay 6 times as much for our goods as they did before the war in addition to the actual increase in our prices. They have therefore ceased to buy and our exports have ceased to flow in this direction.

BUYNG RECKLESSLY.

When the Armistice was signed Germany and Austria were bare of many of the necessaries of life—food, clothing, boots and the raw material to manufacture. Immediately the French, Dutch and Americans leapt in with millions of pounds worth of supplies at fabulous prices which were eagerly bought by the conquered, starving populace and marks began to flow in streams across the frontiers.

In fact Germany began an orgie of excess imports which compared with our present adverse balance is as 10 to 1. No one cared a straw about exchanges—money was plentiful, and if food and clothing could be bought they were going to have them and did.

It would all come right when the Blockade was lifted and Germany could export her chemicals, cutlery, hardware, glass, artificial manures etc. Loans would be obtained from the wealthy United States, trade would be put on its feet, the hard working German would soon capture the world's market again and doubtless the Peace Terms would be modified by the Allies when the first exultant demands of their peoples had been forgotten.

THE WRITING ON THE WALL.

The awakening is coming and the first writing on the wall is the fact that the mark is worth under 2d to the outside world and may be worth still less before long. The anticipated loans have not materialised. Coffee, tobacco, rice, sugar, milk and all foreign raw materials are 10 times as expensive as before the war and whereas, compared with war prices, they were much reduced 2 months ago, now they are climbing back again with every fall in the mark. Merchants dare not buy any but spot supplies since they cannot foresee what their goods will cost in marks when they arrive 2 months hence—manufacturers who had planned big outputs find that the raw material they bought in June at, as they thought, 60 marks has now when it reaches them to be paid for at 120 marks, and their sale prices and trade are disorganised. Their export prices would, it is true, be very much lower than the rest of the world since the cost of labour does not increase proportionately with the exchange rates but their home markets at present absorb all their output, and the future is too obscure to justify their launching out with big programmes.

Labour has obtained its 8 hours day and is vitiated by the Bolshevist theory of the less work per man, the more for many, so that the workmen laze in their factories and demand extra pay every time they see signs of a new contract being started on.

RUIN STRAIGHT AHEAD.

And so the snowball of bankruptcy goes on, gathering impetus and unwieldiness in its downward path whilst the Socialist Government faced with the carrying out of the Utopian ideas it has preached for years talks and achieves nothing. Blindly, and yet with many outward signs of prosperity, the country is drifting to a far worse ruin than had its foes marched to the Capital and, as conquerors, ordered its going out and its coming in. In that event the national spirit might have survived in its adversity—now there is no national spirit and the whole nation is falling to pieces, morally and commercially, for want of the strong directing hands which ruled it before the war—and led it so unnecessarily to that greatest of all mistakes.

And where do we come in? How is our indemnity to be paid? 5000 million pounds is our first instalment and we are reckoning on it, or a considerable part, to alleviate our taxes and reduce our huge debts. And as fast as we count our hoped for millions they evaporate with the decline of the mark. We cannot enslave the German nation; therefore we must have our payment in money, English, French and Belgian money, — and to supply this the Germans must pay 6 times the amount because their mark is only worth 1/6th of its normal value; in other words 600,000 million marks instead of 100,000 million, or 8000 marks for every man, woman and child in the country, say every penny of 2 years average earnings!

It is time we woke up to the facts of the case and realised that the bankruptcy of Germany means no payment for her creditors, no export trade to her from us and no indemnities for the Allies. And the fall in the mark is the exact indication of the extent and progress of the danger.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views on Many Topics.

WAR MEDALS FOR ALL.

Sir,—Is it not disgraceful the number of canteen workers who are now entitled to War Medals?

To start at the beginning of the trouble—the 1914-15 Star. Men left their homes, wives, and children, they gave all, they were willing to give their lives, as many did, made sacrifices that nobody will ever realise, and in recognition of these sacrifices the 1914-15 Star was struck, not for dispensing "Tea and Buns" in a Leave club or canteen in the neighbourhood of Paris.

Similarly the other two Medals, were intended for the "boys" who came out later, and who offered their lives, that England could secure an "Everlasting Peace" not for instigating "Impromptus" down at Calais.

What will the Younger Generation (the son of an Old Contemptible) think, when he finds that Mrs. Jones has the same Medal for serving Tea, as his Father has for serving his Country.

I appreciate the work done by canteen workers, and think they deserve a Medal, but let it be a disunctive one.

RENE.

Sir,—May I suggest that "Amazed" should go away into some corner quietly and grouse by himself?

The ribbon in question is given solely for length of service, and is not intended to convey any idea of combatant service.

There are scores of thousands of men wearing the ribbon to-day whose sole risk in this war has been a quarterly air-raid—possibly not even that.

The Army generally knows what it owes to Y.M.C.A. helpers, and it's appreciation will not be effected by "Amazed's" sloppy sentimentality.

Where has he spent his time during the war? Has he never known cases of Y.M.C.A. helpers carrying on inside the shelling zone?

T.W.P.

DRAMATIC COMPANY'S SERVICES.

Sir,—It is rather distressing for admirers of the above company's excellent work to have to read a letter like that in your issue of Sunday under the above heading.

I feel sure that the great majority of the R.A.D.C's patrons do not associate themselves with the rumours which have made the publication of Lieut. Percy's letter necessary.

To use words from a more eloquent pen than mine, "Truly we are an ungrateful people".

N. C. O.

TRAVELLING ON ALLIED RAILWAYS.

Sir,—No one can deny that the French railways suffered, just as much as those of Belgium. In spite of this, the French have given our wives special concessions. All honour to them. We should now turn to the Belgian taxpayer and say: "Why don't you fall into line with the French? We are only poor British officers. Our Government, as you know, pay us a bare wage for coming to Germany to keep watch on the Rhine. Won't you ease the financial strain, by granting our wives half fares over your railways?"

An alternative is to approach the British taxpayer and say: "Dear John, your fellow countrymen are on the Rhine for a purpose, not for pleasure. How is it you are so slow in giving our wives and families special travelling facilities for proceeding to the theatre of their martial activities?"

F. E. X.

TOMMY'S SPARE MARKS.

Sir,—Why does'nt the Post Office let Tommy buy War Savings Certificates with German money?

A Tommy — who is not a capitalist can easily save thirty to sixty marks every week, but if he does, what is he to do with it? He cannot change it unless he gets an officer's permission. He cannot buy War Saving Certificates.

Well, what does he do? Spends every mark he draws. If the Post Office would accept marks for Saving Certificates he wouldn't.

T.R.E.

RECOGNITION OF SERVICE.

Sir,—I am an ex-officer from the Rhine Army recently demobilized and now in Cologne on business.

I feel very strongly coming again among British officers and men that I am something more than one of the many civilians of all nations now over here on business and who have never seen a day's service in the Great War. What I think people like me should have mean is a little ribbon or rosette in the button-hole — nothing more.

I am sure all ex-soldiers will share my feelings. When one casts off one's uniform and becomes one of the ordinary crowd there are people who have grown fat and prosperous in safety from whom one would like to be distinguished.

I really think the ex-soldier — officer or man—deserves some mark of service such as I have indicated.

It would cost the country nothing and would also form a link of fellowship and a bond of mutual recognition between all who have fought for their country.

DEMOBBED.

WAKE THEM UP.

Sir,—Have officer readers of your paper noticed the apparent slackness on the part of German uniformed officials in the saluting of Allied officers?

Such slackness calls for drastic action on the part of the authorities and intimation of penalties for non-observance of the order on the point. Officers should insist upon this mark of respect.

ASTRAL.

"BUSINESS NOW."

Sir,—What is wrong with W.W.R.'s mental balance?

Are we really to believe that because millions have laid down their lives the business of the world is to stop? How are we to reconstruct England, and restore the finances of the country if we don't trade?

Does he realize that the huckster and bagman to whom he refers are for the most part ex-members of the great Army which contributed the millions of dead?

Or is he annoyed because he cannot get demobilized?

CHEERY.

THE WINE TAX.

Sir,—Apropos the correspondence in your paper regarding the payment of the wine tax by British Troops on the Rhine why not adopt the coupon system as used in France to enable exemption to be obtained.

This system worked very well in France and there is no reason why it should not be used in Germany. It would satisfy the troops on the Rhine, and the coupons handed in would be produced by hotel proprietors as part payment of the amount of tax they would have to hand in.

R.A.F.

PRICES WHICH VARY.

Sir,—I am fully in accord with "Night Hawk's" letter re the inflation of prices.

On several occasions I have been served in exactly the same manner, and I agree that what we want is the wary shopper, who will not give the impression that he is prepared to pay any price in order to get the article required.

Surely if the value of the mark is so little, we are the people to benefit, and not the Germans.

Being in Bonn one day, I espied in a window a fountain pen of a very cheap make, and requiring it for a special reason, I went in to purchase, but was shown everything but the one required, and after considerable trouble eventually got the required article, at the price advertised in the window.

CORPORAL H.

Sir,—It is with great pleasure that I note that this subject has at last been brought into prominence.

The British soldier, having been exploited to some extent during his training days, arrives in the Rhineland expecting to derive a few advantages from the victory that he is supposed to have won, and finds profiteering more rampant than ever.

I think it is fairly well established that the procedure in many German shops in Cologne is:—

(i) The prices are raised to British soldiers according as the value of the £1 rises.

(ii) The prices are anything up to 100% higher for soldiers than for civilians.

Any reader will easily call to mind examples of what I mean; the establishments where profiteering is worst are. cafés and restaurants, hairdressers, camera shops, opticians, ironmongers etc

The remedy is simple, namely to adopt the order already in force in the French area. At Wiesbaden there is a strictly-enforced regulation whereby all articles in shops have to be clearly marked with the price. It would appear that a similar edict issued by the authorities here would be greatly to the advantage of the British Army.

ACTION.

OUR FOOTBALL CONTEST.

Sir,—As an interested competitor in your football competition No 1, may I suggest that you publish the name of the successful entrant (or entrants as the case may be) as early as possible. When one competes in one of the many competitions running in English journals the waiting for the result is very irritating to the competitor.

A COMPETITOR.

[As announced elsewhere the results will be published to-morrow.—Ed.]

ON THE RHINE BOATS.

Sir,—After reading your correspondent's article on the above I was naturally impressed by the way he described the variation of an English every-day meal, to an ordinary German meal.

In the first place could he tell me what working-man with a moderate income, can provide for his house the luxuries, which Fairplay mentions.

To my idea the average Englishman is happy when he has sat down to an ordinary meal with the usual smoke afterwards, instead of this so-called lunch and sweet desserts. I for one, am not in a position to give my family the good things Fairplay names, and I know there are more than me.

WORKING MAN.

THEATRE SEATS.

Sir,—Might one be privileged to inquire whether the admission of apparently unlimited numbers of German civilians to the performances at the Deutsches Theatre, greatly facilitates the obtaining of seats by humble members of his Majesty's forces? One would imagine not.

Presuming that the fräuleins do not book seats personally, one cannot blame the theatre authorities for the actual issue of tickets, but they might with advantage make it a rule that no German civilians should be permitted inside the theatre whatsoever.

There are only two British theatres in Cologne, whilst there are many German cabarets and playhouses.

The Germans, apparently, use the theatre as a means of improving their English. That they should be allowed to do so at the expense of the amusement of the British soldier is regrettable.

H.A.C.

TEACHING BRITISH CHILDREN.

Sir,—Could not something be done for the English children here, in the way of their education?

I often admire the splendid work done by the Y.C.C.A. and other societies, for the troops, could not, therefore, something similar be organised for our children, so that they can continue some sort of schooling until their return to England. Are there no qualified teachers among the voluntary workers, who could form a class? Many ladies I am sure, who have a spare hour, would be only to pleased to help.

All one would require would be suitable books for all ages, a good large, airy room and support.

Surely many parents would be grateful.

A MOTHER.

FALSE THOUGH SHE BE.

False though she be to me and love,
I'll ne'er pursue revenge;
For still the charmer I approve,
Though I deplore her change.

In hours of bliss we oft have met:
They could not always last;
And though the present I regret,
I'm grateful for the past.

KALK Y.M.C.A. SHIELD.

6th Corps Signal Success in the Second Round.

The 6th Corps Signal Co., having drawn a bye in the 1st round of the Kalk Y.M.C.A. Shield were drawn against the Wahn Field Survey in the second round. The match was played in ideal weather on Friday at Wahn. The "Bulldogs" were unfortunate in having their right half, Lieut. Hunt "crocked" during the first five minutes of the game; nevertheless the home team were kept fully extended for the whole game.

Twenty minutes from the start C.Q.M.S. Shepheard, after a fine piece of individual work, scored a brilliant goal for the visitors. The home side after this made strenuous efforts to equalise but the visitors' two remaining halves and backs were more than equal to all tests. Half time arrived with the visitors leading by 1—0.

On resuming Lieut. Gregory, during a melée, added a second goal. The game became more strenuous after the line ud free-kicks being the order of the day. Play was finished by deafening cheers from the "Bulldogs" supporters who had gathered in great force and supplied a miscellaneous collection of noise producing instruments, including tin cans and motor horns. By beating Wahn Field Survey by 2—0 the 6th Corps Signals Coy qualify for the third round.

OTHER 2nd ROUND RESULTS.

1/6th West Yorks 2; 11th Queen's 0.

NEXT ROUND ITEMS.

Thursday; 6th Corps Signals v. 1/6th West Yorks. Ground: 93rd Bde. R.G.A. Kalk. Kick off 2.30 p.m. Referee Lieut. J. Woods. 6th Corps Signals to supply the ball. Yorks play in amber and black stripes. 6th Corps Signals arrange for contrasting colours. Ground situated at the Mulheim end of the Exercier Platz, Kalk. Berg.-Gladbach car runs within 5 minutes of the ground.

Friday: "B" Battery 190 R.F.A. v. 63rd Bde. R.G.A. or Rhine Flotilla R. N. 93rd Bde. Ground kick off 2.30 p.m.

9th Durham L. I. v. Southern Div. R. E. Signals.

After a fast game in which both teams played scientific football, the Durhams deservedly entered the 3rd round of the competition yesterday by the only goal of the match. Early in the game the Pioneers were awarded a penalty, but Cpl. Rutter shot hard at the goal keeper who cleared. Fast play was the rule, and L/Cpl. Clark for the visitors hit the cross-bar with a beauty.

The second half saw the Durhams doing the bulk of the pressing but the visitors' defence, in which C.S.M. Eves and Capstick shone, held out. Slack, Conway and Gray came very near to the objective with good efforts. Time was almost up when the home centre forward, Slack, who throughout the game had worked like a Trojan, fairly scrambled the ball into the net. The visitors made a good effort to equalise before the end but the defence of the homesters in which Pte. Lord was the outstanding figure, was quite equal to all calls.

The teams were as follows:—Southern Div. Signal Coy.—L/Cpls. Clark Whitcombe, Kemp, Harris, and Sgt. Heard; Smallwood, Capstick and Sgt. Oakes; Sgt. Hunter and C.S.M. Eves; Goal-keeper, Jackson.

9th Bn. The Durham Light Inf.:—Sgt. Rocks; Pte. Middlemass and L/Cpl. Lord; Cpl. Rutter, Pte. Hogg, and Lieut. Taylor; Ptes. Gosling, Conway, Slacks, Gray and Reynolds.

"Y.M." FOOTBALLERS.

"Camera Fiends" Temporarily Forsake Kodaks at Bensberg.

The members of the photographers section of the Cologne Central Y.M.C.A. Weekly Excursion Club are popularly known as the "Camera Fiends," but when they went last Saturday, in lorries, to Bensberg for the avowed purpose of taking photographs, one of their party produced a football. Instantly all cameras were, metaphorically, cast to the winds; sides were chosen; captains and referee were appointed; a field was found which a kind providence seemed to have made into a suitable ground; and a topping game was played. The keenness of the sport was illustrated by the fact that no "Camera Fiend" thought of taking a snap-shot of the photographers transformed into footballers. Doubtless the excursionists returned to Cologne feeling fit all round after having exercised their feet as well as their eyes and hands.

TWO PENALTIES.

"B" Company 52nd K.L.R. Easily Defeat "C" Company.

Both teams showed great keenness in the game. There was only one goal scored before the interval, and this was from a penalty against "C" Coy, whose centre forward prevented the ball from going into the goal by stopping it with his hands. From the resulting penalty, Barry gave his side the lead, which was maintained until the interval. After the resumption, "B" Coy were soon away and Monks increased the lead with a fine shot. Shortly after, Barry scored again. "B" Coy did not get all their own way for, in a scrimmage, one of the defenders handled, and Aldred scored from the ensuing penalty kick. Just before the finish, during a scrimmage in front of "C" Coy's goal mouth, the custodian put the ball into his own goal, thus strengthening "B" Coys lead.

Result "B" Coy 4; "C" Coy 1.

For the losers Lamb, Williams, Spence, Aldred and L/Cpl. Cooligan played a fine game, while L/Cpl. Hartley in goal was not to blame for so many goals being registered against him. For the winners Barry and Beatty were the two best on the field.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Tuesday, September 30th, 1919.

Surface wind light and variable. Weather mainly fair and cool. Day visibility good.

EDUCATIONISTS' FAIL.

VI Corps Headquarters v. VI Corps School.

This match was played on Wednesday afternoon on the Deer Park Ground. A surprise goal in the first minute of play was placed by Johnson, the Headquarters centre, from a smart pass by Unsworth. The School then bestirred themselves and the game was very even of ading-dong backwards and forwards type, many chances on both sides being missed by poor shooting. Towards half time, Hoare, inside left, scored a second for Headquarters.

The latter half of the game added nothing to the score, so that Headquarters were victorious by 2-0. This does not really represent the general superiority of their team, since the School team were outplayed from the start, but Mr. Oldbury's defence was adequate to baffle their imperfect attempts. Medlar, right half, Rogers, outside right, Hoare, Johnson, and Unsworth, were the pick of the Headquarters team, while outside the goal Mazza and Ellis were the most reliable of the School Team.

BATTALIONS OPPOSED.

52nd Beat 51st K.L.R. By A Narrow Margin.

A football match between the 51st and the 52nd Bns. K.L.R. was played on Saturday to decide which Battalion should represent the King's Bde. in the forthcoming Corps event.

The game opened very fast and the speed was kept up throughout. In the first half Miller scored for the 51st and just before the interval Barrow equalized from a penalty. The scores were still level at half-time. Five minutes after the resumption Capt. Foss gave the 52nd the lead, which they kept until the whistle went for time. The 51st "goalie" gave a very creditable display and saved his side from a heavier defeat.

Hockey at Bonn.

The 12th L.N. Lancs. Officers played the O.R.'s at Bonn, on Friday. The match was very fast throughout. The O.R.'s scored the first goal, 8 minutes after the commencement. The Officers soon equalized and before the end of the game brought the score up to 4-1.

Some of the O.R.'s however, had not handled a stick before and yet showed great promise. Capt. Onagh and Lieut. Johnson were the most conspicuous for clever play on the ground, while Sgt. Cane on the O.R.'s side was perhaps their best man.

AT SHORT NOTICE.

2nd Corps H.A., H.Q. v. 9th D.L.I. At Stammheim.

The other morning a D.R. arrived at the 9th D.L.I. Sports Officer's Quarters about 10.30 hours and asked if they would play a soccer match at Stammheim at 14.30 hours. The Heavies sent a motor lorry over for the team and up to time the following players for the D.L.I. turned out:—

Sgt. Rocks (goal); Pte. Middlemass and L/Cpl. Lord (backs) C.S.M. Pinder, Pte. Hogg, and Lieut. Taylor (half-backs); Pte. Buckle, C.M.S. Etherington, Ptes. Slack Gray, and Reynolds (forwards).

The "Heavies" won the toss and elected to play with the wind up a slight slope. The surface of the ground was very uneven, making accurate football difficult. The D.L.I. had most of the play but it was 25 mins. before Reynolds took on the first goal chiefly the result of a bad mis-kick by one of the "Heavies" defenders. At half time the scores were:—9th D.L.I. 1; 2nd Corps H.A., H.Q. 0.

HEAVY PRESSURE.

On changing ends the "Heavies" seemed to tire with the result that their goal was subjected to even more pressure. After 10 mins Reynolds scored a second goal and about 10 minutes from the end C.Q.M.S. Etherington put on a third, with a hard shot from close quarters. Result 9th D.L.I. 3; 2nd Corps H.A., H.Q. 0.

FOOTBALL JOTTINGS.

By W. Le. C.

J. Kasher, Sunderland's promising centre-half has been a prisoner of war. Prior to his capture he captained the Royal Naval Division's team.

Irvine Thornley seems the only English player among the many who went to Scottish Clubs, that has struck anything approaching true form. Scottish spectators are greatly disappointed with many of the English stars.

While Miller of Everton is claimed to be the fastest winger in first class circles, Dorrell of the Villa will take some beating. The latter occupies the same position as his father did for the Aston club, viz. outside left.

Sixteen years of age, standing 5ft. 8½ins. and weighing 11st. 4lbs. J. McGrae is on Everton's books as an inside forward. The "Toffees" have great hopes.

Dicky Downs' name is again being bandied about by purveyors of football rumours. But Barnsley are not "at home" to team builders who seek his signature.

London is football mad, yet it is a fact that the only real team seen in the metropolis for the past 20 years was—well, which team won the Cup?

J. Carr is far from comfortable as outside right for Middlesboro. This weak spot must be remedied, or the Boro will lose many more points.

Peter Boyle, the old Sheffield United defender, now manages the Ebbw Vale club.

"Fifteen years and never dropped." That was Doig's record. The famous custodian was Sunderland's idol. No wonder.

Sunderland's pre-war halves were Cuggy, Low, Cringan and Thomson. Cuggy is still part of the "human triangle" but the others no longer serve. Cringan is with Celtic, Low was not retained and the Scottish International (Thomson) has retired.

Football Inquiry.

The F.A. and the Football League at Manchester held a joint inquiry into the allegations against the Leeds City F.C. as to having paid players during the war in excess of the stipulated amount. After hearing evidence for 45 minutes the committee adjourned to an indefinite date no decision having been arrived at.

Welsh Rugby Union.

The Welsh Rugby Union Committee at Cardiff continued the inquiry into the Treorchy professionalism question, and after hearing the explanations, removed the suspensions of John Scofield. Fred Lewis, Charles Harris, Lewis Roberts, John Morris, John Harris, David Williams, and D. W. Jones. Permission was granted F. Goeron, the Cardiff captain, to take a team to play Treorchy. A vote of condolence was passed with the widow of H. B. Wienfield. The committee accepted the tender of Messrs Simmonds & Co., Cardiff, to re-erect the stands at Cardiff Arms Park at a cost of £3,900.

HOCKEY RESTARTS.

At the council meeting of the Hockey Association it was decided that International matches be arranged with Scotland, Ireland, and Wales. The divisional matches are to be rearranged, and a final International Trial match, "England" v. "The Rest," will be played, probably in London.

LAWN TENNIS AT HENDON.

In the men's open singles semi-final at Hendon N. Mishu beat Major R. W. Heath, 6—3, 2—6, 6—4; Hon. F. M. B. Fisher beat S. N. Doust 7—5, 6—4.

Ladies' Open Singles (Semi-Final Round).—Miss E. D. Holman beat Mrs. Larcombe, 6—4, 1—6, 6—3; Miss Ryan beat Mrs. "Albert," 8—6, 6—0.

Aldershot Polo.

The fortnightly challenge cup was contested last week for the last time this season, the holders, Aldershot, being challenged by the 13th Hussars. The latter just won after a fast game and an exciting finish.

COBLENZ CARNIVAL.

Notable Success of Rhine Army Athletes.

The results coming to hand of the athletic events contested at the Sports Carnival at Coblenz are highly flattering to the British Army of the Rhine, whose representatives under the charge of Lt.-Col. J. Betts, D.S.O., gave an excellent account of themselves.

Perhaps the finest race was the 440 yards, which the British won in brilliant style. Full details of the athletic programme with list of events and winners will be published in our issue of to-morrow.

AMUSEMENTS AND RECREATIONS.

Gratitude for Music.

Concerts were given to crowded houses in the Great Hall of the Y.M.C.A. Cologne by Miss Kate Coates' Company on two successive evenings last week. The vast audiences testified their gratitude in a fashion that was as gracious as it was unique. In the interval they took up a collection which they asked the Concert Party to be good enough to forward to any philanthropic scheme that they might select, and to send it as a gift from Miss Kate Coates' Concert Company. Miss Coates, who was manifestly deeply touched, said, in a few graceful words, that she and her friends in consideration of the fact that the money had been subscribed by soldiers would like it to be used for the benefit of soldiers and that therefore they would send it to the Y.M.C.A. Farm Colony in Dorset, for discharged and disabled soldiers. I hear that the amount contributed was 3,836 marks; and a cheque for £40-8-0 has been sent to the colony.

Leave Club Announcements.

There will be an Impromptu Concert on Wednesday next, at the B.E.L.C. from 5 to 6, in the music room followed by a dance at 6.30 in the Theatre, at which the London Division String Band have kindly consented to play. On Thursday, there will be an Impromptu Concert from 5 to 6 and a Whist Drive at 6.30 p.m. A dancing class from 5 to 6 in the Theatre and Impromptu Concert at the same hour in the Music Room will be Fridays attractions and at 7 p.m. the ladies of the B.E.L.C. will present their Revue, "Hullo Cologne" in the Theatre. On Saturday, there will be an Impromptu Concert from 5 to 6 followed by a dance in the Theatre from 6.30 p.m.

Miss Ada Moore's Concert.

Miss Ada Moore gave an excellent concert in the Music Room of the Leave Club in Friday, at which she sang many songs chosen by the audience. These included a large number of old favourites such as the "Old Fashioned Town," "Smoke Clouds" and various sentimental numbers including "All the world will be jealous of you," and "Me and my Gal" in which the audience joined in the chorus most heartily. This concert was the last of a series of 107 which have been given by Miss Ada Moore in Cologne and outlying districts, during her stay of two months with the Army of the Rhine. So many officers and men both at the B.E.L.C. and outlying districts have been entertained by Miss Ada Moore that her departure will be keenly regretted by her many admirers.

Leave Club Concert.

The band of the Inniskillings again gave a brilliant concert at the Leave Club on Sunday. The Bandmaster E. Adams has wonderful control over the band who played with splendid rhythm and finish. The audience (which filled every nook and cranny in the hall) enjoyed the programme enormously, especially the selection of Landers songs by Hume and the descriptive piece "The Bold Dragoons" with all the cavalry calls, some of which were sung by the men. The soloists were equally good. Miss Marjorie Moore brought the house down by singing the waltz song from Paul Jones by Edward German, and then sang "Every little While" to the great amusement of everybody, and "Nothing but love" and "Bit of love divine." Major Greenlees sang magnificently "Songs of Araby," "Maire my Girl" and "Myself when young" and was encored again and again. Driver Harrison sang "You came from me" by Baxendale with much charm and musicianship, being encored.

Machine Kaput.

The "Crumps" Concert Party seeking a respite from rehearsals recently, in the shape of a trip up the Rhine, in a small motor launch, very nearly had to abandon it. They hadn't left the quay at Bonn many minutes when there was a general cry of "machine kaput." The fun stopped as suddenly as the engine had done, when it was realized that the launch was being carried away by the swift tide. Practically at the same moment three other motor launches dashed out to the rescue, and after a heated gument as to who should take them in tow, they were eventually brought back to where they started from. Another launch was soon procured and everybody smiled again. I understand that the "Crumps" have now been re-organised and will be seen shortly in Cologne with an entirely new programme.

Porter-Conductor.

Another impression by Roy—not to be confused with Poy—shows Conductor Porter, the gifted leader of the "Tabs" Orchestra. He has been with us all the time in Cologne and rendered yeoman service in the musical department. Now that we have a musicians' strike in Cologne and cabarets are struggling to carry on "ohne" orchestra it is more than ever impressed upon us how essential a part of our existence a good orchestra really is. Porter has done wonders with his band of musicians, and is equally popular both as a conductor and a comrade.

Not a River Tragedy.

From the banks of the Rhine recently, a number of people were alarmed to see two men apparently engaged in a desperate struggle on the roof of a motor launch proceeding down stream towards Bonn. A third man meanwhile stood calmly at the further end of the boat watching the proceedings. It seems that the anxiety of the witnesses was wasted since two actors in this seeming tragedy were well-known cinema artistes while the third man was a producer. They were rehearsing a new picture.

RACE MEETINGS ABANDONED.

According to reports received on Sunday the strike of railwaymen was almost certain to kill the race meetings fixed for Birmingham and Lanark on Monday. It was stated that it would be impossible to get horses to the former, and the fate of the Lanark meeting depended on the number of horses that could get there by road from Ayr.

Olympic Games.

It is hoped that the programme of the Olympic games at Antwerp will include a long-distance road walk from Antwerp to Brussels and back.

Famous Runner As Coach.

The famous runner Albert Shrubb has been engaged as a coach by Oxford University athletic club this winter.

OUR FOOTBALL COMPETITION.

Only Ten Results Required For Contest No I.

PRIZE-WINNERS' NAMES ON WEDNESDAY.

Saturday's football again provided surprises and adjudication of the coupons in connection with our opening competition, which is now proceeding apace, reveals infinite variety.

The names of the successful winners—we anticipate there will be more than one—will be published in our issue of Wednesday.

Woolwich put up a fine performance by taking a point from Blackburn, whilst the defeats of Derby and Chelsea were totally unexpected, Bolton's win over the "Rams" stamping them as dangerous opponents. These matches naturally upset a large number of our would-be prize-winners, and Hull City's defeat by Bury also tripped many.

The other results of our coupon matches were not unexpected, and as the Bristol City-Fulham, and Exeter-Watford games were not played, competitors were set the task of forecasting only 10 results.

OUTSTANDING EVENTS.

The outstanding event of the week-end was Bradford's terrible trouncing of the Villa. Aston have certainly struck a bad patch. Everton put up a fine performance by winning at Roker Park, and Sheffield Wednesday only followed history by beating their near neighbours.

In the Second Division South Shields "came a cropper" at Clapton, while Tottenham continued their all-conquering career by putting up 6 goals to Lincolns' 1.

Portsmouth in the Southern League did a fine thing by defeating Plymouth Argyle, and the win of the "Saints" over Millwall was very convincing. Brentford were at home and the taking of a point from them by the Palace was a fine performance.

SCOTTISH LEAGUE.

Scottish League followers received a rude shock when the Rangers' result came through; to be beaten at Motherwell was a nasty blow. Celtic continued their ever-victorious career, this time at Clyde's expense, and the Airdrieonians' victory over the "Bairns" at Falkirk was a smart performance.

The railway strike was largely responsible for decreased gates and the postponement of some of the matches. Several teams reached their destination by motor charabanc including Millwall, who "charabanced" to Southampton, and West Ham's team motored to Stoke.

Appended is the coupon for competition No. 2. The rules appeared in our issues of Saturday and Sunday. One mark must accompany each coupon.

FOOTBALL COMPETITION No. 2.

Date of matches, Saturday, Oct. 4th.
Closing date, Friday, Oct. 3rd.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Sans Armlet.

Consequent, I suppose upon the letters we have printed on German women in our clubs it has been very noticeable how closely scrutinised by everyone have been all the women accompanying officers to the N.A.C.B. Officers' Clubs in Cologne—at least those not wearing the official armlet. It would not surprise me if the result is to make the hitherto neglected "brassard" more popular with the British women amongst us.

Wet and Cold.

Sunday was one of the most miserable days of the present year. Many excursions in the country which had been planned, had to be abandoned and the day spent in billets.

Grumbles and Grievances.

We have received many expressions of approval of the increased space we are giving to "The Editor's Letter Box." It is the Englishman's privilege to grumble and this feature provides an outlet for many a justifiable "grouse." It results in a great many grievances, large and small, being remedied, too.

Are they so Bad?

A correspondent writing to us the other day said "Please excuse this indistinct scrawl. I am writing with an Army School pencil."

Thrift Indeed!

On the Cologne trams can be seen a ledge conisisting of six numbered grooves near the conductor's place. What is it for? It seems that it is intended for smokers entering a non-smoking car to rest their partly consumed "fag" or cigar, which they can rescue and re-light on descending.

Ordnance Less Packed.

I am told, but haven't had the pluck yet to test its truth—that one stands a reasonable chance now of buying a toothbrush or a pair of bootlaces at the Officers' Clothing Depot without having to spend half a working day in the queue.

Dom Weddings.

Our article about Dom weddings in Saturday's issue of the Cologne Post was translated and published by several local papers. Yesterday German girls were heard asking for Saturday's "Post." They seemed to be very anxious to have the original text itself stating that marriages between British soldiers and German girls are prohibited until the ratification of the treaty.

A Cheery Worker.

Frequenters of the Scottish Churches Club in Schildergasse will miss the cheery presence of Miss Clarke, who is leaving for Wimereux to take up new duties there.

Jack of all Trades.

One of the sergeants in a certain Anti-Aircraft Battery of Rhineland has suffered a severe blow to his dignity. Owing to the rapidity with which demobilization is proceeding in this particular Battery the staff became depleted to such an extent that it became necessary to appoint him to the onerous position of cook in the Sergeants' mess. But worse is yet to come. The position of Post orderly became vacant and he was also honoured with this position.

Undaunted.

In spite of the rain and cold one enthusiastic officer in Cologne has still been indulging in his morning swim and sculling vigorously in a skiff on the Rhine every day, just as he did in the sun and warmth.

Good Investments.

An officer who is an ardent philatelist tells me that one of the things one can buy advantageously in Cologne is foreign stamps. They are usually marked at reasonable figures and the luxury tax is deducted for the military. Added to this there is the advantage gained by the present low value of the mark.

British Planes.

Small model aeroplanes bearing the well-known bulls-eye markings on the under plane are being sold in the German shops.

"Against Profiteering."

In an open letter to the Oberburgermeister of Cologne a member of the council declares that "the exasperation and indignation of the suffering population against the national profiteering now going on has reached a critical stage. The profiteers do their dirty work quite openly and are not afraid to display their abundance of money by overdressing, overfeeding and indulgence in all kinds of luxuries." Evidently the Germans are now experiencing a repetition of what the British public had, and still have to stand.

Often Quoted.

We appreciate the interest taken in our columns by more prosperous English dailies. We frequently find ourselves quoted; though sometimes without acknowledgment.

Using a Whip.

A constable of police had a rather alarming experience in the vicinity of the Hohestrasse a few nights since. Hearing sounds of merriment proceeding from an adjoining street he went to investigate and was confronted with the spectacle of four Germans in a waggonette singing in anything but dulcet tones and disturbing the peaceful slumber of the inhabitants. On remonstrating with them one of the occupants of the vehicle administered two very severe lashes with a whip to the energetic corporal. The sequel was heard at the Summary Court next day.

Wives can Borrow.

Incidentally it is not generally known that the library at the Central Y.M.C.A., Friesen Strasse, Cologne, is open to English wives.

A Temptation to Resist.

The temptation for all ranks on the Rhine to dabble in business transactions is often great, but it means playing with fire. Soldiers should remember they are soldiers and keep their hands unsoiled by even the suspicion of mercenary dealings. The Kings's uniform deserves to be kept quite clear of buying and selling.

Collars and Cuffs.

Some of the wearers of Air Force blue on the Rhine are sporting white starched cuffs like French officers, and stand-up "wing" collars like civilians. Neither notion intrigues me greatly.

Rib-Ticklers.

If some of the sorry looking horses, tied to the cabs outside Cologne station were asked if they approved of the crinkly shafts that are apparently becoming popular, their answer would probably be a decided "neigh". Their utility is presumably to tickle the animal's ribs to prevent his becoming too somnolent.

In Spite of Chill.

While the German men seem to seize the first opportunity of donning an overcoat on these chilly days, it is noticeable that the average fräulein clings to her summer finery.

Capable M.M.P's.

The ease with which the Mounted Military Police can handle a German crowd was proved on the recent visit of Joffre to Cologne. They are, indeed, a fine body of men. One mount resented being mixed up with the cavalry on parade. Its policeman rider at once took in the situation and a very dejected horse was hauled out of the melee.

Not Worth Living.

It is rumoured that an English lady claimed her demob — or whatever you like to call it — from the institution with which she is engaged because Cologne was unbearable when the operas were suspended through the recent strike.

Late Merrymakers.

For nearly a month the native of Cologne has been able to enjoy his newly given freedom and to stay out until midnight. The streets of Cologne after eleven testify that he takes great advantage of the privilege. From the doors of all the restaurants pour out a stream of merry and talkative folk mostly of the younger generation. It appears that these merrymakers are a source of annoyance to those hardworking individuals who are awakened by their roystering from their first well deserved sleep. These folk sigh for the early days of our occupation when everyone had to be off the streets by nine.

"Old Bill's Double."

If Captain Bairnsfather had been in the region of the demob. boat the other morning he would have had no difficulty in finding "Old Bill's double." The individual had the same stubby moustache and rubicund nose. It only remains to add that he was one of the merriest of a merry party.

Another Disappearance.

With the enforced exodus of the Wrafs from Cologne I suppose the Book Club and Reading Room they started in the arcade of the Hohestrasse will go. It appears to have been in a state of suspended animation for some time past.

Where Wives are Efficient.

I know of a certain officers' mess in Cologne which was being catered for none too well and complaints were rife. Then an officer whose wife had just come to Rhineland was elected mess secretary. Since she took over the marketing it has aquired the reputation of being perhaps the best fed mess in Cologne. And most of the members are letting out their belts.

Ancient.

Passing by the Officers' Club last night the chorus of a song very popular in England in the 'eighties' — "Ehren on the Rhine" — could be heard being sung by a jovial party.

RHINELANDER.

The Traffic Controller (whose signals to go to the right have been absolutely ignored) "What the 'ell d'yer think I'm 'ere for—a blinking ornament?"
German carman (pleasantly): "Ja! Ja!"

VANITY FAIR.

A Feature for the British Woman in Rhineland.

The Latest Idea.

The latest idea in connection with furs is the little tie with a big muff or the big tie with a very small muff; but never a big tie and big muff together. On the other hand, I have seen several admirable fur sets in which both tie and muff were quite small. The small muff of the future is almost round. Linings are going to play an important rôle in the world of furs. Rich brocades will be used to line muffs in conjunction with plain and shot taffetas or soft satin.

An Unexpected Note.

Rather an unexpected note is struck by the newest, short fur ties. They frame the head and face at the back and sides while opening in rather a generous V in front. This is not very practical, but it is a becoming fashion. I have seen this V opening at the throat on Medicis collars, and also on straight ties which were wide enough completely to cover the ears.

Popular Mink.

All the new cape and coat collars—in fur—stand up erect at the back. Musquash is much used for fichu capes, also for straight ties and round muffs. Squirrel is more popular than ever; and rabbit dyed a pale beaver shade is much used to trim gowns and capes of natural camel's hair cloth. The fur of the year is mink. Never have I seen so many coats, capes, and voluminous wraps made of mink. Mink is almost as expensive as sable nowadays, and in the present condition of affairs no prudent woman cares to spend a fortune on a fur coat.

Paris in Furs.

Autumn coming in with a cold snap has completely transformed the boulevards and other promenades of Paris, where the lightest and brightest garments have given place to furs and overcoats. As if by a touch of a magic wand, shops which were full of garments to suit broiling sunshine are now filled with furs and heavy clothing, at prices so high as to suggest that they are intended for profiteers alone.

Plumage Hats.

The day has long since gone by when the hat of feathers resembled nothing more artistic than a squalting bird. To-day plumage hats and toques of a quite different style will be much worn. While yet your feather hat is new, get a length of tulle of the most prevalent colour displayed in the model and tack it tightly over the whole. Turn the tulle well up under the brim, and renew it from time to time as it gets torn by hatpins or destroyed by weather conditions. Properly matched, this simple protective process practically defies detection and trebles the life of the hat.

French Genius In Dress.

Fashion. The word has been played with by careless hands throughout the centuries. Many evils have found their beginning under its name, countless follies have been committed by those who follow its dictates blindly. It stands in the eyes of many for frivolity, extravagance, and many another human weakness; yet it also stands for other and quite different qualities. It means intelligence, imagination, hard work, trade. It is a valuable human record, for fashion is a reflection of the human mind.

AGNES.

RHINELAND "BARGAINS."

Before I came to Cologne, I had heard glowing accounts of the wonderful "bargains" offered by the enterprising shopkeepers, opportunities of acquiring cheap souvenirs which were simply irresistible.

With the rate of exchange at anything over 90 marks to the £1, I was assured that I was "quids in," and was given numerous commissions by my friends to send them "Jerry" razors, watches, cameras, field-glasses, etc., articles considered to be the extreme of quality and cheapness.

Having recently been a reader of a certain newspaper which in pre-war days expounded the policy of Protection, and now informs us that the wily German manufacturer is only awaiting his chance to swamp the British market with cheap goods against which we cannot compete, I may be pardoned for thinking that Cologne was really the Mecca of the bargain-seeker.

But experience has disillusioned me. I have made an extensive tour of the principal shops, and I am forced to the conclusion that if I desire an article whose quality makes it worth possessing, I can purchase it as cheaply in England —at any rate, the difference in price hardly compensates the trouble of sending the German article home.

It would be unfair to the Germans, however, to deny them the credit of being past-masters in the art of attractive display, the cunning skill of putting a highly-polished finish to an inferior article designed to captivate the individual who does not exercise much care in the outlay of his money. We were familiar enough with this class of goods in England before the war. That the cute Cologne shopkeepers have fully realised their opportunity of reaping a rich harvest of marks while opulent Tommy is still in their midst, is only too obvious.

I wonder how many of the homeward bound Tommies I have seen recently passing through the city, struggling under their self-imposed burdens of "souvenirs" have not already discovered that their surplus cash could have been spent with much better advantage in Blighty. There is apparently still food for reflection in the old adage we were taught in our schooldays that the fool and his money are soon parted!

What I have seen of Cologne and its alleged "bargains" convinces me more than ever that "Made in England" still remains the hall mark of quality, and that if capital and labour pull together at home the British manufacturer need have no qualms regarding his position in future competition for the world's commerce.

Having been in khaki for the last four years, I am sentimental enough to believe that home industry is at least worth supporting.

STRIKE MAKING & BREAKING

ALL CLASSES UNITED IN DETERMINATION TO FIGHT TO A FINISH

TRAINS RUNNING ON MANY SYSTEMS.

STRIKE PROGRESS.

MAINTAINING THE PUBLIC SERVICES.

When the Railwaymen began the strike they greatly underrated the magnitude of the preparations for maintaining the food supply. There has never been so great a quantity of motor transport as exists at the present time, and aeroplanes are also being used for necessary services. Quite a good number of trains are being run. Suburban services are very efficient in some parts of London and the number of trains is expected to increase. Despite the inconvenience the public are accepting the situation in excellent temper and the bulk of the strikers themselves have so far followed the advice of all the labour leaders to conduct themselves in an orderly way. Railway leaders have shown anxiety to confine the strike only to the railways. It is certain that a large number of railwaymen themselves disapprove of the reckless action of their organisation.

It is understood that the Government considers the strike is so well in hand that it will be unnecessary to summon Parliament before the appointed time for re-opening on the 22nd of October.

The most remarkable feature of the offers of voluntary service is the large number received from local branches of the Federation of Discharged Sailors and Soldiers and Comrades of the Great War, who are offering to do all they can to assist the Government.

A Government communiqué issued on Monday afternoon states that traffic conditions are unchanged. More trains are running. Extraordinarily large numbers of volunteers are coming forward.

The Admiralty announces that owing to the strike, demobilization of mobile members of the W.R.N.S. is suspended but demobilization of immobile members is to proceed.

Press Unanimous.

With one solitary exception—the "Daily Herald'—the London newspapers are unanimous on the folly of the railway strike.

The "Times" says that the public have grasped the most essential points in the case, namely, that the strike has not been declared for any grievance or existing hardship but against a problematical grievance that might arise in three months time and, under the Government's latest offer, not even then. The second point is that this is not a quarrel with capitalists or employers over a question of distribution of profits of a paying concern, but a demand from the Government for more money from a concern that is not paying its way, which means passing on the burden to the general public in the form of taxes or higher charges. This strike is therefore an attempt to enforce that demand by an attack on the community.

The Morning Post says, "From to-day, till this dangerous and discreditable strike is broken, every man should regard himself as enlisted in the King's service, and where he can render no other help he should resolve at least to endure without complaining the hardships and discomforts which must be the price of victory."

"The Daily Telegraph" says: "The Railwaymen demand that a porter at a little wayside station should have wages at the same rate as a porter at Paddington, and that a signalman with five trains per day shall receive the same as a signalman at Crewe or Cardiff. Because these demands were not instantly granted they declared an immediate strike. This is not a strike against employers but against the Government and the community, and by an odd irony is also against orthodox Socialism and against that national control of industry for which Mr. Thomas and his friends are continually clamouring. There is no doubt of the temper of the people. Never in all industrial history was a strike received with condemnation so general, so emphatic."

In a second leader the same paper lays stress on the existing economic condition of the country, which at best can only be described as in a critical stage of convalescence after the fearful drain of the great war. While in these conditions, industry is assaulted with a shower of blows the effect of which must be cumulative.

"The strike is a challenge by a few conspirators," says the "Daily Express," "to the liberties, rights and honour of Great Britain. If it were to succeed, as it cannot, this great nation would go under. Every citizen must fight for the life of the community."

Mildest of all is the "Daily News." After saying that the men have struck unfairly and unreasonably, regardless of what their action means to the community, it adds that even such misuse of the right to strike does not mean that the right to strike does not exist, and accuses Mr. Lloyd George of provocative folly in telegraphing to Carnarvon about an "anarchist conspiracy". The first and dominant question is a settlement. Some bridge must be found, the first condition of which must be the return of the men to work.

Mr. Thomas stated yesterday that no negotiations of any kind had taken place between the Government and the Railwaymen's Union. Mr. Bromley, Secretary of the Associated Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, says he is afraid it is going to be a severe struggle. He had not the slightest doubt that practically all other trade-unions would come to the assistance of the railwaymen if there is any danger of their being beaten for want of funds.

Agitator's Veiled Threat.

Mr. J. H. Thomas, the Railwaymen's Secretary complained to an interviewer that the newspapers are not reporting his version of the men's case in full. He declared that this treatment of their fellow trade-unionists has greatly incensed the compositors, and said, "When war is being waged against trade unionists in this fashion, trade unionists must not be blamed for accepting the challenge. I give this clear intimation to newspaper proprietors."

A meeting of the Executive of the Transport Workers Federation was held on Monday evening, but owing to the inability of provincial delegates to reach London no decision was taken in reference to striking. Considerable disinclination to call out members of the Federation was expressed, though all delegates present declared they were in fullest sympathy with the Railwaymen.

Troops Under Orders.

Large contingents of troops in full marching order and with bandoliers of small arms ammunition left Aldershot yesterday for strike duty at various important railway stations and in Hyde Park.

Late last night the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, part of the old 51st Division which earned such fame in France, was hurriedly rushed in motor wagons from their camp at Duddington across Scotland to Glasgow. They were equipped with machine-guns.

Troops who arrived at Leith yesterday from Russia were unable to proceed to their destinations.

Many Firth of Forth steamers and fish trawlers are laid up through lack of coal.

Train Wreckers at Work.

It is reported that two attempts were made to wreck trains on the London, Brighton and South Coast Railway. The first was at Pulborough on Monday, flat stones being placed on the line, and the second near Warnham yesterday morning, when large boulders were placed on the track. The line is now protected by troops.

Two trains have been held up by strikers in Scotland and in one case a fireman was injured. A body of strikers attacked a train from Aberdeen at Ladybank. The driver and fireman were taken off the engine, but were subsequently allowed to return and the journey was completed. A fireman was badly cut by a stone near Kirkcaldy, and a number of signal boxes in the West of Scotland damaged by missiles.

Owing to a disposition on the part of a number of strikers to return to work the Railwaymen's Union has doubled the pickets at the majority of the London stations and at many provincial stations.

Father Thames Helps.

Richmond and Kew business men and women, to the number of 450, travelled to town yesterday by water. The journey from Richmond to Westminster pier occupied about an hour and a quarter. Two steamers were employed, named Viscount and Royalty, each of them capable of holding three hundred. The return fare was half a crown. It is hoped to run an hourly service of boats.

The General Manager of the District Railway said yesterday that the Chelsea power station at Lot's-road has been fully manned with volunteer workers and is now working again. Already trains have been run on the District and Hampstead tube to familiarise these volunteer workers with the lines, and the company hopes to open these with a partial service this evening. Other tube lines will follow.

Slough Of Activity.

One effect of the strike has been the rousing into activity of the much criticised motor transport depot at Slough, which has suddenly become a very live and useful concern. Hundreds of derelict and broken down lorries were being busily repaired there during the week end and will be used immediately for the relief of London's food supply. At Slough the staff consists of some three thousand men, practically all demobilized soldiers, of whom about one thousand are drivers. Fifteen hundred lorries have already been prepared for instant road service. It can repair and overhaul a further fifty per day. There is also a large store of petrol in addition to the vast stores at the London docks.

The Air Ministry has made a comprehensive survey of its resources with the view of assisting the Government. Aircraft companies are doing what they can to help persons whose need to travel is urgent. Most companies are placing all available machines at the disposal of the public. Aeroplanes have also been busy during the week end carrying goods and mails. On Saturday twenty Avro machines left Hounslow with goods for Bristol, Cardiff, Norwich and Birmingham. They all returned by mid-day, and in the afternoon journied to Rugby, Brighton, Eastbourne, and Hull, while other machines made trips to Worcestershire, Somerset and other parts. Aerial services to Paris and Brussels have been doubled. The official mails for Belgium will be carried from to-day, while an emergency aeroplane service between London and Birmingham starts tomorrow.

Stoppage of work in the South Wales coalfield is expected to be complete to-morrow. Thousands of ironworkers are already out of employment and in view of probable disturbances troops have been despatched to various points in South Wales. In the Middlesborough district 20,000 steelworkers are suffering enforced idleness. Practically all the North Yorkshire iron and stone mines have ceased operations owing to the strike. Blast furnaces are being damped down and the outlook is very serious.

The food controller has fixed maximum prices for potatoes and other vegetables.

Stock Exchange Normal.

Attendance at the Stock Exchange, despite the travelling conditions, was almost normal, and members accepted the situation calmly. There was some unimportant selling by nervous holders but any moderate decline in good class securities found ready buyers. The volume of business was of the smallest description, and very few transactions occurred in home railways. French bonds afforded the only firm feature, being due to the rapid recovery in the value of the franc.

CIVIC CEREMONY.

THREE ATTEMPTS TO HANG THE MAYOR.

The Mayor of Omaha (Nebraska), a Mr. Smith, is suffering from grave injuries sustained at the hands of a lawless mob when he was endeavouring to prevent the lynching of a negro charged with assaulting a white girl.

The mob placed a rope round the Mayor's neck, and after dragging him for some distance threw the rope over an electric pole. Thrice he was hauled up but each time the police succeeded in cutting the rope. The Mayor was subsequently taken to hospital bleeding at the nose and mouth and he is still unconscious.

After attacking the Mayor the mob, meeting with resistance from the Sheriff, set fire to the court house and cut the fire hose. Finally they succeeded in securing the negro by means of ladders and they forthwith hanged him on a neighbouring telegraph pole. Firemen saved the rest of the prisoners in the court house.

PRICES PLAINLY MARKED.

Much attention was concentrated yesterday on the latest placard on the hoardings, headed "Preisschild." The order, although it will not prevent profiteering, will be very useful to British soldiers. It enacts that goods offered for sale must be plainly ticketed with the price — which must be stated at per lb. in the case of articles sold by weight.

Thus, 4 M — 1, in fruit, will indicate one lb. for four marks. Hitherto it has frequently meant one kilo to Germans and one pound to British soldiers.

Articles of luxury are not mentioned in the order, which is, however, so wide as to include practically everything.

An Adelaide merchant has been fined two thousand pounds by the High Court for attempting to trade with the enemy at the end of 1915.

PAY ADVANCES.

RATE OF EXCHANGE LOSSES AND GAINS.

It has been no secret during the past few days that on the 1st October, the mark would fluctuate a little more vigorously than usual and strike the 120 to the pound level. Such, indeed, has actually come to pass and this morning finds the German currency even less valuable than it has been for over a week. This of course refers only to the military rate of exchange.

But the change has brought with it something in the nature of a bombshell for those thrifty officers who, for the past few days, have been living frugal lives, with the idea of making the very most of the advantageous terms anticipated.

An order has been issued stating that from to-day onward, no advances of pay may be made from Field Cashiers. The instructions, which emanate from the D.A.A.G. inform officers that henceforth they must make their own arrangements for drawing cash, the only exceptions being in the case of officers whose transactions are direct with the Command Paymasters.

Other Ranks Benefit.

The closing of the Field Cashier's doors on the officer will have no effect upon imprest accounts. Money will be drawn for the payment of troops in the ordinary way. Thus the "other ranks" will reap the benefit in respect of the latest financial vagary.

The military rate of exchange is influenced by a financial adviser in Paris in collaboration with the D.A.A.G., and although its fluctuations are made in anticipation of the turn of financial events in the commercial world, it does not, of course, necessarily follow that commerce will follow the lead and adjust its rates accordingly.

The military rate will be fixed for a fortnight as hitherto and the period of variation will be maintained in future as far as practicable.

Officers are warned to hold on to their advance Pay Books until their banking accounts are cleared.

PROS AND CONS OF THE DISPUTE.

In order that our readers may grasp the actual points of the dispute which has led to the disastrous Railway strike, the following synopsis will be of use, as it shows at a glance the main causes of the great industrial struggle that is in progress in Great Britain to-day.

Railwaymen's Case.

We want to remove the unfairness of one man in one grade receiving one rate of pay and another man in the same grade receiving a different rate.

This was granted in August so far as drivers and firemen were concerned.

Their wages were practically doubled, the 33s. war wage being made permanent and even added to.

We want a minimum of £3.

The lower-grade men are now offered a permanent wage lower than they are now receiving, i.e. less than 51s.

Hence the strike.

If the Premier agrees to grant to other grades the principle applied to drivers and firemen, the strike will cease at once.

Government Case.

Pre-war wages of 100,000 of the lowest grade were 18s. to 20s.

War-wage (33s.) brought these up to 51s.-53s.

The men claimed at about the end of last year: "Make our present wage permanent." That is, ordinary wage plus war wage, the 18s. man becoming a 51s. man.

The Government refused this, but agreed that wages should remain at the Armistice figures till December 31 next.

Then the war wage was to be reviewed in the light of the cost of living, which might then be lower.

But no reduction was to be made on present earnings until three months after the cost of living had decreased by 5 per cent.

The present war wage was to remain for at least six months from now.

In any case, double the pre-war rates were guaranteed, even if the cost of living fell to pre-war level.

The Government promised special consideration for harsh cases of anomalies.

GERMAN WAR MATERIALS.

In the French Chamber Deputy Lefèvre asked the Government to begin negotiations with the Allied and Associated Powers with a view to effecting the disarmament of Germany and her Allies by the suppression of certain war industries, like gun manufactures and ammunition factories.

M. Clemenceau said that Article 168 of the Peace Treaty gave sufficient securities. In any case, he declared, he could not accept M. Lefèvre's motion before the ratification of the Treaty.

It has been stated that since November last Germany has actually manufactured over 8,000 big guns and enormous quantities of ammunition.

DEATH OF VISCOUNT BERTIE.

The death of Viscount Bertie, the doyen of British Ambassadors, whose funeral took place yesterday, removes one of the best-known and most popular figures from British diplomatic circles. Born in 1844, he was attached to the Foreign Office for 39 years and was British Ambassador in Paris from 1905 to 1918. He was created a Viscount on his retirement.

With King Edward VII he was responsible to a large extent for the success of the Entente Cordiale. He was extremely popular in Paris, where his death will be very keenly regretted.

ARCHANGEL EVACUATED.

All the British troops at Archangel have now embarked for home. The last to leave were 200 men of the Highland Light Infantry. The bulk of the men went aboard early on the 27th. The warships remained in the harbour and at the quayside, and the transports anchored in the river awaiting the Highlanders.

Martial law prevails at Archangel and no civilians are allowed in the streets after eight in the evening. This, however, is a purely precautionary measure as the town is now most tranquil. It is understood that Bolshevists are surrendering all along the line.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S HEALTH.

Viscount Grey will be among the first to be received by President Wilson, when the President's condition permits him to see visitors.

The King and Queen of the Belgians will not pay their official visit to the White House until they have completed their tour of the United States.

SUMMARY COURT.

CIGARETTES, RANGEFINDERS AND RATIONS.

That traffic in cigarettes stolen from canteens and dumps is extensively carried on is no secret. We ourselves have been offered Haversacks, Ruby Queens, Kingfishers and similar choice and exclusive brands at anything from 3.50 upwards.

When however, Gerhard Zimmerman, of 11 Am Bollwerk, was found in possession of 8,610 (note the odd packet) English canteen cigarettes, the authorities had only got one of the criminals. Cigarettes being so scarce, the man who sold them merits a heavier penalty than Zimmerman, who has not only forfeited the cigarettes but is 4,300 marks the poorer.

An Expensive Souvenir.

A smart sergeant who had occasion to call on one Mathias Fashener, noticed a German rangefinder, which is not exactly an article of household furniture. The excuse that it was a souvenir did not prevent him being fined 300 marks for not handing it to the British Authorities as per order of the Allies.

Cook Goes to Prison.

Foolish Heinrich Schultz, whose pilferings we recorded yesterday, will not get such excellent food during his three weeks in prison. The legal gentleman who pleaded for him failed to season justice with mercy and the Military Police are now looking for a cook, experienced—and honest.

PRAYERS AND GUNS.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT AT CHURCH.

Another murderous assault on the police has been committed at Dripsey, a small village near Cork. Two constables named Sweeney and Walsh, on leaving Mass at the local chapel, were set upon by armed members of the congregation. Sweeney received three bullets in his side and now lies in a dangerous condition in Cork hospital, while Walsh was knocked down and kicked and otherwise savagely maltreated.

Large forces of police and military have been sent in motors to the village but no arrests are yet reported.

MOTHER OF 23 CHILDREN.

Until war privations modified their views, German women, almost without exception, held it to be their duty as well as their privilege to present their husbands—and the Fatherland—with babies without stint.

In the Humbold quarter of Cologne-Deutz there is a good wife, who is expecting her twenty-fourth child! Seventeen of the twenty-three have, however, died. The remarkable feature of this prolific union is that the woman is only forty-three years of age; while her husband was at the war she served for three years as conductor of an electric car.

ARMY EDUCATION.

Lecturing on "Post War Education" Col. E. C. Heath, D.S.O., the Commandant of the Army General and Commercial College, Cologne, described it as the model of the future educational system in the Army. In a six-weeks course could be laid the foundation of an education which would fit a man to pursue his studies, especially with a view to his business equipment for the commercial battle of civil life.

The lecturer gave an interesting resumé of Germany's educational development.

RED CROSS FOUNDER DEAD.

Sir John Furley, C.B., one of the founders of the British Red Cross Society and one of the original organisers of the St. John Ambulance Association has died at Oxford, aged 83.

When the late war broke out in spite of his advanced age, he was able to render valuable service. For instance, the original 25 huts at Netley were designed under his personal supervision. He also devoted all his skill and experience to the designing of hospital trains for use at the front, and their efficiency was in no small degree due to him.

BLOCKADE OF RUSSIA.

The Supreme Council has decided to insist on Germany surrendering all proceeds of the sale of aeroplane materials. They have also discussed the form of communication to be made to the German neutral Government with reference to the blockade of Bolshevist Russia. The American delegation maintained its objection to such blockade.

KRONSTADT "TAKE COVER."

According to reports in Stockholm newspapers British airmen are keeping Kronstadt in a state of uninterrupted suspense. During the last few nights nearly 180,000lbs. of explosives have been dropped there.

FORTUNE FOR MEDICINE.

Mr. Rockfeller has given £4,000,000 to endow medicine during the next fifty years. His actual benefactions are now over £60,000,000.

The American Shipping Board has cancelled all sailings to British ports, because of the railway strike.

ROYAL WARRANT.

THIRTEENTH ARTICLE OF THE SERIES.

15. As from October 1, 1919, field allowance for warrant officers serving other than in an area of active operations will be drawn on the same conditions as in peace as laid down in the Allowance Regulations, and Army Order 337 of 1914 is modified accordingly. Warrant officers serving in an area of active operations will continue to draw field allowance under present conditions. The definition of an "area of active operations" will be promulgated from time to time by the Army Council.

16. The system of charging National Health Insurance contributions against the accounts of soldiers is discontinued and the soldiers' contributions will be borne by the public for all those who draw pay under this Warrant.

17. Hospital stoppages will in future only be deducted where the disability is due to the soldier's own fault.

18. On or after the date of this Warrant, soldiers enlisting, re-enlisting, extending their colour service, re-engaging, voluntarily rejoining the colours or continuing in the service beyond 21 years will draw the new rates of pay from the date on which they enlist or enter upon their new engagement, except that those re-enlisting under Army Order 124 of 1919 on or before the 30th September, 1919, may elect to draw pay and allowances under the provisions of that Army Order. Prior service with the colours will count for increments of pay in the rank of private.

19. Subject to paragraph 18, soldiers now serving will be entitled to continue in receipt of their present rates of pay, if higher than those now approved, under the same conditions as hitherto in force during continuance of their present engagement, but this confers no claim to the continuance of special war emoluments or concessions, e.g., Army of Occupation bonus and war pay, beyond the date of their general abolition.

20. The sums payable by soldiers purchasing their discharge are under consideration and are subject to increase in view of the higher rates of pay now approved.

21. In view of the increased rates of pay now approved the establishments of ranks in the tradesmen's groups are liable to reconsideration, especially with relation to the cases where soldiers are enlisted in, or are promoted shortly after enlistment to, higher ranks than private.

TABLE 2.

Rates of pay not specifically covered by paragraphs 2 and 5 of Table 1.

(The paragraph numbers refer to corresponding Articles in the Pay Warrant dated 1st December, 1914.)

I.—Warrant Officers, Class I.

The pay will be that of a warrant officer, Class I., as shown in paragraph 2 or 5 of Table 1, according as the warrant officer is classed for normal or tradesman's rates, except that in the following instances the rate of pay will be:—

	Per day
	s. d.
Master gunner, 2nd class, Royal Artillery	13 0
Sub-conductor, Royal Army Ordnance Corps; Staff Sergeant-major, Royal Army Service Corps	15 0 or 13 0

according as he is classed as a tradesman or otherwise.

II.—Warrant Officers, Class II., Non-commissioned Officers and Men.

797. Garrison and District Staffs.

Pay will be according to rank, as laid down in Table 1, without increments for length of service as quartermaster-sergeant.

813. Cavalry—

	Per day.
	s. d.
Assistant at the Cavalry School	10 0

815. Royal Artillery—

Master gunner, 3rd class ...	12 0
Sergeant of the band	7 0
1st corporal of the band ...	5 6
2nd corporal of the band	5 0
Musician	2 9 to 3 6

818. European non-commissioned officers serving with the Hong Kong-Singapore Royal Garrison Artillery and Sierra Leone Company of Artillery.

The rates of pay are under consideration and pending further instructions the rates hitherto in force will continue. Any increased rates approved later will have retrospective effect from 1st July, 1919.

825. West India Regiment (Europeans).

The normal rates will apply. The question of additional pay for service on the West Coast of Africa is under consideration.

The sergeant master tailor will be paid as a tradesman.

857. West African Regiment.

The rates of pay for European non-commissioned officers serving with the West African Regiment are under consideration, and pending further instructions the rates hitherto in force will continue.

West Coast of Africa.

Pending further instructions, warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men serving on the West Coast will receive the rates of pay and coast pay hitherto in force. New rates of additional pay for service on the West Coast will be promulgated shortly, and these together with the rates under paragraphs 2 and 5 of Table 1 will be issuable with retrospective effect from 1st July, 1919.

MORE TRUTH ABOUT LIES.

We make little apology for returning to the article we published recently under the title of "The Lies They Told Us."

It appears to us extremely important that our readers should have a clear realisation of the extent to which the German public allowed themselves to be hoodwinked during the war. Dr. Mühsam's little book, "Wie wir belogen wurden," furnishes abundant proof of this.

State supervision and penetration of all forms and phases of public and private thought was the rule in Germany before the war.

Even in peace time the Press direction exercised by the Government was very rigid.

During the war this control was intensified so as to include the whole of the Press.

An examination of the methods employed, for details of which we refer our readers to the book itself, throws a powerful light upon the range and scope of the manipulation of public opinion.

The censorship worked in a variety of ways. Reports of battles, even if accurately reported, were followed up by "inspired" comments which sought to minimise any setbacks.

The statistics giving the number of U-Boat sinkings were cooked so as to make the Germans believe the success of this policy to be so great that Britain and her Allies would soon be brought to their knees. Still more striking was the extent to which public opinion was mobilized at the outbreak of war.

The legend of Russian aggression was so presented as to make that country seem the attacking party. When we are surprised at the readiness with which the Socialists threw in their lot with the Government in August 1914 we realise how thoroughly the ex-Kaiser's Government gulled them with tales of Belgian atrocities; the legend of the franc-tireur was so fully exploited that the German public were fully convinced that their troops were perfectly justified in shooting down defenceless men, women and children, and burning numbers of unoffending villages.

Inspired or semi-inspired articles were put forth leading the German public to believe that war weariness was more prevalent in enemy countries than at home. Equally cunning was the method whereby articles were inserted in neutral newspapers extolling the morale of the Germans; such articles were then reproduced for home consumption as emanating from impartial sources.

Space forbids the enumeration of the hundred and one methods whereby public opinion was controlled and regulated.

We may perhaps wonder whether any inkling of the extent to which they were being deceived, reached the German public. As victory followed victory in the official bulletins, the hungry householder must have asked himself with mild surprise how it was that the food shortage could be reconciled with the triumphs of the U-Boat campaign.

The fact is that no nation was ever so easily led or so docile as the German people. The French have styled them "une nation moutonnière"—a sheep-like race, ready to swallow any official dope put before them.

This it what Dr. Mühsam's book sets out to prove. Herr Giesberts, one of the Peace delegates at Versailles, once said, that a people which for four and half years had drained the cup of privation and suffering, had a right to sleep off their torpor for four months—and a right to a further four months to awaken slowly from their drunken orgy.

The German people have now had more than eight months to recover from the anaesthetics with which their late Government drugged them. It is high time for them to awake and prove to the world the sincerity of their desire for a new and regenerated Germany. In such a Germany there can be no place for the old evil system of Press control, which wrought such untold harm in the past.

A LEAVE TRAGEDY.

When I went on leave from Rhineland I was the happiest creature breathing. Returning, I wished I had never been born. This, you will say, is no unique experience. But listen!

The first person I met at Victoria was Skillings, who used to be cashier at my old firm. He was just off for his vacation, but he found time for a chat.

"Well, and what sort of a time have you been having?" he asked.

"Oh, not too bad," I replied.

"I should jolly well think not! From what I've heard, you boys are having the time of your young lives. Theatres and cabarets every night, trips up the Rhine, wine, music and pretty girls, and over a hundred marks to a pound! Not too bad, indeed!"

I smiled a superior smile, and in a few telling stentences, put him in possession of the facts. I need only say that they anything but tallied with Skillings' description.

He was disillusioned, and evidently disappointed. I now think that most people, in spite of their professions of virtue, have a certain sneaking leaning in favour of vice. When we parted Skillings' interest in me had clearly evaporated.

In the pleasure and excitement of getting home I soon forgot Skillings. Next day, when I visited my old Tennis Club, I was reminded of him.

Here I found universal envy of the good time I was supposed to be having. The general view precisely coincided with that of Skillings. Again I had to lay bare the prosaic actuality, and again my auditors seemed disappointed. The truth bored them.

After that the thing began to get monotonous. Every day I was refuting charges of rakishness by somebody. Finally an idea struck me. To save myself further loss of prestige, I would make up with fiction the deficiencies of fact.

I accordingly invented a story involving all the dissipations with which I had been identified. It was a record the Crown Prince would have blushed at. I resolved that the next person who asked me what sort of a time I had been having would not be disappointed.

The next person turned out to be my old boss.

Now, the Boss is a very patriotic old boy. He has lost two sons in the war, and done no end of good to various War Charities. He is also taking back everyone who left to join up. I considered that it would be a shame to explode his cherished notions about the Rhine.

He greeted me effusively. Almost before I had seated myself came the eternal question.

"And what kind of a time have you had?"

But this time I was ready. Fixing my eyes reminiscently on the ceiling, I led off with the revised version, and I believe I did full justice to it. At any rate, I have no fault to find with the impression it made.

The Boss's face expressed extreme disgust.

"I had hoped that these disreputable Cologne stories were exaggerated" he said, icily. "Evidently they have some foundation. Personally, I consider it an insult to the dead that any Britisher should reduce himself to such a level. I am sorry, Atkins, but in view of what you have confessed I cannot guarantee to keep my word about your job. I do not wish to see you again. Good morning."

So, when I am demobbed, I shall go in for journalism. E.S.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views on Many Topics.

ENGLISHWOMEN IN CAFES.

Sir,—As the wife of a British soldier in Rhineland I have a grievance to make There are cafés in Cologne, which are reserved for officers. But having the misfortune to be merely the wife of a non-commissioned officer I cannot spend an idle hour with my husband in the quiet precincts of a café.

Now, Mr. Editor, cannot something be done so that these less noisy cafés can be enjoyed by the wives of all our soldiers? I am sure all the English ladies in occupied territory will agree with me. MRS. ATKINS.

WAR MEDALS FOR ALL.

Sir,—"Pleased" misses the point altogether and is evidently confusing the 1914-15 Star with the British war medal.

Y.M.C.A. workers are now wearing the latter riband and rightly so, but I took exception to the granting of the Star. It is obvious that if such a worker came out just prior to the armistice he would not be entitled to the Star. "Pleased" has failed to understand the point under discussion. AMAZED.

IS IT APPRECIATION?

Sir,—Replying to "H.A.C." may I be allowed to state that while I fully agree with him in the opinion he holds that all the seats in our English theatres should be reserved for our own people, it is hardly fair to the German civilians to allege that they go there solely to improve their English.

May I suggest they appreciate good drama or comedy, and it is a splendid tribute to our Army performers that so many German civilians are present. CIVIE.

A PLEA FOR RUGGERS.

Sir,—Since I have been with the Rhine Army I am very much disappointed at not having seen any of that most interesting game of all games—Rugby football.

I feel quite certain that if an attempt was made to form a league it would be successful, as the game is both interesting to watch and play and it is just the right time of the year for that kind of sport.

I shall eagerly wait to see any reply that might be printed in your paper for or against the suggestion. GUNNER R.F.A.

LEATHER-REPAIRED.

Sir,—I am really quite hurt by "Jacko's" remarks about leather on officers' tunics. I happen to own a tunic so decorated, and I wouldn't dream of parting with it.

It is invaluable to me as a good old working garment. Poor thing, it is not its fault that leather had to be used to hide its lack of elbows and cuff edges. In fact these patches are honourable badges of war service and have regained for it the respectability to which it was entitled.

Now that there is some likelihood of our both being demobilized it would seem churlish to give it the sack, and until this happens I hope we shall remain the closest of old friends. LEATHER.

WINTER DANCING.

Sir,—During the coming winter months dancing will most likely be the favourite recreation of many men in Cologne. I am very fond of dancing myself and I have spent many happy hours at the British Empire Leave Club, but it is so overcrowded that dancing loses much of its charm.

May I through your popular paper suggest that the great hall of the central Y.M.C.A. would make an ideal dancing hall owing to its great size and ample seating accommodation for spectators. I am sure it would be much appreciated by the dancing community of the troops in Cologne and would relieve the B.E.L.C. considerably. MAXIMA.

RESERVED FOR OFFICERS.

Sir,—Might I draw attention to the way in which carriages reserved for officers on railways are abused?

Take any train leaving Cologne and you will find these reserved carriages filled with either neutrals, privates or Germans, the result being officers are obliged to stand.

If these are reserved for officers why allow neutrals and other civilians? Let us remember the old saying "Those who are not with me are against me." If neutrals require special carriages why not supply them; but it is obvious that "reservé aux officiers" should be reserved for them and their wives only. G.F.D.

REFRESHING ENGLISH TEA.

Sir,—Refreshing English tea, indeed. "Another Father" must have been very lucky in his calls at the Club, for on each occasion when I have taken tea there it has been of a wishy-washy nature and often not even hot. FREQUENTER.

SENDING MONEY HOME.

Sir,—I read in a recent issue a letter signed "Sergeant" calling attention to alleged hardships arising from the G.R.O. limiting the purchase of Postal Orders.

May I point out that Army Form O 1727 A & B may be used for remitting money home? This form should be available in every Orderly Room, and by its use the risk attending sending postal orders is obviated, also registered envelopes are not required.

It is possible this form is unknown to many who may wish to make use of it. A.E.D.

DRAMATIC COMPANY'S SERVICES.

Sir,— As one of the members of the B.R.A.D.C. I was delighted to see Mr. Percy's denial of the rumour that we were in receipt of salaries for work done for the B.R.A.D.C.

He did not however make his own position sufficiently clear. I have since been informed, though possibly the members of the Company were not in receipt of salaries, he himself was.

This is entirely false. The work done by Mr. Percy is part of his duties as Assistant Amusements Officer, G.H.Q. Furthermore I think it only fair that it should be known that he has refused no less than three important offers to play leading parts in London productions, so that the B.R.A.D.C. might carry on.

I need hardly say, it would be impossible to do so without him. D. A. ONIONS, Lieut.

SUGGESTED EQUIPMENT IMPROVEMENTS.

Sir,—A point which strikes me about the equipment which I carry is that my burden is added to through my inability to keep the webbing belt tight. The consequence is that the pack pulls it up, the tunic is dragged out of place and one's powers of marching are reduced.

A leather belt is infinitely preferable, for it does not contract in wet weather or give when put to the test. D.L.I.

VARYING PRICES.

Sir,—How is it that the prices at the N.A.C.B. Club show a continuous tendency to soar in favour of that institution?

Many of the eatables supplied are in rations and I have yet to learn that the price of vegetables, etc., purchased from Germans has varied to such an extent as to warrant the wholesale rise in prices chargeable at the Club at present.

It seems to me that those responsible jumped upon the high rate of exchange as a reason for putting up the prices. If this was so can we have an assurance that they will be reduced as the value of the mark goes up not at the end of the month but from day to day? B.A.B.E.

DIRTY RAILWAY CARRIAGES.

Sir,—How long are we expected to tolerate the filthy railway carriages which are allotted to members of the British Army?

Some are a positive disgrace. Another point is Germans are making a general practice of use of these compartments and when spoken to plead that they were unaware that they were reserved. This can be overcome by the use of more prominent notices than the small paper ones which are in use at present. A.K.

WIVES AND BADGES.

Sir—The other day I was stopped by a D.A.P.M. and asked politely and very civilly, to produce my white pass. Whereat I must say I felt rather indignant (for some reason for which I cannot account) until the officer concerned went to the trouble of explaining the necessity and importance of the precaution that was being taken.

In calmly thinking over things I realize that tremendous difficulty must be experienced in ensuring that none but those women entitled to it wear the official brassard. OFFICER'S WIFE.

WAKE THEM UP.

Sir,—I am at one with "Astral" for the simple reason that it is apparent that there is a falling off in the saluting by German uniformed officials.

The Americans have a sharp way of dealing with offenders which might well be copied here. In a recent case at Coblenz the official who omitted to salute was sent to prison for a spell. A few such sentences would have a salutary effect in Cologne. JOEY.

PRONOUNCING GERMAN.

Sir,—Your suggestions from time to time re study of the German language and its pronunciation would appear to be very necessary.

I thought it particularly priceless the other evening to hear one British officer, with great show pulling out a cigarette case, say to a pal "Rauchen Sie?" What a "rustle", "frou frou", "rush" etc. has to do with a cigarette case, well I don't know, and no wonder the waiter smiled. H.T.

WITH THE "ARCHIES."

Our troops had made an attack and had pushed the enemy back, until his front line trench was out of our range.

A mud-spattered despatch-rider tears up, and hands over an order to "advance within 1000 yds. of the enemy line."

The order "Pack up" is given; then follows a scene of activity in which gunners, blocks, scotches, ammunition, telescopes, range-finders etc. seem inextricably mixed up, until in an incredibly short space of time the gun lorries move off.

The road for a short distance is good, until a village, that has been the recipient of the enemy's delicate attention is reached when Thud! the leading gun lorry stops suddenly though the drive wheels still continue to revolve.

There is a decided sinking of the rear end of the lorry and a corresponding sinking of our feelings, as we dismount to enquire into the trouble.

The rear wheels are buried up to the axle in a mud-hole which has been filled in by the Labour Corps with various kinds of rubble, and we are, in common parlance, "Hung up."

The gunners dismount and the rear gun is hooked to the derelict, then with the reverse gear and a willing heave from the gunners, we are once more on solid ground.

A near-by ruin affords a supply of bricks and timber with which the hole is filled and we are able to proceed on our way once more.

The next obstacle is an entire wall of a building which has fallen across the road. We ascend carefully, trundle gently over the loose bricks, to descend as carefully at the other side.

Now we reach the position decided upon and another scene of activity follows the order "Action."

Jack arms are drawn out, blocks and scotches placed in position, instruments are unloaded and set up, ammunition boxes are opened and the rounds placed in readiness and all not a second too soon for a shrill blast on the whistle from the look-out announces an enemy 'plane.

An L.V.G. shows up at a range of about 7000 yds. well over the enemy lines. It's object evidently is to gain information as to the position of our infantry and outposts, the new positions our batteries occupy and the principal roads we are using for the transport of our rations and ammunition.

The range-finder calls out a range, charts are hurriedly consulted and the order "up 4 right 2 fuze 18 Fire!" is rapped out.

Then follows a burst of firing peculiar to Archies, for the anti-aircraft gunner is second to none in efficiency, and the Hun, after nosing around, ineffectually, to pass the barrage, finally decides that the neighbourhood is rather too unhealthy for him and turns homeward.

We have done our job. We have not brought the enemy intruder "down in flames" but we have prevented him from sending back information regarding the distribution of our various forces, and many a Battery Ammunition Column, and Transport Line have reason to thank the Archies for their immunity from 5.9's during the day and those nerve shattering visits from bombing planes during the night. *F. JOHN v. SAMMY.

Rhine Army Members' Successes at Coblenz.

OPEN EVENT WINNERS.

At the invitation of the American Army, a small party of British athletes from the British Army of the Rhine took part in a Sports Carnival at Coblenz on Friday and Saturday to compete against representatives of their French and American Allies.

The only Athletic events open to the British were:—100 yards dash, 1 Mile run, Cross Country race, High and Long Jump. On arrival at the Sports Ground, however, it was found that other events had been thrown open, so the British representatives decided to try their luck, with what results will be seen below. Some extremely fine running and jumping was seen, and on the two days' performance the Britishers, as a team, would want a lot of beating.

Lieut.-Col. J. Betts, D.S.O., was in charge of the team, and has every reason to be proud of them and their splendid performances. Major Holmes and Capt. Godiree won the tennis doubles.

The first day's running was very good as the weather held fine, but rain fell on the second day, thus making the track heavy and against good time.

Perhaps the finest race seen for many a day was the 440 yards. At the start the American representatives forged ahead amid tremendous excitement, the Britishers looking as if they would be hopelessly beaten. They, however, had timed their opponents beautifully, for when two-thirds of the distance had been covered, they all came along in a bunch and practically left the remainder of the field standing. Needless to say, this performance created great enthusiasm among the British supporters present.

The following are the results of Events won by the representatives of the British Army of the Rhine.

Results.

100 yards:—1, Lieut. Pinder, 57th Siege Bty. R.G.A.; 2, Q.M.S. Spruce, 41st Bn. M.G.C.; (Time 11 secs.)

220 yards:—1, Lieut. Pinder, 57th Siege Bty R.G.A.; 2, Q.M.S. Spruce, 41st Bn. M.G.C (-34/5).

440 yards:—1, Lieut. Pinder, 57th Siege Bty. R.G.A.; 2, Lieut. Riley, 15th Lancs. Fusrs.; 3, Lieut. Airey, 53 d Northd. Fusrs. (56 1/5).

880 yards:—1, Corpl. Ward, Tank Corps; 2, Lieut Elliott, 15th Lancs. Fusrs.; 3, Lieut. Speedy, Tank Corps. (2.3 3/5).

1 mile:—1, Corpl. Ward, Tank Corps; 2, Lieut. Elliott, 15th Lancs. Fusrs.; 3, Lieut. Riley, 15th Lancs. Fusrs. (4.44).

Nos. 4, 5 and 6 in this race were all British entries.

220 yards low hurdles:—1, Major Arkle, 41st Bn. M.G.C. (26 4/5).

110 yards high hurdles:—1, Major Arkle, 41st Bn. M.G.C.; 2, Capt. Zeigler, London Div. H.Q (18 1/5).

Medley relay race:—1, British Team. 220 yds. Q.M.S. Spruce, 440 yds. Lt. Pinder, 880 yds. Lt. Elliot, 1 mile, Lt. Speedy. (8.46 3/5.)

Half mile relay race:—1, British Team. (Each man ran 220 yards). Q.M.S. Spruce, 41st Bn. M.G.C., Pte. Sutton, 41st Bn. M.G.C., Sgt. Briggs, 41st Bn. M.G.C., C.S.M. Huggett, A.G. Staff. (1.42 2/5).

1 mile relay race:—1, British Team. (Each man ran 440 yards). Lt. Pinder, Lt. Speedy, Lt. Airey, Lt. Riley. (3 53).

Cross country race, about 8 miles. (5 men per team). Team placings:—1, 1/7th Middlesex Regt.; 2, 52nd Lang's Liverpool Regt. (5 .15).

Individual placings:—1, Sgt. Clarke, 1 7th M'sex Regt.; 2, Q.M.S. Baker, 1/7th M'sex Regt.

High jump:—Won by Capt. Manisby, U.S.A. (5 ft. 8 ins.); 2, Major Arkle, (5 ft. 7 ins.); 3, C.S.M. Huggett, (5 ft. 6 ins.); 4, Capt. Bailey, Tank Cps., (5 ft. 3 ins.); 5, Capt. Zeigler, (5 ft. 2 ins.).

Long jump:—1, C.S.M. Huggett, (20 ft. 3 ins.); 2, Lt. Pinder, (20 ft. 1/2 ins.); 3, Maj. Arkle and Lt. Goodman, (19 ft. 7 1/2 ins.).

Wrestling. (Feather weight):—1st Pte. Oliver, R.A.S.C.

FLYING CLUB LAWN TENNIS.

The London Flying Club's hard court lawn tennis tournament at Hendon was concluded on Saturday, when N. Mishu, the Rumanian, defeated the Hon. F. M. B. Fisher in the final of the men's singles.

Miss Ryan won the ladies' singles and (with Mrs. Larcombe) the doubles. S. N. Deust and P. O'Hara Wood took the men's doubles, and O'Hara Wood and Mrs. Larcombe the mixed doubles.

McCracken's Partner.

Frank Hudspith, the "Magpies" dandy defender, will captain England's team against Wales. His cap has been long overdue.

Ladies' Golf.

After being practically non-existent during the war, the Prince's Ladies' Golf Club is being revived, and will hold its autumn meeting at Mitcham on October 28 and 29.

Bristol City have protested to the Football League secretary that Fulham did not make adequate arrangements to anticipate the railway strike by arriving in Bristol on Friday. They ask, therefore, that the return fixture on Saturday shall be played at Bristol instead of at Fulham.

G.H.Q., SERGEANTS MESS RIFLE CLUB.

At the weekly spoon shoot which took place on the Merheim Ranges on Saturday last, Staff-Sergt. Hart, Royal Engineers., won the spoon with a score of 91.

Good scoring was the order of the day the average working out at 71.

The next spoon shoot will take place on Saturday next. Meet at No. 1, Sergts. Mess, Salomonsgasse, 1.30 p.m. prompt.

NEWBURY DETAILS.

Keysoe Defeated By Flying Spear: Manton Success.

HORSES STRANDED.

The feature of Newbury's second day was the defeat of the St. Leger winner, Keysoe, by Flying Spear, and at 1¼ miles there is no doubt that the Manton filly is Keysoe's superior.

There are still a number of horses stranded owing to the railway strike Details:—

T.Y.O. Selling Plate:—1, Conjecture colt (A. Smith), 5—2; 2, Luckpenny III., 5—2; 3, Tacoronic, 7—4.

Long Distance Handicap:—1, Sheringham (Hulme), 4—7; 2, Lucky, 9—4; 3, Carol Singer, 7—1.

Kingsclere Stakes:—1, Flying Spear (Childs), 7—4; 2, Keysoe, 4—6; 3, Mobilisation 10—1.

Highclere Nursery:—1, Gairoy (Carslake), 6—1; 2, Wimasu, 2—1; 3, March Along, 10—1.

Lambourn Welter:—1, Chamarmin (Robbins), 3—1; 2, Quadrille, 6—1; 3, Tom Powrie, 8—1.

Whatcombe Handicap:—1, Vanity (W. Saxby), 3—1; 2, The President, 7—2; 3, Wally, 7—1.

RHINELAND SOCCER.

18th G.H.Q. Reserve M.T. Coy. R.A.S.C. 2, Rhine Army Troops M. T. Coy. 1.

The above teams met at Poller Wiesen on Saturday. The Army Troops opened with the wind in their favour and kept the 18th defence busy. After about twenty minutes play their inside left scored the first goal. The 18th tried hard to draw the level, but half time arrived without any further score.

The second half commenced with the play in favour of the 18th who pressed almost continuously and eventually succeeded in drawing level by a fine effort from their centre forward. After this, they fairly bombarded their opponents goal and the winning goal was scored two minutes from time from a well directed shot by L Cpl. Philips. The R.A.T. goalie gave a fine display and undoubtedly saved his side from a bigger defeat. The game was well handled by C.S.M. Tucker.

KALK SHIELD.

33rd Northumberland Fusiliers 3; v. 35th Bde. R.G.A. 2.

In the 2nd round of the competition on Tuesday the N.F.s started the ball going and went off at a terrific pace, which took the gunners of their feet. As a result of this they were one goal up in five minutes. They scored again before half-time. The second half pace was not so fast and the gunners drew level by some persevering football. The N.F.'s, however, were playing better together and their third and winning goal was a beauty. The game was very fairly contested and the better team won. The N.F.'s diminutive right half-back played a very sound game.

Other Results.

23rd Royal Fusiliers, 1; 87th Field Ambulance, 0.

Officers v. N.C.O.'s.

On Monday, at Klettenberg, a most enjoyable and very fast game was played between the Officers and Warrant Officers and Sergts. of the 51st Northumberland Fusiliers, which ended in a goalless draw. The forwards of both sides played very well, but lacked finish when in front of goal. The Sgts., attack was well led by R. S. M. Hullyer, and Sgt. Osborn at back played very well. For the Officers Capt. N. B. Pigg, Lieut. Veitch, and Lieut. Thomas played a good game.

London D.A. Mule Sports.

Great interest is being taken in the forthcoming mule sports for all units of the London Divisional Artillery. These will be held on the London D.A.C. Sports ground at Westhoven next Saturday.

RANGERS AGAIN BEATEN.

Heart of Midlothian's Success at Ibrox.

LEAGUE RESULTS.

Scottish League football on Monday provided another shock for Rangers' supporters. Beaten at Motherwell on Saturday last, they again bowed the knee this time to the sprightly Hearts. The defeat is all the more bitter, as it occurred at Ibrox.

Hibernians won, defeating Albion Rovers at home a really smart performance, while the "Old Firm" easily trounced Third Lanark and mount to the head of the table, their usual place. Appended are the results:—

SCOTTISH LEAGUE—MONDAY MATCHES.

FOOTBALL GOSSIP.

Jimmy Logan as Bradford spectators will ever know him, is now Captain James Logan M.C. and secretary manager of Raith Rovers.

What football "spotter" has not been to South Bank on business? The North can produce the goods.

A splendid Rugby player, keen tennis enthusiast and a custodian of merit, is Hoffman of South Shields. When a paper states Holt as keeping for the Northern club, don't get confused. Hoffman has been registered under this name.

From ranker to commissioned rank, and then earning the M.C. is Jimmy Crabtree's war record. The Blackburn keeper is still a good 'un.

Writers of offside law suggestions should note that no alteration can take place until the International Board meet next June. Carry on, McCracken!

Worboys of Clapton is one of their "war boys" who helped them in war time football.

It is not generally known that Colin Veitch lectures Newcastle's players every week. It is not stated if he instructs McCracken, on how to play an opponent, offside.

The value of an old head is demonstrated when one sees Pennington play. His generalship is ever gaining points.

£590 TOURNEY TO GO ON.

At a meeting of the Professional Golfers' Association, held at Walton Heath on Saturday evening, it was decided that the existing arrangements for the "News of the World" tournament for £590 in prize money shall hold good.

Earlier in the day Mr. Perrins, the secretary, officially announced that a postponement would take place, but when it was learned subsequently that some 37 of the 64 players had arrived at Walton Heath, and that many others had reached London from distant parts the committee had no alternative but adhere to the original arrangements and carry through the tournaments.

WELSH TEAM TO MEET ENGLAND.

The Welsh team for the "Victory" international match with England at Stoke next Saturday has been selected as follows:—

Peers (Wolverhampton); Goodwin (Oldham Athletic), Russell (Plymouth Argyle); Hughes (Manchester City), Jones (Stoke), Jennings (Bolton Wanderers); Meredith (Manchester United), Wynn (Manchester City), Matthews (Liverpool) Jones (Southend), Vizard (Bolton Wanderers).

FOOTBALL AND THE STRIKE.

The fact that so many football fixtures were fulfilled last Saturday was in many cases only due to long and tiring journeys by motor. West Ham in particular have reason to attribute their defeat to the strike, as it took eight hours for their conveyances to cover the 150 miles to Stoke. They only arrived at the ground a few minutes before the kick-off, with just time to scramble into their football clothes.

Swindon had a similar tiring journey to Luton, arriving very late. Fulham were unable to fulfil their engagement at Bristol, owing to the char-a-banc they engaged being unable to get petrol.

The Arsenal, who accomplished a fine performance at Blackburn, made the journey by motor char-a-banc, taking fourteen hours, but this appeared to have little effect on the team, who played a very hard, fast game and took home one point.

AMUSEMENTS AND RECREATIONS.

The "Prongs."

Many concert lovers will regret to learn that the "Prongs" make their final bow this (Wednesday) evening. They have made four score appearances and visited 67 towns and villages in the occupied area. The final concert will be given at the Alysium, Opladen, when a programme consisting of their numerous old and new successes will be submitted. All friends — and they are many — are cordially invited to what is to be a free entertainment.

Piano, Violin and Voice.

To play three groups of piano pieces, accompany five songs and a minuet for violin, all from memory, even although they are all one's own composition, is a severe test of a musician's power and skill. But the feat was so well achieved by Miss Dorothy Nash at her recital in the Cologne Central Y.M.C.A. on Monday (where she is one of the staff) that at the end of the performance the audience insistently called for more from the same source. There is a directness of outline in all Miss Nash's compositions that is very refreshing is these days of "atmospheric vapourings", and her delightfully rhythmic playing brings this out to perfection. This does not mean that there is an absence of poetry and imagination. Her beautiful little pianoforte solo "Songs of the Mist" is full of fairylike ideas that are skilfully woven in the melody and countermelody.

Some Notable Items.

"A Country Dance" breathes the atmosphere of "Sir Roger de Coverley" although its melody borrows nothing from it. In her songs, Miss Nash makes one realize the truth of Henry Purcell's saying, that "music is the exaltation of poetry" and I trust that we shall be able to purchase copies of Miss Nash's songs and violin and pianoforte solos while the memory of the beautiful rendering of them is fresh in our memories. Miss Nash had a great personal success, and at the close of her performance bouquet after bouquet of lovely flowers were showered upon her by the soldier-audience. She was most ably assisted by Miss Merriman, who is a brilliant violinist, and by Miss Hammond and Pte. Brickell whose singing was full of intelligence and charm. Miss Hammond's enunciation, whereby the words of her songs were understood by all, deserves special and grateful appreciation.

A French Play.

On Friday last, the comedy "Le Voyage de M. Perrichon" was acted by some of the students attending French classes at the Army General and Commercial College. The part of Mons. Perrichon was taken by L Cpl. McComach whose acting elicited continuous applause; Mme. Perrichon was played by Pte. Broctor, who gave an amusing version of the practical and unromantic French woman; Pte. Sherrard, who took the part of Henriette, was ably supported by her two suitors Armand des Roches (Lieut. Ramsay) and Daniel (Lieut. Miller). Pte. Proctor played Marjonin, the clerk, which being a more serious part, contrasted well with the comedy of the rest of the play. Miss Steel was responsible for the preparation and rehearsals.

G.H.Q. Signals Dance.

A most successful dance was held on the 28th inst at the Zugweg Barracks when 34 members of the W.R.A.F. were present and six ladies of the Military Governor's staff. From the start the whole affair went with a swing, notable features being the twilight effects in the Grand Parade Lancers and other dances. A Waltz Chance was a novelty as far as Rhine Army dances are concerned and caused much amusement. The whole affair was organised by Lt. Murdoch, L/Cpl. Handscomb and Spr. Sealey of the Signal Office staff, to whom much credit is due for their apparently unlimited energy. Mention should also be made of the two members of W.R.A.F. who spent all the afternoon helping with refreshments.

Music and Speeches.

The orchestra (also from the Signal Office staff) did remarkably well. Considering the short notice they had and the fact that they had never played together before, one might say wonderfully well.

Spr. Sealey in a short but pithy speech thanked the ladies for their presence, the O.C. and Officers of the company for the kindness shown and help given to the organisers, and assured the men that the success of the dance was due to the great efforts of Lt. Murdoch (loud applause). Lt. Murdoch responded, thanking the band and helpers for their services.

Cheers being given for these and the ladies, the dancing recommenced and "The King" brought to an end a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

"Guten Morgan."

This is an impression of Joe Morgan, the well-known tenor of the "Tabs" G.H.Q. Concert Party. He has been a member of the party through its early vicissitudes, and has latterly shared in its many triumphs here in Rhineland. Morgan has a pleasing voice and plays a straight part in revue admirably. In the recent revue, "Well I'm!—!!", which brought the "Tabs" such great renown, he created quite a character as Morgan Evans, the gullible Welshman. Needless to say, Morgan is a native of "the land of the leek."

In few words.

On Wednesday next, an orchestral concert will be given in the 6th Corps Officers' Club, Cologne, by Herrn Blum, from 3.30 till 5.30.

JACQUES.

TEN SHARE 1400 MARKS

Result of Football Contest No 1: No All-Correct Coupon.

In our contest No. 1 no single competitor was successful in forecasting an all-correct coupon. Two matches were postponed and this left ten results to be supplied.

There were several notable attempts to win our prize, and the following ten competitors who correctly forecasted all the results but one share the total amount subscribed. The competition attracted an entry of 1,388, to which we have added a further twelve marks, making a sum of 1,400 marks. Thus each of the successful entrants receives 140 marks.

Appended are the names and addresses of the prize-winners:—

W. Stagg, 16 A.A. (H) Coy., Rhine Army; W.A. Clark, Southern Div. Sigs., Altenberg; Thomas Murray, Signals. 41st Bn. M.G.C., Rhine Army; Cpl. J.H. Critch, Train Hqrs., Northern Div.; Pte. Jas. Brims, Civil Administration Dept., No. 1 Sub Area, Solingen; S.Q.M.S. H.H. Jeeves, R.A.S.C., c o D.D.R., G.H.Q.; C.Q.M.S. H. Jackman, 1st Pontoon Park, R.E., Zollstock; O.R.S. Simpson, 114595, B.O.R. 52nd Bn. D.L.I. Riehl Barracks; Sgt. A.S. Goddard, 36th C.C.S. Cologne; Pte. H.S. Best, No. 101048, A Coy 3rd Platoon, 9th D.L.I. Rhine Army.

Many competitors failed to read our rules correctly, and we would point out that one mark must accompany each coupon. These must be cut, not torn out. Now then enthusiasts turn your attention to Contest No. 2. Our prize must be won outright. Why should not you be the lucky one?

NEXT SATURDAY'S GAMES.

Some confusion seems to exist re the possibility of next Saturday's League matches not being played. Many doleful and dismal souls are forecasting that the railway deadlock will put an end to all the matches.

We think this highly improbable. The F.A. will sanction any means by which matches can be played off, for obvious reasons. Our big clubs, one may rest assured, will do all in their power to bring about this end. Mid-week matches at the season's end are never successful in raising big gates and this will play a big part in any consideration of this matter.

Competition No. 2.

In connection with our Competition No. 2, the last day for sending in coupons, each of which must be accompanied by one mark, is Friday, Oct. 3rd.

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 2,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S.40 Rhine Army.

List Of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Ringstead's Cesarewitch Mount.

C. Ringstead has been engaged to ride Sheriff's Officer in the Newmarket long distance handicap.

Ashford Manor Golf Club.

Mr. Frank Beams has been appointed secretary to the Ashford Manor Golf Club Ashford, Middlesex. He is a member of the East Brighton Club.

Another International Air Race.

For an international seaplane race over the Solent and Southampton Water in the last week of October the Royal Aero Club have offered a price of £500, with a trophy valued at £100.

Players' Injuries.

Two well-known players received serious injuries last Saturday. Keenleyside, the South Shields captain, having a foot bone broken, and Seymour of Luton receiving a sprained knee.

Surrey Football Association.

At the Surrey Football Association annual meeting in Kennington Oval, the balance-sheet for the war period showed a deficiency of just over £71. It was announced that 80 resuscitated clubs had been elected to the association. Sixteen clubs had entered for the Senior Cup and 75 for the Junior Competition. No County Championship competition will take place this season.

Mr. Bottomley's Horses.

Mr. Horatio Bottomley is getting a lot of new blood into his Dicker stable with a view to the forthcoming N.H. season.

Dillon in Belgium.

J. Dillon is riding well in Belgium, and one of his recent successes was the Warringham Steeplechase.

High-priced Horses.

A contemporary states that Dansellon was not the highest-priced horse ever imported into India; that distinction belongs to Dark Legend.

W. Griggs To Ride in Scotland.

William Griggs has several riding engagements to fulfil at Lanark and Edinburgh this week.

Pedestrianism.

Jack Gill, of Bilston, and Harry Whitehouse, of Tipton, have been matched to run under "Sporting Life" rules 100 yds for £10, open for £25 a side, at the Victoria Grounds, Rough Hills, Wolverhampton, next Saturday.

Are They Good Enough?

The decision of the British Olympic Council to send a team to next year's games at Antwerp is good news from a sporting point of view. But are our athletes good enough to uphold British prestige worthily? writes a well-known runner.

By Collier.

South Shields returned to Sunderland after their match with Clapton in a collier.

Looking Ahead.

"Spurs" and Bristol City for Division I next season, is a tip worth noting.

Not For Northern Union.

E. Caswell and J. Coghlan, the promising Cardiff half-backs, have refused tempting offers to join the Northern Union.

Coventry City's Acquisition.

Coventry City has secured the transfer of Frank Crowe from Birmingham F.C. Crowe has played as a left wing forward, but mostly as a half-back. He is 23 years of age, weighs 13st 6lb, and stands 5ft. 9in.

Heartbreaking.

Aston's luck is certainly heartbreaking, and their inability to score must make their supporters weep. It reads like a fairy tale that the Bradford debacle was largely contributed to by Hardy, who will keep England's goal on Saturday first.

Football League For Ex-soldiers.

An effort is being made to form a Birmingham League for ex-Service footballers. There are twenty-nine branches of the N.F.D.D.S.S. in the district, and a team is to be run in connection with each. If the League is established a cup will be provided for annual competition.

Wye Wins At Liverpool.

In a fifteen-round contest at the Liverpool Stadium, Alf Wye, of Hoxton, gained the decision on points over Charlie Stone, of Taffs Well.

To Race in Belgium.

The Sportsman states that Lord Torrington proposes to race in Belgium, and that he is getting together a string of horses at Stockel.

Golf's Difficulties.

Putting remains the only thing difficult in golf so far as professionals are concerned, and in this the test is higher in the case of nerve than in the mere matter-of-fact process of striking the ball, says Mr. F.M. Carruthers.

Suspended.

F. Lane, the rider of Unitoi in the Newbury Autumn Cup on Friday, was called before the Stewards to explain why his mount had been left. He was severely reprimanded and suspended for the remainder of the meeting.

"Brum" Old Edwardians.

At the annual meeting of Birmingham Old Edwardians, Lieut.-Colonel R.A. Broderick was elected captain of the first fifteen. H. Donovan deputy-captain, P. Adams hon treasurer, H.N. Bradsworth hon. sec., and B.R. Saunders hon. match secretary.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

The Batman's Day.

What does the average officer's batman in Cologne occupy himself with all day? It is to be hoped that some at least are devoting the long hours to study, either of German or anything else that is useful. An officer I know asked his servant how he was going to fill in the day after he had cleaned his belongings the other morning. "Oh, I shall have plenty on hand, Sir," he replied, "I'm going to have a bath."

Free Rides to Stop.

All ranks should know that from the date of ratification of peace free travel by tram for British troops will cease.

The "Earwig Lamp."

I hear that the No. 1 N.A.C.B. Club, Cologne, (now generally referred to as "The Earwig") is likely to remain open for a few weeks at least. At all events there appears to be plenty of scope for the continuance of the institution. Empty bedrooms are always a scarcity, the dining-rooms are comfortably filled at meal times, and the lounge invariably has plenty of patronage bestowed upon it. So, why shut its hospitable doors?

After Long Years.

A remarkable discovery was made, I hear, in a mess in Rhineland yesterday. It caused quite a flutter of excitement. After four weary years of searching a corporal discovered a piece of real pork in the ration of pork and beans.

Political Warfare.

There is great political activity prevailing in Cologne in view of the Town Council elections which will take place next Sunday. Political placards are to be seen on every wall, one being quite original. On the top are the heads of an ox, a sheep and a donkey, the three symbols of stupidity to a German. Underneath we read the text: "There are human beings who vote for X. We vote for the Centre Party or the majority Socialists." It is quite evident who put up the placard.

A Deputy.

Who was the genius responsible for the notice at an Army Cinema the other evening announcing that "owing to a certain film being destroyed a "deputy" would be shown?

Their "Pinard."

There are a certain number of French messes in Rhineland, and they have the privilege of a daily ration of the wholesome, palatable red wine of Bordeaux to which the French troops during the war gave the nickname of "Pinard." Our Allies certainly score in this respect, for as a beverage it is superior to most of the Rhine and Moselle wines on sale, and is a free ration as well.

With the News "Red-hot."

The Cologne newsvendors' grouse this strike week has been "Empty are our stalls." But the "Cologne Post" with the latest news by special cable has always been there.

No More Advances.

On and after to-day Field Cashiers will cease to make advances of pay to officers, who will have to make their own arrangements for securing cash. This does not mean the passing of that estimable individual, the Field Cashier, for these establishments will continue to be used for the other branches of business associated with them. Many officers will regret the change.

A Dancing Craze.

Just now there is an acute dancing craze in and around Cologne and individuals who are able to command the use of a hall are making considerable revenue. As many as 33 dances were advertised in one edition of a district newspaper.

Try Your Football Skill.

To-day on page 3 will be found the names of the successful competitors in our Football Contest No. 1. The division of the prize money works out at 140 marks per man. Quite a nice return 140 to 1; and a far better investment than the Totalizator ever offered. We again publish the coupon for No. 2 contest. Fill it in and post to-day.

Overheard.

"Yes, I've seen a bit of war, old bean. I came over on November 10th last year."

"Oh, I was in France in 1916."

"Were you? There wasn't much of a war on then, was there?"

The Legal Mind.

Apropos the Echo dealing with family nominal rolls which appear on the back of entrance doors, there is at least one householder who has done the thing well. In addition to other particulars the date of birth of each inhabitant of the house is neatly typed on a sheet of foolscap. Incidentally the only alteration that has been made is in the case of a girl, her natal year being altered from 1835 to 1892. The householder is of the legal profession, a fact which no doubt accounts for the thoroughness with which he has complied with regulations.

Repatriation of Prisoners.

During 48 hours fifteen British prisoners' transports passed through Cologne with about 18,000 unwounded men. The last was the 63rd British transport. So far 86,000 unwounded and 16,000 wounded prisoners have been repatriated through Cologne. Only 70,000 Germans remain in Northern France.

A Strike Rumour.

In Cologne and its environs on Monday persistent rumour had it that the railway strike was settled. The explanation lies in the revival of an old war joke. A Tommy called across the street to a friend, "The strike's over in England." "Is it?" enquired another friend at his side. "Of course it is," was the reply, "it's all over England."

From Holland.

A tobacconist was telling me that as there is practically no native grown tobacco in Germany this year, most of the cigars sold in the shops are of Dutch origin.

Tommy's Spare Marks.

A correspondent asked why does not the Post Office let Tommy buy War Savings Certificates with German money? A member of the staff of the "Cologne Post" visited the Army Post Office yesterday in order to test the accuracy of our correspondent's statement. He tells me that the clerk was willing to take German currency in exchange for War Savings Certificates.

Not to be Done.

I hear of many cases where British officers are franking letters from civilians to go through the Army Post Office. It does not seem to be properly understood that this practice is irregular.

N.A.C.B. Accounts.

To meet the fluctuation in the mark and to maintain canteen prices at the lowest possible point, it will no longer be possible to give extended credit and at the same time accept marks at the rate current at the date of delivery several weeks afterwards. The Canteen Board are prepared to accept payment at the Army rate current at the date of delivery up to and including seven days after the date of delivery. Payment for credit accounts outstanding beyond this date can only be accepted at the Army rate of exchange on the date on which payment is made.

The Rising Tide.

As in England, the cost of labour and materials keeps mounting up in Germany, and these increases are affecting "The Cologne Post." The Editor, I hear, will have something to say to all our readers on the point very soon.

Nothing for Nothing.

The German nature as a whole, does not appear to be in the habit of recklessly giving much away and "nothing for nothing" seems to be their foremost motto. However this rule occasionally appears to be rather overdone. For example in the matter of shop sunblinds. These will always be lowered on sunny days in order to protect the goods in the window, but the first spot of rain will send the shop keeper out in a hurry to draw up the blinds, no doubt, in order to preserve them as long as possible.

Rhine Army Talent.

The "Bulletin" of the Central Y.M.C.A. offered a prize of 250 marks for the best short story. Mr. E. W. Hornung the famous author of "Raffles" was the judge and he has awarded the prize to Rifleman Leslie Harrison, attd 2nd Light Brigade H.Q. Rhine Army.

Rate of Exchange.

Yesterday we had a curious state of affairs in relation to the value of the mark. Once again the Field Cashier was paying a slightly higher rate than the banks; but a change can be expectedto-day.

R.O.D.

These letters at one time signified Railway Operating Division and were to be found on all locomotives of the British Army. At a recent examination they were found at the bottom of several papers and caused no little speculation as to their meaning. It was ultimately discovered however that the ever ingenious Tommy had given them a new meaning and to-day they signify "Roll on Demob."

A Grievance Ends.

I am informed that the limit on the sale of postal orders to any individual in any one day will now be raised to £1 if covered by a certificate of the O.C. Unit as to necessity for issue. Thus the grievance voiced by a correspondent recently is removed.

A Companion Still.

"The Rhineland soldiers' own paper seems to get brighter and better every day. I shall miss it terribly on demob" writes a gunner. But he need not be without it daily, for by subscribing at the rate of twelve marks a month it will reach him in Blighty just as regularly as in Cologne.

The Army Leads.

I see that a Committee is going to deliberate in England on the advisability or otherwise of adopting the eminently sensible 24 hours clock, which works so well in our Army. I expect it will result just as most of these Committees and Commissions do, in masterly inactivity, and those old stagers, "Ack Emma" and "Pip Emma" may look forward to a renewed lease of life in Blighty.

Illegal Sales.

The trafficking which has taken place in cigarettes is responsible for an order that not more than 20 cigarettes can be sold in any one day to any N.C.O. or man at any canteen, etc.

RHINELANDER.

WHAT TO SEE IN RHINELAND.

THE NATURAL HISTORY MUSEUM.

How many British soldiers, we wonder, have visited this museum, which is situated not far from the N.A.C.B. canteen by the river?

Both to the advanced naturalist and the beginner it is crammed with interesting objects, and any lover of animal life can profitably spend two or three hours in inspecting them.

The range covered is wide, and perfect specimens of a great number of creatures can be seen, from elephants and hippopotami to tropical reptiles and insects, some of the most interesting being the enormous fur-covered spiders of Central Africa.

Some very curious items are the remains of pre-historic animals, discovered during the process of excavations in Cologne.

A particularly striking object is the giant walrus in the entrance hall, one of the largest ever seen; while other Antarctic creatures form a good collection.

What, however, must compel the admiration are the magnificent tableaux or representations in which the various animals of the world are seen in their natural state. They include an elephant's combat with a tiger, wolves attacking a stag, a gazelle in the grip of a boa-constrictor, and scenes of life in the jungle, buffaloes in the plains, deer grazing and many similar scenes.

All these are arranged with the utmost care, and it is with difficulty one realizes that one is not transported to the wilds of Africa or to some wind-swept Transatlantic prairie.

Here, also, the bird-lover and egg-collector will be in his element, and will view with delight the enormous number of specimens, — all exhibited to the best advantage, — while any student of plants, fossils or metallurgy will find much to hold his attention.

Not the least interesting feature of this museum is the excellent system of magnifiers, by means of which many fine views of the world's wonders may be seen in a most clear and realistic manner. These include the ruins of Pompeii, Athens and ancient Rome and Egypt.

Every stone and carving can be seen as clearly as if one were but a few feet away. Besides these representations of the ancient world there are to be seen the Niagara Falls, Venice, St. Peter's, Rome, and views of some of the finest lake and mountain scenery in the world.

Admission is free, and an afternoon could scarcely be spent in a more pleasant way than paying this exhibition a visit.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY.

Why not grasp it and learn German?

Although it is generally admitted that the best way to learn a language is to go to the country where it is spoken, it is surprising how few British soldiers out here are making use of the opportunity to learn German.

They are making a great mistake, for it will never be so easy to learn as it is now while they are in this country.

German is by no means a difficult language to speak—the pronunciation being consistent and easily understood. There are fixed rules for the sounds of the vowels and these never change—there are no exceptions such as we have in England.

Of all languages, too, German is the one most like our own. There are many words that are the same in both languages and many more that are so similar that anyone can tell what they mean at sight. "Haus, Buch, Wein, Platz," are a few of them. There are also many verbs that are similar, very often through most of the tenses. Here are some of them, just the present and past tenses: To see, sehen, sah. To drink, trinken, trank. To give, geben, gab.

This similarity between the two languages is probably due to the fact that our ancestors, the Saxons, came from parts of Germany. This, of course, helps to make it easy for an Englishman to learn.

Perhaps the most difficult part of the German language is the declension of the adjectives, but here again there are only four as against the six we encountered at school when learning Latin! Once having mastered these endings of the adjectives, the task is half done.

It is not nearly such an idiomatic language as French, and the general construction of a sentence is very little different from our own. "Ist sie nicht oben?" (Is she not upstairs?) "Es ist nicht hier und nicht dort" (It is not here and not there) are a few examples which will show what I mean.

Anyone obtaining a knowledge of the German language would take a far greater interest in the surroundings and people on the Rhine, and would go back to his own country richer than he came out, having another language in his possession.

All this is within arm's length of every soldier out here, and it is his own fault if he does not grasp that which is his for the taking.

FIFTH DAY OF THE STRIKE.

UNION LEADERS TRAVEL IN TRAINS DRIVEN BY "BLACKLEGS."

MAIN LINE SIGNALS TAMPERED WITH.

CARRYING ON.

NO STARVING INTO SURRENDER.

The great railway strike has now lasted five days. The first full working day, affording a real test of its effect on the public, showed that the disorganization entailed was surprisingly less than the greatest optimist could have imagined. Everyone who tries to get to work gets there somehow, though perhaps a trifle late.

This result is achieved by the readiness with which everyone with a motor vehicle assists pedestrians, and the cheerfulness with which men on bus and tram services have undertaken the heavy work entailed by carrying additional passengers. The splendid autumn weather has done much to preserve the general good temper of the public. There is still practically a complete absence of all disorder or ill-feeling, public and strikers alike showing no disposition to be provocative. The wonderfully complete measures taken by the Government to ensure the supply of food and necessities and delivery of mails have pleased everyone and, assisted by a large army of volunteers, the Government are rapidly perfecting their organization. There has been as ready a response to the Government's call for help in this crisis as there was in August 1914.

There is a considerable body of railwaymen opposed to the strike and though the hold of their Union is strong these men are reporting for work in increasing numbers. Volunteers with engineering experience are also of utmost help. Indeed yesterday alone 30,000 persons volunteered for work on the railways. Milk trains, main line express and London suburban services are all being set going and London feels absolutely no shortage of even perishable foodstuffs.

Foodstuffs are substantial and distribution continues satisfactorily, says an official communiqué of Tuesday night. The public should understand, however, the necessities of the circumstances and are asked to exercise strict economy in the use of all foodstuffs, particularly milk, in order that children may not suffer. The most rigorous economy in the use of petrol and coal should be practised in the interest of the whole community.

Diversity of Opinion.

In a leading article on Tuesday the Times reviews the situation and comes to the conclusion that the outlook is more promising than might be expected. Conditions cannot be described in any way as intolerable, yet some improvements might have been suggested in the preparations made by the Government, which on the whole were admirable. More use, it considers, might have been made of the Thames, for instance. The same paper disapproves strongly of the Jockey Club's decision to proceed with the first race meeting at Newmarket. Saying that there is no reason why it should be held and every reason why it should have been abandoned, it describes the decision as unpardonable and unpatriotic.

The strikers have lost their cause already, says the "Morning Post," which adds, their leaders are not only false but incompetent.

The "Daily Telegraph" praises the Government for having effected organisation more than was expected under the test, but says "we are well aware that the strike is only in its infancy and the time for optimism is not yet come. It cannot yet be said what extensions of the strike may not take place."

Still continuing to concentrate its eloquence on the necessity of finding a bridge towards a settlement, the "Daily News" thinks that the tram and busmen are eager to come out.

Will the Strike spread?

So far the strike has not spread to any other industry. Mr. J.H. Thomas, the Railwaymen's leader, who was credited with the desire to prevent sympathetic strikes, now says he will not refuse such offers of help. The Railway Union is a member of the "Triple Alliance," which includes also the Transport Workers and Miners' Unions and it is always possible that these organisations will come to the assistance of the railwaymen.

Mr. Smillie, the miners' leader, has expressed a hope that his union will not be implicated. The general impression is that the strike, so sudden and inopportune, threatened to have ill effects on the community which far outshadow the debatable questions at issue and that the Government has not been unreasonable in the definite stand it has taken against the Railwaymen's officials. Unquestionably the Government has the country behind it and therefore the issue of the dispute cannot seriously be doubted.

The President of the Busmen's Organisation, after the Executive Council had sat for fourteen and a half consecutive hours, declared last night that they were waiting until the National Transport Workers had had an opportunity of conferring with the Executive of the National Railwaymen's Union.

It is stated authoritatively that if the bus and tram employers decide to strike the vehicles will be commandeered and run by volunteer labour, offers of which are quite sufficient for the purpose. Responses to the Government's appeal for volunteers continue unabated and indeed surpass all expectations. Members of the Cavalry Club and the Royal Air Force Club, colonels, majors, barristers, accountants, consulting electrical, mechanical and civil engineers are among those doing the work of stokers in underground power houses, undertaking traffic duties, working lifts, etc. etc.

The further appeal issued for economy in petrol, large quantities of which are necessary for the rapid delivery of food, say: "In this sense petrol is food. Unless voluntary economy is ruthlessly practised the use of private cars will be prohibited."

Traffic Improving

Both in London and the Provinces the traffic problem is distinctly easier. Whereas upwards of one hundred trains were run on various lines throughout the country on Monday, that number has now been considerably exceeded. On the Great Western Railway no fewer than 200 trains are stated to be running.

There is little doubt that in the next twenty-four hours a fairly good "skeleton" service will be established between London and provincial towns. In London the Metropolitan Railway has been able to maintain partial service on its lines in North London, while other underground railways expect to open a partial service, mainly with volunteers. Some railway companies report that a few strikers are returning to work.

Union Official denounces strike.

Interviewed by a Daily Chronicle representative, Mr. Appleton, Secretary of the General Federation of Trade Unions, made several remarkable statements. He said that had the Railwaymen been balloted there would have been no strike! He pointed out that every day the strike lasts adds a definite percentage to the cost of food and any hopes of cheaper food within the next twelve months are out of the question. For himself, he had always been against political strikes, but insisted on the men's right to strike against bad wages or oppressive conditions. At the beginning of the war, he said, when the Government began to interfere in industry, he warned the public of what was likely to happen, pointing out that the animus hitherto directed against Capital would now be directed against the Government. In the present case the Railwaymen were demanding to be masters and claimed the right to determine the fate, not only of the Government, but of the whole community. His great fear was that the Government must ultimately take steps to stop strikes altogether if this sort of thing continued, and because he did not want any interference with the right to strike he was anxious to avoid unnecessary strikes.

Aerial Mail Service.

The Postmaster General announces that by agreement with the Air Ministry, aeroplane services for the conveyance of letters only have been arranged between London and Birmingham, Bristol, Newcastle, Manchester and Glasgow. Letters must be prepaid with two shillings extra in stamps. The service is experimental and subject to modifications, but it is hoped to extend it to other towns.

Diabolic Sabotage.

An official communiqué issued from Downing-street says that some minor acts of sabotage are reported.

In one case red danger lights of certain signals were altered to green during the night, but fortunately no loss of life resulted. The communiqué calls attention to the admirable spirit and efficient work of the volunteers. Offers of service have been over whelming. Those already received are being collated as rapidly as possible and calls for service will be issued in increasing numbers from day to day.

This is really Serious.

Owing to the impossibility of procuring casks brewing is suspended at Burton and Edinburgh.

The effect of the strike in the provinces is extremely bad. Many thousands of workers are thrown out of employment at mines, engineering works and other big centres of industry. Collieries in South Wales, Yorkshire and other districts are rapidly closing down, shipping is held up and complete industrial paralysis is threatened.

Inducements to Work.

The Government desires to make it clear that Railwaymen who remain at work or who return to work at once will be afforded every protection and their interests will be safeguarded.

At North Leith station on the Caledonian Railway the goods manager has posted a notice offering men who start work now twenty-five per cent. over their present wage while the strike lasts and precedence over other men for promotion in the future. He promises also protection while at work or at home.

KING'S MEDALLION.

VAUXHALL MOTORS SPLENDID EXAMPLE.

Satisfactory progress is reported in the administration of the National scheme for employment of disabled men. The number of undertakings received from firms in London and the South-Eastern Division to Monday last was 961.

A statement has been submitted to the Ministry of Labour from the Vauxhall Motor Company at Luton giving particulars of the number of disabled men already employed there. It proves that the problem of employing disabled men in the engineering trade is not insolvable. Out of a total of 1,193 people employed in the Company's works 149 are disabled, of whom three have lost an arm and four a leg.

FOOTSORE BUT HAPPY.

LABOUR MINISTER'S KINDNESS.

The Ministry of Labour states that the deputation of ex-service men who marched from Manchester to London left for home on Tuesday. Sir Robert Horne, realising when he received the men that they were footsore and weary, endeavoured to arrange for a conveyance and succeeded in obtaining a large motor charabanc which had come from Lancashire with supplies. The men set out about noon from Montague House. Before leaving they expressed their appreciation of the Ministers thoughtfulness and consideration.

BRITISH MISSION'S DANGER.

Reuter learns that according to the latest telegrams the members of the British Mission to Yemen, under Colonel Jacoby, which was stopped and captured by Zunra tribes, who objected to the Mission going to Sinai, were well as late as the 19th September.

They had been threatened with death and it is impossible to say when they are likely to be released as the tribes are unanimous as to the terms. The Iman of Yemen has warned the tribesmen of their responsibility.

(Yemen is the Southern strip of Arabia bordering the Eastern side of the Red Sea.)

PRINCE TURNS EASTWARD.

The Westward journey of the Prince of Wales is over and his homeward journey has begun. At New Westminster, British Columbia, where he opened an exhibition, planted trees, and presented war decorations, he received a wonderful welcome in which Japanese residents participated. Subsequently the Prince began his return journey through Canada via the Southern Canadian Pacific Railway. Crowds waited for hours to cheer him at every station.

Supply of Food.

Food distribution reports are most satisfactory and showed a very great improvement over Monday. From Hyde Park depot forty per cent. of London's normal milk supply of 215,000 gallons was distributed.

The Ministry of Food announces that the stocks of bread and flour are good. Reserves of flour sufficient for two or three weeks are in hand. Meat arrangements are working well and bacon is plentiful. The distribution of milk in large centres is going very well. Supplies of margarine are good and arrangements have been made for the distribution of an advance supply of butter and cheese throughout the country.

Adding to the Cost.

An important issue arises in connection with the enforced idleness of the miners who thereby become entitled to a war wage of three shillings per day during the idleness caused by circumstances over which they have no control. In South Wales alone there are 200,000 men and boys who will be claiming either war wage or out-of-work pay. The cost for South Wales alone will be £200,000 weekly.

Varieties of blacklegs.

A very humorous position arose yesterday in connection with the fateful meeting of the Transport Workers Federation.

Mr. James Sexton, M.P. and two high officials of the Federation were compelled to travel from Liverpool to London by train in order to attend. They seemed rather guilty about doing so and apologetically explained to the meeting that they had no option but to make use of services of "blacklegs", as the strikers in cutting communications for the public had also cut off their own delegates.

Lorries from France.

Slough Depot has already sent out six hundred motor lorries for service in connection with the strike. The head of the depot hopes to deliver from 100 to 150 daily together with repair shops for keeping the vehicles in good order.

The War Office has also been bringing motor transport from France to Richboro by the train-ferry. These lorries are first sent to Slough for overhaul. The Government's ability to deal with the situation by road transport thus increases daily.

War Time Restrictions.

General Booth is urging the Government to close all public houses in the larger towns for the duration of the strike. He declares there are already indications of increased drinking. Dr. Guttery, President of the Free Church Council urges the restoration of war time restrictions or preferably absolute prohibition during the crisis.

TOLD IN COURT.

MORE CIGARETTES AND TWO UNDESIRABLES.

Anne Burgherhausen, of 40 Buttermarkt, arrived in Court weeping copiously and departed with her face wreathed in smiles. Anne was found in possession of 2,930 English cigarettes but she protested with tears in her eyes that they had been left in her charge by a Fräulein. Her story was believed and she was given the benefit of the doubt. Bobbing in acknowledgment, she smiled broadly and retired.

Crossing the Border.

When Solomon Barren, an Austrian, and Ben Westnovote, a Russian, attempted to cross the Belgian frontier without permits the Belgian authorities hustled them quickly back again. Barren stated that he kept a barber's shop in London for a number of years. Westnovote claimed to have served in the Russian Army and stated that he had four cousins and two brothers-in-law serving in the British Army.

Both pleaded hard to be allowed to remain in Cologne, urging that their knowledge of English would enable them to make a good living.

Back they must go, however, to unoccupied territory.

CAIRO PLANE CRASH.

PILOT BURNT TO DEATH.

A British aeroplane, en route from Cairo to London, which landed at an aerodrome near Bracciano (Italy) on the 28th September, struck a tree when taking off to resume its journey and crashed. It at once took fire, the pilot, Captain C.H. Darley, being burned to death. His brother Charles was severely injured but is doing well.

PENNANT INQUIRY.

The remainder of the statements in connection with the inquiry by the House of Lords Committee into the dismissal of Miss Violet Douglas Pennant from her post in the W.R.A.F. have been lodged with the secretary, This completes the preliminary steps before the public hearing, which will commence on October 14th. Several eminent counsel have been briefed and the proceedings will open with the presentation of Miss Pennant's point of view.

AMERICAN STEEL STRIKE.

The second week of the Steel strike in America has opened and both sides are still confident of the outcome. At the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's works 40,000 men struck work yesterday but a number of mills have reopened at Pittsburgh and elsewhere.

NOW LET US BE FRIENDS.

The Austrian Chancellor of State, interviewed in Vienna by Reuter's correspondent, suggested the employment of intelligent Austrians in British Colonies, asserting that they are specially adapted for colonization work. He is also anxious that British and Austrians should visit each other's countries as much as possible.

STRIKE AFFECTS REPATRIATION.

The British Naval Commandant at Hamburg has asked the authorities to postpone the departure of the steamers told off to bring German prisoners of war from England. Two steamers which had already left Hamburg were stopped at Cuxhaven.

CANADIAN AWARDS TO BRITISH CREW.

Awards have been made by the Canadian Government to members of the steamship British Empress, of London, in recognition of their services in rescuing the crew of the schooner Mildred, of Sydney, N.S., in the North Atlantic Ocean, on November 30, 1918.

FRENCH NEMESIS.

The Gazette des Ardennes, a German propaganda newspaper issued at Charleville during the war, was produced partly by Frenchmen. These are now being tried for that offence.

STEAMER SAILINGS CANCELLED.

The sailing of ten cargo vessels scheduled to leave New York yesterday for British Ports, has been cancelled owing to the British railway strike.

ONE STRIKE OVER.

The Scottish shale oil dispute has been settled, the workers accepting the terms offered by the employers, which they had twice previously rejected.

President Wilson's condition shows a slight improvement.

It is announced from Paris that the Jugo-Slavs will sign the Austrian Peace Treaty.

Field Marshal Sir Henry Rawlinson has been appointed Aide-de-camp in General to the King.

STRIKELETS.

ODDS AND ENDS OF THE SITUATION.

Official schedules issued by all railways show that over six hundred trains were running yesterday.

The Food-Controller has prohibited the sale of light or fancy pastries from Saturday next.

It is announced that the new schedule of meat prices shows a general all-round increase of 2½d per pound.

Earl Beatty, speaking at Kirkcaldy said he noticed that the Railwaymen's leaders congratulated the men on their loyalty to the Union, but it seemed to him that loyalty required a much broader interpretation.

The Central London Tube expects to reopen to-morrow and other tube railways shortly.

Railway horses, and live stock in transit, callously abandoned by the strikers, are now being cared for.

The National Union of Vehicle Workers has instructed its members not to touch any railway work whatever, including food supplies.

The immense demand for bicycles has caused some shops to raise the prices.

In view of the coal shortage in Ireland and the necessity for conserving coal for transport of foodstuffs an order has been issued suspending this year's racing fixtures in Ireland.

At two of the three main passenger stations at Liverpool a number of strikers evaded the pickets and resumed work.

As showing the manner in which the strike is monopolising the papers the "Star" published on Tuesday about half a column of miscellaneous items headed "Not about the strike."

A volunteer guard in charge of Tuesday's boat train kept it back for ten minutes at Charing Cross station to enable half a dozen soldiers returning to France to indulge in a final drink.

The demeanour of the public continues to be one of imperturbable good humour. Fortunately the weather so far has been gloriously fine, thus greatly reducing hardships.

Many of the large hotels are now displaying notices to guests returning to distant provincial towns by automobile stating that so many seats are available, the prices varying from five to ten pounds per head for, say, Edinburgh or Glasgow. The charge to other places is usually a shilling per mile, with a minimum payment of three or four pounds.

LUXEMBOURG'S CHOICE.

ECONOMIC UNION WITH FRANCE.

Under the Peace Treaty, it was left to Luxembourg to decide its future allegiance. The result of the plebiscite shows a large majority in favour of economic union with France and otherwise to retain independence under the Grand Duchess Charlotte.

MARRIED IN INFANCY.

Containing statistics relating to British India from 1907 to 1917 a blue book reveals the fact that infant marriage is still a flourishing institution. When the census was last taken in 1911 there were 151,518 "married men" under five years of age. There were 302,425 "married women," 6,668 widowers and 17,703 widows of the same tender age. Of Benedicts between the ages of five and ten there were nearly a million. The wives over five and under ten number well over two millions.

PITY THE POOR TAXPAYER.

The total revenue from taxes for the year ended March was £786,803,000; the non-tax revenue was £104,950,500.

Over £27,000,000 was received in Customs duty on sugar and £2,154,000 came from the import tax on petrol. The Secret Service cost £1,141,000 and the nation's stationery and printing £1,406,500. Old age pensions took up £11,792,000 and the Board of Education £19,278,500.

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN REVIVAL.

The opening of the Gilbert and Sullivan season last night at the Prince's Theatre with "The Gondoliers" was a brilliant success. The artists had travelled from Bristol to London by aeroplane or motor.

Notwithstanding the strike, business is proceeding much as usual in all the London theatres.

D'ANNUNZIO'S COMIC KINGDOM.

A telegram from Fiume states that Gabriele D'Annunzio has ordered the severance of telegraphic communications with Agram saying that he is warring against Jugo-Slavia.

NAVAL ECONOMY.

1,500 employees in the dockyard at Devonport have received a fortnight's notice.

The Admiralty have also decided to close the boys' training ship Impregnable at Devonport, in view of the intention, on the ground of economy, to reduce considerably the number of boys to be retained for the Navy.

It is announced by the Postmaster General that no further mails will be despatched to troops in North Russia.

Thursday, October 2, 1919.

TO READERS ALL.

We have two things we wish to tell our many thousands of readers on the Rhine and elsewhere.

The first is to let them into the secret that for a week or two past "The Cologne Post" has been severely handicapped by difficulties that arose over the supply of news by cable from London.

The result was, that for some little time we were unable to achieve what had always been our privilege before—the earliest dissemination of the world's news in the Area of Occupation. Many of our items of intelligence had perforce to be given secondhand, much to our chagrin.

But now a change has occurred. We are glad to say that all difficulties concerning the use of the cable have been swept away. Happily this took place on the eve of the Great Strike in England with the result that we were the first to give the vastly important news of the outbreak and all the details of the momentous industrial struggle to the troops in Rhineland.

Day by day since the menace began we have been able to continue this service and our circulation has shewn a marked upward tendency in consequence.

We hope that henceforward we shall continue to be the pioneer in bringing news red-hot over the wire, news good and news bad if necessary, to the Army watching on the Rhine.

* * *

The next thing we have to say may not come exactly as a surprise to our readers. The cost of everything all over the world as a result of the aftermath of war is mounting up.

Labour in Germany as well as in our own and other countries is demanding, mainly because of the increased cost of living, a higher wage.

The price of material shows no sign of falling—on the contrary it is soaring to greater heights.

Our bill for setting up the paper in type, for machining and for clerical work has jumped up considerably of late.

We are on the eve of a further rise in the cost of production including a far heavier paper bill.

"The Cologne Post" does not by virtue of its mission as the soldier's own paper attempt to be a money-making concern. It has no desire to earn dividends. It is content if in its role of daily journal for the Rhine Army it pays its way.

To enable it to do this, it becomes necessary therefore to raise slightly its price. The increase which is essential, and cannot be avoided, is one of merely ten pfennigs a copy. From Saturday next it will be sold at 35 pfennigs instead of twenty-five.

But when the present extremely low value of German currency is considered, this sum is really a bagatelle. What is 35 pfennigs after all? "The Cologne Post" will still be one of the cheapest articles obtainable in Rhineland and we do not anticipate that we shall have one supporter the less, because everyone must realise that present conditions make the trifling extra outlay imperative.

A PRETTY TANGLE.

It was on the first day of his leave that he met her. In a bus. Not the girl's distress, but his own, had occasioned the introduction. Buckshee travelling on the Rhine had played havoc with his memory so far as travelling in Blighty was concerned.

Hence came it that he had boarded the vehicle at Victoria without giving a thought to the question of payment for his waftage. Only when challenged by the conductor did he remember that all the English money he had on him was two Bradbury's.

Explaining the position, he was on the point of leaving the bus when he became aware of the intervention of a third party.

At first, he was conscious of a feminine voice, of unusual sweetness, and did not, immediately, appreciate the purport of the girl's remarks.

Soon, however, he gathered that she was anxious to help him out of his dilemma by settling with the conductor on his behalf.

The polite refusal his lips were starting to form died as he gazed on the girl who, reversing the usual order of things, had come to the rescue of the male in distress.

She was neither very youthful (probably nearer 30 than 25) nor ravishingly pretty. No illustrated daily would have admitted her photograph to its Beauty Gallery.

Yet she was not devoid of attraction, and if eyes are the windows of the soul, and the tone of the human voice affords any indication of the human character, it was not surprising that he accepted the girl's offer.

Anyway, Jim (you may as well know his name now as later) was attached to no woman, if one excepts a pre-war attachment to his landlady and that only for rations and shelter — Jim, I say, took the fullest advantage, within the limits of his retiring disposition, of the situation.

The friendship between him and the girl ripened, watered as it was by dances, concerts, theatres, tramps abroad, mutual confidences — with (to vary the metaphor) chocolates to cement the structure.

Not that the structure was cemented. Ten days could scarcely suffice for a much bolder lover than Jim to convert a friendship into an engagement.

Thus it happened that when his last day of leave arrived he had progressed in his suit only to the extent that the girl had signified her willingness to receive letters from him without making a reciprocal promise to respond.

In the result, she did respond — to the tune of some 120 letters in four months. You, bold reader and I, without wider experience of the miscalled "baffling" sex, would have regarded this fact as justifying steps to clinch matters.

Not so Jim, who lacked both our assurance and our knowledge of femininity. Nevertheless, as his turn for another leave approached, he realized the urgency of the necessity for ascertaining the exact nature of the girl's feelings towards him.

Useless to wait till he was home, as he was certain to bungle matters if he attempted a verbal proposal.

A passion which lies too deep for words was best expressed, he reflected, in the absence of the cause of it. In desperation he commenced to write the letter, on the answer to which so much depended.

At the end of an hour a half-filled waste-paper basket testified to the failure of his first attempt at a proposal in writing. His first letter, of which he was rather proud at the time of writing, read through when the heat of composition had cooled, struck him as deplorably sloppy and noveletty.

He tried again — and the result was as prosaic as a tailor's circular soliciting custom.

He even attempted the humourous vein — and the proposal read like a piece of cruel satire. He was on the point of despair when his glance fell on two notices in "The Cologne Post" which had been functioning as a pad to his notepaper.

The first notice read:

"The Old Folks at Home" read the Cologne Post. Send it daily to yours.

The second, in close juxtaposition to the first, ran:

"Sweethearts read the Cologne Post. Send it daily to yours."

In this last notice, it seemed to him, might be found a way out of his difficulty. He would encircle the notice in blue, adding after the word "yours" "Shall I?" and despatch it to the object of his bashful affections.

Unfortunately, writing under the stress of excitement his enquiry was written mid-way between the two notices. To make matters worse, after despatching his "proposal", he received from the girl one of those letters which make men contemplate retirement to a monastery. It was a "catty" letter such as the best girls write at times.

The result is that a really nice girl is now wondering (1) whether Jim meant to send "The Cologne Post" to his parents and addressed it to her in error; (2) If so, whether his parents are now reading a letter intended for herself and no less wrongly addressed; (3) if neither of these theories is correct, did Jim mean to propose to her through the "Post", or (4) had her "catty" letter provoked him into a cruel reference to her age, through the agency of the notice about "The Old Folks at Home."

Meanwhile, Jim goes on Leave to-morrow, anxious and surprised at having received no answer to his novel proposal. He should have an exciting time.

E. J. TELLUM.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views on Many Topics.

ARE WOMEN CARELESS?

Sir,—If "Officer's wife" was able to produce her permit for the benefit of the D.A.P.M. then she is to be congratulated.

Few will envy the D.A.P.M. his job, yet how necessary it is judging by the duplication of brassards which has taken place.

I cannot imagine from my own experience that the white pass will be readily available. In all probability it will repose within the pages of the latest book playing the role of a marker. As an alternative it will be stored away with a bundle of correspondence, hidden under the writing pad, left in the pockets of another costume or boat or repose in a bag which is not being carried at that particular moment.

Fearing the inevitable I have emphasised the necessity of having the pass on hand until I am tired, and if the D.A.P.M. in the performance of his duty puts his powers into operation then I for one shall not be surprised.

MARRIED MAN.

BUSINESS NOW.

Sir,—I think "Cheery" misses the point of W.W.R's letter. No serving soldier can offer the slightest objection to the presence of ex-soldier on the Rhine with the desire to trade, but what he to my mind takes exception to is the number of individuals of varied nationality, the riff-raff of the business world judging by their general conduct in hotel smoking rooms, who have come in droves to Cologne.

The majority, but for the opportunity presented by the plight of Germany, would be playing a very insignificant part in commercial life and to any intelligent observer are not to be confused with the commercial man proper as we understood him.

CHEERIO.

CLOSING THE CLUB.

Sir,—I hope any attempt to close the "Earwig Lamp" will be resisted by officers. Cologne without the old club would be impossible.

To many of us who have been in Rhineland since the beginning of the year the call of the club is persistent and to hand it over to the Germans would be something in the nature of a calamity. No, the doors of the club must remain open so long as there are officers in Cologne, and I hope they will make their wish known through your columns or one morning we shall find the doors closed.

LOUNGE.

GERMANS AT ARMY THEATRES.

Sir,—In reply to H.A.C.'s letter, may I add a correction. Tommy has at no time been precluded from the Deutsches Theater by the precence of numbers of German civilians.

On no occasion since the signing of peace have more than at most half a dozen Germans been sprinkled throughout the theatre. The management have no intention of taking steps to keep out such few Germans interested in the productions of the R.A.D.C.

On the contrary they consider it as on the whole a good thing, that Germans should learn that the English stage is not entirely concerned with musical comedy and revue, a belief largely, and with some reason, held in Germany before and during the war.

Nor are they alarmed by your correspondent's dark hint that the intruders are there in order to snatch some small commercial advantage from a defenceless

TOMMY COOLHEAD.

LEATHERED TUNICS.

Sir,—I don't agree with "Jacko" one little bit. Why, if I wanted to make friends with an officer, I should always give the preference to one with leather patches on his tunic.

They seem to be marks of honour, something akin to scars of battle. They show he is no armchair soldier and has had to rough it in the real struggle.

I expect Jacko is one of those Base wallahs now up on the Rhine who is too immaculate in his attire for words. That isn't my ideal of a soldier.

A CLUB WORKER.

TEACHING BRITISH CHILDREN.

Sir,—The appeal of "A Mother" addressed to Y.M.C.A. does not fall on deaf ears. Some of us had already been thinking over the complex problem of the British children who are to be seen in Cologne.

Their stay here must be to them "a savour of life unto life or of death unto death" according to the eternal law.

I have already met one or two who are coming too much under the influence of German children and their parents in the houses in which they are billeted and even on the streets; and most of them are without opportunities for either proper work or proper play.

It requires little imagination to realize how fruitful of good in a thousand ways their visit to this foreign town during the plastic period of their lives might become; and the difficulties of protecting them from the harmful, and bringing them under the helpful influences can, and must be, overcome.

I am a man under authority; but I am sure that Mr. Walter Ashley, who is in supreme command of the Y.M.C.A. forces in the occupied area, will be sympathetic to, and helpful of, any well considered scheme for the soldier's bairns. And, as always, we can rely upon the sanction and powerful aid of the Army authorities in any matter that touches the welfare of the troops and their dependents.

I hope to be in a position to make a further communication upon this most important matter in a few days.

ALEX FRANCIS, Cologne Central Y.M.C.A.

PROFITEERING.

Sir,—The Profiteering Commission might well extend its field of activities to Cologne, amongst the various canteens. Apart from the question of raising the price of goods in anticipation of a fluctuation in the value of the mark, as was recently done in one of the largest of Tommy's clubs in Cologne, there is no reason why the German shopkeeper should be able to sell English-bought goods cheaper than the soldiers' own canteens.

Instances might be quoted, but every Tommy is acquainted with them, though beyond an occasional grouse or two nothing is done.

LESIL.

REFRESHING ENGLISH TEA.

Sir,—It strikes me from the tone of many letters you receive that if anyone on the Rhine is not living like a prize fighting cock he rushes into print with a grumble.

I must say a word in defence of the tea served in the Officer's Club. It may not always be of the same high standard, but I have never known it to be anything but good—at least good enough for the average individual.

Of course it is Army ration tea and that may not appeal to fastidious epicures, but these people should patronise other resorts than the average Officer's Club.

Really, I sometimes feel it would be a good thing for some of these "grousers" if the war started again and they would then have something more to occupy their minds than sipping tea to the strains of an orchestra and afterwards grumbling about its quality.

H.E.L.

WHEN THE OPERA ENDS.

Sir,—I would suggest that in addition to giving each day in the "Post" the hour at which performances of the Opera starts you should also state at what time approximately they finish.

This would be a great convenience to many and I think the point is worth considering, if practicable.

OPERA-GOER.

(We are adopting our correspondent's excellent suggestion.—Ed.)

WAR MEDALS FOR ALL.

Sir,—Since replying to "Pleased" my attention has been drawn to the letter from T.W.P. His question as to where I spent my time during the war forms the crux of the whole matter. It is just because of where I spent my time and what I saw which led to my protest against wholesale distribution of honours.

Assuming he was a fighting soldier he will know that the bulk of the Y.M.C.A. work was done in back areas. That being the case such workers should not become entitled to the 1914-15 Star.

The fact that thousands who are wearing the riband experienced air-raids solely is not my fault. My idea is to preserve at least two distinctions for the others.

"Rene's" letter to my mind disposes of the arguments put forward by "T.W.P.

AMAZED.

Sir,—I suggest to "Pleased" that if he has knowledge of any soldier who only came overseas just prior to the armistice and who wears the ribbon of the 1914-15 Star, that he immediately places him under arrest, the reason being obvious.

PRICES FOR SOLDIERS.

Sir,—With the historic example of the nine-penny rabbit still present in our memories, those of us who need such essential articles as alarm clocks and furriers knives cannot offer "Fairplay" any support.

The authorities have, by establishing the N.A.C.B. and the Ordnance Stores, seen to it that the necessities of Life on the Rhine are provided for.

People, then, who of their own free will go to German shops and contribute indirectly to the revenue of the German State can hardly be justified in calling upon the authorities for help if they find themselves less astute than the wily shopkeepers.

LAISSEZ-FAIRE.

TOMMY'S SPARE MARKS.

Sir,—With reference to the letter headed "Tommy's Spare Marks" I wish to draw the attention of the writer to G.R.O. 3428, extract of which is quoted herewith: "Pending further instructions, individual officers may only purchase War Savings Certificates at Army or Field Post Offices in the Rhine Army by cheque or cash in British currency. Other ranks may not purchase more than twelve £1 certificates (or one £12 multiple certificate) in any one week, unless the certificates are paid for in British currency or by means of a cheque drawn in British currency." All ranks can purchase certificates up to the value of £12 in German currency in any one week through a War Savings Association.

PRONOUNCING GERMAN.

Sir,—I agree with your correspondent "H. T.", that "your suggestions from time to time re study of the German language and its pronunciation would appear to be necessary," and I would recommend him to make full use of them.

Either his knowledge of the German language is very limited, or his dictionary very unreliable. "Rauchen Sie" means "Do you smoke?" The enquiry, being addressed to a personal friend, the familiar form "Du" might have been used, in place of "Sie," and the verb conjugated accordingly. ("Du" is of course the German equivalent of the old English "Thou"—now fallen into disuse). Otherwise, the British officer's question was perfectly correct.

The waiter's smile might have meant anything—he was probably expecting a tip, and wished to appear affable.

SUBSTANTIVE GUNNER.

THE LAND O' THE LEAL.

I'm wearin' awa', John,
Like snow-wreaths in thaw, John,
I'm wearin' awa'
To the land o' the leal,
There's nae sorrow there, John,
There's neither cauld nor care, John,
The day is aye fair
In the land o' the leal.

O, haud ye leal and true, John!
Your day it's wearin' through, John,
And I'll welcome you
To the land o' the leal.
Now fare-ye-weel my ain John,
This warld's cares are vain, John,
We'll meet, and we'll be fain,
In the land o' the leal.

"The Jesters."

From Solingen comes the message, "If you want to see a party embracing all the qualities that go to make a variety show all it ought to be, go to see 'The Jesters' at the first opportunity." I have seen them, and I agree as to the ability of these merry entertainers. By the way, at the Palace Theatre, Cologne, last week, "The Jesters" played to record houses since the theatre was taken over by the military authorities.

Friday at the Palace.

To-morrow there is to be a bumper gala-performance at the Palace Theatre, Herzogstrasse, commencing at 6.30 p.m. It is a special occasion set apart as a benefit night to the "Tabs" (G.H.Q. Concert Party) all the people connected with Army Theatres and Cinemas, and in fact all the other ranks on the amusements staff. Naturally seats will be at a premium because all the stars will be there.

Some of the Stars.

I am informed that among the artistes that will certainly appear are Geo Huntley, Bert Rex, Geo Baines, Joe Morgan, and Alfred Barker (the violinist) of the "Tabs." "Erb" (Fred Weedon) of "The Pedlars," and Billy Matchett of "The Jocks" will come up from Bonn and Antwerp respectively. The "Jesters" are also to appear; in fact there will be a galaxy of talent from everywhere. Undoubtedly it will be the biggest show ever presented in Rhineland. So take my advice—book right away!

British Empire Leave Club.

The "Fragments" concert party gave a most varied and cheery show at the Leave Club on Tuesday night. It was their first performance at the B.E.L.C., and unfortunately their last in Rhineland, as they are all being demobilized. The entertainment began with an Overture ably played by the pianist and his two fiddlers; then C. Cavanagh and Syd Grossley gave some of the funniest impressions we have seen for a long time. "Dear Little Shamrock" was a delightful item on the programme and "The Henry Ford" and "Get Well" by the company provoked roars of laughter from the very large audience.

One of the "Tabs" Concert Party.

Rob Norrie, one of the oldest and most versatile of the "Tabs" concert party (you see him here) is shortly to be demobbed. Before the war he was an entertainer and toured extensively with the "Zeniths," the "Nobodies," etc. Norrie joined the original "Tabs" in 1918. Scoring an initial success in Cologne as Mephistopheles in the Deutches Theatre panto, he has gained even greater glory in the recent revues, "Get Busy" and "Well I'm!—!!" at the Apollo and Palace theatres.

"Hindle Wakes" Author.

"Hindle Wakes" which is being produced at the Deutsches Theatre, Cologne, this week, was written by the late Stanley Houghton, one of the most brilliant members of the "Manchester Guardian" staff, and a gifted raconteur. One of his favourite stories was that of the editor of an obscure Irish weekly who went on a holiday to Paris. On his return, he entertained a number of his confrères with an account of his travels, and after extolling the merits of the French people wound up with "And sure, they are years ahead of us in the way of education. Why the very children in the streets can speak French!"

In Cologne.

Miss Boulnois, who has done good work in the entertainment of soldiers, has arrived in Cologne from Coblenz and is at present the guest of the Y.M.C.A. where she will continue her talks on soldiers and incidentally have some amusing stories to tell. Miss Boulnois has had considerable experience of work amongst soldiers in the devastated area. On Tuesday evening she was at the Church Army Club, on Wednesday at Ehrenfeld, to-night she is at Overath, and to-morrow at Loreley Hall, Central Y.M.C.A., while on Saturday she visits No. 3 General Hospital, Leichlingen and Durham House.

Dramatic Company's Future.

On Monday next, in accordance with their programme of revivals, the B.R.A.D.C. will give the "Importance of being Earnest", a trivial comedy in three acts by Oscar Wilde. On Tuesday "Strife" will be produced. Owing to the big caste, it is unlikely that "Strife" will be given for more than five performances and possibly one matinee. Patrons of the B.R.A.D.C. are advised therefore to book their seats early. On Monday, October 13th, "The Younger Generation" is to be revived and on Tuesday "You never can Tell," by Bernard Shaw, will be produced.

Miss Bensusan's Versatility.

Later on the B.R.A.D.C. hope to produce the "Singer of the Veldt," a three act play by Miss Inez Bensusan. I feel sure that the patrons of the B.R.A.D.C. who have had the opportunity of enjoying Miss Bensusan's versatile talent in parts ranging from charwomen to duchesses, will appreciate the opportunity of applauding her as a playwrite. Circumstances permitting, Sheridan's immortal comedy "The School for Scandal" will be produced early in November.

"The Crumps" Again.

I was privileged to attend the latest rehearsal of the "Crumps" Concert Party the other day. The combination was scarcely recognisable, so changed is the show. In common with the majority of Army concert parties, that of the London Division has suffered severely at the hands of "Dame Demob." Among the absentees that were most conspicuous were W. H. Coole, the principal comedian, Tom Walsh, baritone, Freddy Fryle elocutionist, and Phileox, the able flautist of the orchestra, all of whom added in no small measure to the success of the party's previous performances. Lieut. "Jackie" Knight has, however, successfully reorganised the party so that its members present every promise of being capable of submitting a first rate entertainment. The first concert of the reorganised party will be at the British Empire Leave Club, Cologne, on Tuesday next.

Successful Experiment.

I confess that when I saw it announced that the weekly staff concert of the Central Y.M.C.A. had been transferred from the Loreley to the Great hall, I was apprehensive lest the audience should not be as large, or as interested, as is usual when entertainments classified as "popular" are advertised. The experiment, however, was fully justified, for more than 1,500 men flocked to the hall, and they were held to the end of the concert in delighted appreciation, to which they gave expression by repeated encores. This is a testimony both to the performers and to the audience, for all the pieces rendered were of the kind not generally supposed to make a popular appeal.

Appreciation of Classical.

It becomes increasingly evident that the musical culture of the British Army is greater than we had dared to believe, and that a severely classical programme, well executed, may be more appreciated by the Army than the kind of music that is often provided in response to what has been thought to be the popular demand. The Y.M.C.A. staff was efficiently assisted by Major Bowen and a quartette of O.R.'s.

Mess Dance.

A very enjoyable dance, organized by No. 2 G.H.Q. Sergeants' Mess, was held in the Burgergesellschaft on Tuesday. Dancing commenced at 6 p.m. and finished at 11 p.m. A large number of members of W.R.A.F. from H.Q. R.A.F. were present, by kind permission of the Chief Administrator; and there was also a goodly sprinkling of British wives. Sgt. Jones on the piano and Cpl. Cotton (violin) provided a very enjoyable musical programme. Great credit is due to them for the able way in which they met the insistent demands of the dancers for "some more."

And Jazz Band.

During supper, the Mess Jazz Band gave selections from their extensive repertoire: considering the short time that has been available for practice the results attained were very creditable. Flashlight photos were taken during the dance. Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon the President (S.M. Carr, R.E.) and members of the Committee and the band of willing helpers, all of whom worked unselfishly to make the dance a success. S.M. Felgate proved a very capable M.C. It is a matter for considerable regret that the W.R.A.F's are leaving us: they have made dances possible in the past by the ready way they have responded to invitations, and when they eventually leave for England they will carry with them the good wishes and heart-felt thanks of those for whom they provided so much enjoyment.

In Few Words.

There will be a second performance of "Hullo! Cologne!" at the British Empire Leave Club on Saturday, October 4th from 3 to 4.30 p.m.

On Tuesday next the B.R.A.D.C. produces "Strife" by John Galsworthy. This will coincide with the hundredth performance of the B.R.A.D.C.

JACQUES.

GOLF TOURNEY.

Herd, Ray And The Irish Champion Beaten.

"The News of the World" tournament started yesterday at Walton Heath. The railway strike prevented several who had qualified from competing.

The results in the first round provided several surprises, both Herd and Ray being defeated by Roberts and Rainford respectively. Batley made a plucky fight against Abe Mitchell but was defeated 2|1.

A notable success in the later games was that of Johns, of Purley Downs, who beat the Irish champion, O'Hara, of Dundalk.

BASHAM-WELLS MATCH.

To-morrow's Contest At Holborn Stadium Postponed.

BERMONDSEY MAN'S RECORD.

Owing to the strike and uncertainty as to the continuance of buses and trams to-morrow's boxing match at Holborn Stadium between Basham and Billy Wells has been postponed.

Johnny Basham having so thoroughly proved his right to the welter-weight championship since winning it from Johnny Summers some years ago it has become something of a habit with those closely associated with boxing to regard him as invincible when contronted with a man eligible by birth to challenge his superiority. But good as Basham is he must, like other crack boxers who have preceded him, meet his master in his own country.

A little time ago there did not seem to be any English boxer in sight worthy to pit against the champion, but there has loomed up on the fistic horizon a man who had been forgotten owing to his being on service abroad in the Army. To wit, Billy Wells, the Bermondsey man, who some time ago was spoken of as a "probable" for light-weight supremacy.

Wells showed considerable boxing ability when he first took up the profession, and the record he has built up, if not brilliant, is at least creditable. His weight increased with the donning of khaki and over-seas service, and he came home some months ago after winning the middle-weight championship of the 2nd Army on the Rhine to invite Basham to defend his title.

DING-DONG CONTESTS.

Gunner Loses Fast and Keen Match at Plymouth.

Gunner Lelliot, of Portsmouth, and Young Kennedy (Plymouth) had a hard boxing contest over fifteen rounds at feather-weights at the Cosmopolitan Gymnasium, Plymouth.

A fast pace was set at the outest, both men going to work vigoronsly. Kennedy was the cleverer, and, using his feet smartly, often had Lelliott out of distance. The Portsmouth boxer aimed chiefly at the body, and endeavoured to mix matters, the exchanges for a time being level.

The gunner was not lacking in enterprise and strength, and the local man received some gruelling blows. Kennedy, however, maintained his superiority and gained the verdict on points.

Young Lake, R.M.L.I., beat Wally Trainer, of Hoxton, by a substanial margin. The bout produced clever boxing, and each kept up a good speed to the close, but the marine was the cleverer with his left.

Taff Brian (Cardiff) forced Joe Drake (Plymouth) to retire at the end of the fourth round and Private McSweeney, R.M.L.I., after six rounds with Kid Walters (Caprera A.C.,) threw in the sponge, Walters making full use of his longer reach. Alf. Walters and his brother Jack fought to a draw, as did Ginger Simpson and Tommy Blagdon (Devonport Devonia B.C.)

AUSTRALIAN CRICKET TEAM.

Official Statement by the Marylebone Club.

With regard to the inter-change of visits between English and Australian cricket teams, the following official statement has been issued by the M.C.C.:—

In response to an invitation from the Australian Board of Control to send an English team to Australia in 1919-20, the M.C.C. replied in January apprehending insurmountable difficulties. In June the M.C.C. received a cable asking for a decision, to which a reply was sent regretting inability to send a team.

In July the M.C.C. cabled that it was doubtful if a team could be sent from England before 1921-22, and asking if the Australian Board of Control would prefer an invitation to send a team to England in 1921, to which a reply has now been received asking whether, if the Board decided to send a team in 1920, it would be welcome, and whether the M.C.C. would send a team to Australia in 1920-21.

This cable has been circulated to the first-class counties, asking their opinion before Oct. 7, when a reply must be sent.

Amateur Cycling Champion Dead.

The death has taken place at Barrow-in-Furness of F.J. Osmond, who was several times amateur cycling champion of the world.

FOOTBALL GOSSIP.

A Few points about the Saturday's Victory International.

BY W. Le. C.

On Saturday, England versus Wales will be a star attraction in football circles. The English team reads all right on paper, and despite Hardy having six goals against him last week we may, I think, look to him to perform with his usual ability at Stoke. He will have a safe pair of backs in front of him, and a half back line of merit. Parker is at centre half and we can rest assured that this most important position will be one of the team's strong points. The forward line, with Puddefoot as pivot, reads well, albeit I should prefer Whittingham, great player as he is, to make way for another man.

* * *

The Welsh eleven have a splendid custodian in Peers, and the defence should make good. The half back line promises well, and with Jones at centre half, a curious position occurs. Both the Welsh and English centre halves are Stoke players, and will both appear before their own crowd, on their home pitch. Truly an unusual occurence and one that will tend to prove of great value to the elevens they represent. Each will be out to shine, and while I think Parker will earn more applause, Jones is well worthy of his place.

* * *

The forward line includes "Billy" Meredith and one is apt to wonder what a Welsh eleven would be like without the Manchester wizard. I am thinking he will be up against it this time, however, and so will Vizard, the opposite winger. I cannot look elsewhere than to the English eleven as the winners. If they fail I shall be disagreeably surprised.

FOOTBALL JOTTINGS.

Lawrence Burkinshaw now playing for Birmingham is a brother of the famous Sheffield Wednesday player, and assisted Barnsley and the Wednesday during the war.

Brown, Dundee's scoring centre, anticipates his club will finish well up the Scottish League table. Centre-halves take note.

James Smith, Glasgow Rangers' new left back, will come on. Sunderland are vexed now they let this player slip through their hands. They could have had him for the asking.

Neil Turner whom Sunderland picked up may prove a rare inside player yet. Leeds City and Raith Rovers have each had his services.

Fox, Bradford City's forward, and Ewart their goalkeeper, were each discharged from the Army through wounds. Bradford folks think the Army doctors made a mistake in each case.

Banks, Liverpool's forward, was at one time thought completely "crocked" through wounds. To-day he belies this statement.

C. Symons who played as an inside forward with the Salonica Army is now with Plymouth Argyle.

"Knocker" West, the Manchester United player suspended for life, has again been refused a removal of his suspension.

J. Browning, the ex-Celtic star now operating with Chelsea, thinks Scottish goal scoring methods far superior to the English way.

Scottish footballers are ever inspired with one ambition, they want to play for Rangers or Celtic before they die.

Ridley now with Wallsend, was at one time voted one of the fastest wingers in first-class circles. He used to assist Newcastle United.

Grimsdell, the Tottenham half-back, is included in England's eleven for Oct. 11th. He deserves his second cap. He played for his country in last year's Victory International.

Bromilow of Liverpool is a brother to the holder of Everton's citadel of a few seasons ago.

Only once before in all their history have Aston Villa got so badly off the mark.

ROVERS' UNLUCKY NUMBER.

Blackburn Rovers have experienced more than their fair share of bad luck this season, and having reached the unlucky 13, are hoping for an improvement in future matches. Thirteen of their players have been on the sick or injured list though several have resumed.

It has been stated that the condition of Percy Dawson, their centre forward, is causing anxiety. He is suffering from gastric ulcer, aggravated by injuries received on the field. Dawson joined the Rovers in 1914, his transfer from the Heart of Midlothian costing the club £2,000.

SCOTTISH LEAGUE RESULT.

LAWN TENNIS "REFORMS."

How Smith And Doherty Improved The Game.

SHOULD RACKETS BE UNIFORM?

Lawn tennis in Victory (or Peace) year has had a great boom and it is one of the penalties that in the silly season it must suffer from a sniping of suggested reforms. It is worth while to discuss some of these (writes A. E. Crawley in the "Observer"), as they are typical of the way in which the would be reformer and—more likely—deformer, goes about his self-imposed crusade.

As I travelled home from a tournament last June, in which Mr. Gerald Patterson had been wiping the floor with an English international, thanks to his wonderful service, I heard my vis-a-vis say, "It's a scandal and ought to be stopped." I replied, "Which?" He explained, "This—service; it ruins the game." I ventured to suggest that it was up to the other people to find a counter to it.

It is a truism that in doubles the side serving has the advantage. When the server comes into court, as Messrs. Davis and Ward did, with a new delivery, they have a still further advantage, and so has Mr. Patterson. But it is men like these who improve the game, and help it towards perfection.

THE AMERICAN SERVICE.

When the Americans showed us the "American" service a well-known critic wrote that the service was a "foul stroke," the ball being hit, not merely twice, but three times, off the wood at one side of the racket, then on the centre, and lastly off the wood at the other side. Some criticism! Certain gentlemen, interested in the matter, tested it by the simple method of using a racket smeared with wet paint. From the marks left on the ball it was proved that the length of contact with the racket was never more than one inch. It is well known how Messrs. S. H. Smith and H. L. Doherty dealt with this American service. And their dealing improved the game; there was no more question of ruling out this service.

Now a suggestion is made (in view of the dominance of the server—if he can serve) that the ball shall not be "in play" until the striker-out has returned the ball over the net. If this proposal were adopted, it would mean that the striker-out has the right to refuse to return a service, and will refuse unless it is easy enough for him to make a good return. It is a curious thing that in the early days of ball games the initial stroke (service) was regarded merely as an institution of play, not as an offensive operation. A boy was employed to throw the ball in, or a ball throwing machine did the work. Another suggestion is that the server shall not be allowed to volley the return of his service. Still another is to limit the service to one delivery.

THE CHARM OF THE GAME.

Times without number it has been suggested that the server should be handicapped; a line was to be marked some way behind the base-line; or he was to replace his swinging foot behind the base line before advancing to the net after delivering the service. But more than half the charm of the game, and it is so in cricket between batsman and bowler, is the rivalry between server and striker-out. Make that as keen as possible, and the game will look after itself. If there should be an overwhelming preponderance then rules committees will act.

Matches have often been lost and won by a ball which hits the top of the net and trickles over, impossible of return. Many have suggested that a net-cord ball should be a "let," as it is in service; some that it should score against the striker.

THE LARGER BAT.

The laws of the game do not limit in any way (as they do in cricket) the size of the bat. Mr. F. W. Donisthorpe (and one disciple) has been playing for some years with a mammoth racket, which gave the Frenchmann Gobert a fright at Wimbledon. The extra size gives the player a longer reach, but it makes his stroke less crisp; its increased weight also renders his stroke slow. Some players have been so bothered by the pudding character of the balls coming from this racket that they want the authorities to fix a standard of size and weight. As a matter of fact, Mr. Donisthorpe his had to work enormously hard to learn the body movements necessary for manipulating this huge weapon, and, as a matter of practical politics, the giant racket has killed itself.

There are rumours that the L.T.A. is shortly about to revise the laws of the game. In the matter of wording they seem here and there to need it. But we trust (concluded Mr. Crawley) that the committee will deal sternly with such suggestions as have been mentioned above, which would only result in deforming the game. And when a game is spoilt by excessive tinkering it will be given up by serious athletes.

KALK FOOTBALL SHIELD.

Draw and dates for the Third Round.

FOUR DAYS' FIXTURES.

To-day: 6th Corps Signals v 1/6th West Yorks.

Friday: 3rd "B" Bty. 190 R.F.A. v 63rd R.G.A. or R. Flotilla, R.N.

Saturday: 53rd North'd Fus. v 23rd North'd Fus.

Sunday: 9th D.L.I. v 17th Ryl. Fus.

All games will be played on the ground of the 93rd Brigade, Kalk (Mülheim end of Exerzier Platz). Kick off 2-30 p.m. The first-named team will be responsible for securing a ball for the match.

Games must take place on the day stated to ensure the competition being completed in the three weeks allotted.

Irish "Strike" Threatened.

There is trouble brewing in Dublin football between the referees and the senior clubs, and there are strong rumours that there may be a "strike" at any moment. This would act as a sequel to the Leinster Association demanding the services of the linesmen (who are referees) in Irish League matches for the Leinster Senior League games.

FOOTBALL COMPETITION.

Don't Be Too Late With Your Entry In Our Skill Contest.

The success of our football competition continues, entries rolling in in large numbers from all quarters.

Below will be found the coupon for competition No. 2, which you should lose no time in filling up and sending along. There is no object in leaving things until the last minute. Such policy might mean that the closing date has come stealthily along and that your opportunity has skipped past.

Imagine the tragedy of finding that you had filled up a coupon correctly and had failed to send it in!

There is no limit to the number of coupons that may be submitted, but do not forget—as many did last week—to enclose one mark for each coupon.

The more entries we receive the bigger will be the prize, of course.

HAVE YOU NOTICED?

On our coupon for Saturday many of the teams will be playing without some of their stars, who will be figuring in the International.

Take the Bolton-Derby county match. Derby will be without Bagshaw, while Bolton will be minus Jennings, Smith and Vizard; the absence of the three last-mentioned will make a tremendous difference to the "Trotters," and the "Rams" have a good chance to obtain revenge for the beating they received at Bolton's hands (or rather feet) last week. W. Bromwich will be without Smith, their left-back, but they have a capable understudy to fill his shoes.

Southend will badly miss Jones, their clever forward, and Hudspeth, Newcastle United's capable defender, should be very much missed at St. James' Park, where Liverpool, who oppose them, generally do well. The latter will be without Matthews, their dashing centre, and his loss will cause a reshuffling of the Merseysiders' line. Everton will be without Grenyer, their clever half, and Oldham minus Goodwin, whose absence should materially affect the Lancashire Club's chances against Preston.

Wolverhampton are not so well supplied with goalkeepers that they can easily dispense with Peers, and this fine custodian's absence is Leeds' opportunity. We may expect some more surprises on Saturday.

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 2,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S.40 Rhine Army.

List Of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Amateur Riders.

Races for amateur riders are popular at Newbury, and a lot of interest was taken in the United Services Cup.

Ill Times.

Gillingham appear to have fallen on ill times, as they have not secured a win in four successive matches.

Faulty Forwards.

Arsenal had to be content with one point at Blackburn, because luck was against them, and their forwards were not as deadly as usual.

Exhibition Golf.

Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, the famous professional golfers, played exhibition matches on the Grims Dyke course, Hatch End, Middlesex, on Saturday, in aid of St. Dunstan's Hostel.

Clapton Orient.

Clapton Orient's unexpected win at Wolverhampton added interest to their meeting with South Shields at Homerton on Saturday, and 15,000 spectators watched them.

Billiards Tourney.

Carpenter, by defeating Brady in the last heat of the billiards tournament at Thurston's on Saturday, received third prize of £20, the first and second having gone to Lawrence and Raynor respectively.

Fishing in The Ouse.

Fly fishing in the Ouse (Sussex), Mr. W. Holland, at Barcombe, has taken a 5lb seatrout, and roach anglers have also been successful in this river.

Hendon Tennis Finals.

Misu made great use of his favourite cross-court drives, and played throughout with considerable judgment. Fisher seems to have cultivated rather a taste for trick shots, and this led to his defeat.

Why Fulham Stayed at Home.

Fulham were unable to travel to Bristol on Saturday to play the City owing to the firm from whom the motor had been hired being unable to obtain a supply of petrol.

Handicapped by Crisis.

Such difficulties were experienced by players in getting to Richmond on Saturday that neither the London Scottish nor Rosslyn Park could place in the field at the Athletic Ground the team selected for the occasion.

West Ham's Defeat.

If excuses are to be made for West Ham's defeat at Stoke they will probably be found in the fact that they made a hurried rush on the field at the last moment, after a long and uncomfortable journey of eight hours in taxi-cabs from London.

Home Again.

Matt Wells, a former light-weight champion of England, arrived at Liverpool on the Aquitania the other day.

Croquet Result.

The croquet competition for the Victory Cup ended at the Roehampton Club in a win for Trevor Williams.

475,000 Spectators.

The attendance at 30 matches in England on Saturday numbered about 475,000, comparatively larger than the recent maximum of half a million.

Chelsea's Failure.

Chelsea cannot check the run of misfortune that set in with injuries to players and consequent alterations in their eleven. Bad play led to further changes on Saturday, with no better effect.

Record At Wimbledon.

In winning the senior monthly medal of The Royal Wimbledon Club on Saturday, with a return of 68 plus 1—69, Mr. F.S. Bond beat the amateur record for the course, the bogey of which is 77.

Rugby Trial.

Travelling troubles notwithstanding, Blackheath on Saturday brought off their final trial game between the players of 1914 and those who have recently joined "The Club." 1919 had to admit defeat by 16 points to 14.

Turn of The Tide.

Bristol Rovers secured their first brace of League points this season at Eastville, against Newport County.

Terrier Show.

A joint terrier championship show was held on Wednesday at the Holland Park Rink, Shepherd's Bush.

"Victory" Regatta.

The London Rowing Club held a "victory" regatta at Putney on Saturday. Most of the events were confined to members.

Fortunate Teams.

The Albion are fortunate in being able to rely on the same side week after week. They are a well-balanced team, individually clever, and, in combination, well nigh irresistible.

Scottish Foursomes Final.

The Scottish foursomes championship was won on the Lundin course by Mortonhall (represented by W.W. Mackenzie and D.M. Moore), who beat Carnoustie (J. Mason, jun., and W. Whyte) in the final by 3 up and 2 to play.

95 Goals.

Fine weather and many goals—there were 95 in the 30 games—made the football specially attractive on most grounds, on Saturday and with 17 home clubs winning and five drawing, spectators generally had every reason for satisfaction.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Why is This?

The English "movies" in Cologne undoubtedly prove a great attraction to the German population, but it seems a great pity that so many small urchins of the ages of nine and ten are allowed to occupy seats while Tommy has to be content with a makeshift seat on the floor.

An Oriental Dance.

Great preparations, I hear, are being made for the Arabian Nights Ball to be held at the Leave Club on the 16th inst. It should be a feast of Oriental colour, as only officers in Eastern dress will be permitted.

The Unimpressive Dom.

Everybody who comes to Cologne visits the Dom and most of them express a sense of disappointment. Somehow the great building does not impress as it should. But go and look at some of the smaller churches of Cologne—there are several within a stone's throw of the Cathedral—and you will be charmed by their antiquity and their beauty.

What He Would Do.

"I know what I should do, I should jump a lorry," was how one Tommy said he would settle any difficulty in getting about at home. But England is not France.

A Hand at Cards.

Perhaps you have noticed that whenever two or three French officers or poilus are together in a restaurant or café in Rhineland they nearly always indulge in a game of cards. What particular game they mostly play I don't know, but speaking generally I should imagine cards to be much more popular in the French Army than in ours.

A Great War Writer.

I understand that Mr. Philip Gibbs, the famous war correspondent and novelist, is again on a visit to Rhineland.

No Leave Trains.

Funny what pranks Dame Rumour plays us. An officer, who is expecting leave, came to me yesterday with the news that the railway situation at home had materially improved, with the result that the authorities had sent a leave train away. As a matter of fact the R.T.O. tells me that the familiar Arctic and Oceanic are not running.

In Demand.

"Sold out" has been the state of affairs very early in the day at most news stalls in Rhineland since "The Cologne Post" has been giving the earliest news of the Great Strike.

Many Miles Afoot.

The average German girl can claim one characteristic which makes for robust health. She is a great pedestrian. I heard of a Cologne girl clerk who on a recent Sunday tramped all day with friends and late at night found herself near Bonn; but the last tram and train home had gone, so she cheerfully set out to walk all the way back and did the long journey on foot "without turning a hair," as they say.

The Popular Paletot.

Paletots of a rather military style of cut are becoming very popular in Germany now that the chilly autumn weather is here. It is interesting to observe that fawn and khaki shades are more in demand than the slate-grey varieties.

Sporty.

At a recent Army Education Examination I am told the students were asked these questions on a "General Knowledge" paper: "Name the winners of the Derby and St. Leger," "What is the distance of these two races?" and "What age are the horses that run in them?" Evidently the authorities understand the sporting tastes of the soldier even if he is a student.

Mourning Tokens.

In Germany, mourning bands round the arm are worn at the end of the sleeve, and not, as in England, above the elbow. As far as I know, there is no special significance in this.

A Fatal Omission.

Several competitors in our football contest omitted to enclose the mark entrance fee. Fifty coupons in fact were received without the money. If this non-compliance was due to not reading the rules correctly it would have been unfortunate had any been correct; it would be a calamity if the sender of a winning coupon had not complied with our rules.

For Traders.

Business men are advised to watch the columns of "The Cologne Post". Very shortly they will see a new feature that will interest them daily.

All They Want.

I met him quite by accident. As a matter of fact I was trudging along when the inevitable lorry hove in sight and the driver as usual obliged. On the same conveyance was a typical Cockney lad, the type of officer's servant so valuable in the line. He had with him a parcel of dainty cakes which would have given delight in feminine circles. "Like a cigarette?" I asked. "No thanks Governor," he replied with his mouth full of these dainty morsels. "My blokes 'as all they wants and they don't mind 'me helping myself." He continued to make an impression on his luxuries.

A Distinguished Visitor.

Sir George Paish, Editor of "The Statist," is on a brief visit to Cologne, en route, we understand, for Berlin. Sir George rendered notable service during the war as Chairman of an important Government Commission on World Economics, and lectured in the War Area to large audiences of fighting men. I am interested to see from our advertisement columns that he is to lecture on the League of Nations this evening in the Central Y.M.C.A. Loreley Hall.

Can't Forget 'Agnes'.

The "Sketch" refers to the "Agnes letters of deathless fame" which recently appeared in our columns, and describes that fair correspondent as "the immortal Agnes."

A Camera Group

Have you ever taken the trouble to study the display of photographs in a German establishment, preferably of the cheaper class? If so you will find a source of entertainment. In a window not far from Hohestrasse are to be seen several amusing groups. A party of pioneers have armed themselves with long pipes beloved by the German; beer-pots show signs of recent replenishment, one of the party sits astride a barrel, another is displaying a picture playing card while a comrade is scratching his head as though in a dilemma. Another has a broom over his shoulder and a dustpan suspended from his chest.

A Huge Prize.

I hear of a very big "sweep" being organised in Lille for the Cambridgeshire. If 100,000 tickets are sold the first prize will total £12,000,—a nice sum to take home on "demob." Major Denison, 33 Rue de Loos, Lille, is the Secretary.

Money Exchange.

Yesterday the money market revealed an extraordinary state of affairs. At the Field Cashier, where, as I explained yesterday, the Field Advance Pay book is now "napoo" the rate rose as anticipated from 93 to 120. At the English banks 90 was paid and at the German banks 90 for cheques. Meanwhile the commercial rate hovers in the neighbourhood of 98. I am inclined to the view of a philosophic friend. Take your chance when you want money. There is nothing in it.

At The Marricor.

I hear excellent reports of the Marricor Hotel for married officers and their wives and also that the social side of life is being well catered for. Dances are very popular. One was held last Saturday evening and another is arranged for next Saturday at 8 p.m.

"Chivalrous Tommy".

Chevalier Sambucetti, in the course of a fascinating lecture on Anglo-Italian Friendship, in the Loreley Hall of the Cologne Central Y.M.C.A. recently compared the British soldiers on the Rhine to the Roman soldiers who once were in occupation of Cologne, in respect of their high courage in fighting an undefeated enemy and their generous forbearance towards the enemy when victory over him had been won.

At the Club.

Quite a crowd of officers are in the same plight as the men. Many are kicking their heels at the clubs and speculating as to whether the trouble is likely to last a month. You see Club prices for meals regularly make inroads on one's exchequer.

Back to Their Units.

The whole of the men who had been collected together for demobilization have been returned to their units through the strike. Just what their thoughts are as regards the offending railwaymen can well be imagined. I heard it suggested in one quarter that men due for demobilization should be got through by hook or by crook and they would then make it hot for strikers. I imagine they would.

Musicians won't Play.

The cabarets in Cologne are mostly carrying on without music owing to a strike of musicians; the vocal and dancing turns are working under the greatest difficulties. At some places visited I found gramophones being employed.

Brush, Pencil, Camera.

Recently at Lindenthal Y.M.C.A. there was an exhibition of paintings and photographs which Lady Cooper opened and I am told it was a huge success. Mr. E. Carver organised it, and prizes were awarded to Spr. Carr, R.E. and Pte. F. Elderton, Pte. Oliver Bull, M.G.C., Pte. N. Burrows 52nd Devons, Pte. R.E.H. Basker and Pioneer C. Furth, 20th D.L.I. There are some clever artists with brush, pencil and camera in the Rhine Army.

On the Hoardings.

Political circles in Rhineland appear to be getting very busy just now and preparing for an active winter season, judging by the number of striking posters daily appearing on the hoardings announcing election meetings.

"Disguised."

The young German seen in the Hohe Strasse the other evening dressed in all the glory of jockey costume, was either out for a moment's airing from a fancy dress ball, or else it was a distinctive form of garb adopted by some "gesangverein."

RHINELANDER.

ARGENTINA FOR EX-SOLDIERS.

As one who has had several years' experience of the Argentine I have frequently been asked what sort of a place it is and what chances there are for one going to the country for the first time.

The whole problem cannot be thrashed out within the limits of the present article, but one may presume that those seeking fortune in the Argentine are divided into two classes.

First of all there are those who are sent out by the London office of some firm having branches in the country such as the British banks, the railways, shipping or insurance companies or the various firms of accountants. In most cases the adventurer has little to fear.

The firm he joins will generally look after him, and immediately after his arrival lodgings will have been found for him. He will work with English-speaking people and will rapidly pick up enough Spanish for all ordinary purposes. His advancement will depend entirely upon his own efforts just as it would in England. If he learns Spanish properly his value to his firm will be increased.

The other class consists of those who are going out in the hope of finding "some job or other"; this was the attitude of many early settlers who are now rich men but it cannot be too clearly stated that the Argentine is not a Micawber's Paradise.

A man who is not going out to a post should be possessed of not less than £500 and should certainly know Spanish fluently. Letters of introduction should also be obtained if possible.

Although the salaries paid are high all living is most expensive, for example the pre-war price of clotnes was exactly that now charged in England.

Between these two classes comes that group composed of men who are going to a post on a ranch. Formerly a man with little capital, plenty of initiative and average luck could do well in ranching, but nowadays land and stock are a very high price and the settler must face the prospect of remaining an employé for many years.

He will probably work for a couple of years for his keep and about £50 to £70 a year, whilst he is learning his job.

During this time he will live comfortably with the owner or manager and want nothing. After this, if he is capable, he will be offered the management of a small ranch or the post of "second in command" of an important one at a salary perhaps of £120 a year, with everything found for him.

He will always have a chance of making some money by judicious speculation in cattle. But it is a hard life, cut off from all civilization and demanding severe and continuous effort, albeit those who experience it seldom abandon it.

What is characteristic of nearly any civilised country to-day applies to the Argentine. There is no room for "quitters" or "remittance men." Perseverance, hard work and belief in one's own ability will go a long way towards helping one on the road to success. A large and hospitable English colony will make one always welcome.

On the other hand, customs, speech and land are strange and the settler must be prepared to drop the insular aloofishness characteristic of too many of us and be prepared "to do as Rome does".

The Argentine is only partially developed, is sparsley populated and has a great future ahead of it. The right type of man will be welcomed and will succeed. The wrong one will go under.

PORTENO.

WHY WE SHAKE HANDS.

How many people know what is the origin of the custom of shaking hands. In olden days, when every man who had any pretensions to being a gentleman carried a sword it was the custom when meeting another, to show that there was no intention of treachery by offering each other the weapon hand, free from the weapon. To hold back the hand was equivalent to a challenge to combat. This habit became so fixed that long after swords ceased to be worn men still offered the weapon hands to friends and declined to do so to enemies. Among savages who never carried swords the custom of shaking hands is unknown, and it affords them a great deal of amusement to see white men engage in the practice.

FLINT AND STEEL.

Tobacconists are essentially conservative—that is, if they are really first class. Somehow old cigars, old customers with special favourite Latakia and Perique mixtures, and old-fashioned pipes and smokers' requisites, seem to create a special distinctive atmosphere reminiscent of the early 'eighties. One would hardly expect to find a London shop still keeping smokers' essentials of the flint and steel period before matches were invented, but in one wonderful old shop was to be seen a drawer of stuff that looked like dried sponge. This was "amadou," or German tinder, and was actually stock that dated back nearly a century. I asked if they ever had demands for it. "Not now," said the old man. "Gentlemen going to foreign parts used to ask for it. Speke had some, and Sir Richard Burton—he used to come to the old shop for it; but there is no demand to-day, and never will be till the price of matches goes up again!"

FROM EVERYWHERE.

WILL THE STRIKE SPREAD?

NO "TALKING IT OVER" UNTIL WORK IS RESUMED, SAYS THE PREMIER.

TRANSPORT WORKERS FATEFUL MEETING.

NO CHANGE.

VOLUNTEERS MAINTAINING ALL SERVICES.

Methods of dealing with the strike are improving daily. Aeroplanes and trains by hundreds, motor lorries by thousands and volunteers by tens of thousands are fast making up for much of the transport which is idle through the strike.

All classes of the community have responded to the Government's call and offers of skilled help have been overwhelming. Distribution of food proceeds in a wonderful manner. Supplies are thoroughly satisfactory and nobody has yet suffered any hardship or experienced any real difficulty in obtaining sufficient food.

So reasonable was the Government offer and so unreasonable was the railwaymen's stoppage of work, over a point which does not in any way arise for some months hence, that the strikers have resorted to spreading grossly distorted versions of the Government's standpoint in order to justify their reckless action. They pretend that the Government is figthing Trade Unionism but nothing could be further from the truth. It is in no sense a fight against organised Trade Unionism but on the contrary it is a defensive measure to protect the community from an arbitrary minority.

An Exploded Belief.

Certain sections of labour had come to believe they could secure any demands, regardless of economic laws, simply by threatening to withdraw labour and hold up the whole community. Their belief that a sudden railway strike would paralyse the life of the country and bring the question to an issue within two or three days has proved unfounded. So Mr. J.H. Thomas, the men's leader, who has hitherto declined offers of sympathetic strikes by other workers, now announces that he will no longer decline. This may reasonably be regarded as a signal of distress. At the same time Mr. Thomas insists on his readiness to let no question of personal pride stand in the way of effecting any possible settlement, which, he says, is desired both by strikers and community.

Building the Bridge.

The great conference of the National Transport Workers Federation was held at Caxton Hall under the presidency of Mr. Harry Gosling. The hall was crowded.

A prominent delegate, who left the conference about midday, remarked "I think a bridge will be built." At 1.45 the Conference adjourned until five in the afternoon, after passing a resolution asking Mr. Lloyd George to receive a deputation. The Premier agreeing, the deputation proceeded to Downing-Street at 3 p.m.

The Essential Preliminary.

The Conference at Downing-street lasted three and three-quarters hours. Mr. Lloyd George told the deputation that the Government considered it quite impracticable to continue negotiations unless work is resumed. Apart from other considerations the Ministers who would be concerned in such negotiations could not possibly attempt to deal with the questions involved while their whole energy was devoted, as it must necessarily be, to improvising means for carrying on the life of the nation.

mbiguous statement.

Mr. J. H. Thomas announced later that the Railwaymen's Executive had "accepted the Government's offer to talk things over" and said they would proceed to see the Premier at once. It is not yet clear whether this means that the Railwaymen accepted the Government's conditions regarding resumption of work as the condition of resumption of negotiations, but apparently it does not. At a late hour on Wednesday the railwaymen were conferring with Mr. Lloyd George.

"Purely Trade Union."

The conference called by the National Transport Workers Federation, at which representatives of most of the Trade organisations involved, or likely to be involved in the strike, were present, was held in private. Mr. Thomas and Mr. Bromley, the Railwaymen's leaders were also invited. They made a statement regarding their case and then withdrew.

A statement was subsequently issued regarding the proceedings. It declared, after hearing the statement of the Railway Unions' representatives that it was unanimously resolved that the strike is "purely a Trade Union strike for wages and conditions."

It is a noteworthy fact that Mr. Smillie, the Miner's president, who is credited with extreme views, points out the seriousness of the strike and says the consequences ought to be avoided if common sense and interest in the nation's welfare are observed. He declares the door is still open for negotiations and states that he has advised that the deputation on mines, which was to meet the Premier next week, should be postponed in order not to embarrass the Premier.

Unscrupulous Arguments.

Several great trade societies, including the Engineers and Boilermakers have ordered their members to keep at work. There are, however, extremists among the Transport Workers' Organisation who are attempting to force the transport strike and are grossly misrepresenting facts in an effort to bring it about.

Rates of Strike Pay.

The National Union of Railwaymen has fixed strike-pay at twelve shillings weekly for Scale A men. The remainder will receive six shillings weekly, with one shilling extra for each child under twelve years of age. Seventy-five per cent of the strikers come under Scale A.

Out-of-work Donations Forfeit.

Normal deliveries by the railway companies are re-starting. Food, coal and petrol must be used with strict economy in view of the possibility that the dislocation of traffic may continue for some time. A rumour flew round London yesterday that the omnibuses and trams had stopped running. It was, however, not due to the strike but to the fact that the cars on the London County Council system were held up for half-an-hour owing to the failure of the electric current. The cars resumed running soon after 10 o'clock.

Many railwaymen are returning to work. On the London line alone 170 members of the traffic staff have been reinstated during the last twenty-four hours. Full arrangements have been made whereby substitutes will be found for any men employed on the London omnibus services who may leave work.

Ten thousand tons of perishable foodstuffs were cleared by the Ministry of Food from Metropolitan stations without the use of Government lorries.

The Government has decided to continue payment of out-of work donations, but with certain important modifications. Any one identified with the strike or any member of an organisation giving active support to it, will be refused.

Still they come.

Offers from ex-service men are coming in not only from individuals but from entire organisations. The President of the Bristol branch of the Federation of Discharged Sailors and Soldiers wired to Mr. Lloyd George: "I and my 7,800 members back law and order up to the hilt. We are ready to give any help we can."

A similar offer was received from the 1,600 members of the Gillingham Branch of the Comrades of the Great War. Replies have been sent indicating how the offers will be utilized.

The British Engineers Association, comprising 600 of the leading engineering firms, has offered the Government any service which lies in its power. The offer points out that their staffs constitute a vast store of technical knowledge, engineering skill, organising and administrative ability and enormous experience.

A Dastardly Threat.

According to the Paris Matin, the strikers have sent to the Government a 48 hour ultimatum that if the troops guarding the Severn tunnel are not withdrawn within that period the pump men will cease work and allow the tunnel to be flooded.

The wise old brigade.

Yesterday Trade Unionists in uniform were working the electric trains to Hampton Court.

One driver declared his intention of sticking to his job. He said he had been a Trade Unionist for thirty-four years and though he was willing to strike for a just cause he could not make out what the strikers wanted. Another Unionist guard said he had been a railway worker for forty years and was not going to "chuck it up" now.

Exciting accident to express.

At Waterloo the officials were in an optimistic mood and thought there would be a service to all important places to-day. Further improvement was also effected on the Great Western line. The mid-day train from Paddington reached Cardiff at 6.30 p.m. with four hundred passengers, who had an exciting experience near Gloucester. The gate at a level crossing was closed and the train dashed through it at fifty miles an hour. No damage was done except to the gates, the wreckage of which was piled up on the engine. The train was pulled up a little further on and passengers assisted to clear away the wreckage, after which they proceeded to their destination.

As per time table.

Thanks to the most excellent response from all classes of the community to the appeal for volunteer helpers, the train services in and out of London are increasing rapidly and promise soon to exceed one thousand daily.

The Great Western Railway announces that over 300 trains are running, the Great Eastern has 217, and the North-Western 200. The following additional services recommenced yesterday: Central London: Shepherds Bush to Liverpool-street. Metropolitan: Edgware-road to Liverpool-street. The Hampstead-Golders

Green Tube: South-Eastern: Crystal Palace, London Bridge and Cannon-street. Brighton and South Coast: Victoria to Denmark-Hill. Midland; Kentish Town and Wanstead Park, St Pancras to Hendon.

As all services. even on the Tubes, cease at dusk, the return of the workers to their homes is a much more difficult matter than the morning journey to the City. The bulk of the business houses are allowing their staffs to leave in time to catch trains. As, however, many of those released early travel by trams and buses the evening street traffic is thus extended over a longer period and the pressure is correspondingly eased. It is pointed out that the simple expedient of continuing summer-time, which ended on Sunday, until the strike is over would have given the railways an extra hour of daylight. Besides the extension of the passenger services an ever increasing number of goods trains are now running.

Catching up the mails.

Yesterday fifty-four aeroplane services were employed throughout the country in the distribution of mails. One Handley-Page machine took 1,400 lbs weight of letters to Brussels for Holland and Norway and returned with 2,000 lbs. The mails were also carried to Paris. Besides these, civil aeroplanes, with a total mail-carrying capacity of 4,750 pounds, left London for Bristol, Birmingham, Newcastle, Manchester and Glasgow. Surplus mails are being rapidly cleared and the postal delay is now only about twenty-four hours.

Upwards of 153,000 gallons of milk were brought to London yesterday, consumers receiving sixty-six per cent. of their normal consumption. Adequate supplies of preserved milk for infant feeding are being distributed to municipal uthorities.

RUSSIAN AMBUSH.

BRITISH GENERAL'S NARROW ESCAPE.

An account of the withdrawal of the Dvina force is forwarded from Archangel by Reuter's correspondent. The British troops evacuating Ustvaga should have been relieved by Russians but the latter arrived very late. The enemy consequently were able to cross the Vaga and lay in ambush at the confluence of the Vaga and Dvina.

From this position they fired on the British boats coming down the river. One bullet smashed the cabin window of the first motor boat descending and passed within a few inches of General Sadleir Jackson's head. The Royal Fusiliers, who were in the next boat, lost four killed and eleven wounded.

BLESSING IN DISGUISE.

LORRY AND PLANE DEVELOPMENT.

Viewed in regard to further developments of the motor lorry and of the aeroplane, it is conceivable that the strike could not have occurred at a more opportune moment. It will definitely establish the aeroplane in the world of commerce. During the last few days the demand for accommodation in large machines now flying between all parts of the country has enormously increased, while aeroplanes have been extensively utilised for the transport of goods for which prompt delivery is essential.

Hounslow Aerodrome, just outside London, is particularly busy with continental air traffic, for there all aeroplanes leaving or arriving in Britain must report to the Customs authorities. Since the strike was declared at midnight on Friday work at Hounslow has been more than doubled. Up to midday on Tuesday 111 machines had left Hounslow for the Continent, among the objectives being Paris, Brussels, Amsterdam, Rome and Madrid, while there had been eighty-one arrivals. Practically every machine carried a full cargo both of passengers and goods. The value of the cargoes varies greatly, but it sometimes is as much as four thousand pounds. Directly parcels arrive they are examined by Customs officers, and the contents make a strangely varied collection, skins, cinematograph films, jewellery, important documents and dresses being often included.

TWICE ROUND THE CLOCK.

An effort is being made to introduce into the United Kingdom the 24 hour method of expressing time.

A Committee has been appointed consisting of the following:—

Major J. L. Baird, C.M.G., D.S.O., M.P., Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (chairman), Lord Ashton of Hyde, Mr. John Cairns, M.P., Sir Francis Dent, general manager of the South-Eastern Railway Company, Captain J. M. Harvey, Board of Trade, Mr. A. Maxwell, Home Office, Captain Webster, R.N., Admiralty.

NO NEW BRITISH CARDINALS.

The Pope will create several new cardinals shortly, but there will be no new British cardinals.

The view is expressed in Vatican circles, that, although Australia has not had a cardinal since the death of Cardinal Moran, the political agitation in the Commonwealth, especially by the Irish, makes it difficult for the moment for the Pope to confer the Red Hat on any Australian bishop.

SWEET INNOCENCE.

AN OLD STORY WITH A MORAL.

Should anybody come across a young German girl with a fur trimmed brown winter coat and a plausible story, let them take heed!

Such an one was discovered in the Scottish Churches Hut in the Schildergasse at an early hour recently, but she then had only the plausible tale, which although very old and threadbare, served her purpose. Here it is.

Travelling from Mainz to Saarbrücken to visit her mother she confided her innocent young self, her ticket and her money to a sympathetic young stranger and went to sleep, a sure sign of good breeding. She woke up at Cologne, which is on a different line, minus ticket, papers, purse, and the considerate young man.

She was recommended to the Scottish Churches Hut, where the good ladies took the "puir wee lassie" in and were themselves taken in, for when, after consultation with the D.A.P.M., the R.T.O., and sundry other authorities, she was provided with food and money and sent, under escort of a woman in German nurse's uniform, to the station, the reception committee awaited her in vain.

Incidentally the brown winter coat trimmed with brown fur, the property of Miss Halliday, had disappeared. So had the girl.

Thus must the innocent suffer for the guilty.

And the name of this true story is the Confidence Trick.

120 TO THE POUND.

ERZBERGER EXPLAINS THE CAUSES.

The first important discussion in the German National Assembly since the reopening of the session concerned the rate of exchange.

Conservative deputies attributed the decline of the mark to Erzberger.

Herr Erzberger, Minister of Finances, pointed out two methods by which the value of the mark could be raised, viz: Long foreign credits and payment in goods. The long credits will only be possible after complete ratification of peace.

Payment in goods makes it necessary that everybody works. "I am against compulsory labour" he said, "but we shall get it in another manner. The taxes will become so heavy that only a few will be able not to work."

Several other pertinent remarks were made by Erzberger. He said for instance that Germany is actually selling much too cheaply to foreign countries. He further declared that while the Entente refused to allow the customs frontier in the West to be re-established, it is impossible to have a sound financial policy. "As long as we have this bleeding wound in the West, Germany has not the strength to fulfil the conditions of the Peace Treaty."

HIGH WAGES NO REMEDY.

At a meeting of the Central Profiteering Committee held in London Mr. McCurdy, M.P., Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Food, presided and said they had to discover where unreasonable and unconscionable profits were being made and to endeavour to eliminate the evil, and to restore public confidence. Merely to increase wages could never be a satisfactory remedy for high prices. Every increase of wages increased the price of commodities and made living more difficult for others. What was wanted was to increase production and reduce prices.

CAMBRIDGE WAR RECORD.

In his valedictory address on relinquishing the Vice-Chancellorship of Cambridge University, an office which he had held for two years, Dr. Shipley, Master of Christ's College, stated that out of 16,000 soldier students serving in the war 2,652 were killed, 3430 wounded and 497 were reported missing and prisoners, most of whom had been accounted for.

Among the honours gained were twelve Victoria Crosses, 5,036 mentions in despatches, 1,861 Military Crosses and many other distinctions.

The new Vice-Chancellor is Dr. Peter Giles, Master of Emmanuel College.

TARDY HUNGARIAN JUSTICE.

The Hungarian Government has begun criminal proceedings against 1,500 persons charged with misdeeds during the Bolshevist regime. Five arrests have been made at Buda-Pesth in connection with the murder of Count Tisza last November.

BIG GERMAN COMBINE.

The two principal electric lamp factories in Germany are combining with the object of "strengthening German production as against foreign competition, which has become increasingly influential during the war."

THEIR OWN HANDIWORK.

Six German experts, accompanied by a French officer, have left Versailles to visit the devastated areas of Soissons and Rheims, in order to take account of the restoration work to be carried out there.

GERECHTIGKEIT.

IGNORANCE, ALLEGED BEER AND MOONSHINE.

Wilhelm Kautz, of Rosenstrasse offered 5000 marks bail but it was politely pointed out to him that this is only equivalent to about £50 so he had to increase the amount to 10,000 marks.

The charge against him was that of stabbing a British soldier but as the injured man is still in hospital the case had to be further adjourned. Thus it was that Wilhelm had to offer this large mount in guarantee that he would not attempt to evade the consequences of his alleged act.

THE WATCH THAT FAILED.

A corpulent and bald headed legal gentleman, sporting the Iron Cross of the 2nd class, defended Hilda Neunerdt of the Thurnmarkt on a charge of supplying what is facetiously called beer, to English soldiers at 3.42 p.m.

The defence was worthy of the legal gentleman, and was that the woman's husband always put his watch forward half an hour in order that soldiers might leave early. Unhappily he forgot to restore normal time on the day in question so that when the soldiers were found there it was apparently past 4 o'clock. The Court was of the opinion that the husband should be included in the charge and the case was adjourned for this to be done.

WHERE IGNORANCE IS BLISS.

That she was not aware of the new regulations governing the hours of opening for cafes was the defence put forward by lustige witwe Hoever of Cecilien-strasse who catered for the needs of two thirsty soldiers at 11.30 a.m. — the hour of opening being now 12 o'clock. The plea succeeded and in view of the fact that the offence was committed on the day following the alteration in opening hours she was allowed to go with the contents of her purse intact.

"ALL MOONSHINE."

Ernst Zadasch of 10 Zugweg made the aquaintance of a gentleman with a strange hobby — the manufacture of spurious notes. He expressed a desire for 500 English cigarettes for which he promised Ernst 53 marks of his own make. A compact was entered into and in the meantime Ernst reported the man to the authorities. He valiantly stood by his agreement however, and had the goods ready for delivery, when the ubiquitous policeman appeared on the scene.

The Court listened patiently to Ernst's romance and then summed it up in two words "All moonshine", and he has now to spend 14 days in gaol for being in illegal possession of the smokes.

LORRY TRIUMPHS.

INVALUABLE OBJECT LESSON.

Necessity is teaching Great Britain the use of many hitherto undeveloped methods of transport and locomotion. Most remarkable perhaps is the triumph achieved by the motor lorry. The new Ministry of Transport came into existence only last week and its first serious problem has been to organise a motor lorry service to safeguard the food supplies of the country. Although the task is one of immense magnitude, undertaken under pressure of urgency, it is being fulfilled with complete success and apparent ease. At present over 5,000 lorries are being employed, 1,000 dealing with the London milk supply alone. Petrol refilling points, canteens and sleeping accommodation for drivers have been prepared and everything is working smoothly.

The despatch with which this service has been organised has led to much thought as to how this object lesson may be utilised in public service when the strike ends. That motor lorry services of some kind will be run as a permanent feature of our means of communication, particularly for light goods traffic, is regarded as certain. Increased use of big motor vehicles should afford relief to congestion from which the railways for some time have been suffering.

FAMOUS EDITOR DEAD.

We regret to announce the death, which occurred on Wednesday, of Sir Edward T. Cook, the distinguished newspaper editor, at the age of sixty-two.

Sir Edward Cook first entered London journalistic life by means of occasional contributions to the "Pall Mall Gazette" under Mr. Morley's editorship. He then succeeded Lord (then Mr.) Milner as assistant editor to Mr. Stead and became editor in 1892. Subsequently he edited in turn the "Westminster Gazette" and the "Daily News."

Knighted in 1912, he became joint director of the Press Bureau in 1915.

NEW ITALIAN PARLIAMENT.

A Royal decree has been issued dissolving the Italian Chamber of Deputies, announcing elections for November 16, and the reassembling of the Senate and Chamber on December 1.

AUSTRIA TO KEEP SOLVENT.

The reports that Austria intends to declare herself bankrupt are officialy contradicted and declared to be "malicious and irresponsible inventions."

Nomination day for the Chancellorship of Cambridge University has been fixed for the 10th October.

STRIKELETS.

AMATEUR PORTERS' RICH HARVEST.

On most of the railways elaborate time tables have been drawn up.

A train arrived at Paddington with a Colonel in mufti acting as fireman.

Several others on being questioned said they had made well over a sovereign.

Police protection has had to be given to a number of strikers in different parts of London.

Meat rationing only applies to beef and mutton. Pork, veal, bacon etc. are not rationed.

Trawlers which had been diverted from Hull arrived in the Thames yesterday with fish direct to Billingsgate.

Ex-service men, both officers and men, are figuring largely in dealing with the crisis. A general, for instance, is working in a goods yard.

Ninety-two people were injured in London streets yesterday. This is a very small number considering the amazing conditions which prevail.

The discharged soldier porters at Paddington worked like niggers in handling passengers' luggage. "I made 23s 4d in tips before dinner" said one.

Strikers yesterday stoned a Berwick train going to Edinburgh. Many windows were broken but nobody was injured. A train was also stoned at Swansea.

An R.A.F. officer, who was wearing overalls over his uniform, was acting as a porter at Euston while waiting for the train on which he was to serve as a fireman.

The first mail steamer from Ostend arrived at Dover on Wednesday and is expected to return to-day. A number of passengers have been waiting at Dover for several days.

Two motor char-a-bancs arrived at King's Cross on Wednesday night bringing eighty passengers from Leeds. Nearly all the seats had already been booked for the return journey.

The Ministry of Transport is considering the question of utilizing the river to a much greater extent and it is expected that a service of shallow draught steamers will soon be running.

An ex-officer of the Guards, when volunteering yesterday said: "I don't care what I do. Send me to Nine Elms to haul heavy stuff about." He was, however, put to work as a porter at Waterloo.

Road motorcar passenger services continue to develop. Fifty-five shillings, the fare from London to Manchester in a luxurious car, compares very favourably with the first class railway fare of 39s 6d. Passengers leave London at 10 a.m., lunch at Coventry and arrive at Manchester at 6 p.m. Similar services from London to Birmingham and other provincial towns are all run by private companies, but in conjunction with the Ministry of Transport.

FALL OF THE MIGHTY.

HINDENBURG EFFIGY TO GO.

The nail studded statue of Hindenburg is about to be removed from the place in the front of the Victory Monument in the centre of Berlin.

The authorities, with unconscious humour, announce that the removal will be carried out with "the deepest respect for the feelings of the Fatherland."

PRESIDENT WILSON.

ALL ENGAGEMENTS CANCELLED.

President Wilson's illness turns out to be serious and although a slight improvement in his condition is reported he must go into complete seclusion. Accordingly the receptions of the King and Queen of the Belgians and of Viscount Grey, the British Ambassador, have been postponed indefinitely.

EX-INTERNED CIVILIANS MEET.

On Wednesday evening German civilians who were expelled or have been repatriated from Allied countries, formed themselves into an Association. Dr. Hammann presided, and informed the meeting of decisions emanating from Berlin.

Those who left neither property or funds behind them will receive 3000 marks. Fifty per cent. ad valorem will be paid those who suffered through the sequestration of property etc. One milliard marks has been allocated by the German Assembly for this purpose.

It is unlikely that German private property or effects in England will be confiscated.

STRIKES IN AMERICA.

America, the land of big things, is out after the strike record. A statistical bureau announces that about 2,000 strikes are actually in progress. The monthly increase is as follows:—January, 105; February, 110; March, 102; April, 134; May, 219; June, 245; July, 364; August, 308.

Great anxiety is felt concerning the trike of metal workers which is announced for the 22nd of this month. These strikes are not for wages or hours but have as their definite object the expropriation of capital.

College servants at Cambridge have agreed that their demands for more pay shall be submitted to arbitration.

The fifteenth instalment of the Royal Warrant appears on page 3.

ARMY SUPERSTITIONS.

To the students of types, Tommy in his whims and weaknesses must have provided a rare and refreshing source of study. Few who have been thrown into close contact with him will fail to have been attracted by his fancies; his adaptability and above all, his unfailing fund of humour. He is an enigma, a fatalist, a worshipper of superstition, a good fellow.

His leanings in the direction of superstition, are unique. He would be the first to disclaim his weakness and indignantly deny its existence, yet in trench, dugout and billet there existed small idiosyncrasies which stamped him as a worshipper at the shrine of superstition.

There is the old match superstition, the refusal of a third to light a cigarette from one match even when matches were regarded as a real possession. Strange as it may seem, those who were inclined to pooh-pooh the idea secretly observed it.

In contrast we have the respect shown for a magpie and the fact that he has earned a salute as a source of spell breaking.

Who, on the other hand, has not respected the black cat superstition at some time or other? Possibly the mascot was only of the stuffed variety, yet it served its purpose, gave comfort; and good fortune or escape from injury were attributed to the protection it afforded.

A personal reminiscence will be excused. One day in the war, a small black kitten appeared on the parapet of a front line trench from where no one knew. Counter front line barrage work on the part of enemy gunners stove in neighbouring trenches, but the platoon in the centre escaped a casualty. It would be of little use trying to convince Tommy that his leaning towards superstition was not responsible.

"I attribute my luck to a pet black cat which was given me as a mascot in France." This is the view of the winner of the Army Victory St. Leger sweepstake. His success he attributes to luck.

The old belief in superstition prevails. How much more was it likely to survive when one's life counted for nothing in the general destruction of things? Few will cavil at Tommy for his weakness or his beliefs.

BILLETS.

From cellar to chateau, from barn to brewery, and even under the ubiquitous "bivvy" sheet.

During the course of the war many of us can remember the variegated assortment of billets we have occupied whilst on the line of march.

It hardly mattered how nice a billet happened to be, we always had some fault to find with it, but that was only a matter of form.

It was considered a privilege to "grouse."

The Brigade had been on the trek since earling morning.

The billeting party had gone on in advance to get the lie of the land and to arrange billets.

Hour after hour we had trekked under a broiling sun, with just the customary halts for water and a rest for the horses.

Entering a small village a figure comes to meet us.

It is one of the billeting party. No; this is not our village. Our halting place is three kilometres farther on.

He has just spotted the head of the Column in time to emerge from an estaminet and assume an attitude of having just met us.

And so another three kilometres. At last. Here is the village where we are to spend a few hours. What a dreary looking place it is, are our first thoughts.

"Sergeants' Mess" is chalked on the only estaminet to be seen. "Q.M. Stores" is the legend adorning a nice little house in the main street.

One might almost have guessed this. Look at that pretty girl standing in the doorway.

Trailing through the village the Battery pull into an adjacent field and soon lines are stretched from limber to limber and the animals are contentedly munching their oats.

"Fall in!" And then away we go to be introduced to the billets allotted to us.

This time it is a barn. There is an abundance of straw (and other things) and a very few minutes suffice for each and every one of us to stake claim to a particular spot, before we scurry off to see what the cooks have ready for us to satisfy the inner man.

But it was not always a barn. Sometimes it was a cottage with a large spare room. Here we all crowded in much to the confusion of the good lady of the house. It needed but a very slight introduction for us all to crowd into the kitchen there to imbibe coffee.

A brewery makes a splendid billet. I remember sleeping in the grain room of one and enjoying it. There was a comforting air of warmth about the place.

Quite a tit-bit in the way of billets was a deserted chateau which held the Battery comfortably. True some of the rooms were a trifle musty but that only served to give an air of distinction to the place, and I often think of a pleasant night spent in Pont-St-Pont near Waterloo, in a lace factory. It was one of those in which the celebrated Brussels lace was manufactured, although it had ceased work for some considerable time.

What a trail of chalk markings the Army must have left during the course of its travels in France and Flanders!

HAWKEYE.

AN UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIAL.

After digesting the numerous and varied puff-paragraphs and articles concocted by Brains, Ltd. — the mind-training experts — I was horrified to discover that, after all, I was possessed of a very third-rate thinking apparatus!

These literary jewels from the volatile pens of Master Minds soon convinced me of the futility of continuing life burdened with a brain so inefficient as my own. The only alternatives were: suicide, and the mind-improving course as offered by this remarkable concern!

"Have you a good memory?" screamed the advertisements! This was surmounted by an arresting lithograph of an exceptionally severe and forbidding physiognomy, the owner of which levelled, with unerring persistency, an accusing digit at the reader.

It then propounded a series of startling conundrums, and, serenely conscious of their bafflingness, instructed the aspirant to psychological perfection to append his replies thereto "spontaneously, and without outside reference," whereupon the promoters promised to supply full particulars of their mind-training course and also the first lesson — free of all charge and obligation.

Here was my opportunity to develop into a veritable super-man!

But, first, I must endeavour to provide suitable answers to the test questions, and this I did to the best of my ability.

The completed document read:

1. Q. How many paving-stones exist between your home and the railway station?
A. None. All the paving is asphalt.
2. Q. How many volts are used to drive the local tram-cars?
A. Again, none. We use electricity.
3. Q. What is the meaning of: "Honi soit qui mal'y pense"?
A. I cannot say. I am not conversant with Latin.
4. Q. What town in the British Isles boasts of having produced the greatest number of poets?
A. Bigglesville, but it doesn't boast.

Attaching the various coupons, vouchers, and application forms, I posted the whole to Messrs. Brains, Ltd., and then feverishly awaited a reply.

Some days later I was overjoyed to receive a communication from this firm of brain specialists. The letter intimated that the paper of test questions and answers had been examined by their "special Commissioner" who had classified my allotment of grey-matter as "C 3."

It continued:

"We are sending herewith Lesson 1. of the series (gratis) and trust that you will conscientiously study the mental exercises, advising us when you are ready for Lesson 2."

Then followed remarks relative to payment required for the rest of the Memory Course.

Someone recently asked me if Lesson 1. did me any good!

I am afraid not. You see, Brains, Ltd., forgot to enclose it!

H.R.P.

Commencing to-morrow the price of "The Cologne Post," owing to increasing cost of production, has to be slightly raised it will be 35 pfgs. a copy.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views on Many Topics.

REGIMENTAL EDUCATION.

Sir,—I noticed that one of your contributors the other day referred to educational efforts in units as not being successful.

That may be the case in some units — they differ — but I know of many in which education is being carried on most successfully.

Much depends on the Education Officer in charge. If he is not keen then slackness appears in the ranks.

But given due encouragement there is much good work to be done, and one must admit much is being done to improve the education of our troops.

Every assistance and encouragement are given by the Education Staff at G.H.Q. and this is worthy of acknowledgment.

In my unit we are making fine progress, I am pleased to say.

EDUCATION OFFICER.

A PLEA FOR RUGGER.

Sir,—I quite agree that we ought to see the Rugby game encouraged more in Rhineland.

To me, Association does not appeal. I never played it at school or after, and the older form of the game is in my opinion infinitely superior both to play and to watch.

I am afraid football generally isn't being taken up among the troops this autumn as it ought to be, although I know the present difficulties, the uncertainty of our movments and future, the large number of demobilizations etc.

But if football is going to be a big feature with us out here, then don't on any account neglect the dear old "Rugger" game.

If there aren't enough players of it in one unit let us form combined teams with men from a number of units playing together.

I would like to hear the views of other adherents of the Rugby game.

OLD BLACKHEATHIAN.

CLOSING THE CLUB.

Sir,—I am at one with "Lounge." To close the "Earwig Lamp" would be little less than a calamity to British officers in Cologne.

Not all of us are married, and only a small percentage are able to enjoy the society of our wives on the Rhine, and to rob us of our principal meeting place would be unkind, to say the least.

I have made many good friends there and spent many enjoyable hours in its cheerful precincts. And so have many others. Why can't we continue?

Is it because the N.A.C.B. authorities fear it may have to be run at a loss?

If it is true, as I hear, that we are still to remain in considerable force in Rhineland aren't they a little premature in fearing this?

And even if it didn't quite pay, has not the N.A.C.B. plenty of accumulated funds to stand the racket for the benefit of officers generally?

I hope the result of these expressions of disapproval will lead to a reconsideration of the decision to close our own favourite rendezvous.

J. J. C.

PRONOUNCING GERMAN.

Sir,—Some correspondence seems to have arisen out of what was obviously a printer's error. The words written by me were "Rauschen Sie" and not as printed "Rauchen Sie." Perhaps this explanation will satisfy "Substantive Gunner"?

My whole idea in writing was to give you an incident, which was really current matter in relation to the series of articles appearing in your columns.

H. T.

ORCHESTRA CRITICIZED.

Sir,—I am sure that all your readers who visit the Deutsches Theatre appreciate the splendid performances given by the Rhine Army Dramatic Company, but I know that for many the evening is marred by the nerve-racking attempts of the present orchestra.

So far as an outsider is able to judge, the large receipts should enable the management to provide a far better orchestra, especially in view of the fact that the officers and men receive no remuneration.

An attempt in this direction is all that is needed to make the R.A.D.C. the most popular source of entertainment in Cologne.

A.W.

YOUR TEA WILL COST YOU MORE.

Sir,—Long live the old firm! May its business acumen, like the war medals of its staff, increase! Now that the mark is 120 to the pound they have promptly put ten pfennigs on to the price of tea, a none too clean pot being now sold at half a mark, and what tea!

Meanwhile at another Cologne institution which does not issue any bulletins, the pot of tea still sells at ten pfennigs.

Evidently there are others beside the civilian shopkeepers after Tommy now that he has "viel geld."

But I remember Picardy cigarettes and am not surprised; "sack the lot," I say.

Y. A. P.

APPRECIATION.

Sir,—The Editor's "Letter Box" has always been one of the most interesting features of the "Cologne Post" so that many will be thankful for the increased space allotted to us for the further "letting off of steam."

Truly it is the Englishman's privilege to "grouse" over the trivialities of life, but when it comes to the larger issues he is rarely "weighed in the balance and found wanting."

Published in book form what an interesting and instructive collection of "grouses" we should have!

G. A.

CLOSING OF FIELD CASHIER.

Sir,—Why, oh why, has our old friend, the Field Cashier, closed his doors to us? No longer will the possession of A.F.W. 3241 F with the knowledge that there is another withdrawal possible before the end of the month afford comfort. Instead we are at the mercy of the bankers.

Bachelors perhaps are unmoved, but what about the poor old married man? Fancy buying food coupons with the military rate at 120 marks to the pound and the bank obliging with 90. No wonder one hubby was in a bad temper yesterday morning.

BUFF BOOK.

ARE WOMEN CARELESS?

Sir,—How can anybody generalise on such a subject? "Married Man's" experiences with a careless wife may be true but exceptions do not prove any rule.

My husband is a careless man and would be the first to admit it. But that doesn't show that men generally are of the same stamp.

Most mornings when he turns out I have to put his Sam Browne belt under instead of over his shoulder-strap, because in his absent mindedness he omits to do so. And often I find he has put on odd boots.

The keys of his office he frequently forgets, and has to return for them. These are only a few of his acts of carelessness. His is an unmethodical nature.

It's all a matter of temperament. And "Married Man" needs to cultivate a more impartial mind.

He has shown up the failings of his better half in print and I have only done the same with those of my "Hubby" in defence. For apart from this failing of carelessness in small things he is splendid.

CAREFUL WOMAN.

LEATHERED TUNICS.

Sir,—I am sorry to have offended "A Club Worker" and regret that she should have classed me with soldiers of the armchair variety.

As her admiration for her soldier friends is influenced by battle scars in the shape of leathered patches I am digging out an old friend and intend to sport my very beleathered tunic even if it lands me into the arms of the A.P.M.

Now, brother subalterns, please don't copy. Many of you doubtless have similar old friends of earlier days stored away in the recesses of a German wardrobe, but leave the coast clear for

JACKO.

Sir,—An admixture of rough and happy memories will undoubtedly be recalled in the years when, occasionally, the leather patched tunic of service days is brought to light. But why "Leather" should advocate, in your issue of yesterday, the wearing of these garments in respectable Cologne I cannot understand.

The duties of the average officer nowadays are by no means strenuous and I certainly cannot imagine a man, doing corresponding work in England, decorating his blue serge suit thus, even remenbering the present price of clothing.

LOOT.

GERMANS IN OUR CINEMAS.

Sir,—On going to No. 2 Army Cinema to-night I was greeted with what seems to be coming rather frequent "Standing Room Only."

Other comrades who had received the same cheerful welcome were still standing just outside the entrance earnestly discussing this problem — why are German civilians allowed into an Army Cinema which, as far as we are aware, is for British and Allied Troops only? Can anyone enlighten us? We wonder why the authorities let such things go on.

If Germans are allowed to go in, let them wait until all our own boys who wish to do so may have that chance.

It is not always convenient for us to be there fifteen or twenty minutes before starting time to ensure ourselves of procuring a seat, and because we come along about 6 o'clock this is what we get. What do others think?

SURPRISED.

TEACHING BRITISH CHILDREN.

Sir,—"A Mother" writes from the fulness of her heart, rather than from her knowledge of facts.

Does she realize how few are the spare hours of the voluntary workers in the Y.M.C.A. and other institutions, and to ask that these few spare hours should be spent teaching other people's children, whether in an "airy room" or not, seems rather unreasonable.

Are the wives and mothers, at present in Cologne, so fully occupied that they have no time to spare for the education of their children, or do they not feel themselves competent to take the task, even though "some sort" of schooling only is suggested?

VOLUNTARY WORKER.

WAR MEDALS FOR ALL.

Sir,— As I was not fit to be in the Army, I joined up in one of the Associations with the Army at the earliest possible moment, having come at top speed many hundreds of miles to England, so soon as the war broke out, in order that I might do my "bit".

During the war, I spent no inconsiderable time continuously, on more than one occasion, underground, within a few hundred yards of the German front line.

I took my turn, with many eager volunteers, in the support trenches giving away tea, cigarettes, biscuits and chocolates to many hundreds of men every night.

During a two day's battle, a number of us were in charge of "the walking wounded", helping them to a dressing-station.

One of us was blown up and rendered unconscious for some hours; in other parts, at various times, many were wounded and others were killed. I have had no pay; and I have paid all my own expenses, including those of the journey to England.

I came on to Cologne when the Armistice was signed; and am prepared to carry on so long as the privilege is extended to me of being with the Army, in which, alas, I am not qualified to be.

There are many in the Associations with the Army, and especially perhaps in the Y.M.C.A. which has the longest record, who have a similar and more satisfactory record.

I fail to understand that "Amazed" or any other generous man should be found to dispute their right to wear a badge which is worn without dispute by many hundreds of men, such as the Army bakers, who spent all their time in relative safety and comfort, at a Base.

For my part, I consider that all badge wearing whereby one proclaims the length of one's service, or the quality of one's courage, or the number of one's wounds, is a vulgarity and ought to be condemned as "bad" form.

* Clerks who are classified as such after the prescribed tests only are included. Soldiers employed temporarily as clerks are not treated as "tradesmen" durin such employment but receive such additional pay as may be applicable under the Pay Warrant.

Conditions for the issue of Proficiency Pay.

1. All soldiers (except boys) up to and including lance-serjeants who draw pay under sub-section (i) of paragraph 1 of Table 1 are eligible for proficiency pay, with the exception mentioned in paragraph 8 below. Soldiers up to and including lance-serjeants who draw pay under Table 2 and are not paid at tradesmen's rates are also eligible. Soldiers who draw pay under sub-section (ii) of paragraph 1 of Table 1 are not eligible for proficiency pay.

2. The rate of proficiency pay is 6d. per day.

3. In order to become eligible for proficiency pay a soldier, of whatever rank, must—

(a) Have at least 1 year's service with the Colours.

(b) Be in all respects physically capable of performing the duties of his rank in the arm of the service to which he belongs.

(c) Attain a standard of professional and educational proficiency as laid down from time to time by the Army Council.

4. Proficiency pay will be issuable irrespective of the length of the engagement under which the soldier is serving with the Colours.

5. Lance-serjeants, corporals and lance-corporals will not be entitled to draw proficiency pay in virtue of their rank, but will in all cases be required to satisfy the conditions laid down in paragraph 3.

6. Proficiency pay may be withdrawn by a soldier's commanding officer if, in his opinion, the soldier falls below the requisite standard. It may be restored if the soldier subsequently re-attains the standard from the date of his re-attaining it.

7. A soldier transferred to another arm in which proficiency pay can be granted will continue in receipt of any proficiency pay which he may be drawing at the time of transfer pending the result of the next classification in his new arm.

8. A soldier enlisted for service as a tradesman and drawing normal rates of pay while he is learning a trade is not eligible for proficiency pay.

9. The general conditions of Articles 1063, 1067 and 1068, Pay Warrant, will apply to the grant of proficiency pay under this Warrant.

TABLE 5.

Soldiers' Service Pensions.

"SOCIAL" AT HILDEN.

Presentation To 52nd Bn. Rifle Brigade R.Q.M.S.

A POPULAR M.O.

On Saturday evening last the members of the Sergeants' Mess of the 52nd Bn. The Rifle Bde. assembled to do honours to one of the most popular warrant officers it has been their privilege to serve. For this purpose a social evening had been arranged, and it is only giving credit where credit is due to say that the function was a thorough success in every way. R.S.M. A. Goode, M.M., was the genial chairman and he was well supported in the absence of Col. E. P. E. Riddel, C.M.G., D.S.O. by Major Woombell M.B.E., Capt. Hawkins, M.C., Capt. Mase, Capt. Coulson, Capt. Baynes, and other officers and warrant officers and sergeants of the 52nd Bn. and 53rd Bn. R.B.

An exceptionally good musical programme was rendered, foremost amongst many pleasing items being the selections of a first-rate orchestra, whilst songs, recitals, etc. were contributed by members of the company.

Coffee Set Presented.

During an interval in the musical programme Major Woombell, M.B.E. presented to R.Q.M.S. Blanchard a souvenir as a parting gift from his fellow members of the mess on his leaving the Battalion for demobilization. In an excellent speech Major Woombell expressed regret at losing so able a warrant officer. R.Q.M.S. Blanchard, he remarked, had carried the onerous duties of his post to the satisfaction of everyone. He hoped when he returned to civilian life he would always remember the happy times he had spent in the battalion. R.Q.M.S. Blanchard in joining up at the beginning of the war had given up a great deal for the service, and handed him the silver coffee set with the best wishes of the officers and members of the 52nd Battalion of the Rifle Bde.

R.Q.M.S. Blanchard in accepting the gift made appropriate response, expressing the hope that they might meet again on a future occasion, and that the friendships made during the war might be of lasting duration.

It was announced that Capt. Shaw (M.O.) was also shortly leaving the Battalion and this too was a source of regret to all, for during the time he had been with the Battalion as medical officer he had become most popular as a sportsman in addition to having carried out his duties always with a kindly consideration for the men under his charge.

The health of the guests of the evening having been duly honoured, that of the "Officers" being submitted in an apt speech by R. S. M. Goode, M.M. and responded to by Major Woombell, the remainder of the evening was devoted to music and merriment by quite a host of talent and the function will be remembered as one of the happiest in the annals of the Battalion.

HOCKEY.

51st North'd. Fusiliers v. 12th Loyal North. Lancs.

Played at Bonn on Wednesday. The game opened in fine style, the Fusiliers pressing hard. Flay remained in the Lancs. 25 yards for some time after which Lieut. Ruddock put the ball in the net with a good shot. The Lancs. equalised shortly after and 2/Lieut. Greaves put the Fusiliers ahead just before the interval. Half-time: Fusiliers 2; Loyal North Lancs. 1.

After the interval, play proceeded in the rain, the Lancs. trying hard to equalise, but failing through good play on the part of the Fusiliers' defence. Major Arkwright played well in goal for the visitors.

Result: Fusiliers 2; Loyal North Lancs. 1.

HOCKEY MATCHES WANTED.

Captain Hume Wright, Military Fowarding Officer, Cologne, is desirous of fixing up hockey matches with his eleven, known as the Transportation team. Two hockey elevens at least exist in Rhineland and more may be in the making. If any of these teams get into touch with Captain Wright he will speedily arrange for fixtures in the immediate future. Ring up the M.F.O.

"Mule National."

The London Division Artillery are holding a Mule Gymkhana on Saturday next October 4th at Westhoven. The three races open to the Army of the Rhine have attracted big entries. A Field of 34 in the Open Officers' "Mule National," a one-mile Steeplechase, should give speculators, with a good eye for a mule, a sporting chance. The first race starts at 14-00 hours. The Course is reached by the Westhoven tram which starts from the Suspension Bridge (not the Hohenzollern Bridge) at frequent intervals.

£590 GOLF TOURNEY.

Great Duncan-Ayton Match In Third Round.

WALTON HEATH RESULTS.

There was a lot of good golf at Walton Heath in the 2nd and 3rd rounds of the £590 Tournament and there was also a great deal of indifferent golf. One saw the great players winning hole in bogey; and one saw also some terribly bad "halves." But most of it was interesting golf, and especially was this the case in the Duncan-Ayton match.

Details:—

Second Round.

G. Gadd (Rochampton) beat A. Baker (Limpsfield) at the 19th hole.

H. Roberts (Holmer) beat H. J. Fernie (Northumberland) 6 and 5.

J. W. Gaudin (Alwoodley) beat W. H. Horne (Durbat) 3 and 1.

P. Rainford (Reddish Vale) beat Arthur Mitchell (E. Sussex) 3 and 2.

G. Duncan (Hanger Hill) beat C. R. Smith (W. Middlesex) 6 and 5.

L. Ayton (St. Andrews) beat B. P. Weastell (Stinchcombe Hill) 4 and 3.

S. Whiting (Ilkley) beat J. Adwick (Olton) 3 and 1.

R. May (Benton Park) beat W. H. Ball (Bangor) 3 and 2.

E. Risebro (Sheringham) beat R. G. Wilson (Croham Hurst) 4 and 2.

T. Williamson (Notts) beat C. H. Mayo (Burhill) 2 up.

Josh Taylor (Acton) beat T. E. Grant (Tenby) 2 and 1.

F. Robson (Cooden Beach) beat F. Leach (Northwood) 3 and 2.

S. Wingate (Ravensworth) beat E. Bannister (Sandy Lodge) 1 up.

R. Jones (Wimbledon Park) beat A. Havers (Norwich) 2 up.

Abe Mitchell (Sonning) beat B. Seymour (Molesey Hurst) 1 up.

C. Johns (Purley Downs) beat J. Scarth (Doncaster) 5 and 4.

Third Round.

Roberts beat Gadd at the 19th:
Rainford beat Gaudin 3 and 2.
Duncan beat Ayton at the 19th.
Whiting beat May 6 and 5.
Williamson beat Risebro 5 and 3.
Robson beat Taylor 6 and 5.
Jones beat Wingate 4 and 3.
Abe Mitchell beat Johns 2 and 1.

SERGEANTS AT FOOTBALL.

Sgts. 51st Northumberland Fusiliers v. Sgts. 1/6th West Yorks.

Played at Sulz on Wednesday. Sgt. Spencer put the Fusiliers ahead after ten minutes play. After the interval the West Yorks equalised. The game proved very fast towards the finish and in the last ten minutes the West Yorks scored from a penalty. For the Fusiliers, C.S.M. Murray, C.Q.M.S. Martin, Sgts. Osborne, Wrightson, and Thompson played very well, and for the visitors the goalkeeper kept goal in fine style.

Result: West Yorks, 2; Northumberland Fusiliers, 1.

OLD RIVALS.

8th Vet. Hospital v. Rhine Army Troops M.T. Coy.

The meeting of these two teams on the Hospital ground on Wednesday was looked forward to by each side with more than usual interest, owing to the tussles they had last season. An enjoyable game, both from the players and spectators point of view, resulted in a win for the Rhine Army Troops by the only goal scored. The point was notched by Cpl. Widdowson midway through the second half, after one of his characteristic dashes between the opposing backs, the goalie having no chance. Result:—

Rhine Army Troops M.T. Coy.	1
8th Vet. Hospital	0

A SPLENDID RECORD.

The following is the unbeaten record held by B/246 Bde. R.G.A. this season:—

v. G/246 Bde. R.F.A.	4—0
v. A/246 Bde. R.F.A.	14—1
v. 51st Rifle Bde.	6—4
v. M.T. Column Light Div.	4—2
v. 51st Rifle Bde.	3—0
v. 53rd Rifle Bde.	7—0
v. 3rd Light Bde.	8—1

P.	W.	D.	L.	F.	A.
7	7	0	0	46	8

It would be interesting to know if there is a team in the Rhine Army who could beat B/246 Bde. R.F.A. on their present form.

Chess.

The 12th L.N. Lancs. would be glad to arrange matches with any other Battalions in the Rhine Army—five boards. They are running both officers' teams and an O.R.'s team. Battalions desiring to arrange matches with them, please address to the sports officers.

RACING SUSPENDED.

Newmarket Meeting Abandoned at Request of Government.

TUESDAY'S DETAILS.

Tuesday's Newmarket programme was carried through, but at the request of the Government the remainder of the meeting has been abandoned. Details of the racing are as follows:—

Trial Plate.—Troutsdale (Wheatley), 2-5, 1; Le Vergoier, 4-1, 2; Ring Again, 20-1, 3. 5 ran.

October Nursery (Div. I.).—Fair Simone (Martin), 11-10, 1; Deslioni, 7-2, 2; Abdicate, 100-7, 3. 9 ran.

Foal Stakes.—The Midshipmite (A. Smith), 10-11, 1; Viceroy, 2-1, 2; Carapace, 100-15, 3. 5 ran.

Tuesday Plate.—Internationale (Wing), 7-2, 1; Quartz, 5-1, 2; Sybilline, 5-2, 3. 13 ran.

Buckenham Stakes.—Southern (Fox), 6-4, 1; Archaic, 9-4, 2; Poltava, 2-1, 3. 3 ran.

October Nursery (Div. II.).—Hecla (Whalley), 11-2, 1; Creole, 7-1, 2; Indenture, 100-7, 3. 9 ran.

Produce Stakes.—Scatwell (A. Smith), 4-9, beat Neutral, 9-4. 1 ran.

Visitors' Plate.—Atrocity (Garnett), 5-1, 1; Trogon, 9-4, 2; China Doll, 3-1, 3. 11 ran.

CANCELLED SPORT.

Racing, Golf and Football Fixtures abandoned.

The Stewards have cancelled the Alexandra Park fixture for Saturday.

The football match arranged between the English League and the Irish League at Liverpool next Monday has been postponed.

The fixture between the Southern League and the Irish League at Dublin on Saturday has met the same fate.

The championship show of sporting terriers, arranged to be held on Wednesday in the Holland Park Rink, Kensington, was by the permission of the Kennel Club, postponed.

The golf match between strong sides of lady and gentlemen players, which was to have taken place on Tuesday at Stoke Poges, was also postponed.

The sale of yearlings by Tattersall should have commenced on Wednesday but this was similarly postponed.

"MACLEAN CHALLENGE CUP."

Player's Leg Broken in C/50 v. B/50 Match.

This match which was the deciding game of the league was played at Elsdorf on Wednesday afternoon before a large and enthusiastic crowd. Immediately from the start "C" went away with a swing, and after a little duel round the "B"'s goal, the ball was sent out to McCarthy who promptly whipped it across, and Gregory scored the first goal after three minutes play. The "B"'s goalie played a sterling game, and it was largely due to him that half time arrived with "B" only one goal down.

At the restart, the rain was falling briskly, making the ground very slippery. Lieut. Lee struck the crossbar with the goalie hopelessly beaten. Twenty minutes from the restart "C" scored their second point. After a bout of midfield play Logan slung the ball out to the left, and Lawson taking it on the run, outwitted the visitors right back, and registered the second goal, with a lovely low shot, at 20 yards range. Later Donovan centred beautifully but both Logan and Gregory missed the ball, owing to the slippery state of the turf. Just hereabouts, a regrettable accident occurred, the more so because it marred a really pleasant game. The home centre half was making rapid headway for the "B"'s goal, when he was tackled by Chaplain Both fell to the ground, and it was found that the "B"'s defender had sustained a broken leg. Both sides resumed with ten men, and consequently the play deteriorated towards the end. Time was called with "C" leading by two clear goals, a lead they thoroughly deserved.

Southern League Matches.

The Emergency Committee of the Southern League have informed all Southern League Clubs that they are expected to fulfil Saturday's engagements.

Kalk Y.M.C.A. Shield.

On Monday, at Deutz, the 63rd Bde., R.G.A. defeated R. Flotilla, R.N. 2—0 and will thus play in the 3rd round against 3rd B Battery 190th R.F.A.

On Saturday, in the same round, the 53rd Northumberland Fus. will oppose the 28th Royal Fus.

AMUSEMENTS AND RECREATIONS.

"Hindle Wakes."

The plot of "Hindle Wakes," Stanley Houghton's delightful three act play, is simple but thoroughly effective. The scene is laid in a small Lancashire town and the dialogue, in its presentation, requires a decided northern accent as a natural consequence. Several members of the Rhine Army Dramatic Company fall rather short in this respect, in submitting the play at the Deutsches Theatre, Cologne, this week. Otherwise the performance is thoroughly good. The story concerns the affairs of the pretty daughter of a cotton weaver, who leaves the Wakes at Blackpool and motors over to Llandudno with the son of the mill owner for the week-end. The fact is accidently disclosed to the girl's parents and subsequently communicated to those of the youth.

* * *

With one accord they agree that the couple should marry and they proceed to make arrangements accordingly. The boy and his former fiancee break off their engagement. The ideas of the girl delinquent are never consulted upon the matter until there is a meeting of all the parties concerned in the mill-owner's house. She then calmly announces, when the marriage arrangements are almost completed, that she does not intend to wed the boy at all. General annoyment follows. The girl is informed that henceforth there is no room at home for her and the boy leaves smilingly to re-propose to his former sweatheart. The book is extremely well written and sparkles with clever dialogue.

* * *

Miss Inez Bensusan is extraordinarily successful as Mrs. Hawthorn, the flint-hearted mother of the girl. Her every gesture and facial expression are remarkably true to life and she loses no opportunity to give the part a full measure of effect. Fanny Hawthorne, the wayward girl in the story, is admirably sustained by Miss Shirley King. Her role is a long and difficult one, and many and varied are the emotions to be observed. Miss Kings fills all requirements splendidly. Miss Frances Chisholm makes a perfectly charming Beatrice Farrar while Miss K. Beale, a successful Mrs. Jeffcote, and Mrs. Oates, as Ada, complete the female members of the caste.

* * *

Capt. C. Spiegelhalter, Lancashire Fusiliers, as Christopher Hawthorne, experiences no difficulty in giving the requisite accent to his speeches, but Lt. D.A. Onions, Monmouth Regt., occasionally overlooks this little item in the important part of Alan Jeffcote. Both, however, are extremely good. Lt. Humphrey Hope R.E., as Sir Timothy Farrar, adapts himself with considerable skill, as usual, but undoubtedly, one of the best performances in the play in that of Lt. Linford, R.A.F., who fits the part of Nathaniel Jeffcote very well indeed and acts with conspicuous success. Altogether, this newest effort, produced by Lt. S.E. Percy, sustains the excellent reputation of the B.R.A.D.C.

To-night's the Night.

To-night is the occasion of the great gala benefit performance at the Palace Theatre. As I said yesterday all the stars will be there and the house will be packed to its utmost capacity. The booking is particularly brisk and it behoves you to get along to the booking office early if you wish to reserve seats.

A Successful Tour.

"The Mountebanks", the 93rd Bde. R.G.A. concert party, have completed a very successful tour in the Light Division area, where, at each town visited, full houses have been the rule. The party includes several first rate artistes. L. Vigar, who is appearing at the Palace, Cologne, benefit performance on Friday, is a splendid character comedian, and as a low comedian Lieut. Griffiths is genuinely funny. Capt. R. Andry, who runs the show, makes a charming girl.

A Pianoforte Recital.

There is to be, I hear, a pianoforte recital at the College, Commerstrasse, Euskirchen on Friday, 10th October, by Archie Mozley, the well-known pianist, assisted by Alfred Barker, the violinist, and Miss Hammond is the vocalist. Pte. Will Hartley will be the accompanist. It is Mozley's first recital in Rhineland and will attract quite a lot of attention. I have seen a programme and I was much impressed by the range of the items. The recital commences at 7 p.m.

To Those . . . etc.

It will be fresh in many minds that "Little Tich" once walked off a famous London stage when he was first turn, because the late comers annoyed him and spoilt his act. One is apt to think that many frequenters of the Deutsches Theatre have yet to hear of this occurence. The annoyance and irritation of both players and those who witness the performance, caused by the shuffling and movements of late-comers endeavouring to reach their seats, tends to spoil one's evening. The curtain rises at 6 p.m. and I hope ticket-holders and others will attempt to reach the theatre at least a few minutes before the stated time.

Bad Taste.

Why will many of our troops persist in making unnatural sounds when any of our artistes, following the "book," attempt a kissing scene? It shows a sad lack of taste and understanding. To-day many wives are present in our cinemas and theatre, and one would fain ask of the thoughtless ones if they were in the company of a lady would they act so? I think not, and if this catches the eye of any of the offenders, I trust they will see reason and refuse in future to participate in any action which savours of bad taste.

OLD SCOUTS NOTES.

On Wednesday, at Lindenthal Y.M.C.A., the Rhine Army Old Scouts met as usual in the music room and spent a very pleasant evening finishing up with a good old sing-song.

Two new members were enrolled, but more are wanted. The circle is open to all members of the Boy Scouts Association, or those interested in that movement.

On Saturday we are going to Siegburg if the weather permits, meeting at the Bonn car Hohenzollern Bridge at 1.50 and proceeding by the 2 o'clock car Any members at Siegburg or district could meet us at Siegburg about 3.15.

If wet we propose to visit the Natural History Museum near the N.A.C.B. canteen by the river.—Old Scout.

Australian Cup.

The qualifying round for the Ladies' Australian Cup was played at Hanger Hill this week, the four ladies who qualified being: Mrs. Woodward, 87, less 5—82; Mrs. Schidrowitz, 98, less 16—82; Mrs. MacIntyre, 97, less 14—83; and Mrs. Jameson, 112, less 21—91.

MONEY FOR SKILL.

Swell The Prize In Our Football Competition.

If every member of the Rhine Army had a shot at winning our football skill competition, the fortunate individual who forecasted the results of Saturday's matches would be in a position to live in luxury for quite a considerable time.

The more entries there are, the greater will be the prize money. But whatever anybody else does don't neglect your opportunity. Somebody has to win the prize offered and you might just as conceivably be the fortunate one as anybody else.

Last week the prize money amounted to 1,400 marks, which would have been quite a useful amount to win had any one individual successfully forecasted the winning teams in all the matches given. No competitor succeeded in this, however, but the ten whose coupons contained only one error were rewarded with 140 marks each.

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 2,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S./40 Rhine Army.

List of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

FOOTBALL COMPETITION No. 2.

Date of matches, Saturday, Oct. 4th.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Scottish Golf.

Next year's competition for the Scottish Amateur Golf Championship will be held at Gleneagles, Perthshire, on July 26.

Atherstone Hunt.

To the great satisfaction of her old followers, Mrs. Inge has come to the rescue of the Atherstone country. It had been without a Master since Aug. 1.

Coming Back.

Former feather-weight champion, Abe Attell is coming back to the game, and so is ex-champion Johnny Coulon. The latter is angling for a 4-round bout with Wilde.

Sincere Thanks.

Mr. H.L. Collins, captain of the Australian Imperial Forces cricket eleven, on behalf of the team, has sent a telegram conveying to the cricketing public of England their sincere thanks for the generous support given them during their recent tour of England.

Weeding Out.

Mr. Sol Joel is having a weeding-out sale at the Second October meeting. Rivershore, on which, on more than one occasion, we have been closely concerned, along with Syndian, Racket, Sardis, Pandion, Sundari, Polyscope, and Polygnotus are amongst the lot than come under the hammer.

Offers Declined.

Albert Whalley has declined a couple of tempting offers to ride in India this winter.

Raising "Spuds."

Jess Willard is raising "spuds" on his 640-acre ranch in Kansas. Good job it isn't sugar or he might raise Cain.

A Surprise.

Very few people imagined for a moment that the St. Leger winner, Kaysoe, could be beaten in the Kingsclere Stakes, with odds laid on.

Charlie Trigg.

Charlie Trigg has relinquished his jockey's licence. Will he follow Walter Griggs' example and blossom forth as a trainer?

Backing Dead-heaters.

A dead-heater is reckoned a winner. But many who backed Rich Gift and Pallene lost money at Dunstall Park, for though they dead-heated odds were laid on each in turn and those who laid the odds on lost on the transaction.

Ex-Lancer's Intentions.

Joe Taylor, who served his apprenticeship with John Dawson at Newmarket, intends to ride over fences and hurdles during the approaching cross-country season. He served with the Lancers in France.

Proposed Recreation Ground.

It is suggested that the Severalls at Newmarket should be transformed, as a war memorial, into a recreation ground.

Value Of Stakes.

It is reported that the Jockey Club Stewards are keeping an eye on the value of the stakes being offered by race executives.

Girl Angler's Catch.

Miss A.S. Clay (13), daughter of Lt.-Col. S. Clay, M.P., while fishing on the Spey with fly, caught a salmon weighing 47lb. This is said to be the largest fish taken in the river with fly for over 30 years.

"Bobbies" v. "Otters."

The London City Police, who have up to the present carried all before them in water polo this season, will meet the Otter S.C., holders of the Southern Counties A.S.A. Water Polo championship, in the final, at Buckingham Palace-road Baths, on October 7.

Trotting Meeting.

The directors of the National Trotting Horse Breeders Association have arranged to hold a trotting meeting at Parsloes Park, Barking, Essex, on Thursday, Oct. 9, the whole of the proceeds to be given to St. Dunstan's Day After-Care Fund for Blinded Soldiers and Sailors.

9½lb Trout.

Fishing in the Arun at Pulborough (Sussex), a boy, named Harold Simpkins, of Clapham, caught a fine sea trout of 9½lb.

Selling Platers' Prices.

Are prices of selling platers going down? After winning at Windsor Mr. Bottomley had to go to 1,500gs. to keep Hardbake. At Gatwick on Friday the buying in price was only 830gs.

Varsity Oarswomen.

It is rumoured that an Oxford and Cambridge University Boat Club for Women is shortly to be formed in London, with a boathouse on the Thames, where the girls will practise serious rowing in eights and fours.

Selling Plate King.

Who is the present selling plate king? Mr. Galstaun has a sound claim. He put up a puzzle on Friday by running both Golden Square and Clondir at Newbury, and for a time the pair were equal favourites at 2 to 1 each.

Surrey F.A.

It was stated at the annual meeting of the Surrey Football Association that 80 resuscitated clubs had been elected to the Association. Sixteen clubs have entered for the Senior Cup and 75 for the Junior competition.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Cruelty.

Is there an organisation in Cologne similar to the English R.S.P.C.A.? The question is suggested by an incident which occurred in Schildergasse yesterday afternoon. The driver of a very heavily laden drag was whipping his horse in a most brutal manner. The load was evidently too much for the animal and although there were several German officials of one kind and another in the vicinity they did not even remonstrate with the driver.

The Trink Halles.

Despite the cold weather the drinking kiosks in the streets of Cologne and the other Rhineland towns are still doing a flourishing business.

Clock Ticks.

No doubt encouraged by a recent note in these columns, which expressed surprise at the large number of public clocks allowed to remain out of repair for protracted periods, clock-makers have been getting a hustle on with a vengeance. During yesterday, I traversed most of the principal streets of Cologne and, without exception, all the timepieces were ticking away merrily.

Why?

It has been pointed out to me that, strangely enough, more is invariably charged in the German shops for Woodbine cigarettes than Player's and Gold Flake.

The new Proclamation.

I notice that the new proclamation on the subject of theft by German civilians, the first, I believe, to appear on the hoardings over the signature of Major General Clive, C.B. is attracting considerable attention. Small groups of both sexes are to be seen reading it. The authorities are determined to stop the leakage of Government stores and are taking firm action. Perusal of the reports of police court proceedings at Coblenz convey the idea that this being tackled in a thorough manner by the American authorities.

Unappreciative Folk.

Our criticism of the lack of appreciation shown by audiences at the concerts at the Zoological Gardens was scarcely so severe as that of a German newspaper published in Cologne. Reference is made to profiteers who had gone to the Garden to eat instead of listen of the music.

German Brides: British Grooms.

An order has just been issued concerning marriages of British soldiers to fräuleins. It lays down definitely once and for all that "no marriage between British soldiers and German women before the ratification of the Peace Treaty can be permitted. And only then if and when proper arrangements have been made with the German Government as to the formalities and precautions to be observed. When these have been made, further orders on the subject will be issued." Those are the words of the Army Council. So that's that!

One More Day.

I would advise everyone who wants the "Post" sent to friends or relatives in "Blighty," to hurry up and send in the order form and 12 marks to-day, for from to-morrow the sum necessary will be 15 marks.

"Dusky Warriors."

The cigarette queue at one of the N.A.C.B. canteens was being marshalled by a military policeman, who noticed that a number of dusky warriors were not satisfied with one visit to the counter and were performing what is known as the "follow-my-leader" trick. With the help of dumb signs and gesticulations he managed to convey to them the error of their ways and they were forced to retire, crestfallen, but not without many withering glances of contempt at the representative of law and order.

Shell Shock Confectionery.

Many will have noticed the absence in the confectioners' shops of the dithering, shapeless type of atrocity that masqueraded under the name of confectionery. Now, however, there is something more tangible and perhaps more edible.

Pay Advances.

The closing of the Field Cashier's doors against officers armed with advance pay books is resulting in many complications. For instance, a married officer told me yesterday that he purchased a number of food coupons from the Field Cashier for which he had to pay at the rate of 120 marks to the pound. He then went to Messrs. Thos. Cook and Son to re-line his pocket and his cheque was cashed only at the rate of 90 marks to the sovereign.

The Chamber of Commerce.

I am told that the offices of the British Chamber of Commerce are being transferred to 100 Hohestrasse, Cologne. I understand that Mr. Knott is not taking the recent decision of the Chambers lying down and some interesting developments in this quarter may be expected.

"Clicked."

In a cabaret the other evening might have been noticed that one of the civilian habitues, a dapper little chap of close on forty, was rather better groomed than usual, while in his buttonhole he wore a white rose. My attention had previously been attracted to this individual on account of his somewhat excentric appearance, but this evening he repeatedly consulted his watch besides occasional glances at the clock. At last he disappeared amid expressions from his friends of "Auf Wiedersehen."

Fizz for all.

He was back in an hour as excited as ever and looking as pleased as Punch. The party had been drinking beer hitherto, but the little man on return ordered champagne, the while he shook hands with the company and related his recent experience. It turned out that he was a bachelor who had inserted a matrimonial advertisement in the paper, and had that evening met the fair one by appointment at the Museum at eight o'clock. The white rose he wore for identification purposes.

Take Notice.

Wintertime will come into being on Saturday night at 24.00 hours, when clocks will be put back one hour.

A Clever Woman.

Miss Cicely Hamilton, I see, finds time from her strenuous entertaining duties in Rhineland to write most interesting articles in "The Northern Weekly Leader". This week her contribution is entitled "A German Soldier on the War". Miss Hamilton will be remembered as the author of the most succesful play "Diana of Dobson's."

A Silly Practice.

Why do newspaper boys persist in selling their papers in the entrance hall of the Modernes Cinema? Could not the papers be sold inside the hall before the performance starts? It would save the obstruction and inconvenience on entering the theatre.

Vorsicht.

Troops are warned against accepting any fifty-mark notes which are issued, bearing the following numbers:—A069, G109, F109, E144, H144, D069. They are stated to be false.

"Wat will we do?"

Under this heading appears a highly amusing example of Germanised English praising the features of a game called "Propello." We are indebted to a Solingen reader, a German girl, by the way, for the example:—"On flying out—in the summer-fresh—in hours of recreation—in sea- and other baths—on the strand—to use the time pleasant and wholesame—wellfairly in Good condition—steeling the weakened nerves—to stir up the appetite—inhaling the good, aromatic air with fill respiration? We play Propello! the newest attraction for young and old!"

Cheap, Isn't it?

Though our price from to-morrow will be 35 pfgs. a copy, think what that represents; only about three farthings at the present value of the mark.

No Tips.

When I entered my hotel yesterday I must admit that I rubbed my eyes for on the wall was an intimation from the management in three languages that tipping is forbidden. When I suggested to my waiter that this was something in the nature of a calamity, he took the view that it was of little importance. Imagine my surprise when he declined a tip. To be in Germany and not to tip seems impossible.

Football Judges, Remember.

To-day the second of our football skill contests is closing. Do not miss the chance of a substantial money prize. In the first contest 1,400 marks were distributed.

Souvenir de la Guerre.

Have you seen the souvenir of the war made by German ration coupons? It consists of a small picture and verse framed with multifarious ration tickets pasted on a sheet of cardboard. The verse is a parody of Heine's "Loreley" and begins:—

Ich weiss nicht was soll es bedeuten,
Dass ich so hungrig bin . . .

Welcome Home.

"Welcome Home" reads the message which is to be seen in several of the smaller villages. Evidently this is intended for the returned German prisoners who are dribbling through. There have been many reunions in and near Cologne.

Our Staff.

The whole of the journalistic staff of this paper are officers, N.C.O's and men of the Army, and in case anyone suspects otherwise, I would whisper in your ears that they are working solely for ordinary regimental pay and receive no extra emoluments whatever. Producing "The Cologne Post" is entirely a labour of love with them.

Morris Dancing.

I met Miss Dakin boarding the train for Brühl the other afternoon. She is just as enthusiastic as ever about the Morris dancing she is teaching the boys on the Rhine, and is giving many exhibitions of her pupils' skill every week.

A Little Late!

A Weymouth tradesman, whose son is serving as a captain in the Army of Occupation in Germany, has just had delivered by post a box addressed to his son containing a smoking outfit and a card of greeting, conveying him the best wishes of Princess Mary for a happy Christmas in 1914!

Of The Silent Order.

A common sight in the streets of Cologne is the Trappist monk in his picturesque garb and sandals hurrying along. He seems to have eyes for no one except little children, for whom he has ever a smile. The little ones curtsey, touch the hem of his garment, and the father smiles benignly and makes the sign of the cross in the juvenile face.

RHINELANDER.

VANITY FAIR.

A Feature for the British Woman in Rhineland.

Smoke.

Women's cigarette-holders are amusing in their variety. The smartest are long, gold-mounted tubes of shell, amber or ivory, though many women use the coloured ones which match their earrings, pendant and beads.

From Reason to Folly.

We have seen some neat, reasonable tailor-mades, well worn, and with becoming toques and hats. Now we are beginning to see the most fantastic things—tailor-mades with pannier coats: hats soft, immense, slouched: skirts so short and tight as to make walking difficult, and high draped neck-bands of fur, cachemire, satin, or velvet.

Blue Leather.

The vogue for leather-trimmed hats and garments for autumn and winter wear is producing some very pretty effects. Extremely artistic is a natty motoring cap in which blue leather and beaver are the principal constituents. A blue silk tassel hung cheekily over the wearer's left shoulder completes the latest thing in headgear.

Evening Shoes.

There is charming variety about the latest fashions in evening shoes. Those with the brocade, for instance, are most chic. A particularly pretty shoe is that in which the front is adorned with a large brilliant buckle from which trail strands of pale blue ostrich plumes.

Beads and Bracelets.

Fancy jewellery of all kinds is much in demand. Combinations of coloured stones give novel effects, and pastel shades of blue, green, pink and lavender used in one necklace are distinctly attractive.

Toilet Accessories.

The woman who loves nature need not despise certain clever arts and crafts that assist her to become more comely. It is wise to use pure creams and lotions, free from concoctions. Some who have dry skins, and others with too greasy a complexion, should naturally remedy the deficiencies in their respective cases, which is only common sense. It is far from hygienic to apply powder over a half-clean face, or to use rouge indiscriminately over a dull and jaded one. Discretion is required; and a sense of the fitness of things aids in the betterment of woman's looks.

Tammies.

Noticeable among this year's shapes is the tam-o'-shanter, that has taken unto itself many new lines of late. Mostly following the old rule of being higher one side than the other, it is found with quite a deep bandeau lifting it well away from the face, as well as placed low upon the brows with distinct intentions of covering the eyes. Again, we meet the popular "beret" shape, and also a model that has all the appearance of being four-cornered without actually being so.

Feminine Feet.

I have come to the conclusion that, from an artistic point of view, not more than one woman in twenty should be allowed to show her ankles, writes a male correspondent. This is what I see: Flat feet, feet turned out too much, feet turned in too much; heels too high, heels too low, heels worn off at the outer edge, heels worn off at the inner edge, heels worn off at the back. There are ankles too thin and ankles too thick; ankles like sparrows' legs, ankles like stovepipes, ankles which turn in so much that they seem in imminent risk of breaking. Then there are the high-booted pedestrians. Those with thick ankles cannot make the front edges meet. There are feet which mince and feet which come down like sledge-hammers, and feet which are placed too far apart.

AGNES.

HOW NOT TO CATCH FLIES.

The fly is commonly regarded, and quite rightly so too, as an enemy of mankind, and as such should be destroyed. How to destroy these pests is one of the problems of to-day. A case is reported where a respectable householder hit upon an ingenious plan. The other evening he armed himself with a vacuum cleaner, walked about the house with it, and gloated over the spectacle of the flies being drawn into the tube. Apparently a very successful method. Next morning, however, the maid had an experience similar to that of the King who found the blackbirds alive in the pie. She was almost smothered in a cloud of active insects who celebrated their release from captivity by buzzing round and settling on her head.

WHAT IS SHELL SHOCK?

The term shell shock has misled many persons to believe that it is due to the profound impression or shock produced on the nervous system by the detonations of high explosives. No doubt, there are cases of actual brain or nerve injury due to concussion of the air accompanying shell explosions, but these mechanical causes are a great deal less frequently responsible for war neuroses than the mental effects of general war strain. It is remarkable that these war neuroses, common as they are among privates and officers alike, are seldom found in men who have been actually wounded. Perhaps this seeming anomaly is due to the actual wound-shock offsetting the mental impression affecting the controlling nerve-centre in such cases.

GOVERNMENT WITHHOLDS MEN'S WAGES.

SEEING IT THROUGH.

PUBLIC RESOLVED TO BREAK THE STRIKE.

"The Government is not fighting Trade Unionism. Trade Unionism is recognised as a factor in the industrial life of the country."

"The Government is fighting to prevent extremists of any industrial body from attempting to gain their ends by attacking the life of the community and so bringing untold misery upon thousands of innocent people."

This message from the Prime Minister was flashed on every cinema screen throughout the country yesterday. It gives the lie direct to those agitators who have caused the present strike, and given out that the Government is resolved, in the present conflict, to smash Trade Unionism.

Prospect Improving.

Though the position is still uncertain the "Times" thinks the prospects of a comparatively speedy end to the struggle have improved. It points out, however that the essential condition of lasting success in any resumption of negotiations is that they should not be conducted in an atmosphere of secrecy. This habit of secrecy is a war habit of which the Government should rid itself forthwith.

Situation Unchanged.

The latest communique issued from Downing Street yesterday recapitulates the proceedings between the Government and the Railwaymen at the previous night's meeting and states that the position remains as defined in the Premier's answer to the deputation.

It also states that as a result of the improved railway service one column of milk lorries is already being withdrawn.

The Beginning of the End.

Mr. Lloyd George has received a telegram from an important railway centre stating that a pledge had been obtained from the chairman of a meeting of railwaymen that the men would return to work forthwith if they were assured that wages would not be reduced before the end of next March.

The Premier replied that wages would certainly not be reduced before then.

Strikers' Wages Withheld.

The Government has issued a statement justifying their action in withholding wages, which would have been due for payment to the Railwaymen this week if they had not struck. The statement points out that the men broke their contracts by striking without notice, thus inflicting unexampled injury on the community. The damages to which they are legally liable vastly exceed the payments withheld and the Government would not be justified in making payments which would only be used to prolong the struggle which is endangering the whole life of the nation. Different considerations may arise if an early resumption of work is made.

No Progress to Report.

Reuter learns from a well-informed source that in the conservations with the deputation from the Transport Workers Federation, Mr. Lloyd George did not recede one iota from the condition that resumption of work must precede resumption of negotiations with the Railwaymen.

After the interview the President of the Railwaymen's Union said "There is no progress to report. The proceedings are for the moment adjourned."

As an indication of the eagerness of many of the railwaymen to abandon the fight much significance is attributed to the following passage in a statement made yesterday by Mr. J.H. Thomas.

"To those men in the country and to the branches which are wiring all manner of instructions to the Executive and myself, I merely say 'We are not striking for strikings sake, We will not prolong the dispute an hour longer than is warranted'."

Late on Thursday night the Secretary of the Transport Workers Union stated that his committee would meet on Friday morning after which they may ask Mr. Lloyd George to see them once more. They will then report to meetings of representatives of other Unions which are being requested to consult with a view to the taking of such action which they may deem necessary.

The following communiqué was issued from Downing Street at 5 p.m. on Thursday: "Representatives of the Transport Workers and Associated Unions saw the Prime Minister this afternoon. They retired to confer with the Railwaymen's Executive. The train service continues to improve."

Efforts to Negotiate Fail.

"The efforts made by the Transport Workers to bring about a re-opening of the negotiations with the Railwaymen without resumption of work have definitely broken down." Mr. Thomas made this statement on Thursday night admitting this and added: "Trade Unions whose views on the Government offer are the same as those of the Railwaymen are themselves, before taking any action, making another effort. The Government's action in withholding the men's uages is a grave mistake and will only stiffen the men's backs."

Open Negotiations Wanted.

In connection with this matter of open negotiations the same journal publishes a letter from Lord Robert Cecil headed "Urgent summons to Parliament", in which he says that even if negotiations are resumed it is a question whether Parliament should not be consulted—but if they are not resumed, or if they break down, Parliament should surely be summoned forthwith.

Lord Robert emphasises the fact that in all industrial, as in all international disputes, the great force that makes for peace is "instructed public opinion", while the great enemies of peace are misunderstanding and suspicion.

"It is really incredible that the present crisis could have occurred but for the presence of these elements in the present dispute. For instance, the men have been told that the Government is out to smash Trade Unions. If Parliament were in session this charge could immediately be tested and refuted."

"Conversely, there is grave reason to suspect that extremists among the labour leaders are out to substitute Government by Trade Unions for our present consitution. The charge is denied and we all hope it is untrue, but it can only be adequately disposed of by open debate in Parliament."

Northcliffe's Employees Protest.

The printing machine managers at the Daily Mail office have sent a letter to Lord Northcliffe entering a strong protest against the treatment meted out to the National Union of Railwaymen by the Northcliffe Press.

Lord Northcliffe replied, pointing out all that his press had done for the Labour Party during the recent election and saying that he has no intention of allowing his newspaper to be influenced by anyone, either in this or any other matter. He is entirely satisfied with the attitude of his papers towards this national calamity and rather than submit to dictation will stop publication.

Pessimists Confounded.

Improvement in the train services is increasing and the number of Government lorries picking up workers for the city has greatly relieved the pressure on trams and buses. In yesterday's trek to town the stream of people on the pavement was noticeably thinner. People are gaining confidence and the skill of the volunteer workers on the District and Tube railways is such that the gloomy prophets of disaster are confounded. All trains are filled. In fact it is impossible to notice anything different from usual in the way the trains are driven and the lifts managed.

In many cases volunteers work all day without relief, bringing a lunch basket with them or snatching hasty refreshment at stations where they have established their own buffets. The District service is now extended from Mansion House to Aldgate Street.

Theatrical Slump.

While business people are thus increasingly well catered for, not since the Zeppelin raids have the London theatres suffered such a tremendous slump. Most of the West end theatres and halls are practically empty. Some of the larger "libraries" which during the last twelve months have been doing big advance deals in large blocks of tickets are so badly hit that a meeting of library and theatre managers has been arranged with a view to sharing the loss. In some cases their loss represents between £200 and £300 a day and it is not to the interest of the theatres to allow the libraries to collapse.

Exclusive of the underground services the number of trains run in and out of London yesterday was 2,593 including 190 good trains.

Besides the boat train to Folkestone, the boat trains from and to Dover, connecting with the Ostend boat, were resumed. The Great Eastern "margarine special" also restarted running.

Regents Park is closed to the public. It has been converted into a new food distributing centre, especially for frozen meat, fish and vegetables.

Famous Men In Humble Jobs.

Among the famous and well-known men, who are working hard in this national determination to break the strike, may be mentioned the following:

Lord Lawrence, grandson of the Indian Mutiny hero, is acting as stationmaster on the Metropolitan Railway.

Major Hamilton, D.S.O., of the Grenadier Guards, son of Lord Claude Hamilton, drove a crowded train yesterday from Crewe to Stafford, the passengers being mostly holiday makers from North Wales.

"ROB THE TROOPS".

WARNING TO OTHER SHOPKEEPERS.

A large establishment in the Hohestrasse has been closed by the authorities as a result of not complying with the recent order which makes it obligatory on all shopkeepers to mark in plain figures the price of all articles offered for sale. The order has only been in operation a few days and the majority of business houses have hastened to act in confirmity with it. Some, no doubt, will try to evade it, knowing that Tommy does not generally cavil at the prices charged, exorbitant though they may be.

The manager of one of the leading jewellers in Hohe-strasse stated in an interview that in his opinion the new order was very urgently needed. Personally he had always marked his goods and never made any difference in price to civilians or soldiers. Some of the smaller establishments, however, he knew had reaped a harvest from soldiers, sometimes charging as much as 50 per cent in excess of the prices charged to civilians.

MAIL PLANE CRASHES.

The aerial mails from London to Newcastle got into difficulties through petrol shortage yesterday when nearing its destination. The pilot tried to land the machine on a football ground, but a wing caught the building and the aeroplane was smashed. Lieutenant Sheppard, the pilot, was severely injured about the head but Lieutenant Page, the observer, escaped with a shaking.

Admiral Sir Sackville Cardone, is driving an engine on the Freshwater-Yarmouth (I of W.) railway.

Brigadier General Nicholson is also working on the same line.

Sir R. Cooper M.P., is in charge of a signal box on the District Railway.

Major C.G. Hamilton M.P., Mr. Baldwin Raper, M.P., and Mr. Grahame White are working as motormen.

A large proportion of the volunteers on the underground system are accommodated in a number of hostels. Each hostel is in charge of a "Captain" chosen from the volunteers themselves. One is a Colonel in the Royal Air Force whose present job is that of a gateman on an electric train. Another of these captains is Agent for one of the Colonies and a third is a famous engineering expert. A number of railwaymen and administrative officers from India, Egypt and other parts of the Empire, now in England on leave, are also giving their services.

"Such Quantities to Eat."

The food position continues to improve. All the great London markets report that the motor convoy system, assisted by horse transport, water transport, and to some extent by trains, is proving successful beyond the most optimistic expectations.

The possibility of a sympathetic strike on the part of the Transport Workers causes no alarm. In fact the situation is being coped with as if they were already out and Food Control officials in London are confident of their ability to carry on without their assistance if they do come out.

Plentiful supplies of fish arrived and quantities were despatched to various parts of the country by road and train.

The Government has also arranged to carry fish by their own trawlers from Grimsby to London, Southampton and Brighton, while steam drifters will also carry fish to Northern ports, including Shields and Aberdeen.

It is officially announced that the food position continues most satisfactory. Flour mills are dispatching over 50 per cent of their output, while in London and Hull the distribution from the mills is normal. Potatoes had been running short but two train loads, totalling 550 tons, arrived at Kings Cross during the day. Meat supplies are plentiful. Bacon stocks are ample. In the provinces supplies are but little short of those in London. Milk distribution yesterday was again excellent, reaching 75 per cent of normal. It is very significant that about half the supplies came by rail. Reports from the country were equally satisfactory regarding the distribution of vegetables and fruit.

Provincial Clearing Houses.

As the result of a conference yesterday between the Government and private traders, enormous strides were made in the organisation of the food distribution over the entire country. All trading corporations dealing with foodstuffs, including the multiple shop concerns, have voluntarily placed their resources at the Government's disposal. The country has been divided into twelve areas, the local commissioners of which have been given full powers in dealing with foodstuffs.

Huge clearing houses for food are established and are able immediately to make good for shortages in any district.

Convoys will be run regularly between these clearing houses and the warehouses. Thus, although works are closing and unemployment is increasing, the inhabitants of big towns are not suffering hardships through lack of food as the result of the cessation of railway transport.

Cattle on the Roads.

A curious reversion to old-time practices is the wholesale driving of cattle and sheep from the grasslands in the Midlands to populous towns in the North. There are some 25,000 more bullocks on grass than normally and thousands of them have already been driven by daily stages averaging twenty miles to their destination.

KEEN CRITICS.

SOLDIERS' QUESTIONS TO FAMOUS ECONOMIST.

The lecture by Sir George Paish, at one time editor of "The Statist" and (during the war) Financial Adviser to the Government, attracted an audience that overflowed the Cologne Central Y.M.C.A. at Loreley Hall on Thursday. His subject was the League of Nations. Other lecturers have dealt with this subject in the same hall, but Sir George's treatment of it was peculiarly convincing, as he advanced economic reasons and not sentimental considerations in support of his contention that the League is necessary. He said the League will save the world from the disasters that threaten it as a result of the destruction of means of production, the dislocation of industry, the piling up of debt, the diminution of capital, the waste of food and the general suspicion and unrest caused by the war.

Soldiers as Questioners.

At the close of the Lecture, Sir George invited questions and his audience was not slow to take advantage of the opportunity. One was as much impressed by the intelligence of the questioners as by the lucid, comprehensive and informative replies. The following are some of the problems that were asked and answered:

Will Bradburys depreciate as seriously as the mark; seeing that the issue is greatly in excess of the gold reserve?

Should the Government fix a minimum rate of interest to be charged by Bankers and others in order to encourage borrowing for the purpose of re-starting industries?

Does the depreciation of the mark aid or hinder the recovery of German commerce?

Was not the Prime Minister's statement that our national expenditure is in excess of our reveuue by two millions a day an exaggeration, in view of the fact that his comparison was made between a period at which our expenses were at their highest and our income at its lowest?

The large audience was held in delighted interest for two hours and Sir George was earnestly requested to speak again in the Loreley Hall on his return from Berlin.

BRITISH SOLIDARITY.

FRENCH OPINION OF THE STRIKE.

"It is in circumstances like these that the British nation, needs to be seen," says the "Echo de Paris's" London correspondent writing on the strike, "so as to understand and admire the strength it derives from the respect and even devotion which each individual member of it feels for the community.

"It is this feeling of national solidarity which brought 250,000 volunteers in answer to the Government's appeal for motordrivers. It is the same sentiment which inspires the movement of protest against the strike throughout the country."

NORTH RUSSIAN V. C.

The King has awarded the Victoria Cross to Cpl. A. P. Sullivan, 45th Bn. Royal Fusiliers, for a splendid example of heroism at Sheika River, North Russia. Under intense fire he rescued an officer and three men from a deep swamp into which they had fallen while crossing on a narrow plank.

FRANCE RATIFIES PEACE.

The French Chamber of Deputies has ratified the Peace Treaty by 372 votes to 52. Seventy-three members abstained from voting.

FAMOUS NAME DISAPPEARS.

A Bill was introduced into the Dominion House of Commons at Ottawa yesterday to amalgamate the North West Mounted Police with the Dominion Police under the new title of "Royal Canadian Mounted Police." The force is at present about 2,000 strong.

WAR GRATUITY FOR AUSSIES.

It is understood that the Commonwealth Government of Australia is considering a proposal to pay a war gratuity to all members of the Australian Expeditionary Force. This will involve an expenditure of some five million sterling.

THE "BLACK FAST."

To-day is the Day of Atonement, or "Black-Fast", in the Jewish Calendar. A service will be held in the Loreley Hall, Central Y.M.C.A. Friesen-strasse, at 10.30 hours, and will be conducted by the Rev. H. P. Silverman, Jewish Chaplain to the Army of the Rhine.

VON DER GOLTZ RECALLED.

A Berlin semi-official telegram via Copenhagen says that, according to reliable information, General von der Goltz has been finally recalled from the Baltic Provinces after his endeavours to persuade the troops to withdraw proved unsuccessful.

STRIKELETS.

AL FRESCO MEALS IN HYDE PARK.

At Hyde Park 2,000 substantial meals are served daily to the milk distributors, beginning with a hot breakfast at 6 a.m. and continuing to supper at midnight. Additional marquees are being erected.

One hundred and fifty tons of Dutch margarine arrived in London from Harwich by rail.

Piccadilly tube re-opened yesterday morning with voluntary assistance. As on the District Railway the service will be maintained from 7 a.m. till 7 p.m.

Over 1,500 fresh volunteers signed on yesterday.

A party of public school men are working at Leeds clearing the ashpits of engines and so forth.

The Eccentric Club has placed the services of the club and its 2,000 members at the disposal of the Government.

The Admiralty has issued an order warmly appreciating the manner in which officers and men of the Royal Navy have come to the assistance of the country in the emergency.

Grenadier Guards have taken up duty at Stratford main station.

Yarmouth Corporation has arranged to send 500 stranded visitors to London by motor car. The fare is 27s 6d, children half price. The visitors' own endeavours to charter a steamer were unsuccessful.

The Automobile Association has promised the Postmaster General that thousands of its country members will assist in carrying the mails between distant and rural post offices.

At Cardiff yesterday bluejackets unloaded fourteen vessels and will continue working on eighteen other ships which arrived. The dockers refused to unload the ships but placed no obstacles in the way of voluntary workers removing perishable goods or foodstuffs.

"FROM WAR TO WORK."

NATIONAL PARTY'S CAMPAIGN.

The autumn campaign of the National Party was opened at the Hove Town Hall, Brighton, when a mass meeting was addressed by Sir Richard Cooper, M.P., Brigadier-General A. L. Macfie, and others.

The motto for this campaign is "From War to Work," and a resolution was put at all the meetings against nationalisation, Bolshevism, and direct action, and in favour of drastic economy, security for traders and workers against unfair competition, and wholehearted co-operation of the nation in increasing production.

MORE IRISH TROUBLE.

The Irish question will not be ignored. At a meeting at Belfast to inaugurate a new campaign against Home Rule, a letter was read from Sir E. Carson, in which he wrote:—

"The conspiracy against our civil and religious liberties backed up by cruel assassinations in Ireland and lies and misrepresentations in America to bring about our separation from the British Empire, must be countered by the organisation of all our forces.

"We stand by our convenant in the letter and the spirit, and with God's help we will defeat our enemies as we did before."

IN SPITE OF THE STRIKE.

Large payments by the Government on account of dividends on National War Bonds and other bonds were made yesterday to the extent of over sixty millions sterling. Compared with prices ruling a week ago, Consols show an advance of one to 51½, and War Loan 5 per cents are ⅜ higher at 94⅞. The Home Railway Stocks generally are above last week's prices.

FIRE AT NEW L.C.C. HALL.

Fire broke out at midnight on Wednesday at the partly built new London County Council Hall at Westminster-bridge. Part of the building is occupied by the Ministry of Food. The South-East wing was considerably damaged.

FLIGHT TO MELBOURNE.

The well-known airman Poulet, who intended to leave Paris yesterday on his flight to Melbourne, has been obliged to postpone his departure because the British authorities have not yet forwarded the necessary papers.

AUSTRALIA RATIFIES PEACE.

The Australian Senate has ratified the Peace Treaty. It has also sanctioned the new defence scheme, which provides for an Army of nearly 115,000 men, fully equipped for war.

OUR SIGHTSEEING PRINCE.

The Prince of Wales has been visiting the famous Kootenay mining and fruit growing district. He then proceeded on one of the Canadian Pacific Lake Steamers to inspect the military tuberculosis hospital.

A scheme has been drawn up by the Cambridge school of flying for the formation of a flying club, at a subscription of fifteen guineas per term. An aerodrome has been secured near the town.

WAR IN RUSSIA.

DENIKEN AND KOLTCHAK MAKING PROGRESS.

The most outstanding event in South Russia during the past week is Deniken's rapid advance beyond Kursk towards Veronej, while on most other portions of the front his forces have continued to make progress.

He is now only some 240 miles from Moscow, where the Bolshevists are reported to have proclaimed martial-law.

In East Russia Koltchak's armies continue to push back the Bolshevists, who have now evacuated Tobolsk and appear to be retiring on the whole front.

NORTH WEST FRONTIER.

RENEWED DISTURBANCES.

There are still indications of unrest among the tribes on the North West Frontier of India. On September 19th the post at the head of the Khyber Pass was sniped at, while a picket some ten miles to the N.W. of Tank was ambushed by Mahsuds on the 23rd, a further attack being made on telegraph parties and their escort on the same day. The situation is quiet in Afghanistan.

SPAIN'S PERMANENT WAR.

Madrid papers state that Spanish troops have already occupied Fondak, which is Raisuli's usual place of retreat.

Official reports from Morocco say that fighting continued throughout the 26th September. In order thoroughly to clear the region occupied by the rebels artillery spotting aeroplanes were used and proved especially useful, the enemy being completely beaten and sustaining heavy losses. The Spanish losses were chiefly comfined to native troops, Not a single officer was killed or wounded.

WORLD'S SUGAR SUPPLY.

Information to hand shows the extent to which the sugar industry has suffered in France and Germany from the effects of the war. The coming season in Germany will see about fifty fewer raw sugar factories in operation than in 1913. In France the damage has, of course, been on a vastly larger scale. Before the war there were 250 factories turning out one million tons of sugar annually. The invaders destroyed 150 factories, and to-day the production of sugar is less than 150,000 tons per annum. The world sugar supply has fallen greatly below the demand and will apparently continue to fall.

PRIZE FOR PACIFIC FLIGHT.

To mark the visit of the Prince o Wales to the capital of British Columbia to encourage in Canada development of industry, and incidentally to improve the good feeling between Canada and Japan, Mr. Norman Yarrow, of Victoria, the head of Yarrow's Limited, has offered a prize of £10,000 for the first non-stop flight across the Pacific ocean from Vancouver Island to Japan. The flight is to be made by a lighter-than-air machine, to be manufactured in Canada, navigated and manned by Canadians. The flight must be a non-stop one and must be performed before December 31st, 1921. The award will be made by the Premier of British Columbia.

TO PREVENT TRAFFIC IN ARMS.

The Allied Delegates at the Peace Conference have signed a Convention regulating traffic in arms and munitions. The Convention, which comprises twenty-five articles, is designed to prevent the sale of arms and munitions which exist in enormous quantities at certain points, the indiscrimnate disposal of which might constitute a serious danger to public peace and security. The League of Nations will renew the Convention in seven years' time if occasion demands.

650 PER CENT INCREASE.

The rate of poundage chargeable on money orders payable in the United States of America, other than telegraph money orders, has been increased from 4d for each £1 or fraction of £1 to 2s 6d for each £1 or fraction of £1.

AUSTRIAN AMBASSADOR.

The Zurich correspondent of the Matin wires to that paper that Slatin Pasha has been appointed Austrian Ambassador in London.

KING ALBERT REACHES AMERICA.

The "George Washington," with the King and Queen of the Belgians aboard, arrived at New York on Thursday.

The City's memorial to London troops is to be set up in front of the Royal Exchange. It will take the form of a square panelled pillar, flanked by statues on pedestals of men of the London regiment in full marching order. The designer is Sir Aston Webb.

FIGHTING THE STRIKE.

One soft and muddy morning a Signal Officer and one of his men—a veritable Aeneas and Achates when danger was abroad—were cautiously treading the duck-boards in the treacherous Ypres salient.

Suddenly a shell exploded almost at their feet, burying both of them in a shower of clammy water-logged earth. Simultaneously they sat up, a pair of "muddied oafs," whereupon the officer quietly took his cigarette-case out of his pocket and remarked "Have an Abdullah, Peacock?" They might have been sitting at their ease in a Piccadilly club.

Throughout the war this stolid good humour under conditions of the most trying and vicissitudinous character, which frequently manifested itself even in wild exuberance of spirit, was witnessed time and again. Tommy rapidly became a laughing philosopher.

In the stubborn fight with the railwaymen now raging in Great Britain it is comforting to note that the people of the country are revealing an excellent morale, sustained in many places, particularly among the agile and the young, by a nonchalant hilarity that can only provoke high spirits.

A cartoonist depicts John Bull defiantly exclaiming "Damn 'em, I'll walk" and hundreds of thousands are now gaily tripping to their daily work in these fine autumnal mornings and footing it home again at eventide, who would otherwise be "strap-hanging" with obvious discomfort.

The less sprightly have been exploring their lumber-rooms and some wierd and terrible contraptions have been dragged into the light of day to defy the missing "iron horse" and incidently amuse pedestrians. Ancient velocipedes with sufficient rust and dust to delight an Edie Ochiltree have gaily sallied forth, and the highway smiles again. The pleasant toot of the coachman's horn resounds o'er hill and dale. And we have Dr. Johnson's opinion — not to be lightly disregarded — that the most pleasing thing in existence is to travel accompanied by a pretty woman in a mail-coach.

Wise in their day and generation, the Government have also requisitioned the clerk of the weather, who is duly providing the climatic conditions best suited to the open-air habits which the industrial crisis has imposed. Each fresh and bracing morning gives way to a radiant noon which in turn slowly mellows into a rich and golden dusk.

Dictator Thomas and his friends, as far as they are concerned, could scarcely have selected a more unfortunate time for opening hostilities. Lessons learned during the war are not yet forgotten, and the habit of "doing without" was too recently acquired for the tactics of the conspirators to succeed as they would like. The existence, morever, of so many efficient volunteers for transport work whose war duties taught them much timely and valuable knowledge, has proved equally detrimental to what success the agitators might otherwise have attained.

So long as an ample supply of volunteer workers is assured and there seems to be no dubiety on this point, and the public continue to exercise forbearance and self-denial, there will be less danger of the Executive Committee of the N.U.R. strangling the State and committing suicide. The latter operation is a contingency which the hot-headed malcontents do not appear to foresee. If they are wise they will again sheath the sword as speedily and decorously as they can.

DRAMA IN RHINELAND.

THE WORK OF THE B.R.A.D.C.

The British Rhine Army Dramatic Company has during the five months of its existence become an institution that troops in and around Cologne know well.

From small beginnings it has grown to one of the most remarkable enterprises of the English stage, and with the advent of the Company's 100th performance which takes place next week it might not be amiss to take some slight review of what has been accomplished.

The Company has produced eleven three-act plays, as well as three one-act plays, many of which have been performed not only in Cologne but also in other parts of the occupied territory.

They have been all that is best in modern English literature—Bernard Shaw, Arnold Bennett, Stanley Houghton, Oscar Wilde. They have shown that there is much among those writings that many of us are apt to dismiss with the comprehensive phrase "high-brow stuff" that can and does appeal to anybody.

They have shown that the British stage is not altogether limited to what Americans call "girl-and-music" shows. One proof of this is to be seen at 5.30 any evening outside the Deutsches Theatre. Many a demobilized soldier will carry this knowledge back with him to civilian life and will realize in future that it is not essential to turn to the music-hall for an evening's amusement.

So much has been said and written recently of the degraded state of the English stage that perhaps this aspect of the Company's work is the most striking.

But it is not only in the army of occupation that this is seen. An occasional stray German is to be found in the audience and Germans read "The Cologne Post" widely so that to a section of them at least the B.R.A.D.C. must be known.

With these we hope that our artistic prestige has been raised.

During the war a scheme was proposed by Mr. J. T. Grein for an English Repertory Company to visit neutral countries as an antidote to the German literary propaganda with which those countries were flooded. To a certain limited extent the B.R.A.D.C. is carrying out this scheme.

All this has, of course, meant hard work, the bulk of which has fallen on the shoulders of the producer. The Army of Occupation is fortunate in possessing Lt. S. E. Percy, who is not only capable of bearing the burden but is inspired by sufficient zeal to give his services to the task of carrying it.

Any production, even one in which he does not actually appear, means an immense amount of work for the producer, and if what he actually does were known we should probably be inclined to applaud all the more.

Performances and rehearsals, however, are by no means a holiday for any member of the caste, and the staging of a fresh play almost every week is a proposition that would appal most managers if their performers were actors only in their spare time as in the case here.

In addition to other things it demands keenness, and for the sake of the future efforts of the B.R.A.D.C. we hope that the supply of this may always be as plentiful as it has been in the past.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views on Many Topics.

WHAT DO THE BANKS SAY?

Sir,—Since the Field Cashier has ceased to make advances of pay to individual officers, it naturally remains for either Messrs. Cox or Cooks to supply officers with their immediate wants.

In the case of the majority of officers it is not always possible to come into Cologne before 1 p.m. at which time Cox and Cooks close for the day.

It is realised that both these firms put in a fair amount of work each morning but unless their establishments are available for business during the afternoons as well, I can clearly foresee a queue as long and as disappointed as that seen any day outside the Clothing Depot not many months ago.

Those officers who are stationed some considerable distance from Cologne will feel the benefit if the two afore-mentioned Banking houses are open in the afternoons. W. J. C.

LEATHERED TUNICS.

Sir,—"A Club Worker" must have a very incomplete knowledge of the history of many who wear leather-patched jackets.

They are not all the battle-scarred heroes her fancy paints them.

It is no guarantee of having been in the thick of the fray in the front line trenches that anyone has his clothes repaired in this fashion, though I know in some instances it has that significance.

I know several men who had never seen a shellhole till after the Armistice, whose uniforms are patched up with leather and whose batmen shine up the patches with brown polish daily.

And only yesterday I met a second "loot" adorned — or disfigured as you like—this way. Well, he couldn't have seen much fighting as a commissioned officer, because of the newness of his rank.

So "A Club Worker" had better adjust her ideal of a soldier in conformity with facts.

Leather patches are out of place in peace-time soldiering. ANTI-LEATHER.

SWEETHEARTS.

Sir,—Do you think the authorities would raise any objection to a soldier bringing his sweetheart out here?

I have been sending my girl "The Cologne Post" daily, and she is so interested in various matters raised in your letter box that she has written asking if she and her oldest sister would be allowed to visit me.

I am "sweating" on leave and if everything is in order they could come back with me. LONELY.

THE MASONIC LODGE.

Sir,—I have been asked by many fellow officers if there is a Lodge in Cologne and how they can get particulars of it.

Several civilians — some of them ex-officers arriving in Rhineland — have also enquired about it.

Now, as the information seems wanted so much, I would like to suggest that there should be a permanent notice or advertisement of the Lodge in the "Post" giving the Secretary's address, times of meeting, etc. for the information of everyone.

I believe the address was given in your paper once or twice but one cannot keep backnumbers and it would be much better if it was always to be found there. KEYSTONE.

RATE OF EXCHANGE.

Sir,—No doubt the reason for fixing the present official exchange value of £1 at 120 marks is excellent, but it is difficult to see why officers should be debarred from availing themselves of it.

Profiteering is practically speaking, out of the question, owing to the limits beyond which advances cannot be made. Would it not be equitable to let officers draw this month the same number of marks as they did last month when the official rate averaged below the commercial? SUBALTERN.

Sir,—Owing to the Field Cashier being closed, as far as Officers' advances of pay are concerned, I am faced with the following problem.

I have to buy ration coupons for my wife at the Army rate of exchange i. e. £1=120 marks; to obtain these marks I have to pay Cox's rate i. e. £1=90 marks.

So I lose 30 marks on every £1. Although I don't profess to be an expert on these matters this does not seem quite right to me.

Others of your readers who are affected in the same way may be able to explain this. EXCHANGE.

WINTER DANCING.

Sir,—As another who has spent many happy hours dancing at the British Empire Leave Club, having attended practically every dance since the Club opened, might I be allowed to endorse your correspondent "Maxima" that the large hall of the Central Y.M.C.A. would make an excellent hall for dancing?

The attendance at the dances held at the Leave Club points clearly to the popularity of dancing, and I heartily agree with your correspondent that owing to the overcrowding of the splendid hall at the Club much of the enjoyment is taken away.

With cheerful lighting the Y.M.C.A. Hall should provide an ideal meeting place for the devotees of the light fantastic. HAWKEYE.

RESERVED FOR OFFICERS.

Sir,—With regard to the letter under the heading "Reserved for Officers," if the second paragraph is printed correctly, I think the grievance might be aired more delicately than by classing those who abuse his preserves as "neutrals, privates and Germans." Such a classification is an insult to the British Tommy and I am sure will be resented by many others who have read this letter.

I for one am content to take my proper place, while I am a Tommy; but certainly not to stand down to such a classification as this. R.A.S.

Sir,—Who is G. F. D.! What is he? I take no small objection to the position in which he places the British Tommy. He remarks "Take any train leaving Cologne and you will find these reserved carriages filled with either neutrals, privates or Germans."

He evidently places Tommy under the category of "dirt," to which I must consider it my duty to point out that there were and are hundreds of Tommies —volunteers for the British Army, irrespective of their positions in civilian life.

I am acquainted with varsity men who were volunteer Tommies in the Great War. What thinks he of that? We cannot all be officers, you know, because somebody has to do the rough work.

Where does G.F.D. expect the wife of an N.C.O. or a private to go? In a cattle-truck? The selfishness and priggishness of G. F. D. must be odious to many Tommies, including myself, although I am just a mere SAPPER.

Sir—Replying to G.F.D. who refers to officers' carriages being invaded by "Neutrals, privates, and Germans" may I take exception to his bracketing the British Tommy with Germans?

Tommy is only human, and it stands to reason if he finds, as A.K. points out, filthy unlighted carriages being put on for his convenience and noting an officers' compartment empty he will take this one.

I have yet to see, as the writer suggests, trains leaving Cologne with the officers' compartments filled with O.R.'s and civilians, and officers standing. This also is an insult to the usual courtesy of Tommy Atkins. ONE OF THEM.

THE WINE TAX.

Sir,—Since the publication of the order dealing with the tax on wines, we have seen in the "Post" a number of letters, but so far no one has described it from the point which most affects Tommy on the Rhine.

The order states that quantities of twelve bottles and over may be purchased "Tax free" if the necessary authority is produced, but where do we find Tommy buying a dozen bottles "all at once?" Probably he buys many during a week, but on each bought singly he pays tax.

The point now is—Is Tommy to be the only one who is to help the Germans pay their £8,000,000,000 Indemnity?

According to the general comments heard in various "wirtschaften," much frequented by Tommy during the past few days, the idea does not seem to appeal, and I for one agree.

As all ranks are allowed "Luxus-Steuer" on jewellery, etc., why the difference regarding wine? 1914 JUSTICE.

GERMANS IN OUR CINEMAS.

Sir,—I don't know who "Surprised" is who wrote to you about "Germans in our cinemas" but I should imagine that he was one of those individuals who roll up late and expect to find a good seat.

I personally was in the box office of the Modern Cinema on Thursday night and can positively state that there were not more then twelve German civilians in the hall.

This cinema is capable of holding close on 2,000 people and I fail to see what "Surprised" has got to growl about. The fraulein does not go into the cinema "on her own", but is on all occasions accompanied by an Englishman, and if "Surprised" imagines we should tell him that he cannot take his friend in, he is sadly mistaken.

As for what others think, I think that "Surprised" could find something more profitable to do than write rubbish. CECIL. R. WATSON.

ARE WOMEN CARELESS?

Sir,—Are women careless, indeed. When I arrived on the Rhine the state of my husband's billet was something appalling. The German frau had given up in disgust all endeavour to keep the rooms tidy.

There was no semblance of order. Nothing could be found. Clothing required overhauling and a careless nature was apparent on all hands.

At home he was always the tidiest of men and now everything is left about and forgotten until that particular article is required.

I think it is a good thing I came along or the German frau would have died of apoplexy. T. B.

A COMPARISON OF PRICES.

Sir—A stick of Erasmic shaving soap cost me recently 4.50 marks at the B.E.L.C. I later saw the same description of goods at four marks in a German shop. Judge, however, of my surprise when a Scottish Churches worker informed me their price is only 3.50 marks.

Cannot a regular price be charged all round? It savours very much of profiteering at Tommy's expense on the part of one concern. WAS HAD.

THE BILLET BENEATH.

I have been three months in that billet and although I knew that there was another representative of the British Army in the building I had not seen him until yesterday morning, when he emerged from his room, just as I descended to that landing.

Like true Britons, anywhere in this world or the next, we passed several entirely useless remarks about the weather before descending to the street-door together.

I noticed that he looked rather care-worn and over-worked, and as the latter circumstance eliminated the possibility of his being employed in G.H.Q., I began to feel curious; but before I could formulate any questions, he commenced to speak.

"I say, old man, I hope you don't mind my mentioning it, but my nerves have got into a perfectly rotten state since the armistice. I wonder if you would mind, when you are undressing at night, to put your boots down quietly. I'm just under you y'know, and it quite puts me off my sleep when you drop them with a bang."

By the time he had finished we were in the street, and I just had time to apologise for the past and give a hasty promise for the future, before I jumped aboard a tram and was carried toward the Mess.

I thought of him again during the day, and decided that he was entirely justified in bringing the matter to my notice, for my boots are the regulation pattern only more so; in fact I believe that the Quarter who issued them thought that I had engaged for another twenty-one years.

It is rather curious, but this boot-dropping habit has been quite a "fetish" or religious ceremony for the last three years. Each night I have soliloquised in this sort of fashion:— Well; that's another day gone—thud!! — a pause while I draw off the other boot, then — Roll on demob thud!! so I would fall asleep with a peaceful heart; more or less.

* * *

Last night I climbed the stairs to my room. I detest this oppressive weather. I had been "unlucky" with the mail: in short, I was utterly "fed-up" with everything and anything.

In my room I commenced to undress, and according to habit, I was soon murmuring, Well: another day gone. Thud!! Then I remembered and was thoroughly annoyed with myself, and as I slipped off the other boot I placed it gently and silently on the carpet.

I wound up my watch, it was just 22.30 and I was soon asleep.

I awoke with a start and switched on the light, a glance at my watch showed the time to be 00.30, there came a knock at the door, so that's what had wakened me. "Come in!" I shouted.

The door opened and my friend from below entered. His face was lined with worry; his hair was all awry, and he had a haunted look; altogether his whole appearance was extremely pitiful.

"I couldn't get to sleep until you dropped your other boot" he said, in the voice of one who has faced the horrors of the Pit: "The suspense has been awful."

"Hullo Cologne!"

There was great stir and excitement on Thursday night at the British Empire Leave Club over the performance of "Hullo Cologne!" by the B.E.L.C. Unit. The Theatre and gallery were packed and it has been decided to repeat the performance to-day at 3.p.m. so that none of those who were disappointed on the opening night will miss such a charming and artistic production. To the strains of Eastern music, the curtain rises on a magnificent scene of bronze and gold. Abdullah the Emperor seated in state on a luxurious couch surrounded by his guards and pages looks weary and bored and his Vizier anxious to please him introduces his slaves brought from the West.

A Revue.

They shew him the latest acquisition in the western lands, a revue, in the hope of dispelling the melancholy which broods heavily upon their master. The first dance to eastern music is a most charming one by Mrs. Bamford, Misses Littleton, Christian, Trimble, Hanbury Williams, and Bell in gorgeous coloured robes and this is followed by a ragtime song delightfully sung and danced to by Miss Bell. Then with a clap of the hands the Vizier summons two more slaves who sing an enchanting song called "Wild Thyme," dancing all the while to the lilting rhythm of the refrain. Mrs. Shorten and Miss Jameson were loudly encored and scored one of the greatest successes of the evening.

Dutch Boy and Girl.

Abdullah still anxious for more diversions demands yet more singing and the Vizier calls in a Dutch Girl Mrs. Bamford, who sings a little "Pink Petty from Peter" with topical verses, while Miss Acland as the Dutch Boy scored the greatest hit of the evening when she appeared with a brass hat and rows of ribbons. The Emperor then fancies a song of his own country and Miss Trimble and Chorus sing a beautiful song called "Siesta Time". This is followed by a Quartette "Meet me at half past two" by Mrs. Shorten, Jameson, Trimble, Bell, and a Comic Dance by Mrs. Bamford and Miss Littleton which amused the audience vastly.

Sunshine and Rain.

Still clamouring for more music, the Vizier accedes to his masters wishes by calling for two more slaves, Misses Acland and Jameson who appear in a little wooden house and sing "Little Miss Sunshine and Little Mr. Rain" one of the cleverest items on the programme. As they are wheeled off in their little wooden house, the stage is blackened and there follows a Fantasy most cleverly enacted by the Misses Tilney, Dalrimple and Waterhouse under a fascinating blue and yellow lime-light. Abdullah's entertainments ends with the valse triste beautifully danced by Mrs. Bamford and a topical chorus where the Emperor relaxes from his imperial dignity and joins his courtiers in a merry song and dance, which was encored again and again, "Hullo Cologne!" makes its final appearance in Cologne this afternoon at 3 p.m.

Sunday Vocalist.

Miss Marjorie Moore is going to sing some more songs from her repertoire at the Sunday band concert on October 5th. Those who had the pleasure of hearing her last week, will receive this intimation with gladness.

Playing for U.S. Troops.

The B.R.A.D.C. hope to be able to arrange to play for the American Troops of occupation during the week commencing October 20th when they will add to their repertoire. Zangwill's "The Melting Pot" will be presented at the Deutsches during the week commencing October 27th.

Are We Forgetting?

When the war was in full swing people were very kind to wounded soldiers, especially those who had lost a limb or limbs, says "The Encore." They used to be admitted free to the theatres and music halls and received passes and all sorts of kindly and thoughtful privileges. Some theatres still give free passes to wounded soldiers and certain kinds of entertaining is still being given to the men in hospital. All this, however, is falling off so much that it is almost negligible.

There are Still Sufferers.

People seem to think that with the signing of the Armistice all the suffering of the war casualties ceased. As a matter of fact there are many now in hospital moving towards slow and painful recoveries. Some have been in hospital for a year and are still undischarged. Many have lost limbs. Whatever the reason for this decline, it hits the disabled man extremely hard. Wearied out as they are with their monotonous days in hospital and dull loitering about the streets, they feel like the forgotten wreckage of a great storm.

In Few Words.

A matinee performance will be given at the Deutsches Theatre this afternoon at 2.30 when Stanley Houghton's "Hindle Wakes" will be presented.

JACQUES.

CARRYING ON.

All Scheduled League Matches To Be Played.

"SPURS" CASUALTY LIST.

The League and Southern League announce that the Government has no objection to teams travelling by motor car. Therefore all scheduled matches will be played to-day. Following this decision, Fulham on appeal received notice from the Football League that the decision ordering Fulham to play at Bristol next Saturday cannot be altered.

The news apers have been discussing not only the advisability of cancelling all football fixtures with a view to preventing people from motoring thereto, thus economising petrol but also with a view to the disadvantage under which many visiting teams will suffer, after long tiring motor journeys.

In the event of the Harlequins being unable to get to Gloucester on Saturday, Cheltenham will fill the vacancy.

The Spurs casualty list now includes seven players. They are Waldon, strained muscles; Lindsay; Cantrell nasal trouble; Wilson kick on the ankle; Chipperfield poisoned foot; Clay ditto; and Minter sprained ankle. The last four are unlikely to play at Lincoln to-day, when the team will be much weaker than usual. The other three are not expected to play for some time.

EXCITING ENCOUNTER.

9th D.L.I.—"A" v. "C" Coy. Football Match.

The above match was played on the 9th D.L.I. ground on Wednesday. As it was the outcome of a challenge by "C" to play any team raised in the Battalion, the encounter was awaited with intense interest and evidences of excitement and enthusiasm were manifest. The result — a draw — forms a good criterion of the evenness of the game, which was marked throughout by an excellent camaraderie.

At the outset "A" Coy. were the slightly superior side and deserved the goal which rewarded their efforts after five minutes play. Reynolds at outside left reeeived the ball from a weak clearance by Harbron and scored through and open goal. Spurred on by this reserve, "C" Coy. pressed, and Gray, who played a grand game throughout made a brilliant individual effort, which was frustrated by Newman's splendid work in goal. During the give and take that followed, Newton had to retire as the result of a stroke up near "C"'s goal, and "A" had to continue without him. "A" now increased their pressure on "C"'s defence, and would have scored but for the erratic shooting of their forwards and the sound work of the opposing backs, Lieut. St. George and Middlemiss. At the end of half an hour's play, "C" Coy. scored from the last of a series of free kicks awarded against either side. Hogg placed the ball neatly in front of the goal and Gray headed past.

WELL CLEARED.

After the resumption of the play, the football was less fast, but still clever. Both sides conceded corners without result and then Dickenson ("C") took a splendid shot, which was well cleared by Newman. Pretty footwork between Fotheringham (left half) and Capt. Gibson was marred by inaccurate shooting, and "C" Coy. retaliated with a good well placed shot by C.Q.M.S. Etherington, followed by a magnificent effort from Gray on the left wing, which Newman gathered in fine style. Shortly before time, "A" Coy. displayed delightful combination and Reynolds would have scored with a high shot but for Harbron's skilful save. The game ended with "C" Coy. fighting for the winning goal.

It is difficult where most excelled to select players worthy of special praise. Apart from those already mentioned Lord was a powerful back and Lieut. Taylor and Putter played sound football for "A." For their opponents, Middlemiss, Dickinson, Gray, Etherington and Hogg were the outstanding players.

"SOLDIERS v. CIVIES."

An XI picked from the "B" Company, 6th London's retainable men, known as "the soldiers," met a demobilizable XI glorying in the title of "the civies," at Ohligs on Tuesday afternoon. At the end of the game the score stood at one point each. So keen were the players that it was decided to play ten minutes extra each way. The "civies," who had the better of the game eventually, won by 2-1, Betts the redoubtable "soldier" goalie letting a shot through in the last few minutes.

OLYMPIC GAMES.

Britain's Chances Of Success At Antwerp.

PROBABLE COMPETITORS.

Having regard to the present low standard of performances in Great Britain, at most of the Olympic events, caused partly by the disorganisation of sport during the war, but principally by the apathetic indifference of the Amateur Athletic Association to the Olympic Games, it will be impossible for us to produce winners in any number (says the "Observer"), but we may, with a little forethought, at least obtain adequate representation in most of the events.

For the short sprint races we have W. A. Hill, the English 100 yards and 220 yards champion, and Sergt.-Major Mawby, the Inter-services champion, the latter having shown 9 9-10 sec. and 22 sec. for the two distances. G. M. Butler, C.U.A.C., who won the English championship in 49 4-5 sec., is our hope for the quarter-mile, but against these three we must remember that the Americans will show figures approximating to world's record at the distances, that is to say, 9 3-5 sec. for the 100 yards, 21 1-5 sec. for the 220 yards, and 47 2-5 sec. for the quarter-mile, times being slightly varied by the translation of yards into metres.

For the middle distances we can rely upon A. G. Hill, English half-mile and one-mile champion, to prove a worthy successor to A. N. S. Jackson, Q.U.A.C.

Long Distance Runners.

At the present moment it is difficult to say just what our long-distance runners are capable of. C. E. Blewitt, English ten-miles champion, may train on into a second Hutson, who was third in the 5,000 metres (five miles) race to Hannes Kolehmainen, and the late Jan Bouin at Stockholm in 1912, when the winner's time was 31 min. 20 4-5 sec., and Hutson recorded 35 min. 7 sec. odd.

One of the younger school who has a great future before him as a sprinter is H. M. Abrahams, the brother of S. S. Abrahams, the Cambridge Blue and English long jump champion.

Sergt. Colhoun, who sent the 16lbs. shot 40ft. 2½in. at the Army Championships last August, is our best hope for the weight-putting event.

In the high jump B. Howard Baker, the English champion, has accomplished 6ft. 2½in., and it is probable that T.J. Carroll, who in 1913 established a new British record of 6 ft. 5 in., will reproduce his old form next year, when he has recovered from the injury to his ankle which has kept him down to 6 ft. all this season.

Even so, our best men will have to reckon with a new American star, L. A. Watson, who has been credited with 6 ft. 6 in.

SPECIAL FOOTBALL ARTICLES.

The series of special articles on the ever interesting subject of football, have this week to be suspended, the strike having interfered with the transit of the manuscript from England.

It is hoped that the series may be resumed on Saturday next and continue without further cessation. We feel sure our readers will forgive the omission from this issue in view of the abnormal circumstances at present prevailing.

IRISH RACING STOPPED.

The following notice has been issued from Dublin Castle by the Privy Council:—

The Irish Railway Executive Committee having recommended that restrictions should be placed on the holding of race meetings, the Lords Justices of Ireland have decided that sanction given to the Stewards of the Turf Club and the Irish National Hunt Steeplechase Committee for this year's race fixtures should be cancelled as from this date. The public will appreciate that this step has been rendered imperative by the necessity of conserving the coal supply, so as to ensure that railway transport will be available for foodstuffs nd perishable articles.

AMERICAN LADIES' GOLF.

The American ladies' gold championship opened on the links of the Shawnee Country Club on Monday with the qualifying competition over eighteen holes. The entry was representative and included Miss Alexa Sterling (Atlanta), the last winner in 1917, and Mrs. W. A. Gavin (South Shore), runner-up in 1915 and formerly of the Huntercombe Club, England. Miss Sterling and Mrs. Gavin led the field with 87 each, Mrs. Barlow coming next with 89.

Condition Serious.

Dawson, the Blackburn Rovers' centre forward, is suffering from a gastric ulcer, and his condition is reported as being serious.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

1/6th West Yorkshire Regt. 9; 6th Corps Troops 1.

KALK SHIELD—3rd ROUND.

The above teams met on Thursday on the ground of the 93rd Bde. R.G.A. to contest the right of entry in the semi-final of the Kalk Shield competition. The Yorks kept their opponents hard pressed, their half back line working like niggers. A pass by Pte. Womersley set R.Q.M.S. Franks going down his wing in splendid style, his centre being met by Lieut. Rummers, who opened the scoring for the Yorks. The Corps Troops now put ginger into their work and had hard lines in not scoring. Their forwards were lacking in shooting ability as one or two chances came their way. The Yorks now got going again and after pretty play by their forwards, C.Q.M.S. Thane did the needful. Shortly afterwards, a penalty was awarded to the Yorks for "hands." Lieut. Rumney taking the kick scored the third goal of the match. Play re-opened very fast. The Yorks now warmed to their work with the result that it was one long procession to the Corps Troops goal mouth, Lieut. Rumney adding four more goals and Cpl. Butterill two. The star performer of the day was Lieut. Rumney, the Yorks captain, who was credited with six goals, all well earned. The Yorks supporters went on their homeward journey rejoicing after a very enjoyable afternoon's sport. Results:—1/6th West Yorks Regt., 9; 6th Corps Troops, 1.

WORTHY WINNERS.

No 2 Coy. Lancs. Divnl. Train v. A Coy. 13th King's Liverpool Regt.

The above teams met on the ground of the first named on Tuesday afternoon. The visitors started with a rush but were met by a resolute defence which gradually wore them down. After some even play, the home forwards broke away and C. S. M. Davies, getting in one of his "expresses," the visitors were one down. No 2 Coy. kept up the pressure and Keegan made the score two with a good shot. The King's did not lose heart and before the interval they opened their account from a penalty kick. The home team got the only goal in the second half, C. S. M. Davies again doing the needful, and retired worthy winners by three goals to one. No 2 Coy. were the better balanced team and were well served by Acton, Walker, Earnshaw and Thornton in defence. The forwards, well led, were always dangerous. For the King's, the backs and half backs played well, the left half and left back being especially good.

VI Corps School v Northern Division Trench Mortar Battery.

In spite of rain a very interesting match was played on Wednesday in the Deer Park between the VI Corps School and Northern Division. T.M.B.

Owing to the lack of combination between the School forwards the play was confined to the School half of the ground, but the strenuous defence of the backs led by L.T. Beale and the fine play of Lt. Oldbury in goal prevented the T.M.B. from scoring for 25 minutes; until Capt. Moore scored from a corner, thanks to a clever pass from L/Cpl. Mac Farlane.

During the second half the School end of the ground was a morass, which although it hindered the T.M.B. repeatedly from pressing home any advantages, also prevented the School from breaking away more than a few times, though Sergt. Ellis gave the T.M.B. some anxious moments.

The T.M.B. forwards were always dangerous, especially L/Cpl. Mac-Farlane and Cpl. Hynd, but the backs were weak, and had Sergt. Ellis been supported by the remainder of the School forwards the result of the match would probably have been different.

Score: T.M.B. 1 — VI Corps School 0.

CELTIC OR RANGERS?

A correspondent (Nightingale) recently asked who had topped the Scottish League most in the last six seasons, Celtic or Rangers? Appended are the League leaders for the past six seasons. Our correspondent will thus see Celtic easily come first.

ROYAL WARRANT.

PAY OF WARRANT OFFICERS, N.C.O.'s AND MEN.

SIXTEENTH ARTICLE OF THE SERIES.

The maximum rates of pension are as follows:—

	Per week.
Private	26s.
Class IV.	31s.
Class III.	36s.
Class II.	41s.
Class I. (incl. warrant officer, Class II.)	46s.
Warrant Officer, Class I.	55s.

3. Any broken period of qualifying service of less than 12 months in a rank will count as qualifying service in a lower rank, e.g., a non-commissioned officer with 2 years 5 months in Class I. will count 5 months on to his service in Class II.

4. Qualifying service for pension will be unforfeited Colour service, only including service in the Great War, mobilized or embodied service in the Special Reserve or Territorial Force, given after attaining the age of 18 years.

5. The additions under paragraph 2 will not be given for any higher rank than that held on discharge, and that rank must have been held throughout the 12 months immediately preceding discharge.

6. A total of 21 years' service is necessary to give a right to pension, but a minimum of 10 years' qualifying service is also required. To be eligible for pension a soldier must be serving with the Colours on final discharge, or on ceasing to count service.

7. A soldier re-engaged to complete 21 years, or who has re-enlisted to complete a term of service which with former service makes a total of at least 21 years, who is allowed to take his discharge prematurely, after 18 years at his own request, may be granted a pension, if eligible, assessed as in earlier paragraphs, but with a reduction of 10 per cent. If discharged for inefficiency after 18 and less than 21 years, he may be granted a pension at such rate—not exceeding 90 per cent. of the rate as assessed in previous paragraphs—as the Army Council may approve on the recommendation of the Commissioners of Chelsea Hospital according to the merits of each case.

8. An additional pension of 5d. per day will be granted (subject to good character as a pensioner) at age 55 and a further increase of 4d. at age 65.

9. Soldiers granted pensions under this Warrant will remain eligible for the additional pension awarded in respect of gallant conduct provided for in Article 1157, Pay Warrant.

10. In the case of re-enlisted soldiers, past service will not count if there has been an interval of more than 5 years. (This does not refer to pensioners re-enlisted during the Great War.)

11. These new regulations will apply to all soldiers admitted to pensions in future. Soldiers who have been granted service pensions during the Great War, and those who were service pensioners before that war and have given satisfactory paid military service during that war (including service as officers), will have their present pensions re-assessed under the rules in this Table, according to their service on original discharge to pension; but the increased pensions will not be issuable while pensioners are serving with the Colours or as officers, and are drawing pay as well as pension.

12. Service with temporary rank during the Great War will count as though it were substantive rank if the soldier is subsequently promoted to the substantive rank; or it may count as service in any lower substantive rank to which the soldier may be promoted. (Thus, if a private were a temporary serjeant during the war and afterwards never rose above the substantive rank of corporal, time as temporary serjeant would count as time as corporal for pension.

13. The conditions governing the grant of annuities for meritorious service under Article 1228, Pay Warrant, are under consideration.

14. A soldier now serving retains his rights under the Pay Warrant and any other Royal Warrants now in force if more beneficial to him than the terms of this Table; but a soldier must be dealt with either under this Table as a whole, or under previous regulations as a whole.

Army Council's Instructions on the foregoing Warrant.

I.

Soldiers of the South African Overseas Contingent in receipt of full British rates of pay and those who do not elect to remain on Union rates; and British soldiers transferred or appointed from units, the depôts of which are situated in the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands, or the Isle of Man, to serve with the following units raised outside the United Kingdom, may come under the provisions of this Army Order:—

The Royal Malta Artillery.
The Malta Division Royal Engineers (Militia).
The King's Own Malta Regiment of Militia.
The Bermuda Militia Artillery.
The Bermuda Volunteer Rifle Corps.
The West India Regiment.
The British West Indies Regiment.
The Cape Corps (Infantry).
The Cape Auxiliary Horse Transport Company.
The Cape Coloured Labour Battalion.
The South African Native Labour Corps.
The Chinese Labour Corps.
The Imperial Camel Corps.

COMPETITION No. 3.

Another Coupon For Students Of Football Form.

Our second football competition expired yesterday, the number of coupons received being in excess of those for the opening contest, so that a substantial sum of money falls to be won by the lucky winner or (in the case of several being successful) to be divided.

Some doubt existed as to whether several of to-day's games would be played owing to the industrial crisis, but as will be found in another column all scheduled league games will be contested.

Below another set of matches, comprising coupon 3, are published.

The home teams are given first, and it is worthy of note that from the start of the season the percentage of wins for home teams has been remarkably high.

Coupons must be addressed:—

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 3,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S/40 Rhine Army.

List of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

BOXING CONTESTS.

Series Of Excellent Sporting Bouts At Leichlegen.

A very pleasant evening was spent at G.H.Q. Con. Depot, Leichlegen, on Thursday, the O.C., Lieut.-Colonel J. McHammond, O.B.E., M.C., having arranged a series of Boxing Competitions among the patients. The bouts were exceedingly well contested and of the true sporting spirit which appeals so much to the British soldier.

Officials:—Referee—Lt.-Col. J. Betts, D.S.O.; Judges—Major H. Colvin, V.C., Capt. M. Brown, M.C.; Time-keeper—C.S.M. Reynolds; M.C.—C.S.M. Clery.

Results.

Pte. Carruther, R.A.F. beat Gnr. Parker after a gruelling 6 rounds, both boxed hard and well, and there was little margin at the end.

Gnr. Hughes, R.F.A. beat Pte. Costello, R.A.S.C., in a fine three round bout.

Pte. Drain, Gordon H'drs. beat Pte. Nash, Surreys, after a hard-hitting and fast three rounds.

Pte. Stacey, R. Bde. beat Pte. Bernstein, D.L.I. The former was at work all through the six rounds and won comfortably on points.

Sgt. Storey, R.A.F. beat Sgt. Keenan, R.E. The latter, who was not very fit, had to give in after a hard hitting first round.

Pte. Berry, R.A.F. was beaten by Pte. Dewar, R. Scots. This bout aroused much enthusiasm and created much laughter owing to the antics of Berry, who appeared to be well known. Although an absolute novice, he put up a good show and won much applause.

Pte. Clements, Queens, beat Cpl. Cooke, K.O.S.B., after a very fine bout in which both contestants displayed a gentlemanly and sporting spirit.

Pte. Phillips, R.A.S.C., held out his hand to Pte. King, York and Lancs., after the second round of what should have been a six round contest.

Lieut.-Colonel Betts said a few homely words on Sport, after which the prizes were presented by Lieut.-Colonel McHammond, who, in a few well chosen words, thanked all those who had helped to make the show the great success it undoubtedly was.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Strike Football.

In South Wales, "strike concerts" and football matches are being arranged to keep the men off the streets.

Famous Footballer Dead.

James Douglas, one of the Blackburn Rovers' team that won the English Cup in 1884-5-6, died recently.

A Coincidence.

The Great Eastern Railway team is one of the football sides inconvenienced by the strike. For a cup-tie match they had to journey by cycle.

Irish Elegance.

Irish Elegance will be seen out once or twice more this season, and next year he will go to the stud, and stand at a fee of 200 guineas.

Cock Scores Twice.

Fulham won their Second Division match at Craven Cottage against Rotherham County by 3 goals to nil. McIntyre scored in the first half, and Cock added two more after the interval.

Inter-Varsity Match.

The Association football match between Oxford and Cambridge Universities will be played at Queen's Club, West Kensington, London, on December 8, the day before the University Rugby football match will be decided, also at Queen's Club.

Successful Substitute.

Rowland Todd took the place of Harry Curzon at the Ring and beat Harry Shoop on points in twenty rounds.

Davis Cup Matches.

The "Times" Sydney correspondent says that the Australian lawn tennis authorities are arranging for the Davis Cup matches to take place in January.

Scotch Racing Off.

With no immediate prospect of a settlement of the railway strike the Lothians Racing Club decided to postpone their meeting arranged for this week.

A Big Reputation.

Foley, who was seen in the saddle last week at Pontefract, is a jockey from Sydney, Australia. He comes with a big reputation, and is now attached to De Mestre's stable.

A Busy Scribe.

Mr. Fairfax Blakeborough must be a busy man if, as he says, he wrote 15 columns about the St. Leger meeting. He did not trouble the Doncaster Press-room a great deal.

Stable Lads' Strike.

The strike of stable boys in the Paris district still continues, and the prospects of a settlement are somewhat indefinite, owing largely to a difference of opinion among the trainers.

Chance Of Lifetime.

Laurence Ayton, of St. Andrews, in his match with Duncan at Walton Heath threw away the chance of a lifetime.

Abandoned.

The ladies' open championship (which is set for Oct. 6 and following days at Burnham, Somerset) has been abandoned.

Ex-R.A.F. Player.

C.F, Krige, the South African forward, who was in the R.A.F. team last year, is playing for Birkenhead Park this season.

170 Miles Flying Speed.

During some speed trials over short distances at Villacoubley aerodrome Sadi-Lecomte, the French airman, attained a speed of 176 miles an hour, with one passenger.

A "Super-Run."

Among the many messages of goodwill received by Hart on the eve of his run from London to Bath and back was one from Lord Lonsdale wishing Hart the best of good luck in his "super-run."

15,000 At Football Match.

At Highbury in the first of the London Professional Charity Fund matches. Tottenham Hotspur beat the Arsenal 1—0, Minter heading the goal in the second half. There were 15,000 spectators, the gate amounting to £700.

Rugby Blues.

G.E.C.Ward, A.E.R.Gilligan, and G.A. Rotherham, the three Cambridge cricket Blues, are mentioned as likely Rugby Blues this season.

War-Time Finds.

Manchester United's experimental team is doing exceedingly well under the circumstances, and in Silcock and Hilditch, war-time finds, they have secured a fine back and half-back.

Unheard Of Victor.

In the first round of the News of the World golf tournament played at Walton Heath Alec Herd was beaten by H. Roberts (Holmer), a young man originally from Harlech, whom no one had heard of before.

"Wowsers" Busy.

Once more the "wowsers," to use the American colloquialism for professional kill-joys and spoil-sports, are attacking boxing, and making the expert practitioner a mark for all manner of abuse and obloquy.

An International Code.

The root of many dangers and dissensions will have been extirpated when the three chief pugilistic countries—Great Britain, America, and France—have accepted an international code of rules and a standard scale of weights.

Oxford University Fixtures.

The Oxford University Association fixtures are not yet complete. Miles Howell, the cricket captain, will also have charge of the Association Eleven, and will have with him one other Old Blue, G. B. F. Rudd, the Old Westminster centre forward. D. J. Knight and R. L. Holdsworth, both in the victorious cricket eleven, will probably be available.

Walton Heath Tourney Result.

"The News of the World" Tournament at Walton Heath resulted in Mitchell beating Duncan by one hole.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Cases not Used.

Why is it that the average German makes little use of the cigarette case which is part and parcel of the average Englishman's outfit? It is noticeable that the German smoker keeps his cigarettes, nearly always of English manufacture, in the cardboard packet.

Talked Of.

Two topics of conversation hold the field to-day in Rhineland—the Great Strike and the Little Mark.

Strike Re-action.

The orchestra in a certain Army theatre in Cologne were struggling through a rather intricate passage in "Lohengrin" when a head appeared at the side of the curtain and requested them to cease. Enraptured in the glories of the Wagnerian composition they heeded not. Frantically gesticulating the man at the curtain tried in vain to attract their attention. Finally a voice near by shouted "Halt!"; then they stopped—and the curtain went up.

The Official Rate.

The official rates of exchange which are now in operation put the equivalent of ten marks at 1s8d and five francs (Belgian or French) at 2s8d.

Compensation.

A young sub I know lent his cane the other day to a fellow officer going to Bonn, who came back without it. This conversation ensued. "Look here, old egg, I'm sorry, but I've lost your bally old stick." "Well, you'll jolly well have to stump up for it!" "Righto! What shall we say?" "Two-hundred marks and I'd say no more about it. I treasured that cane." "Two-hundred — marks!!!" "Yes, why not? It cost me one-and-six in England."

After the Edict.

Frantic requests for cheque books are being wired to Cox's in London by many officers who have always relied on their Field advance books.

Re-Painting.

After a lapse of five years the Cologne painter is again busy touching up various establishments and one result of his activities is the disappearance in hotels and cabarets of the pre-war legends setting forth prices, which must have gone by the board years ago. Nevertheless one can still see such signs as:— "Glass of beer, 10 pfg;" "Evening meal, 60 pfgs."

Missing.

The most noticeable of all the recent exoduses from Cologne is that of the Air Force. R.A.F. officers and men are almost rarities in Rhineland now.

A False Notion.

There seems to be a sort of idea that this journal is a general informative bureau, a Money Changing Office, a Library of Research, a Dictionary of Dates, a Who's Who, a Directory of Rhineland, an enlarged Encyclopedia Britannica, a Home for Lost Dogs, a Police Station, a Railway Guide to the Continent, and many other things besides, judging by the extraordinary number of callers who drop in asking questions on almost every subject under the sun. Yet we are not.

Have Fed Well.

In cabaret, tram or street you have no difficulty in recognising the repatriated German prisoner. He is bronzed, looks as fit as a fiddle, and has evidently been rationed on a generous scale. Also he has taken to wearing his hair longer than he used to.

No Change in our time.

Quite unwittingly in calling attention yesterday to the introduction of winter time in France and Flanders I omitted to state that the order applied to those areas alone. The introduction of winter time in the Rhineland is, I believe, dependant upon the result of a conference between the representatives of the Allies and pending this summer time will continue in force in this area. From midnight of the 5th inst, however, Railway time in Rhineland is to be put back. Thus for example, 0400 hours becomes 0300 hours. This should be palticularly noted, or there may be many cases of trains being lost.

No Improvement.

I was eager to see whether the enforced principle of an eight hours day had had the effect of speeding up the waiting in any hotel yesterday. What did I find? Stagnation! At a neighbouring table four English children sat waiting for breakfast. Across the way a German frantically called for coffee. A waiter signalised his appearance by upsetting sugar while singularly enough two of the English children engaged in removing milk from their dresses as a result of another little mess. Really from what I could judge the eight-hour day lowered efficiency in waiting.

A Zoo Attraction.

The young hippopotamus at the Cologne Zoo is getting quite big. Only a few months ago we announced his birth in this column.

The Lodging Difficulty.

Because of the shortage of dwelling places in Cologne a commission appointed by the municipal authorities is to visit every house and make a note of empty rooms or beds. These will be presumably allocated to someone in need of lodging.

Came by Air.

The few English newspapers that reached Cologne yesterday — presumably by aeroplane — fetched fabulous prices, so the soldiers' own paper with the latest news was very cheap by comparison.

Self Improvement.

All batmen are not alike. I know of one who has quite a passable knowledge of the German language picked up in the kitchen in the performance of his duties. In turning over his officer's kit he came across a French dictionary and promptly borrowed it. You see there are several French servants employed in the kitchen and he is out to master French. Already he is making fair progress.

Popular.

Another great success has been scored in our second Football Skill contest, so a substantial bunch of marks will go to the winner or winners.

Another Atrocity.

Have you seen or heard a Bumbass? It is the latest invention for the use of Jazz Bands, now on sale in a German musical instrument store in Cologne. Its appearance seems to fully justify the proper name given to it—"Teufel's Geige" (Devil's Violin).

How Many.

Some one has asked me what is the total number of German prisoners who have been returned to Rhineland in the past week. Judging by the number of trainloads arriving daily at Cologne station the number must run into many thousands.

The Lure of the Shop.

I noticed an English officer and his wife strolling down Hohestrasse a few evenings ago. The lady became attracted by a tempting display of millinery in one of the windows. Daunted, possibly, by the prospect of having to disburse an unlimited number of marks, hubby did not at first appear inclined to hurry by, but with a wheedling "please, Jack, dear," the lady eventually prevailed on him to go inside. I hope he emerged a wiser, if a poorer, man.

Not Quite Correct.

Quite contrary to all codes of discipline an officer and N.C.O. were discussing men and matters; incidentally Battalion happenings. "Now, if you ask me, I should say the Colonel is not ineffable," was the rather startling remark let drop by the N.C.O.

Rising Prices.

A thirsty correspondent complains that in various restaurants the price of beer has gone up. Is the British notice on the subject, which appears in every bar, now being treated as a scrap of paper?

Late Trains.

The trains arriving in Cologne yesterday were all very late and when they did turn up they ran into the wrong platforms, causing some inconvenience to military and civil passengers alike. What the cause of this was, noone at the station could explain.

Ever Alert.

It is a tribute to the watchfulness of the British Military Police that a consignment of cycle tyres of British manufacture was held up in the Cologne streets on Friday. The interest taken in the incident by German pedestrians proved once again how many folk there are with time to waste on their hands. They must have been disappointed at the climax.

Back in Cologne.

Miss Morrison, a well-known worker at the Church Army Club, Antoniter Strasse, Cologne, has returned from Antwerp after a brief sojourn there. Antwerp she describes as quiet and she says she is glad to get back to Rhineland.

Muzzled and Unmuzzled.

Dogs with English or French owners can afford to laugh at others of their breed for while German owners are by regulation compelled to muzzle their dogs the others escape the penalty. Should they stray, however, the likelihood is that they will go the way of German stray dogs unless their ownership is clearly marked on the collar.

Just a Story.

At a German cinema the other evening we engaged a box, but being unable to ascertain which way to go—upstairs or down—we made the enquiry: "Wo ist die Loge?" To which the commissionaire replied, "Ah yes, sirs, the box is overground—up the treppe." Some Germans can, of course, speak English rather well

Why Not Take a Vote?

The lounge of the "Earwig Lamp" is by no means the crowded resort it was. Obviously under present conditions only one officers' club is called for in Cologne. It is only a question which should go—Number 1 or Number 2 Club.

Most Familiar.

If Tommy were asked what phrase he has heard most from German civilians I will wager he would plump for "Vor dem Krieg" (before the war). No matter what the subject of conversation is, whether it be food or drink or clothing, the old favourite crops up, and Herr citizen mournfully recalls the good old days when a few pfennigs went a very long way.

RHINELANDER.

FROM EVERYWHERE.

Postponed.—Prince Albert's visit to Glasgow has been postponed.

Poor Outlook.—A beer famine at home is threatened.

Yet Another.—Norway is to enter the League of Nations.

Why?—The Ministry of Health has refused to allow Willesden to build concrete houses.

The Proviso.—Ex-Service men only are to apply for the position of entomologist to the Board of Agriculture.

The Way.—Coal production in Belgium has risen to 87 per cent. of the pre-war amount.

Again?—Saccharine tablets have made their appearance on the tables at restaurants.

Five Thousand "Up." There are expected to be 5,000 undergraduates at Cambridge this term.

A Comparison.—A leasehold house at Harrow, sold for £390 three years ago, realized £830.

Will they Strike?—There are vicars and rectors in Northumberland whose gross income is £140 per annum.

The Difference.—According to official tariffs it costs 16 francs to keep a French soldier in Rhineland and 30 francs an American.

Signs of the Times.—The agony columns of newspapers are full of appeals from stranded people for accommodation in motor-cars.

Frivolous.—"The railwaymen have certainly put the rest of the nation on their feet" said a City man who was walking to his office.

French Troubles.—The municipal employees of Metz, the building trade of Lyons and the Tramway men of Toulouse are striking.

NOTES FROM LONDON TOWN.

BACK TO TOWN.

The fag-end of September sees London getting into its stride for the activities of autumn and winter. Most of one's friends are back, bronzed and blooming, from brilliantly sunny holidays at the coast, on the moors, or among the hills. The lifting of the war clouds had its fitting counterpart in a summer of glorious splendour and warmth, with hardly a break to mar the peace-time revel of the holiday crowds. But summer has been left behind. Almost to the very day when autumn was due by the calendar, snow swept down on the Scottish bens and glens, whitened the hill tops of England and Wales and was seen even as far south as Dartmoor. It was only a cold snap, but it meant good-bye to summer, and the coming of the equinoctial gales. Overcoats, gloves, and furs, are now the order of the day, and in the early hours of to-morrow we close a golden chapter of the year by putting back our clocks and watches and taking "Au revoir" of summer-time.

A BUSY AUTUMN.

Crowded still with visitors and in spite of high prices for everything, London anticipates a full and busy autumn season. The theatres are certainly preparing for one. In the whole of the West-end, there is not a vacant entertainment-house and two or three large new theatres are about to be built. There is no lack of new plays, musical comedies, and revues, but I fancy that an exeptionally warm welcome awaits the revival of the well tried favourite, "The Gondoliers" which opens a twenty weeks' season of Gilbert and Sullivan opera at the Princes' Theatre on Monday. Something like £30,000 has been drawn already in advance bookings. Most popular of all the concert programmes is the illustrated Travelogue, "With Allenby in Palestine and Arabia," which has been running for weeks at Covent Garden and fascinating huge audiences. Mr. Lowell Thomas, the lecturer, has an unusual gift of picturesque description, and invests the splendid pictorial record of Allenby's campaign with all the colour of actuality.

GREAT DAYS.

Londoners can never forget the wonderful scenes of the summer that is gone. The festivities even of a coronation year were eclipsed by the pageants of Victory and Peace. For months we lived in a fever of celebrations, while first the Guards Division, than the Imperial troops, next the great column of British and Allied Armies, and finally the Indian contingent marched through tumultuous scenes of enthusiasm, and through streets decorated as they had never been before to salute the King at Buckingham Palace. There were other great days when we gave a special welcome to Haig and his Army Commanders, and to Foch, and another unforgettable scene, when London paid its tribute to the merchant Service as the river procession passed slowly up the Thames with the King in his barge at its head. These things are over. We have taken down the flags and bunting and are settling down, as well as may be, to the routine of more hum-drum times. But they have left indelible and inspiring memories.

VANISHED KHAKI.

One could have no better evidence of the demobbing of the Army than that of one's own eyes. Six months ago, or even less, there was a haze of khaki in our crowded streets. To walk along the Strand at any hour of day was to rub shoulders with an endless procession of uniformed men, from every unit in our fighting forces and every section of the imperial Army. The theatres and picture palaces were too small to hold them all. They literally swarmed in the streets, squares and parks and swelled the takings of restaurants and entertainment houses as no American Summer invasion has ever done. "Where is dat barty, now?" The man in khaki is vanishing from our midst. He is a rarity, where only a few months ago he was superabundant. But he is there alk the same, a civilian once again, with his wound stripe on a mufti sleeve, and his regimental badge or war ribbons proudly showing. The ex-Service man is everywhere—a bronzed, policeman ruling the traffic of Trafalgar Square like an autocrat, a bus or tram conductor or driver, a comfortable commissionaire, lift attendant, club servant, or hotel porter.

OFFICERS IN MUFTI.

I notice too the almost complete disappearance of the "brass hat" from Whitehall. With only a few exceptions, all the officers from generals downward, engaged at the War Office, have reverted to civilian dress. Whitehall and Charing cross may thus be robbed of some of their martial glamour, but there are compensations, for officers and men alike are saved the tedium of an almost continuous salute. On this topic of officers in mufti, a friend tells me the other afternoon while looking at a window in Bond street, he suddenly became aware that a sturdy figure beside him was Lord Beatty, dressed in a blue suit and crushed hat. And the interesting thing is the Admiral was gazing intensely at little models of ships made by French prisoners in the days of Trafalgar and Waterloo.

NOT ACCORDING TO PLAN.

MEN'S LEADERS REFUSE OVERTURES OF THE GOVERNMENT.

SEVERAL ATTEMPTS TO WRECK TRAINS.

SECOND WEEK.

EFFORTS TOWARDS A SETTLEMENT.

The failure of the efforts of the Transport Workers Federation leaders and other Trade Unionists to secure a resumption of negotiations between the Government and the railwaymen does not necessarily imply that there is any immediate prospect of an extension of the strike to other industries. This is indicated in the statement that other Trade Unions are to make another effort before themselves taking any action. Throughout the discussions between the Government and the deputation the spokesmen of the deputation sought to make it plain that while they were anxious to avoid any stoppage out of sympathy with the railwaymen their chief concern was to restore the relations between the Government and the railwaymen in order to bring the strike to an end.

No Desire For Extension.

They were more anxious about obtaining a settlement of the strike than about getting any justification for an extension of it. It is stated in particular that Mr. Williams, Secretary of the Transport Workers Federation, whom nobody would accuse of excessive moderation, exercised a moderating influence from beginning to end of the discussion. These other Unions have given evidence by their strenuous and persistent efforts to compose the railwaymen's dispute that they have no desire for symathetic action the end of which they could not possibly foresee.

There is good ground for stating that some members of the deputation are by no means convinced that they could justify to their own members the calling of a sympathic strike on the present that the pretext whereon the railwaymen acted is too slender to form a good case for corresponding action by any other responsible leaders of organised labour. In these circumstances it is too early yet to assume that there will be any authorized or general extension of the strike to other trades.

Not According To Plan.

The fact is that the strike is not going according to plan. The railwaymen's leaders never imagined the magnitude of the resources at the back of the Government. The Government exhibit extraordinary vigour and efficiency: the people show resolute courage and are ready to meet any emergency, and the vital point is being realised that the power of the State is far stronger than one section alone. It is significant that when Mr. Thomas announced that he would no longer refuse help from other Unions those Unions, instead of immediately coming to his aid, took up the role of mediators. The struggle has really come to the point where the Trade Unions are trying to find a way out which may save the faces of the railwaymen's leaders. The magnificent manner in which both Government and people have taken the business of the country in hand has been a revelation and the strikers find that they had a grossly exaggerated view of their own importance and of their power to paralyse a national life.

Government Offer Rejected.

A further conference was held yesterday morning at Downing Street between the deputation of Transport Workers and Associated Unions and the Premier. It is generally felt that this interview is the most fateful of any held since the outbreak of the strike. At the conference at Downing Street with the Transport Workers no settlement was reached.

An official statement shows, however, that the Government offered:

Firstly, to resume negotiations if the railwaymen would agree to a seven days truce, resuming work for that period, with a view to a resumption of negotiations; secondly, they guaranteed that there should be no reduction of wages before 31st March 1920, and they would be prepared after 31st December to discuss an extension of that date; thirdly, they are prepared to discuss any cases of hardship arising from the Government standardisation scheme and in the event of failure to agree upon them that the matter shall be referred to arbitration.

If at the end of five days the men's representatives concluded that the negotiations were useless, they would then give forty-eight hours notice of a resumption of the strike and hand over all plant in good order. The men to agree to work harmoniously with non-strikers, the Government agreeing that there shall be no victimisation of the strikers.

The railwaymen rejected these proposals and the conference terminated.

Situation Easier.

The conference between the Labour Deputation and the Premier ended at five minutes to two. Mr. Brownlie, seen afterwards, said the situation is much easier.

After the conference the deputation went to Unity House and resumed its conference with the joint executive of the N.U.R. and the Amalgamated Society of Locomotive Engineers. At three o'clock a Government official from Downing-Street arrived at Unity House with an urgent message for Mr. Gosling.

Wanted, 2,000 bus Conductors.

The Government are appealing for a citizen army to meet the crisis.

The following message was posted yesterday morning in the London Stock Exchange, "The Ministry of Labour is asking for 2,000 volunteers for bus conductors. This is of extreme urgency."

Ballot papers have been sent out to all taxicab owners and owner-drivers on the question of striking in sympathy with the railwaymen. They are returnable to-night.

The Taxicab Mutual Insurance Company has circularised its policy holders informing them that policies do not cover damage from strike riots or civil commotions.

Train Wreckers Busy.

A fiendish attempt to wreck a train near Swindon was a very deliberate affair. A "Jim Crow" was fixed to one rail, while a piece of "Bull headed rail" seventeen feet long, also a large beam, were placed across the metals. The "Jim Crow" was broken by the wheels of the train, three chairs on the permanent way were fractured and the beam was carried 700 yards. Similar obstacles which had been placed on the down line were removed in time to prevent a catastrophe.

A large piece of iron was discovered on the London and South Western line between Camelford and Exeter last night, It was placed in such a position that the well laden passenger train from Waterloo must have crashed into it had it been undiscovered and terrible consequences must have ensued. Armed guards and police made a fruitless search for the perpetrators.

[illegible] the line at Dunfermline. Other trains were stoned. Strikers entered the engine-shed at St. Enoch station at Glasgow and damaged the locomotive of a passenger train running between Glasgow and Greenock.

The drivers of two vehicles had corrosive fluid thrown at them in a South Eastern suburb of London and there were also a few cases of stone throwing, but generally the Central Police Administration declares that molestation is conspicuous by its absence.

King Leaves for London.

The King left Balmoral Castle on Friday morning by motor car for London.

Concerning the Wages.

The Editor of the Liverpool Express telegraphed to the Prime Minister: "If Railwaymen return will they be reinstated and back money due paid immediately?" to which the Minister replied: "Every man who returns to work immediately will be reinstated and receive his back pay."

London's Broad Smile.

Owing to the enormous improvement in the train services it has been decided to discontinue the inland civil aerial mail services. The weather holds gloriously fine, brilliant sunshine mitigating the rigour of the strenuous game of getting to work. The bus loads, lorry loads and dray loads of passengers are all most cheery. In fact, London keeps smiling and is full of optimism. Moreover the multifarious emergency services brought into being by the strike are improving every day, while the employers themselves are bent upon carrying on. Many of them have devised and perfected their own plans for bringing their employees in, but when all is said and done, the average working day, between leaving and reaching home, has been extended on the average by two hours.

Saturday Holiday.

In this connection the appeal of the Early Closing Association to City firms not to open Saturday, met with a most gratifying response, especially from dry goods firms and insurance companies. It is estimated that a hundred thousand young persons were thus released.

The Jewish Fast of Atonement which began on Friday night also kept thousands at home.

Traffic Still Improving.

The Government official communiqué issued yesterday says there is a marked improvement in railway traffic. Goods trains in particular continue to increase in number and more men are returning to work. The general machinery of distribution is running more smoothly every day and the food stocks of retailers are being kept at a satisfactory level.

More Lines Reopened.

The London lines reopened or extended yesterday include: Broad street to Poplar, North London, Hammersmith and Ealing. Metropolitan: Aldgate to South Kensington, Moorgate and Finsbury Park tube and the several branch lines. The following reopen to-day: Bakerloo tube between the Elephant and Paddington and IRISH RACE RIOT.

PAVILION WRECKED AND MANY INJURED.

Stormy scenes occurred at Limerick on Thursday when the second day's racing was cancelled at the last moment and the crowd failed to get their money back at once.

They broke into the reserved enclosure and mobbed the race company's secretary, who took refuge in the Post Office under the grandstand. On attempting to escape he was kicked and beaten with sticks. The staff succeeded in escaping through the Post Office windows. The crowd then wrecked the premises and tore up all the railings. Police reintorcements arrived and fired volleys over the heads of the crowd, following with several baton charges. Many police were injured.

CHIEF "MANY SMILES."

PRINCE OF WALES GETS FAMOUS WARRIOR'S TITLE.

Visiting the Blackfoot Indian camp near Lethbridge, Alberta, yesterday, the Prince of Wales was invested as Chief with the title of "Many Smiles."

The Prince's installation was conducted by an old one-eyed chief, who is reputed to have had an eye removed during his youth to qualify him for succession to his one-eyed father.

WORLD'S CORN CROP DOWN.

Estimates of the year's corn crops are issued by the Board of Agriculture. The yield of wheat in Spain, Scotland, Italy, Canada, United States, India, Japan, and Tunis is put at 929,525,000cwt, or 5.6 per cent. less than the 1918 crop, and 1.1 below the average for the five years 1913-17. Rye, barley, and oats, while below last year's production, are above the average for the 1913-17.

LEEDS LABOUR LORD MAYOR.

Leeds is to have its first Labour Lord Mayor next year in Mr. Thomas Beveridge Duncan. Mr. Duncan, who is a shop past.

the Hampstead tube between Charing Cross and Highgate. All the above are daylight services but the Metropolitan services between Harrow and Baker street and Edgware road and Liverpool street are now running after dark. The Great Northern announces that it will run no trains to-day (Sunday).

The extent of the resumption of goods traffic is a notable feature of the reports from various companies. Last night the South Eastern notified that it can accept perishable food consignments at their London termini. The same company states that there has been no molestation of the men who have returned and are returning to work, the conduct of the pickets having been exemplary.

Messrs Cook, the tourist agents, have established motor char-a-banc services to Peterborough, Leeds, Harrogate, Bath, Southampton, Bournemouth, Exeter, Ilfracombe, Hastings, Eastbourne and all intermediate points.

Regent's Park Depot.

Regent's Park is being utilized not as a food centre but as a lorry centre for the distribution of foodstuffs. The vehicles will cover a radius of about 120 miles round London, the depot providing the transport for distribution to and from the different markets—Covent Garden, Smithfield, Billingsgate etc. as required. It will also send convoys of food into the country and bring farm, market garden and other produce back to the markets.

Regent's Park depot already controls facilities for handling 20,000 tons weekly by means of heavy lorries. Numbers of such types were commandeered yesterday from private owners by officers stationed at Oxford Circus.

Food Controller's Early Round.

The Food Controller, Mr. G. H. Roberts, visited Smithfield before breakfast, but earlier still he had been to Billingsgate. After Smithfield he went on to Hyde Park and found that everything was working quite smoothly.

At Billingsgate he saw how the riverside workers are striving to maintain London's supplies. Unloading was in full swing and fish porters were handling the cases of fish in the same spirit as they dumped ammunition in past days. Owing to lack of suitable cases the fish was actually placed in ammunition boxes.

Before the strike the average amount of fish handled daily exceeded 600 tons. That figure dropped considerably at the beginning of the week. On Friday, however, pre-strike figures were reached, while yesterday it is estimated that 700 tons passed through the market. Regular supplies of fish are reaching Lancashire and Yorkshire towns by sea and Midland towns by rail.

Industries Which Suffer.

Except in trades where huge quantities of material and coal are necessary there has been little cessation of production nor will there be for some time, declares the Federation of British Industries. The industries chiefly affected by the strike are those employing furnaces and kilns, such as the iron and steel, glass, textile, engineering and leather industries.

STRIKELETS.

IN THE FRONT LINE AT WOKING.

The 2nd Royal Fusiliers travelled in lorries from Borden Camp to Tilbury, en route for India.

At Smithfield 4,399 tons of meat have been received during the past four days. This is up to the average.

A striker detected riding to the city yesterday morning on a Government service dray was seized in the Edgware road by the other passengers and pitched out headlong.

According to the [illegible], machine guns, protected by sandbags and barbed wire, have been placed beside several bridges on the South Western line, and wire entanglements have been erected on the platforms at Woking station.

The 5,000 naval ratings from Rosyth, who volunteered for railway service, have been distributed between the North British and Caledonian systems.

Over 1,000 passengers for London left Carlisle yesterday morning in two trains. They formed the last body of passengers from various points who have been stranded at Carlisle since the outbreak of the strike.

A train conveying fish workers from Aberdeen reached Yarmouth yesterday after a journey of eight days. They were held up for three days at Berwick, again at York and South Lynn.

Steamers with accommodation for 550 passengers will leave London to-day or to-morrow for Newcastle and Middlesborough, the fares being 12s. 6d. third class, 20s. second and 30s. first.

Lord Montague of Beaulieu drove the Bournemouth express to London yesterday.

Mr. Hansell, formerly tutor to the Prince of Wales, is working as a stableman at King's Cross depot.

The millionaire shipowner, Sir Edward Nicholl, M.P., is engine driving on the Great Western. In early life he was an engineer.

The number of trains run yesterday was 3,480, exclusive of 900 run on the tubes and the Metropolitan.

Three volunteer workers, including one woman, who have been attending to the railway horses abandoned by the strikers, were badly assaulted at King's Cross yesterday evening.

Receiving a telegram that her child was seriously ill at St. Andrew's Home, Hayling Island, a poor woman living in the East-end of London tramped the eighty miles to see her little one, accomplishing the journey in two days and one night, [illegible] ing for and receiving priority for milk for their children.

Colonel Ker Fox, the City Swordbearer, finding it impossible to get to London by train, did the seventeen miles from his residence in a motor-hearse.

"I've dented the front of your 'bus and you've called me a—fool, so we're quits. Good-bye," said a motorist to an omnibus driver after a collision in Theobald's-road, W.C., and even the policeman smiled.

WAY TO LABOUR PEACE.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S PROPOSALS.

President Wilson's health will not permit him to preside at the White House conference on Monday between Capital and Labour and either Secretary Tumulty or Secretary of Labour Wilson will take his place. One of the chief topics of the conference will be a proposal for the establishment of a council for the settlement of labour disputes, which will replace the defunct War Labour Board. The steel strike and the general railway situation will be thoroughly threshed out. President Wilson will probably submit a system of arbitration which would not prevent the men striking, but which would destroy the incentive to strike.

Meanwhile Judge Gary, chairman of the U.S. Steel Corporation, states that if left alone the strike will soon end in a signal defeat for a body of men who do not represent his employees but are trying by extremist and intimidatory methods to force such representation.

SIX FEET OF HAILSTONES.

Appalling stories of the havoc wrought by floods are reaching Madrid from towns in Valencia, Alicante and Carthagena. At Alicante the hailstones which wrought considerable damage to property are lying six feet deep. All traffic is rendered impossible by the breaking down of bridges and railway lines. At Carthagena, where eighteen dead bodies have been recovered, the water is subsiding but the streets are encumbered with masses of debris from demolished houses.

MAKING THE BEST OF IT.

The news of the ratification of the Versailles Peace Treaty by the French Chamber was received by the German Press without comment. In spite of the opposition to the Treaty nobody had any doubt that it would be ratified by a great majority.

QUIEN REPRIEVED.

Quien, at one time alleged to be Nurse Cavell's betrayer, and sentenced to death on September 5 for intelligence with the enemy, has been reprieved.

General Denikin has introduced Russian as the national language in the Ukraine. Ukranian street names have been replaced by Russian names.

SUMMARY COURT.

PENALTY FOR INSULTING A LADY.

The wearing of a brassard did not prevent an English lady from being insulted in the Hohe Strasse. Mrs. A. L. Foster, who is on a visit to her husband, was shopping in that thoroughfare when she noticed two men following her. She took no notice and walked on. One of the men followed her, took off his hat and said something which she did not understand. To escape attention she walked through an Arcade but he followed and again raised his hat and spoke to her. She sought the advice of two soldiers and while speaking to them the man disappeared. On a subsequent day when walking with her husband, she saw the man and had him arrested. His name is Markus Barterer and he resides at 9 Krummer Büchel.

Barterer's defence was that he took the lady for an acquaintance. He did not notice the brassard. He further pleaded that he had a wife and three children.

The Court administered a severe castigation to Barterer and said it was abominable that a defenceless woman could not walk about without being insulted by pests like Barterer. He was fined 1,000 marks or ten days imprisonment.

Kindness Rewarded.

The excuse given by Martin Marx of 17 Unter Goldschmied, when found in possession of 250 cigarettes, was that he was taking them to a friend of his in hospital, but this kind intention did not mitigate the offence and he was fined 123 marks.

Harbouring Deserters.

When L/Cpl. Matthews, of the Military Police, visited the house of Margaretha Stahl of 62 Sternengasse he found three soldiers in hiding—two deserters and one absentee. She denied their presence in the house but he found two locked in a lavatory and one hiding on the stairs.

Her defence was that the men went there for refreshments and had not been there many minutes when the policeman arrived. She had never seen the men before, and in fact she gave the policeman a lamp to assist in the search.

She was sentenced to two months imprisonment.

PETROGRAD IS WATCHING BOLSHEVISTS DRIVEN INTO MARSHES.

General Rodziansky and Baron von Wolff, in an order of the day to the North West Russian Army, state that large quantities of war supplies have been received, notably bread from America, boots, guns, rifles, aeroplanes and tanks from England. The order adds that the enemy has been "driven into the marshy districts where they must either perish or surrender. Petrograd is watching and Tsarkovels it is expected will soon be set free."

THE FUTURE OF PALESTINE.

Emir Feisal, interviewed by the Jewish Chronicle, said that Palestine must remain part and parcel of Syria, as there is no natural boundary between the two countries. Palestine is a province from the Arab standpoint. Their intention is to build up an Arab Empire consisting of at least Mesopotamia, Syria and Palestine. He appealed for Jewish co-operation in the formation of an Arab Kingdom, when the concentration of the Jews into the country might "make of Palestine a Jewish province of an Arab Kingdom."

PRESIDENT WILSON'S CONDITION.

A bulletin issued yesterday by Admiral Grayson regarding President Wilson's conditions says: "The President is a very sick man. His condition is less favourable to-day. He remains in bed throughout the day. After consultation with other doctors at which all agreed concerning his condition it was determined that absolute rest is essential for some time."

ARCHIVES AS WASTE PAPER.

According to a report from the Russian Archives Commission, a large number of most valuable documents have been lost. During the first days of the Revolution, it says, the archives of Petrograd, Moscow, Saratoff, and Minsk were sold by weight as waste paper.

NOSKE'S WINGED WORDS.

In his speech delivered at the conference of the Social Democratic Party officials of Greater Berlin, Herr Noske said:—"If we are to get through, we must have the courage to be severe and rather sacrifice a couple of thousand mad fools than a nation of 60 millions."

HIS ONE EWE LAMB.

The United States Senate has rejected twenty-nine of the amendments to the Peace Treaty proposed by Senator Folls, leaving only one still undealt with, namely, that eliminating American representation on the Reparation Commission.

STRIKE AT BENRATH

VIOLATION OF BRITISH PROCLAMATION.

Thirteen men employed in a tube manufactory at Hilden, near Benrath, struck work without having submitted the matters in dispute to the military Authorities. As a result they were charged at the Summary Court with having violated the Proclamation of the 16th April last making strikes illegal. Considerable interest was taken in the case and there were a large number of the strikers' friends in court.

The presiding officer said he wished the men to understand that the first duty of the British Authorities was to provide for the safety of the English forces, and it was obvious that if strikes were permitted they would endanger the peace of the Occupied Territory.

If masters and men could not settle a dispute amongst themselves it should be referred to the British Authorities, who would ensure that the men's demands received every consideration. He did not look on the present case as a very serious one because there had been no violence, and in all probability they had just cause for striking. In view of the fact that the men had been in prison for some time awaiting trial he would award them one day's imprisonment each, which meant that they would be immediately released.

FAMILY PERISH IN FIRE.

INQUEST ON DRAYTON PARK VICTIMS.

No definite explanation of the explosion and fire at Drayton Park, in which five persons, the wife, two sons, a daughter and niece of Robert Jones, a letter sorter at the G.P.O., lost their lives, could be given at the inquest at Islington.

Robert Jones stated that he was on night work, and went to bed at 3.45 p.m. on the day of the tragedy. The remainder of the family were out. There was then no fire or gas burning in the house. His son William had a motor-cycle, which was out of repair, and which was kept in the bath room on the hall floor. He had never heard his son say he was going to use the cycle, and he did not think he had any paraffin or petrol. He was awakened from his sleep by the cries of his son William. On opening his bed room door flames were rushing up the stairs. He closed the door and got on the coping of the next house, from where he dropped into the arms of the [illegible] account for the origin of the fire.

George Brown, sub-officer L.C.C. Fire Brigade, stated that when the front door of the house was burst open the bodies of Esther Mary Gough Jones and Ella Doris Hall were found at the foot of the stairs. Witness had come to the come conclusion that the fire originated on the ground floor. A two-gallon petrol can, with the screw off, was found in the basement. It was empty, but if the flame of a light came in contact with the vapour it would cause an explosion.

The inquiry was adjourned.

ARGENTINA'S PROFITEERS.

"La Nacion' of Buenos Aires, counsels the Government to take action against the high cost of meat, and states that Commissions for the regulation of the sale and prices of meat, similar to those in the United States, are badly needed in Argentina. Meanwhile Argentina sugar manufacturers demand the modification of the laws so as to permit the exportation of sugar.

ARMENIA'S NEIGHBOURS WARNED

Colonel Haskell, High Commissioner in Armenia, representing the Allied and Associated Powers, has gone to Baku to warn the Government of Azerbaijan that if the violation of the frontiers assigned to Armenia does not cease, and if their military operations are not concluded, grave consequences will ensue

PROFANING HOLY RUSSIA.

According to Soviet newspapers which have reached Omsk, it appears that in Moscow the Bolshevists have closed all the monasteries and transformed them into prisons. Lenin recently addressed a dramatic appeal to the peasants requesting them to deliver to the Army all their excess corn under penalty of being excommunicated by the Socialist State.

TROOPS FIRE ON BERLIN MOB.

A collision has occurred in Berlin between soldiers and a crowd of 15,000 people in connection with a meeting of workmen in the Muellerstrasse. The soldiers fired, killing one civilian and wounding ten. Thirty meetings of metal workers which had been convoked were prohibited by the authorities.

FOCH'S LOURDES PILGRIMAGE.

Marshal Foch has been on pilgrimage to Lourdes. He stayed a considerable time in the grotto and sanctuaries, and then left by motor for Tarbes.

Admiral von Tirpitz's recollections have now been published in Berlin, the first chapter appearing in the "Tageblatt", which expresses the hope that the public will read them with the necessary caution.

READY-MADE BATTLES.

War revelations, as was inevitable, are descending upon us "thick as Autumnal leaves that strew the brooks in Vallombrosa". Demos, in his increasing plenitude of power, is slowly extracting cold truth from hidden archives that have so far defied the light of day, and statesmen and generals, particularly in the Central Empires, are themselves divulging many secrets of peculiar interest. Much is being revealed which will prove of the utmost value to the future historian.

The official Austrian Red Book is one of the latest disseminators of this vital, and at times fascinating information. On the eve of the opening of hostilities an experienced diplomat would scarcely have looked upon the Wilhelmstrasse as the centre of unsullied integrity; hardly more exalted, as one may readily perceive from the pages of the Austrian Red Book, was the morality of the Baliplatz.

To what Bismarckian lengths did Count Berchtold, the Austro-Hungarian Minister for Foreign Affairs, go to bring about war that he submitted an urgent report to the aged Emperor at Ischl on July 28th, 1914, stating that Serbian troops had fired from Danube steamers on Austrian and Hungarian soldiers at Temes-Kubin. Accompanying this report was a declaration of war for the Emperor's signature, which explicitly alluded to this Serbian "attack".

After the Emperor affixed the fatal signature, Count Berchtold deleted the reference to the affair at Temes-Kubin subsequently explaining in a letter to Francis Joseph that he had taken upon himself to eliminate this sentence, as the report had not been confirmed.

Turning to the pages of "Great Britain and the European Crisis", an invaluable collection of diplomatic correspondence and statements in Parliament published by the British Government, we find abundant references to this resourceful Count, who was as courteous in deportment as he was conciliatory in debate. He and his Under-Secretary, Count Forgach, were apparently both averse to "banging the door" on compromise or cutting off conversations.

M. Schebeks, however, the Russian Ambassador in Vienna, like his Allied diplomatic friends, "scorned delights and lived laborious days" in the attempt to bring about peace, repeatedly asserting that he was prepared to accept any reasonable compromise. To what extent Count Berchtold was responsible for this failure to arrive at a settlement by negotation at the eleventh hour and how far he was a servant of the German Government, are doubtless well known to Herr von Tschirsdky, the German Ambassador in Vienna, who seems to have been a busy stage-manager with the invisibility characteristic of that profession. In time a strong revealing light may shine in that dark quarter for the benefit of the people who were so cruelly and persistently deluded.

For the present, in view of the grave deception he perpetrated on the Austrian Emperor, we can only regard Count Berchtold, at least in one phase of human character, as a worthy disciple of Bismarck. Since the famous Ems telegram of July 1870 there has been nothing quite so masterful in the annals of diplomatic crooks as the story of the "attack" at Temes-Kubin, and possibly nothing quite so tragic in its consequences.

THE JOYS AND SORROWS OF A TOWN MAJOR.

When I received a chit from the adjutant telling me to take over as Town-Major of that particular area where my Battalion was situated, I was assailed by beautiful visions of the future.

I pictured myself sitting in a spacious room with a crowd of Burgomasters and other big-wigs all kow-towing to me, with beautiful Boche belles bringing me refreshments the while I dispensed justice to all and sundry amidst the plaudits of the multitude.

Filled with these visions I hied me to my future abode intent on taking up my duties immediately.

Having explained my presence in his office, the Town-Major suggested that I should spend a few minutes reading up the regulations which I was expected to know off by heart.

He thereupon handed me about 250 pages of close typewriting, airily remarking that "there was not much in it."

After a few minutes scrutiny I thoroughly agreed with him, as the contents seemed to be a mixture of the Police Code, the Manual of Military Law, and a war article by Hilaire Belloc!

that the "To be answered" file was the big fat one in the corner, and that his clerk would assist me for a few days, vanished from my gaze for ever.

I was just engrossed with the happy thought that now, at any rate, I could safely promenade in spurs and leggings, even though my only mount was a bicycle, one, W.P.D., when the clerk aroused me with those familiar words "Sign please!"

Oh, the joy of seeing my name followed by those wondrous words, "Town Major." Even though all I possessed was, by an unaccountable oversight, but a humble pip instead of a gorgeous crown, still, by covering the first word with my hand, I could place myself amidst that happy band of brothers.

But disillusionment followed speedily. Was it fair to ask me to find out how many pints of milk per day a cow would give if fed on:

(a) Quaker Oats (1) a fine day
(b) Corned beef on (2) a wet day
(c) Ditto (3) a cloudy day.

How could they expect me to render a return by 16.00, showing the birthmarks, tattoo marks etc. on all German males between the ages of 16 and 35, when I only received it at 15.00?

What was the "necessary action" I was expected to take with regard to a document which informed me that there was an outbreak of foot and mouth disease at Wigan?

But enough of this harrowing tale. I am fed up with being the local magistrate, policeman and sanitary inspector, and if any one knows of a Platoon, that is wanting a perfectly good second-in-command, well, all I can say is "that's the stuff to give me!"

V.L.R.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.
Our Readers' Varied Views on Many Topics.

GERMANS IN OUR CINEMAS.

Sir,—Reference above, and the letter from "Surprised" which appears in your issue of to-day, I can hardly agree with the letter in question, as I was at the No. 2 Army Cinema on Monday evening last at 5.30 and German civilians were then being turned away to give Tommy a chance to obtain a seat, and again the same thing was happening at 5.40 last night. Notwithstanding this a seat was not procurable.

One cannot blame the German civilian for wishing to see a good show, and it certainly reflects great credit on the enterprising authorities who provide such attractive programmes.

We British pride ourselves on our sense of fairness and I do not think our boys would like to be told at the German places of amusement that we had our own places to go to and must wait till the civilians had filled the places they required.

If the same method of procedure, suggested by "Surprised", was adopted by the management of the Opera House, English lovers of music would stand a very poor chance.

S.S.M.

LEATHERED TUNICS.

Sir,—This is a wicked world for many of us and the letter of "Club Worker" the unkindest cut of all. One dashing soldier thought "Club Worker" would like him for his manly bearing. Another thought the neatness of his tie, in the choice of which he spent the whole of a morning, could not fail to attract and please. But no! No longer will this sadden me.

Instead, I rejoice exceedingly. No longer shall I look askance at my old civvies, the threadbare coat, the knee patched trousers.

No longer when demobbed shall I sigh for jingling spurs and shining field boots, nor even for the medal ribbons which hitherto had meant so much; for when in rags and tatters clad shall I not find more favour in my lady's eyes?

APOLLO.

AUNT SALLIES.

Sir,—One feels that the present crisis teaches one lesson that should be hammered home hard. It is that the Government are far from being the incompetent fools that fashionable gasbags try to make them.

What can the Slough busy bodies do but hide their heads in shame? Or are they too blind to realize that at last the truth is out? Some one who knew his job must have foreseen the need for a reserve transport depot and therein lies the history of Slough.

One deplores the present day habit of electing men to govern us and then, instead of giving them our confidence, we use them as Aunt Sallies, and hurl every kind of derision at them so that we can have the fun of putting up new ones. Truly we are a wonderful nation.

A. P. G.

ADVANCE OF ADVANCES.

longer gives money for field advances for officers.

To-day the rate of exchange at Cox's was 90 marks to the £1, the military being 120 marks to the £1, a difference of 33 1/3 per cent.

This means that an officer's pay in marks is reduced by 33 1/3 per cent or goods bought at the N.A.C.B. clubs or canteens have increased by 33 1/3 per cent.

Thus, having cashed a cheque at Cox's at 90 marks to £1, and I have dinner at the club for 15 marks or 2/6 at N.A.C.B. rates, I pay for it at 15 marks at 90 to £1, i.e. 3s 4d.

Or again my pay is 12/- a day and an N.C.O. in my unit receives 9/- a day; being privileged to get money from the cashier through the imprest accounts he gets 333, or £3 more marks than I do, and buying goods at a German shop he has exactly the same amount as myself.

Officers who live away from Cologne must get their money through German Banks or stay a night in Cologne before they can get any money.

P.W.F.B.

SPARE TIME GERMAN LESSONS.

Sir,—Being most anxious to acquire a workable knowledge of the German language, and only having about three evenings a week free for study, will some correspondent kindly let me know through the columns of your paper if there is any Army Institution or College in Cologne where one can get a few German lessons a week, and, roughly, how long it would take an intelligent man to obtain a workable knowledge of the language? Such information would be gratefully accepted by myself and no doubt many others.

"NIX SPRECKEN DUTCH."

ENGLISH WOMEN IN CAFES.

Sir,— May I be permitted to make a few observations on the alleged grievance of your correspondent "Mrs. Atkins"?

"Is Mrs. Atkins" under the impression that only in cafés reserved for officers she is likely to spend an idle hour in enjoyment, or that they are in any way less noisy than those cafés frequented by other ranks? If so, she is very much mistaken.

I could submit a list of first class cafés, where not only an hour, but an entire evening may be spent with enjoyment in the quiet precincts so ardently desired, and they are not reserved for officers.

PIP.

SOLDIERS' WIVES: CHURCH ARMY SCHEME.

Sir,—With the approval of the Military Authorities the Church Army scheme for the accommodation of the wives of soldiers has been completed.

Arrangements have been made so that the Church Army Rest House (Hotel Mittlehauser) may be temporarily used by wives and their husbands, whilst billets are being found.

Rooms are free, but meals, viz, breakfast, dinner, tea, and supper, will be provided at the cost of 3/6 per day.

In the case of soldier's and their wives bringing their own rations a charge of 1/— per day will be made for vegetables and extras. A sitting room (with piano) and a mess room are provided.

If a soldier cannot meet his wife on arrival, a lady will meet the train. And when necessary the Church Army H.Q. in London will arrange for wives to be met in London where free accommodation will be given, and their departure in the morning arranged.

R.O. HOWE,
Commissioner, Church Army.

THEATRE SEATS.

Sir,—I felt greatly amused after reading "H.A.C's" article in the "Cologne Post" dated 30. 9. 19, with reference to theatre seats.

Surely "H.A.C." does not wish to infer that British soldiers taking their German lady or gentleman friends should be debarred from entering the Deutsches Theatre, simply because he (H.A.C.) happened to be unlucky in obtaining a ticket for a certain performance?

If a soldier wishes to take a fraulein to the English theatres why should he not? Has "H.A.C." any objection?

We soldiers go into the German theatres and picture houses and cabarets without any objection being made—in spite of the fact that we have requisitioned a fair number of these places for our own use.

A MERE DEVON.

THE R.O.D. AND THE STRIKE.

Sir,—The railway strike now taking place in England, having brought to light a hitherto little-known branch of the Army, viz. the R.O.D., it probably might be of interest to your readers to know that there are many of these men—lots though with two or three years' service—in Flanders and Germany.

As you are aware, practically all the railway working for the British Armies is now being done by the civilian railwaymen in the different countries and one wonders why the Government who is calling out for volunteers to work the English lines does not send these R.O.D. men home to help by carrying on at their proper work, instead of keeping them out here doing trivial jobs, which could be done by any Labour Corps man.

As every railwayman knows, the majority of these R.O.D. men were enlisted straight from the Railway Companies, so obviously they would be much more useful to help to break the strike than civilians who have had no actual experience of railway work.

THREE R. O. D's.

A PLEA FOR RUGGER.

Sir,—I read with pleasure in your today's issue a letter under the above heading, by Gunner R.F.A.

Rugby football, although hitherto not over popular in the services, is most healthy and interesting sport. In my opinion it surpasses "Soccer"

Let the soldiers in Rhineland, particularly those who represent the West of England, rally to support the "fifteens", and we should be privileged to see some rare games.

SGT. R.G.A.

ORCHESTRA CRITICISM.

Sir,—I was present at the Deutsches Theatre the other night and the performance of "Hindle Wakes" was excellent, but words fail to express the agony which the audience had to suffer at the hands of the so-called orchestra. Apparently every instrument had been tuned from the piano which was itself hopelessly out of tune. The total result is far better imagined than heard.

HARMONICUS.

ARE WIVES CARELESS?

Sir,—You ask, Are wives careless? I had occasion to interview the Command Paymaster re allowances yesterday and was in rather a hole owing to the fact that I had not, as I believed, my marriage certificate in Cologne.

Judge of my surprise when my wife remarked that she had brought it along with her. If you ask me if my wife is careless I say most emphatically, No.

JAZZ.

MISINTERPRETATION—A CHARGE.

Sir,—"Hindle Wakes," as performed by the B.R.A.D.C. is an absolute misinterpretation and misrepresentation of what is acknowledged and accepted as "a modern play of high moral standard, treating a difficult subject with refinement and reserve."

The play is clean and straightforward, and when produced in England received no adverse criticism. But at the Deutsches Theatre an atmosphere is created both questionable and suggestive, and the audience — to judge from the continual sniggering and half-ashamed giggling, evidently considered it of low moral character and tone, seeing allusions and insinuations where none existed and thoroughly misunderstanding the whole aim and idea of the play.

C.A.R.

THE FATALIST.

Adolphus Fitzherbert was a fatalist. To him the whole scheme of life was cut and dried.

Years before the war ever started Adolphus had been convinced that it had to be.

It was with a light heart therefore that he joined up in 1915 and prepared for any hard knocks that Fate had in store for him.

Smilingly he bore the verbal attacks of an irate Sergeant Major, thereby increasing that worthy's rage.

To him summary awards of C.B. were as water on a duck's back.

Did he arrive late on parade he put it down to a malignant Fate which persisted in dogging his footsteps.

The bugle call for "Defaulters" became as sweet music to his ears.

Behold then our fatalist arriving in due course in France.

Fate (at least he said it was) decreed that he should be one of a draft going up to the salient almost immediately.

To the fact that our hero lost his train at a wayside station whilst on a "scrounging" expedition, he also credited Fate.

An unsympathetic R.T.O. thought otherwise, and lost no opportunity of saying so.

However all good things must have an end and eventually he found himself well up in the salient energetically engaged in handing out hate to brother German.

But Fate was insistent. It seemed to take a fiendish delight in buffeting the worthy Fitzherbert.

Twice was he mixed up with shell bursts, and he began to think it beyond a joke when his portion of stew was one day wafted skywards, leaving him holding the handle of a "dixie" with a somewhat sheepish expression.

But the culminating point in his career came later.

Back to the wagon lines our fatalist had been sent to recuperate.

A pair of mules had been allotted him to assist in the process.

Whilst engaged in "stroking" one of them down one day, the said mule handed the worthy Adolphus a straight left.

He took the full count.

On once more awaking to the glad light of day he found his "badge, cap, regimental" missing

From that day to this he has never recovered from the cruel knock of Fate that allowed the Quartermaster to charge him 2½d for a new one.

ROYAL WARRANT.

PAY OF WARRANT OFFICERS, N.C.O.'s AND MEN.

SEVENTEENTH ARTICLE OF THE SERIES.

II.—Classification of Tradesmen.

1. For the purposes of immediate classification of sappers or privates under paragraph 5 of Table I., pending the introduction of a universal standard test for all arms, the following rules will apply:—

(a) Where a man has already been classified for Engineer or Corps pay a provisional classification under this Warrant may be carried out on the same lines, viz.:—

Pay Warrant.	Classification for	Corps pay.			Engineer pay.
		R.A.V.C.
		R.A.M.C.
		R.A.O.C.
		R.A.S.C.	M.T.	1st rate	Very superior
				2nd and 3rd rates.	Superior..
			Horse.	...	...
				5th, 6th, and 7th rates.	Skilled .. Proficient.
					corresponds with
This Warrant					Class I.
					Class II.
					Class III.

Corps pay.
R.A.V.C.	4th rate.
R.A.M.C.	3rd rate.
R.A.O.C.	3rd and 4th & 5th rates.
R.A.S.C. M.T. 1st rate	3rd and 4th rates.
R.A.S.C. M.T. 2nd and 3rd rates.	4th, 5th, 6th and 7th rates.
R.A.S.C. Horse.	5th, 6th, and 7th rates.

Men temporarily classified as above will be reclassified with retrospective effect from 1st July, 1919, as soon as the necessary tests can be held.

(b) Where no such classification exists, e.g., in the case of Royal Arrtillery or cavalry artificers, tradesmen will be brought on pay provisionally as Class III. in the group to which their trade belongs, and will be re-classified with retrospective effect from 1st July, 1919, as soon as the necessary tests can be held.

(c) Where Corps pay is drawn at rates lower than those shown above as corresponding with Class III. a man will draw provisionally the normal rate of pay under paragraph 2 of Table 1 unless he is already definitely classed as a tradesman, in which case he will draw Class III. rates under paragraph 5 of Table 1.

2. In the absence of instructions to the contrary the number of soldiers in each Class will be determined by the number qualified for that Class within the total numbers allowed for the particular trade. There will be no establishment for each, other than Military Accountant Clerks, will be passed under Group C.

III.— Special Reserve and Territorial Force Counting of Service.

In the absence of special instructions the present rules as to the counting of service for purposes of increments of pay dependent on length of service will continue to apply (i.e., only mobilized service counts).

IV.—Proficiency Pay.

1. The standards of professional efficiency for the grant of proficiency pay will be published as soon as possible both for cavalry, artillery and infantry and for the soldiers drawing normal rates in Arms or Corps for which proficiency pay was not previously issuable.

2. Soldiers already drawing proficiency pay, Class I., may draw provisionally the new proficiency pay provided they have at least one year's Colour service. They will, however, be required to pass the tests for professional efficiency when they are published in order to continue drawing proficiency pay, but, in the absence of instructions to the contrary, they will not be required to pass the educational tests, as a condition of continuing to draw proficiency pay.

3. Soldiers in receipt of Class II. proficiency pay or those re-enlisting will be required to satisfy all the conditions attending the grant of the new proficiency pay.

V.—Transfer to New Rates.

Where the rates of pay under this Warrant are more favourable than those under previous Warrants paymasters should take steps as early as possible to adjust the soldiers' accounts. Where the rates are less favourable than those drawn hitherto no adjustment will be made until the new rates equal or exceed the old.

VI.—Pensions.

Revision of pensions of those eligible will be undertaken by the Commissioners of the Royal Hospital, and applications for revised pensions need not be submitted by the pensioners.

By Command of the Army Council,
R.H. BRADE.

MR. WALTER WINANS.

Efforts To Break Further Trotting Records.

At a trotting meeting at Parsloes Park, near Barking, next Thursday, in aid of St. Dunstan's fund for blinded soldiers and sailors, Mr. Walter Winans will endeavour to break the world's two-mile pair horse record of 6 minutes 40 seconds, which he holds. He will also drive to beat the single horse to wagon amateur record of 2 minutes 34 seconds and the amateur paced-mile record of 2 minutes 40 seconds, both of which are held by him.

Colonel Cecil Bevis, the well known steeplechase rider, will ride "Trotter" to endeavour to establish a mile record for amateurs.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

D/190 Bde, R.F.A., 2; 159 Siege Battery R.G.A. I.

7 WINS OUT OF 8.

The above teams met on Wednesday on the former's ground at Poll, and a fast game ensued. The Siege were the first to score, and pressed strongly, but the excellent play of Bingham and Howard at back wore down the Siege forwards. The Field front line getting into their stride, a goal was scored by Odgen at centre. Half time found the score level, and "D" pressing hard.

In the second half, "D" had most of the game, though their goalkeeper had some anxious moments. The Siege goalie also played a very sound game, and kept off repeated bombardments of his goal. He was eventually beaten, however, by a penalty kick by Driver Bingham. No further scoring took place, "D" Battery retiring winners by 2-1.

"D" Battery has now won seven out of eight matches played.

5th BORDER'S SUCCESS.

X Corps Senior Football Competition 1st Round.

The 5th Border Regt. met the 29th Bde., R.G.A., on the Hofgarten, Bonn, on Wednesday afternoon, in the presence of large crowd of enthusiasts, who braved the heavy rain. The game was very fast considering the state of the ground and the diminutive Border team counterbalanced their lack of weight by their ability to keep their feet on the sticky turf. After about twenty minutes play, a break-away on the gunners left resulted in a goal. Shortly after, a penalty was given against the Borders for "hands". The goalie saved smartly. On recommencing the Border forwards made tracks for the gunners goal and a hard drive left the goalie helpless. The pressure was continued and from a melée in front of goal the Borders took the lead. Play was transferred to the opposite end, but the backs and goalie were safe and frustrated all the Gunners efforts. Time came with the Borders winners by two goals to one.

9th Tank Corps beaten by 11th Royal Scots.

The above match was played on the former's ground at Krazau on Wednesday. The "Royals" were the first to get going and were deservedly rewarded with a goal scored by Pte Livingstone after ten minutes play. The "Royals" kept up the pressure and again scored by means of a superb individual effort by Pte Kelly who ran through all opposition and scored a lovely goal. After this further reverse, the "Tanks" rallied and following a mix-up by the visitors backs, the home centre forward made no mistake from the opening presented and scored easily. Soon after this, the whistle sounded and half time was reached with the score 2—1 in favour of the Royal Scots. There was no scoring in the second half and rought game by two goals to one.

"D" Coy. 52nd K.L.R. v. "C" Coy. 52nd K.L.R.

This match was played at Obercassel and resulted in a win for "D" Coy by the odd goal in three. "C" Coy opened the scoring through Massey, "D" Coy's goalie, letting the ball slip out of his hands from a shot by Lieut. Long. "D" equalised just before the interval.

In the second half, "C" Coy. kept up a heavy bombardment of "D" Coy's goal, but as a result of Massey's cool play, "C" failed to get the lead. After about half an hour's play, Carrol scored for "D" Coy from a penalty. "C" now tried hard to equalize but Massey and his colleagues managed to keep them out until the whistle went for time, leaving "D" the winners by 2 goals to 1.

Lieut. Long played a fine game for "C" Coy., while Massey undoubtedly saved "D" Coy from a heavy defeat.

BY MOTOR.

Clapton Orient Left for South Shields on Thursday.

The Football League carefully considered the question of suspending or re-arranging yesterday's matches, but considered it most inadvisable to alter the fixture list. Many teams travelled by train but a good number went by motors. Several crack teams travelled by road on Friday, while some even started on Thursday, including Clapton Orient who had one of the longest journeys to South Shields and in order to run no risks left by motor in the afternoon.

MILITARY SPORTS.

G.H.Q. Technical College Sports At Siegburg.

INTERESTING EVENTS.

A very successful sports meeting was held at Siegburg by the staff and students of the G.H.Q. Technical College. Lieut. C. W. Bream (sports officer), and his capable staff are to be congratulated on the initiative displayed and the results achieved. The arrangements made to ensure the success of the meeting left nothing to be desired.

Colonel F. W. Gossett, C.M.G., D.S.O., at the close, strongly commented the efforts of both organizers and competitors, very appropriately pointing out that sport is one of the Britisher's greatest and most valuable characteristics, and one that cannot be too keenly fostered.

Mrs. R. T. L. Beckett graciously presided at the distribution of prizes to the successful competitors. Lt.-Col. G. N. Gibbs, R.E., Commandant of the College, acted as referee. Among the Judges were Colonel F. W. Gossett, C.M.G., D.S.O., and Major Colvin, V.C.

The principal events were won by Pte. A. Young, 5th K.O.S.B., and Lance Corporal C. Walker, 9th London Regt. A handsome silver cup, presented by Captain and adjutant S. A. Egerton-Hine for the highest aggregate points, was awarded to Pte. Young, of whom one may expect to hear great things as a sprinter in the future.

A good band gave a liberal programme of music, and the proceedings terminated with cheers and the National Anthem.

NEW YORK'S N.S.C.

U.S. Boxing Enterprise That Will Cost 500,000 Dollars.

A Reuter New York correspondent telegraphs that a Membership Boxing Club, modelled on the lines of the National Sporting Club, London, will open in February in New York. Included among the sponsors of the project are 100 of the most prominent men in the United States. The building, which is to be of marble, will cost half a million dollars.

The new club proposes to organise a series of tournaments.

WORLD'S ARMY AND NAVY CHAMPIONS.

The heavyweight champions of the British and American Armies and Navies will box for the world's Army and Navy championships and belts, presented respectively by Major-General Wood and Admiral Sims, and these will be contested there.

The arrangements will be under the direction of the noted American promoter Rickard.

U.S. GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

The American women's golf championship was continued at the Shawnee Country Club on Tuesday. All the favourites won their matches with the exception of Miss E. Rosenthal, runner-up in 1914. Miss Alexa Stirling, the holder, defeated Mrs. Caleb Fox, and Mrs. W. A. Gavin (South Shore), the English International player, who was runner-up in the American championship in 1915, easily defeated Miss Cummings.

DRAMATIC FINAL.

Duncan Beaten By Mitchell On 36th Green.

£590 GOLF TOURNEY.

The final on Thursday between Duncan and Mitchell, at Walton Heath, for prizes amounting to £590, given by the proprietors of the News of the World, was replete with dramatic surprises. The interest was sustained to the thirty-sixth hole, and the excitement became more and more intense as the end drew near. Each one of the thousand spectators felt instinctively that here was the supreme test as to who was the better golfer. Duncan had declared it so; therefore the cards were on the table, and the issue was fought out from that standpoint. Duncan lost on the thirty-sixth green; he should have settled the matter on the thirty-fifth, but in the most extraordinary manner possible he simply hurled his chances away.

MATCH DETAILS.

At the end of the first round thanks to brilliant putting Mitchell was 3 up with 75 strokes to 80. On the second round, however, Duncan put up a fine fight, reducing an adverse balance on the first hole where he laid Mitchell stymie.

Duncan became all square at the 16th hole and at the 17th hole had a great chance of becoming up for the first time but missed a yard put and halved the hole. There was great excitement when the two started for the last deciding hole on level terms. Duncan took three to get on the green to Mitchell's two, both being ten yards from the pin. Duncan putted a yard shot while Mitchell ran two feet past the hole.

Mitchell holed with the next stroke amid great enthusiasm, winning by one hole, the scores being Mitchell 78; Duncan 77.

D.L.I. DERBY.

Victory For 9th Against 51st At Amsterdamer Strasse.

A good game was witnessed on Friday between the 9th and 51st D.L.I. Battalions on the ground in Amsterdamer Strasse. A large number of supporters of both teams added to the interest of the game and their vocal efforts were as successful as the play. The teams selected were as follows:—

9th D.L.I.:—Sgt. Rocks, L/Cpl. Shepperd and Pte. Hattersley; Cpl. Jinks, Capt. Gibson and Pte. Fotheringham; Sgt. Martin, C.Q.M.S. Etherington, Lieut. Cross, Pte. Mooney, and Cpl. Beckton.

51st D.L.I.:—Sgt. Wise and Cpl. Stanway; L/Cpl. Pearson, Lieut. Miller, C. S. M. Lister, Pte. Ovington, Lieut. McGreehin, L/Cpl. Widdeson, Pte. Herringson and Pte. Cartellich.

THE GAME.

The game commenced in favour of the 51st but the 9th soon settled down to good play and were unfortunate in not scoring quite early on—Sgt. Wise having to kick over his own line to effect a clearance. The 9th continued to have the better of the game and both C.Q.M.S. Etherington and Lieut. Cross came very near to success. During a scramble in players handled and from the ensuing penalty Capt. Gibson drew first blood for the 9th. Half time arrived with the score: 9th D.L.I., 1; 51st D.L.I., 0.

The "breather" appeared to have revived the 51st for they went off with a rush on the resumption. However Sgt. Rocks was very cool in goal and he effected some excellent saves. Some clever combinations by the 9th followed even play and C.Q.M.S. Etherington found the net with a beautiful shot. The 9th continued to have the better of the game but could not add to their scores. Result: 9th D.L.I., 2; 51st D.L.I., 0.

For the 9th Capt. Gibson did some excellent work at centre-half, his attack being a constant source of trouble to the opposing forwards. Lieut. Cross and C.Q.M.S. Etherington did well in the forward line whilst Pte. Hattersley was very successful at left back. For the losers good form was displayed by Sgt. Wise at right back, Lieut. M. Greehen and Cpl. Widdeson in the forwards, whilst Capt. Miller was a tower of strength at centre-half.

FOOTBALL DIRECTORS RESIGN.

A sensation was caused in Leeds on Thursday by the announcement that the whole of the Leeds City Football Club directors have resigned.

AMUSEMENTS AND RECREATIONS.

The Benefit Performance.

Gala nights and benefit performances are not uncommon in Rhineland, but a show like the one at the Palace Theatre on Friday has no precedent and will set a standard that will take some reaching in the future. The auditorium was packed to its utmost capacity; probably never before has the Herzogstrasse theatre been more crowded. Long and varied, the performance was unflagging, but sustained one's interest and evoked appreciation right to the last. It would be useless to treat all the numbers in turn; taken in its entirety the show appealed to one as a series of impressions, bright, sparkling, gay—and otherwise; a wealth of colour and melange of music and merriment.

* * *

Embracing everything from dancing to character studies, from Jazz bands to things classical, it astounded one with its versatility. The "Tabs," including Alfred Barker the violinist and Miss Hilda Potts, were as bright as ever. The new topical ditty by the quartette "Nix Fustein" and the double number by Harry Harris and Tom Fenwick certainly enhanced the reputation of "The Crumps." In a wartime cafe scene Erb (Fred Weedon) really brought down the house. Claud Cole, a colleague of Weedon's in "The Pedlars" cleverly played the lady. Jerry Joyce and Bobby Macauly, of the same party, gave us one of their delightful dancing acts.

* * *

But that wasn't all. Lew Hailmark, L. Vigar, and other members of "The Tonics" were there; so was the G.H.Q. Jazz Band. Really, it would be tedious to run through the names on the programme, so I will deal with the rest of the turns more or less collectively. "The Jesters," by kind permission of Mr. Alfred Hurley, who appeared personally, lived up to their reputation and kept things going merrily to the end. Incidentaly Black and White, a coloured gentleman and a fair lady, were deservedly encored for their exceedingly clever dances.

* * *

A word of commendation must be accorded to the combined orchestras of the "Tabs" and the "Crumps" under the direction of Conductor Harold Porter. Capt. Haygarth, too, is to be congratulated upon the success of the project, and the work of Cpl. Cowling, running the front of the house, also deserves praise. I do not know exactly the result financially, but I am told it exceeded the most sanguine expectations.

Return of "The Jesters."

The return of "The Jesters" to the Palace Theatre, Cologne, next week is being eagerly anticipated by those who were privileged to witness their excellent entertainment on the occasion of the previous visit as well as by those who are acquainted with this merry party only by their reputation. I hear that arrangements are being made by the genial Mr. Hurley who runs the party, to perform before units in outlying districts.

Y.M.C.A. Forthcoming Events.

A varied and attractive programme has been arranged for next week. On the attraction as well as analyses of a concerto with illustrations. The "Tabs" and "Tonics" will give a concert on Tuesday and the theatre and music hall will be discussed. For Wednesday, a concert and a discussion, "Germany, yesterday and to-day" have been arranged while for Thursday, cinema and orchestra and a further discussion entitled "Germany, to-day and to-morrow" are announced. Friday will see a return of the "Tabs" and "Tonics" with a new programme, a whist drive being billed for the same evening. Saturday's arrangements include a Miss Illingworth concert and folk-dance class. No charge is made for admission to any of the entertainments or lectures.

A.G. and C.C. Dance.

A successful and enjoyable dance was given at the Army General and Commercial College, Hansa Ring, on Wednesday evening by Colonel E. C. Heath, D.S.O., Staff and officer students to their friends in Cologne. Mingled with the bright hues of the ladies' costumes and the officers' drab khaki was the ever welcome blue of the Royal Navy. The band deserves special mention as it greatly contributed to the success of the evening, and much indebtedness is due to Colonel and Mrs. Heath for their successful efforts in catering for the enjoyment of their many friends. It is understood that a similar entertainment is taking place on Saturday night in the same place for Other Rank students, to which the Colonel has invited members of the N.A.C.B. and W.R.A.F. Dolmagen.

"Hullo Cologne!" Matinee.

The splendid performance of "Hullo Cologne!" was repeated yesterday afternoon at the British Empire Leave Club to a crowded house. The production was the same artistic success as it was on Friday night and the artistes were ably supported by the orchestra. The performance was a most finished one and much enjoyed by all present. Among those who were present on Friday and Saturday were Lady and the Misses Robertson. Lt.-Gen. Sir A. and Lady Godley, Lt.-Gen. Haldane, K.C.B., D.S.O., Brig.-Gen. Clive, C.B., C.M.G., Gen. and Lady Hutchinson, Maj.-Gen. Chichester, K.C.M.G., C.B., Brig.-Gen. and Mrs. Tandy, Maj.-Gen. Heneker, K.C.B., D.S.O., Brig.-Gen. and Mrs. Rogers, Brig.-Gen. Shewen, C.M.G., D.S.O., Brig.-Gen. Hobbs, C.M.G., D.S.O., Mrs. Vernon Lloyd, A.C., Q.M.A.A.C., Miss Curlett, A.C., W.R.A.F., Lady Cooper and Miss Weldon, Y.M.C.A., Miss Holway, Catholic Club, and the ladies in charge of the Church Army and Scottish Churches and Victoria Club and many others.

In Few Words.

Alfred Barker, the well-known English violinist, in addition to his appearance at the Deutches Theatre next Sunday, is playing at Euskirchen on Friday.

I hear there is a possibility of a new "Tabs" Concert Party being organised. If this is so there should be some fine openings for really clever artistes; for names are to be made in Cologne.

By the way, I announced the other day that Miss Hammond would assist at Archie Mozley's recital on Friday; it now transpires that Walter Brickell will be the vocalist, Miss Hammond being unable to be present.

OUR FOOTBALL CONTEST.

Entries Already Arriving For Skill Competition No. 3.

Already, football competition No. 3, the rules of which are published below, is well on its way. Yesterday morning, entries commenced to arrive in large numbers within a few hours after the competition was available. This is a cheery sign, and indicates that there is good reason to suppose that record entries may be received.

There were several competitors in last week's competition who omitted to enclose the necessary mark with each effort, despite our warnings, and these, obviously, are automatically disqualified in fairness to those who took the precaution to comply with all the rules before submitting their entry.

The result of competition No. 2 will be published on Wednesday and as we indicated yesterday the sum to be disposed of is in excess of the previous contest.

Read the rules below and then make your forecasts for matches to be played next Saturday.

Coupons must be addressed:—

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 3,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S./40 Rhine Army.

List of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

FOOTBALL COMPETITION No. 3.

Date of matches, Saturday, Oct. 11th.
Closing date, Friday, Oct. 10th.

W. Bromwich	v. Bolton
Bradford	v. Newcastle U.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE IN A NUTSHELL.

Keenly Watched.

Stephanson, Scotswood, is another player of this "Nursery" Club, who is being keenly watched, by "spotters."

Art of Shooting.

Middlesboro's halves are a splendid line and Fox has shown his forwards how to shoot. The "Boro" are very fortunate in this department.

The Sculling Championship.

Ernest Barry is now training for the race on October 27 from Tom Green's boat house at Bares. Felten, his opponent, is boating from Bower's and Phelps', at Putney.

Major League Baseball.

Major league baseball (the highest professional grade of the American "national game") ended with the playing of one contest in the American League, New York defeating Philadelphia by 4 runs to 2.

Gifted Players.

Blackburn have some gifted players on their books. Besides being brilliant exponents of "footer," Hawksworth Byrom and Danny Shea are shining stars in another direction. The former is a gifted pianist, Byrom a splendid vocal artist and "Danny" can give a fine exposition of step dancing (as his opponents will often testify).

Standing Long Distance Kick.

Milton, once of Sunderland and now one of Sheffield United's defenders, was the winner of the standing long distance kick, at St. James Park a few years ago.

A Big Success.

There was a big crowd at Altrincham—the first big pigeon show since the war. Catalogues were sold out, and the tents were so crowded it was almost impossible to get near the birds.

Good Sport.

Anglers from Birmingham have done well on the Severn above Bewdley. One rod had 40 good roach and several club, chiefly on the worm. In the Worcester district sport has been good.

Barbel And Club.

Mr. Bridgman, fishing near Windsor, has had 40 more barbel and club, but the cold weather has interfered with sport. Beyond a few roach and dace Mr. Stanley Mead bas nothing to report from Henley.

Giants In Those Days.

When we read of "footer" matches today and the inability to lead and score of so many centre-forwards one conjures memories of G.O. Smith, Appleyard, Peddie and Shepherd and others of their class. Shades of stars, but those were the times.

Metropolitan Matches.

In all his Metropolitan matches, Johnny Basham, the welter-weight champion, has proved successful.

"Human Triangle."

The "Human Triangle" Cuggy, Buchan and Mordue, have yet to strike their pre-war form. One wonders if Charlie Thomson's steadying influence is missed.

Driscoll And Another Belt.

Will gim Driscoll compete for another Lonsdale Belt? Providing be beats Charles Ledoux at the N.S.C. on October 20, you may be certain that the incomparable Irishman will want to have another tilt for a Lonsdale trophy.

Big Transfer.

A contemporary recently stated £2,000 was the highest transfer paid for a football player. The writer concerned, evidently forgot Horace Barnes whom Manchester City secured from the "Rams" for £2,500. This famous forward has yet to touch pre-war form.

Joe Bache.

"Oh! for Joe Bache" is Aston's supporters lament. With him between Dorrell and Bourne what a different tale might have been written. "Once he used to net, now he stops others netting," is a witty spectators description of Exeter's fisherman "goalie."

"Magpies" And Mooney.

When will Newcastle United give Mooney one of their reserve halves a show at centre? We have good reasons for asking.

Willie Smith.

Willie Smith, of Darlington, who is conceding Fred Lawrence 4,500 start in a match of 18,000 up, at Thurston's, scored 965 in an hour and a half to his opponent's 94.

Mares In The Cesarewitch.

So many mares have won the Cesarewitch during its history that one is naturally impelled to consider the prospects of such a good class filly as Chuette now that Keysoe has gone out.

Severe Preparation.

There are many horses who cannot stand the gruelling preparation so essential to success in a Cesarewitch, and a lot of those who have gone through the ordeal have not been of much account afterwards.

A Record.

In 1898-99 Glasgow Rangers won every match in the Scottish League which constituted a record. The same season saw Preston North End undefeated champions of Div. I of the English League, and they also won the cup without a goal in the against column. "Some" season.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Rhine Colour Effects.

The Rhine is taking on new beauties in these early autumn days, and those who are abroad in the early morning and evening will have been happily surprised to note how harmoniously and delicately, seen from a little distance, the Dom and the Hohenzollern Bridge compose in the softened lights. Perhaps the vistas up and down stream have not the peculiar colour and beauty of the Thames in London in autumn, but Whistler, Manet and Sisley would have loved to paint them.

An Ill Wind.

Those who have been on leave in Blighty this week have been offered a week's extension to ease the railway situation. And very nice, too.

Pricing all Goods.

I was amused at the almost feverish anxiety with which German tradesmen have been ticketing their goods. The possibility of a penalty for exposing articles which did not bear the price aroused them to sudden activity. Coincident with this action there seemed a greater interest taken in the shops by passers-by. The strict enforcement of the regulation is certainly an incentive to straightforward dealing and also saves the time of both shopper and salesman.

Saluting.

A G.R.O. calls attention to the saluting of officers of Allied Powers and to the return of all salutes given by officers and other ranks of these powers.

An Amusing Interlude.

There was an amusing interlude at the Benefit Concert at the Palace the other night. The orchestra struck up the preliminary bars before an artist appeared when who should come on the stage but a corporal acting as a stage hand. Of course, the audience roared with laughter, but the corporal took his call and bowed his acknowledgments.

Putting up Prices.

I hear that the prices in the N.A.C.B. canteens are likely to undergo revision next week, presumably in accordance with the changed rate of exchange.

Musical Taste.

Funny how musical tastes differ. I discussed with my batman the merits of the Palace benefit performance yesterday morning and ventured the suggestion that it was a good show. He agreed. Strange as it may seem the works which have stood the test of time and are always favoured by music lovers had no place in the items he preferred. But ragtime—well he went into rapture over it.

More Leather for Germany.

Leather is apparently becoming cheaper in Germany. The fancy shops now expose for sale many souvenirs such as revolver holsters, cigarette cases, handbags etc, that some weeks ago were quite unobtainable.

Bondage.

Our Indian soldiers have some quaint ideas. Two of them had lately arrived in Cologne, and were astonished to find everything practically normal. One remarked on the trams running; the other on people going to work as usual. His conception of Cologne and a beaten enemy was of trainless streets, no shops open, everyone in prison, and what few were allowed out should have been walking in chains and fetters.

River Very Low.

The Rhine is so low just now that I saw yesterday quite a number of children paddling right in the middle of the channel.

Ploughing in Germany.

Those who have found themselves billeted in the agricultural parts of Rhineland, may have noticed the double plough which the farmer uses. This enables him to plough all the time on the same side of the furrow, merely turning round his horses and dropping his other spade previously elevated, into action. This appears to be an advantage over the English plough, for our ploughmen have to walk their horses to the other side of the furrow. On the other hand the German method must be harder work for the horses because actually they drag along two ploughs.

No Grousing.

Everyone readily realized why we had to raise our price a trifle and paid the extra 10 pfgs yesterday without a murmur. Three farthings, after all, is not much, is it?

Live and Dead Donkeys.

Are there any donkeys in Cologne? I do not wish to be misunderstood—I am referring to the four-footed species. A dead donkey is supposed to be something of a rara avis in England, but up to now I have failed to see one, either dead or alive, in Rhineland. Perhaps some of our readers have been more fortunate.

English Weekly Magazines.

Why should a Tommy pay 1.50 marks for a 1½d English weekly? There appears to be some profiteering somewhere. Why not buy "The Cologne Post" for 35 pfg. and be sure that you are getting full value for your money?

A Motto.

The German passion for mottoes is spreading. Only the other evening I passed a Fräulein whose shapely calf and ankle were covered by a lacy open-work stocking on which a motto had been worked. Modesty, of course, forbade my reading it.

Got Yours?

The Command Paymaster had quite a busy time at the Excelsior yesterday morning inspecting the marriage certificates of officers. You see each claim for the higher rate of lodging, fuel and light allowance and furniture allowance for married officers must have a certificate that the officer is married and still eligible to draw the rates provided for in the new Royal Warrant Army Order. Many urgent requests for the necessary "marriage lines" must have been dispatched, post haste to England, during the last few days.

By Way of Paris.

Officers returning from England—and a few have managed it in spite of the strike—have to travel to Cologne via Paris, as no leave trains are running either way at present.

Hauled Back.

A walk towards Venusberg the other evening proved reminiscent of an unoffending trick one meets with in schooldays. Lying on the ground was a worn note case and wallet with the edges of musty looking notes easily visible. The natural action when one notices such wealth is to stoop down and pick it up, but if you wish to be considered prudent, or if you have a knowledge of the youthful and inventive brain, you will "let wealth alone." On bending down to grasp the case you suddenly discover it has been drawn to the other edge of the road where in the adjoining field a "Knabe" grins at you inanely as he winds up an almost invisible thread.

Their Metier.

Since I wrote of that wife of an officer who has succeeded so well in doing the marketing for his mess, I hear quite a demand has sprung up in the messes of Cologne for other wives to do the catering.

The Compétition Craze.

A German contemporary announces that a new serial detective story is to commence in a few days time. They do so by means of a pamphlet giving the first chapter; inform you that the continuance will be found in to-morrow's paper—and finally offer 1000 marks if you can guess the name of the individual who is to be murdered—or is it the murderer? I'm not quite sure—during the course of the story. Sounds delightfully simple, doesn't it?

Wee Dictionaries.

Everyone in Rhineland must have seem those miniature vestpocket dictionaries in the shops. They are wonderfully popular. It is easy to buy the English-German volumes, but the German-English seem to be scarce.

Cost Of Repairs.

If you intend to have a clock or watch repaired, then the best thing to do is to have it inspected and ask for an estimate or otherwise you will receive a rare shock when you go to claim your property. Many of the charges are altogether out of proportion to the work done, but what can one do but pay up and smile? The same applies to a hundred and one things which one is obliged to put into the hands of a German tradesman.

Which Arm?

[illegible] wear their brassard, asks a lady correspondent. Members of the staff wear it on the right arm, but many ladies wear theirs on the left. After all it strikes me as a matter of little consequence.

Ware.

The Germans who attempted the other night to introduce themselves to the wife of one of our soldiers will doubtless find it a costly amusement, but the very fact that Germans have the audacity to attempt to treat English women as they would their own should convert our womenfolk to the idea of wearing the brassard on all occasions. The German has a nasty way of pleading ignorance when charged with an offence. Instance his invasion of reserved railway carriages. The only thing he understands is "Verboten" in large type.

Post Card Atrocities.

Cannot something be done to prohibit the display of objectionable postcards in shop windows? Some of these cards are an outrage on good taste and examples of German "wit" in its crudest form.

Where?

Some individuals are very fortunate in their wanderings. A writer in an English contemporary arouses our curiosity by references to wine at four and a half marks a bottle. It could not have been in or near Cologne that he refreshed himself at so low a rate. Many writers about Rhineland to the home press are singularly ill-informed.

Saving Gas.

Gas is now turned off in Cologne for several hours during the day. Until they get used to this state of affairs, cafe proprietors will find themselves involved in difficulties. Yesterday, for instance, a popular rendezvous for afternoon tea had to suspend operations, because being dependant upon gas cookers, no hot water could be prepared.

Mark Your Envelopes.

When sending in coupons in our football contests always see the envelope is marked "Football Contest" in the top left hand corner. This saves time in sorting and removes all possibility of oupons going astray. RHINELANDER.

THE TREASURE SEEKERS.

Man has ever been seeking from the earliest times in the history of the world, for something he knows not what; still amidst all the seekers it is given to the few to shout "Eureka" — I have found.

When the Vikings in the old days set out from their homes into the unknown seas, they hoped to find new lands to conquer, new wealth to add to their store. When men braved the bitter cold of the North, when the lust for the treasure of earth took them into the vast stillness of Alaska, it was for gold, and in that quest some laid down their lives with the treasure still unfound.

Plato dreamed a dream of a new Republic, and wrote for men what he had visions of finding in the future, but centuries have rolled on, and that ideal state has not been found, only appearing once again in the dreams of a man like Sir Thomas Moore, who gave to us his ideal, his Utopia, but only in theory.

When Saint Paul stood on Mars Hill he knew that men of the ancient civilization were ever seeking for some new ideas, some new philosophy, and we know how futile were their longings.

Socialism has tried to find the Ideal, and now this world is slowly recovering from the blow which was almost the end of all things, men through different means are seeking for that Utopia of the old writer's dreams.

The treasures of earth, whether they are things material or the ideas of the mind, seem like the fleeting shadows of the cloud as its glides swiftly across the face of the earth, and men grasp, and in grasping fall to the ground. It was only a shadow.

There is one treasure that if man seeks he shall find, there is the promise of He who made all things, to whom the Universe belongs, that promise written in the hand book of the Divine, which tells the weary searcher after rest and peace; "Seek and ye shall find." That promise comes from one who has never failed the human race in its dire neccessity.

"What shall it profit a man if he gains the whole world and lose his own soul?" we read in the old Book, and it points out to us how useless are the efforts of men, who only look for the fleeting things of this life, who only look for the treasures they can pile up on earth, when there is that grander, nobler life to come, when man is not held by the bonds of time and space, beside which the material things of earth are only seen as through a glass darkly, that larger life when we shall see face to face, when the treasure of heaven, the Love of God, shall predominate all through the seaons of eternity.

PHOTOGRAPHY.

(XXV.)

By LIEUT. W. ROBERT PATTERSON.

It may occur that you wish to secure a photograph during the dark hours—a group of friends or the interior of a room.

This is done by what is termed "flashlight," and either magnesium ribbon or a special mixture may be employed for the purpose. Both may be obtained from any picture, the operator should leave the lens open, since the flash itself performs the exposure necessary, according to the dimensions of the interior or the number composing the group. After exposure, one should cap the lens of portrait cameras or, in other apparatus, close the shutter. Mixtures are always preferable to ribbons for they give a much brighter flash. I take this occasion to give the amateur a useful formula, which can be made up by any chemist, although the worthy editor of our "Cologne Post" has forbidden me to make my articles too technical.

In spite of that here it is!

Chlorate of Potash . .	60	grains
Magnesium Powder . .	30	„
Sulphide of Animony	10	„

This mixture must be placed on a metal base—the lid of a small tin will suffice—and then flashed by the application of a match or spill. There exist, too, small burners of flash-light mixtures which may be obtained at low prices.

Care must be taken, as in daylight photography, with reference to the position of the camera, and the object or objects to be portrayed.

The correct focus may be obtained by directing any artificial light upon the object in question. It is clear, also, less of the mixture will be required for a near object than for a distant one and sometimes it is even necessary to use two simultaneous flashes should the scene or group be very large. One needs practice in this branch of photography since much must necessarily depend upon the speed of the plate, the colour of the object, the aperture of the diaphragm and the duration of the flashlight, but by a little study the amateur will soon acquire the art of taking such pictures.

Sometimes—more especially in warm weather—the gelatine edges of the surface of a plate reffle up, resembling miniature waves. This may be remedied by placing the negative after washing in a bath of methylated spirit. This produces contraction of the gelatine to its former condition. A solution of alum or formalin will also diminish the danger of "frilling" as it is called.

THE LION LEADS in CURING

During the strenuous times of the past few years

Burgess' Lion Ointment

has more than maintained its reputation, it has gained increased commendation for its marvellous efficacy in removing pieces of shrapnel, splinters of bone, etc., from old wounds, healing them permanently from underneath.

Nature will always assert itself

It is useless healing a wound until it is thoroughly cleansed; it must break out again worse than before. The great success of

is that it will not heal till it has thoroughly cleared away all morbid matter. There is no danger to life in curing a bad leg by this remedy, as it does not throw back humour into the system. It cures without lancing or cutting, bringing all disease to the surface and healing from underneath in all cases of Ulcers, Abscesses, Whitlows, Boils, Carbuncles, Fatty or Cystic Tumours, Piles, Fistula, Polypus, Poisoned Wounds, and all forms of Skin Disease, Eczema, Ringworm, etc.

RAILWAY STRIKE ENDED.

TERMS OF SETTLEMENT WHICH BOTH SIDES REGARD AS VICTORY.

FULL SERVICE TO BE RESUMED TO-DAY.

The Railway strike ended at 4.30 p.m. on Sunday. Following are the terms of the settlement.

1. Work to be resumed forthwith.
2. Negotiations to be continued with the understanding that they shall be completed before the 31st of December 1919.
3. Wages will be stabilised at their present level up to 30th September 1920, but may be reviewed after the 1st August 1920, in the light of circumstances then existing.
4. No adult railwayman shall receive less than fifty-one shillings weekly so long as the cost of living is not less than 110 per cent. above pre-war level.
5. The men will work harmoniously with those who remained at or returned to work and no man shall be prejudiced in any way as a result of the strike.
6. Wages withheld as a result of the strike shall be paid after the resumption of work.

The Conference between the Premier, the Railwaymen's Executive and the Mediation Committee of the Transport Workers' Federation lasted five hours. It was then announced that a settlement had been reached.

The railway services of Great Britain will be resumed in full to-day.

NINE DAYS WONDER.

MEN TO RESUME WORK AT ONCE.

After nine days the Great Railway Strike which, in the present critical condition of world economics, will turn out to be one of the most disastrous on record, is ended. Both sides claim a victory, the Government winning on the insistence of resuming work and on the minimum wages question.

The men win, in that they have secured a nine months' postponement of any possible reduction of present rates and a guarantee that no reduction will take place unless the cost of living falls below a given figure.

The crowd in Downing Street on Sunday morning loudly cheered the Railway delegates. Before the Conference the Premier conferred with several Ministers including Mr. Bonar Law, Mr. G. N. Barnes, Sir Robert Horne, Sir Eric Geddes, and Sir Auckland Geddes.

The King's Satisfaction.

The King heard the news that a settlement had been reached with great satisfaction, receiving it both from Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. J. H. Thomas. A little later the Premier visited His Majesty, to give an account of the negotiations.

Scene at Unity House.

The result was received at the Unity House with great jubilation and the House flag was hoisted to the mast head.

Mr. Brownlie, the Railway Engineers Secretary, described the settlement as satisfactory.

Men Meet at Albert Hall.

At a great meeting of the Railwaymen at the Albert Hall Mr. Cramp, President of the Railwaymen's Union, said they had won a great battle.

Mr. J. H. Thomas insisted on the purely economic character of the strike and declared that the Railwaymen had had no quarrel with the Constitution of the country.

It spoke well for the men, he said, that during the nine days struggle wherein 700,000 men had participated they had conducted themselves in a manner which set an example to the whole world. He denied that any large number of Trade Unionists had returned to work and declared that the men are as solid as ever. The settlement which was largely due to the Premier's efforts, was an honourable settlement affording credit to both sides. It could not be said that either side had capitulated or gained the victory. He appealed to the men to return to work without any trace of bitterness.

Mr. Thomas resumed his seat amid prolonged cheers.

A resolution was adopted accepting the terms of the settlement and undertaking loyally to abide by them.

Result of Mad Impulse.

The Minister for Labour, Sir Robert Horne, in an interview published in the Observer, says it is almost impossible to fathom the spirit of unreason which induced the leaders of the Railwaymen to bring the country to such paralysis when there remained so long a period wherein, if their fears were well founded, action could be taken to inform the country and persuade the Government that their proposals were wrong.

If anything were wanted to prove that some other influence had been behind this strike it would be found in this singular and significant circumstance. There was no evidence that the ordinary railwaymen wanted the strike. His opinion was never asked and no ballot was taken. "I am sure" he said "Mr. Thomas was as much surprised as anyone at the wave that swept him off his feet. I don't pretend to be able to trace the source of this mad impulse but no sane person who considers the facts can doubt that it was mad. A guarantee for six months of an assured minimum amounting to double the pre-war wages, even on the basis of pre-war cost of living, and arbitration before any re-adjustment of wages; what is there in these conditions to justify a strike?"

"I do not hesitate to assert that if the railwaymen had been allowed to ballot, no persuasion would have induced them to strike."

"When the men whose leaders have not yet told them the facts realise what the facts are then they will begin to understand the precipitate character of the action which rushed them into inflicting a blow of unparalleled brutality on their innocent fellow citizens. Happily the community had risen to the occasion. They had shown the world during the past week what British ingenuity can contrive. They have gone a long way to demonstrate that the services of the railwaymen are not absolutely indispensable to carrying on."

Loyal Dock Labourers.

The labourers under the Port of London Authority met on Saturday and decided that under no circumstances would they strike even if their leaders ordered them to. A similar resolution was passed by the dockmen at the East India docks.

A meeting of Railwaymen at Teignmouth on Saturday was broken up by ex-soldiers and sailors.

Last Attempts at Train Wrecking.

A few more attempts at train wrecking were made on Saturday. One was near Fort William, where the fishplates were removed and the lines slewed round towards the bridge. Fortunately surfacemen discovered the outrage in time to save the oncoming train.

Railway points at Hull were tampered with and apparatus in the signal box at New Cross was altered and some tracks greased but no serious damage was done.

Premier's Summons to Mayors.

Mr. Lloyd George sent the following telegram to the heads of the principal civic authorities throughout England. "Circumstances arising out of the present regrettable conditions in regard to railway communications and their effects on trade, industry and the life of the community generally, render it necessary that I should have an opportunity of conferring with the heads of our great civic authorities upon matters of urgent public importance and I shall be glad if you can attend to meet me and the Ministers concerned on Tuesday. If, as may well be the case, the responsibilities of your office at this time render it undesirable for you to be absent I trust that you will be able to send a responsible deputy."

Surplus in the Markets.

In the Metropolitan markets on Saturday all requirements of buyers were met and a considerable surplus was left over. Wholesale prices showed a small decline. Milk delivered in London on Saturday again amounted to 75 per cent. of the normal supply. Two thirds of it came by rail.

Comrades to the Rescue.

A number of dockers left their work at Plymouth on Saturday because, owing to the regular staff being on strike, the dock gates at Plymouth were opened by Comrades of the Great War to permit several steamers to put to sea and another laden with timber to enter the inner harbour. The local secretary of the dockers described the action of the Comrades of the Great War as pure "blacklegging."

Export of Petrol Prohibited.

It is officially announced that no further exports of petrol or other petroleum products from the United Kingdom will be permitted to any destination unless under license.

Propaganda by Cinema.

Both Government and strikers made considerable use of propaganda. On Saturday the Government stated their case by posters on the hoardings and they have for some time advertised their offers in the daily press. The strikers replied in the same manner and utilised also pictorial advertisements.

Cinema films were also used to explain the various points of view. On Saturday Mr. J. H. Thomas had an announcement flashed on the screens saying that if the wages of the Railwaymen were reduced other trades would follow. "This is only the first battle in the campaign. It is your fight as well as ours and we want you to help us."

KING ON THE ROAD.

LONG MOTOR JOURNEY FROM BALMORAL.

Their Majesties the King and Queen arrived in London on Saturday, having motored from Balmoral. Their journey was unprecedented. They left Balmoral Castle at 8.30 a.m. on Friday and motored through Braemar over the Spital-pass off Glenshee, where the mountain peaks reach a height of 3,000 feet. Thence the route ran through Perth, Stirling, Lanark, and Carlisle to Lowther Castle. This involved a journey of 240 miles which was done at an average rate of twenty-seven miles per hour, despite the difficulties of the country.

Friday night was spent at Lowther Castle and the southward journey was resumed at eight o'clock on Saturday morning via Appleby, Wetherby, Doncaster, Grantham, Biggleswade, Baldock and Hatfield. The second day's journey totalled 301 miles.

"JACK'S PARLIAMENT."

NEW OUTLET FOR LOWER DECK GRIEVANCES.

The Naval Welfare Committee, or "Lower Deck Parliament," as the sailors call it, has just concluded its inaugural sittings at Portsmouth.

Chief Writer Lane, who presided at the Naval dinner to the Admiral of the Fleet Sir David Beatty, was chosen "speaker" of this Parliament, which discusses a variety of subjects connected with living accommodation aboard ship, pay anomalies, etc. An Advisory Committee of 18 Lower Deck ratings, chosen from the members of the Welfare Committee, will assemble at the Admiralty at an early date.

When the representations, made from the larger body, are under consideration, the members of the Advisory Committee will be consulted by the Admiralty.

STRIKELETS.

The first Great Eastern train from Yarmouth since the strike began, left on Saturday morning for London, the engine being in charge of the regular driver, who had refused to strike.

Acton railwaymen marched about with a placard, "Please, Mr. Landlord, don't be offended. Call for the rent when the strike is ended."

Volunteers at Charing Cross Underground station have been so industrious that they have actually scrubbed the moving stairway.

To perform an operation Sir JamesPurves Stewart, the Harley-street specialist, flew from Hendon to Leeds in a Grahame-White aeroplane, and then motored 50 miles.

A convoy of motor lorries with troops on their way to India passed through the City. One of the cars bore the following, written in chalk, "India, non-stop. The Boys that never grumble."

Two Manchester trade unionists, Councillor Whelan and Mr. J. T. Fox, of the textile workers, walked from Manchester to London to attend the conference. They declined to travel in any train.

The driver and fireman of the Midland and Great Northern joint train from Lynn to Peterborough were greeted at one level-crossing by some pleased women with a jug of beer. At the next crossing the engine met with stone throwing.

R.A.F. AERODROME BURNT.

A disastrous fire occurred on Thursday night at Shotwick Aerodrome, near Chester, one of the R.A.F.'s important centres in the North of England, and a civilian flying station. About seven o'clock the officers noticed flames burst through the roof of a hangar, which was soon alight. The promptitude of two local fire brigades prevented the conflagration from spreading, but the hangar was burned out, and a number of aeroplanes destroyed. The cause of the fire is unknown.

PRINCE AT MEDICINE HAT.

An immense crowd gathered at Medicine Hat on Friday to greet the Prince of Wales and witness the blowing off of a gas well. When the well was fired a flame fifty feet high shot up.

Afterwards the Prince visited some potteries, where all the power and heat is supplied by natural gas.

Passing through the ranching portion of the Southern prairies the Prince generally found the towns deserted, the entire population having lined up at given points to welcome him.

EX-KAISER'S SISTER DEAD.

A German Government wireless message says that the ex-Duchess Charlotte von Saxe-Meiningen, a sister of the ex-German Emperor, died in Baden-Baden on the 1st instant. The second child and the eldest daughter of the late Emperor and Empress Frederick of Germany, she was born on July 24, 1860, and married in February, 1878, the late Duke of Saxe-Meiningen, who died in 1914.

GREEK PREMIER IN LONDON.

M. Venizelos, the Greek Premier arrived at Folkestone from Paris on Friday evening and motored direct to London, reaching the Ritz Hotel about 10.30 p.m.

WILSON BETTER.

TOO ILL TO SEE THE KING OF THE BELGIANS.

The latest bulletins from Washington state that President Wilson's condition is about the same, with perhaps a slight improvement. He is confined to bed and not permitted to work but talks freely with those at his bedside. The patient is greatly weakened but Admiral Grayson denies the rumours that an operation is contemplated.

The King of the Belgians telegraphed requesting permission to see the President unofficially but his request was declined with regret.

Owing to President Wilson's illness the King of the Belgians cancelled all his engagements to tour the United States, except his visits to Boston and Buffalo. He will afterwards proceed to California.

"DOWN IN TENNESSEE."

BLACK AND WHITE BATTLE.

Serious race rioting has broken out in the region of Memphis, Tennessee, on the Mississippi River. Pending the arrival of troops the whites and the blacks are opposing each other in battle array, and many casualties on both sides are already reported. The trouble started when Missouri-Pacific Railway officials triedes, arrest two white men and negro thiev of who fired upon their pursuers, killing one and wounding two. A passer-by who went to the rescue was shot through the face, but managed to give warning at the little village of Elaine, and the whites quickly armed and went in pursuit. They were met by several hundred negroes, mysteriously equipped with rifles and revolvers, and a pitched battle was soon in progress.

At Omaha, Nebraska, where, since the burning of the Court House, General Wood has been in control, the situation has been aggravated by another attack by a negro upon a white woman, and the whites are prevented from invading the negro section of the city to-day only by the presence of 1,000 United States regulars, who command every street corner with machine-guns. The feeling against the blacks is made all the more bitter because large numbers that are arriving from the South have been placed in packing houses to work with white women and under-bid white labour.

The Secretary for War, Mr. Baker, declares that he is not afraid of any widespread disturbance between whites and blacks, but advises the Governors of all States that they have power to call upon Federal troops in an emergency without consulting Washington.

WOMEN'S LAND ARMY.

TO BE DISBANDED NEXT MONTH.

The Women's Land Army, will be disbanded at the end of next month. At the present time only 8,000 out of 23,000 are left in the service. There are two awards of merit in the Land Army, the first being the Good Service Ribbon, awarded to all workers who have given six months' thoroughly satisfactory service, both in and out of hours, and the second the Distinguished Service Bar. The relative values of the two may be best estimated by the fact that some 8,000 of the first have been given and fewer than fifty of the second, which is known as the V.C of the Land Army. and is a reward for acts of gallantry and devotion.

GENERAL JADWIN.

EXECUTED BY POLISH BOLSHEVISTS.

From Reuter's Warsaw correspondent comes the astounding news that Brigadier General Jadwin, of the American Army, who accompanied Senator Morgenthau on his mission to Poland, has been captured and executed by Bolshevists while attempting to reach Kieff from Luck.

It is also feared that his British companion, Lieutenant H. R. Bowe, may have shared a similar fate.

GERMAN INFLUENCE ERADICATED.

In an after dinner speech given by the Melbourne Metal Exchange on the 1st October, Mr. Hughes, the Australian Premier, dwelt on the great strides made by the iron and steel industry in Australia during the last four years. He added that there was no country in which German influence had been so destroyed as in Australia.

ITALIAN TRANSPORT FIRED ON.

While the Italian transport Epiro was in the Gulf of Cattaro, carrying demobilized Italian troops and 200 civilians, she was fired on by Serbian troops. An Italian soldier was seriously wounded. The Epiro completed her voyage to Bari, escorted by a French torpedo-boat.

BRITISH EXPEDITION SAFE.

The British trade expedition which went to Siberia via the Kara Sea has reached Norway on its return voyage with a carge of Siberian goods.

SUMMARY COURT.

A BAD LITTLE BOY TO BE BIRCHED.

Little Franz Groschen of 44 Marsiliusstrasse has got into the clutches of the law very early in his career. He is only twelve years old and he was charged with stealing three shirts, and four pairs of pants from a school in Lobergstrasse at present used as a billet. When found by a sergeant he had the articles in the bottom of a basket, and on top were two packets of tomatoes.

"Do you think," the Presiding officer asked the Sergeant, "that any of your men are capable of constructing one of those ingenious instruments called the birch rod?"

"Oh! yes" replied the Sergeant.

"Well then" said the Presiding Officer, "see that he is supplied with the necessary materials and when it is finished the boy will be given five strokes of the birch, on that part of his anatomy which nature intended for the purpose."

A Bogus Policeman.

A soldier called at the house of Martha Barterer, of 9 Krummer Büchel and representing himself as a military policeman, left 3,000 cigarettes there, stating that he would return for them in an hour. He failed to put in an appearance however and Frau Barterer adopted the very sensible course of sending one of her friends for a policeman, a genuine one this time. When the policeman arrived she informed him of what had happened. The cigarettes were confiscated but a formal charge had to be preferred against her of being in possession of the cigarettes. The charge was dismissed—but the bogus policeman is still missing.

The Cost of a Smoke.

It is contrary to regulations for workmen employed at the Rhine Hafen Docks to indulge in the pipe that soothes, but Jacob Zepp ignored the rules laid down and when ordered to remove his pipe by Sergeant Chidley of the Military Police he only grinned and continued to smoke. There is a good deal of inflammable material, especially oil, lying about the docks, and Jacob was fined 50 marks for disregarding the regulations.

Escaped Prisoner Re-captured.

L.-Cpl. Matthews of the Military Police was in charge of three prisoners when one of them broke away. Handicapped as he was by the other two he could not attempt a re-capture. Subsequently, however, when passing the house occupied by Theodor Richartz and his wife Therese at 18 Agrippastrasse he thought he heard the voice of the missing man. He knocked for admittance in vain and was compelled to burst the door open. On entering the house he found his man on the stairs. Theodor and Therese were charged with harbouring a deserter, but they both denied emphatically all knowledge of the matter and said they were in bed when the door was burst open. They never heard the policeman's knock. Their story did not find favour with the Court. Theodor was given two months imprisonment with hard labour and Therese was discharged.

CYCLONE IN INDIA.

TERRIBLE DAMAGE TO CROPS.

An intense cyclone, the most severe since 1909, passed over the Eastern Bengal jute district on the 25th September, lasting more than six hours and causing indescribable havoc. The jute industry is at a complete standstill. Thousands of small craft were sunk and many lives lost. Vast numbers of peasants are homeless. For these a relief fund has been opened. The damage was exceptionally severe at Dacca, where the Government House and other buildings were damaged.

ADMIRALIY APPEAL.

The Admiralty calls for forty-five volunteers from the Navy, including seven officers for service with the British Military Mission to the Russian volunteer army. They are needed for instructional purposes and to care for British naval guns on trains, in the Volga and Dniester flotillas and the Volga shore batteries. Also to provide a number of signallers for communication between the Mission and war vessels.

ARCHANGEL FORCE HOME.

Three troopships arrived at Lerwick on Friday from North Russia with seventeen hundred British officers and men from Archangel and Murmansk including General Ironside and his staff, who were on the Czaritsa.

PRAYER QUICKLY ANSWERED.

Bishop Ryle, Dean of Westminster, conducted a service of intercession at Westminster Abbey on Sunday. There were special prayers for industrial peace and for a speedy and rightful end of the Railway dispute.

VERY SHORT WAGES FOR SOME.

In an article on the railway strike, the Temps says that the problem raised really comes to this:—"Should a worker be paid according to the good which he does, or the evil which he might be capable of doing?"

LOCAL ELECTIONS.

COLOGNE VOTES FOR NEW MUNICIPALITY.

The municipal elections took place in Cologne on Sunday. Every man and woman over twenty years of age has the right of voting, giving an electorate of about 440,000, but only about half of them fulfilled their duty. The number of polling places was 404.

There was no excitement round the doors of the polling booths where the usual party agents and isolated men could be seen holding boards bearing the familiar "Vote for . . ."

To one category of voters, the nuns, the task was most unusual. They had received special permission from the Pope to leave their convent for this occasion. A procession of about fifty in the Brühler Strasse led by a priest to a polling booth situated in a café attracted much attention.

As far as the results are known it may be said that the leading parties will be the Centre (or Catholic) party, followed by the Majority Socialists. The Independent Socialists polled a very strong vote, and with the Democrats and Conservatives will constitute the opposition.

The official results will be published on Saturday next. Up to now the following unofficial figures are given: Centre, 85,000; Majority Socialists, 75,000; Independent Socialists, 14,000; Democrats, 12,000; Nationalists, 4,000; Volkspartei, 1,000.

FLOODS IN SPAIN.

DEATH AND DISASTER.

Belated telegrams from the Spanish provinces give further details of the floods and resultant devastation. Crops were totally destroyed and two children were drowned under the debris of a house which collapsed. The rice crops, which had been cut, were carried away by the floods. The full violence of the storm was felt at Ferrol and a number of small British steamers which had put to sea were obliged to run for shelter to various ports. At Cartagena the telegraph station had to be abandoned as the water was higher than the level of the instrument tables. Two women were crushed to death by the fall of a wall which was undermined by the floods and a man was killed by the fall of a telegraph pole.

WAR "VETERAN" OF 12.

A French boy, twelve years of age named Daniel Vasseur, who went through four years of the war with British troops, has been handed over to the French authorities.

The boy was living with his mother at Barneville, near Doullens, when the war broke out. He wears the British and inter-Allied military medals. He was once wounded.

DERBY WINNINGS MIS-SPENT.

Charged with embezzling moneys of the Handley Page Athletic Club, Frederick Hodgson, 40, clerk, of Glengall-road, Kilburn, told the Hendon justices yesterday that he had won £1,010 on Grand Parade at the Derby. He spent on an average £5 a night at a Kilburn public-house, and had spent as much as £200 a week. He had been robbed of the last £34 by a woman whom he had taken home. He had since received a remittance, and was willing to hand over to the club the amount due. This was done in court, and the accused was discharged, but advised not to be so prodigal in his expenditure.

DEFENCE OF THE SCHELDT.

It is understood that Holland is prepared, on resumption of the Belgian-Dutch negotiations in Paris, to give guarantees to the great Powers in relation to the defence of the Scheldt. A permanent mixed commission will be appointed to decide questions regarding those pertions of the Scheldt under Dutch sovereignty.

WILL HELIGOLAND BECOME BRITISH?

According to a Berlin telegram a message from Cuxhaven to be Vossische Zeitung says that a strong agitation is proceeding in Heligoland for separation from Germany and union with Great Britain. A plebiscite on the question is contemplated.

SPAIN'S CHRONIC TROUBLE.

The "Times" Tangier correspondent says there have been further cases of revolt among native troops in the Tetuan district and more Spanish soldiers have been massacred.

NEW OIL FIND IN SCOTLAND.

Oil has been discovered in the course of boring operations in Midlothian. The extent of the field, however has not yet bee ascertaired.

ROUMANIANS QUIT THE DORUBJA.

The Roumanians have formally agreed to evacuate the Dorubja to a line some twenty-two milles from Buda-Pesth.

THE END OF THE STRIKE

The course of the railway strike and the return to normal conditions have proved once more the sanity, resource and good-humour with which the British character deals with a great crisis, and the tranquil determination with which it recognises differences of opinion and sets about reconciling them.

These great crises in which both sides are convinced of the justice of their respective views must from time to time arise in the stress of modern conditions; but we may justly be proud that in our own land, argument and reason, at once the most powerful and the least dangerous of weapons, are invoked rather than the forces of disorder and violence; while, pending settlement, the nation cheerfully sets itself to disciplined organisation and ready resource, so that the public life and needs may suffer as little as possible.

We do not comment here on the rights and wrongs of the case; we merely record our pride that England has proved once more, and has shown to a watching world, that she knows how to judge calmly, to act readily and capably, and to use the unequalled powers of her people in reasoned resourcefulness instead of flying to hot-headed methods of foolish violence and increased difficulties.

It has been amusing to note the bewilderment of foreigners in England at the general air of goodwill and cheeriness evinced by the public, the absence of sabotage and excesses, and the calm confidence that the national commonsense of all grades of the people would satisfactorily settle a difficulty which might otherwise have been of extreme danger.

The strike has brought losses and serious inconveniences, of course; all big strikes do. But its chief lesson is of happy augury for it shows us, and proves to the rest of the world, that disputes, however great and however keenly felt on both sides, can be best solved by the British way of keeping cool and carrying on.

WHAT BRITAIN DID.

Who won the war? Why, all the Allied and Associated powers together. But since in some insufficiently instructed quarters among our good friends who fought with us, and some of whom knew little outside their own efforts, there has been at times an endeavour to belittle Britain's share in the long resistance and ultimate victory, a few simple truths and some significant figures should be known to all.

FIRST, THE NAVY.

The British Navy's complete readiness for action at the outbreak of war ensured the command of the sea, protected the coast of France from attack or invasion and prevented the isolation of France and Belgium.

It made possible the blockade without which the war could not have been won.

During the war it enormously increased its tonnage and personnel, defeated the U-boat menace, ensured the arrival of food and raw materials, held the enemy's fleet helpless and secured the arrival of the American Army and the transport of men, arms, munitions, coal and other supplies to our own Army and Allied countries.

In addition to the countless millions of men who have crossed and recrossed the sea, over 2,260,000 animals, over 500,000 vehicles, just under 48,000,000 tons of British Military stores, and 5,000,000 tons of Allied stores, over 60,000,000 tons of oil and fuel have been protected on their way out; while 130,000,000 tons of food and other material were brought to England by ships, whose work was only possible through the Navy's command of the sea.

Other navies helped loyally according to their powers; but in the main, this essential work was that of the British Navy. As an example, out of some 200 enemy submarines destroyed, about 150 were accounted for by the British. The Navy's casualties were over 40,000 dead and 25,000 wounded.

We paid, too, in merchant and fishing tonnage. Britain alone lost 7,830,000 tons of such shipping, and over 15,000 lives with them.

THE SOLDIERS' SHARE.

Then the Army. At the beginning of the war our troops, trained to a hair, leapt to the aid of France and took part in the first victory of the Marne. Britain and her Empire went into training for the long struggle, throwing aside all private considerations.

The Empire became a vast camp, and its industries, war industries. The total enlistments of the Imperial Armies amounted to 8,689,467 including 1,500,000 Indian and coloured troops. Our casualties up to 13th July, 1919, were 3,058,985 of which 2,725,411 were in France and Flanders. Of these, 724,407 were killed and 2,064,451 wounded. Our principal theatres of war were:—France and Flanders, Italy, Dardanelles, Salonica, Mesopotamia, Egypt and Palestine, East Africa, Afghanistan, and N. Russia.

There were others, too. The almost continuous heavy fighting of 1917 in France which wore down the best of the German Army, the brunt of the great German attacks of early 1918, and the decisive central break through of the Allies between the Sensee and St. Quentin, in Foch's great arpeggio, were decisive elements in the defeat of the enemy, who must have triumphed early in the war had it not been for the sea-hold of Britain and the constancy with which she drew upon her land forces a great proportion of the German military might.

IN THE AIR.

What our Air Force did may be hinted at when we remember that since July, 1916, on the Western Front nearly 5,000 enemy machines were destroyed and some 2,500 driven down out of control by our airmen. The rate at which we were increasing our air-power can be judged from the fact that in October 1918, the air personnel was about 23,000 officers and 234,000 other ranks, while the number of planes constructed from January to October of that year was over 28,000 and the rate was increasing.

THE MUNITIONS EFFORT.

The war supply work at home was incredibly great. The numbers engaged on munition work about the date of the armistice were 2,300,000 men and 900,000 women. In the third quarter of 1918, 746,000,000 rounds of small arms ammunition, 15,780,000 shells, thousands of guns of all calibres and increasing quantities of all the war necessaries were turned out.

During the war we supplied for France and other theatres of war, 4,134 miles of broad gauge and 2,745 miles of narrow gauge railway, 3,333 locomotives, 77,724 wagons. The value of goods (military, leather, cotton and wool, machinery, foodstuffs coal, etc.) shipped to the Allies during the war from the United Kingdom (not counting other parts of the Empire) amounted to the stupendous total of over £872,000,000, of which about half was for the French.

Of the total direct cost of the war, Britain has borne, and still bears, an incomparably larger part than any of her Allies. Our war expenditure from August 1914 to March 31st, 1919, gives the colossal figure of £9,531,000,000. Our loans to Allies have amounted to £1,568,000,000 and to our own Dominions £171,000,000.

This is but the briefest summary of some of the more salient figures. And each of these facts stands for uncountable individual instances of sacrifice, devotion, endurance and grim determination to see the thing through. That Britain would count no cost in a great cause and would sacrifice herself to the utmost for the friends to whose aid she had come, surprises none who knows the real Britain. But the magnitude of the power, organisation, and resolution of her tremendous effort must astound even those who knew better than to believe the old cries of "effete England."

It is not the Englishman's way to depreciate the glorious part played by his associates in a common cause; but for the honour of our nation, and in memory of those who gave themselves and all they held dear, let us see that no-one makes light of the part that Britain played.

W. I.

CAN YOU WRITE?

All ranks of the Rhine Army are invited to contribute to this paper. Every article published will be paid for and none should exceed 500 words in length.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

We Hear all Sides and Accept no Responsibility for our Readers' Views.

WHY?

Sir—I give place to no one in my admiration of Englishwomen. For my part I would like to see an even greater number of wives here than there are at present.

Let them make the fullest possible use of our clubs. We can do with their presence in the dining rooms. For one gets heartily sick of the sight of khaki, but even so there are moments when a little quiet and comfort is very welcome to a man.

Hence my growl, and the risk I run of being called selfish or narrow-minded, and perhaps advised to get married. But I do enter an emphatic protest against the invasion of the reading room of the N.A.C.B. club by the other sex.

HABITAT.

TEACHING BRITISH CHILDREN.

Sir,—With reference to "Mother's" letter in the "Post", I should have thought that being near her husband, and having the bairns with "Daddy" would have been quite sufficient to expect.

After all, this is the Army of Occupation, and is not peacetime soldiering, and to expect education of the children thrown in besides the favour of visiting husbands on the Rhine, is a little beyond a joke.

SUVLA.

WINTER DANCING.

Sir,—In reference to "Hawkeye's" suggestion that the Great Hall at the Central Y.M.C.A. should be made into a dance hall.

Has "Hawkeye" ever thought about the hundreds of Tommies who go there to see the excellent concerts etc., held there? What is to become of those?

Would he like to take away their amusement to gratify his own and perhaps one or two more of his dancing pals' selfish ideas? I write this in accordance with the wishes of many others who visit the Central and I hope this will catch the eye of someone who would if necessary take steps, to prevent any alteration in the present running of the Central Y.M.C.A.

ONE OF MANY.

ORCHESTRA CRITICISM.

Sir,—You recently had a correspondent "throwing mud" at the orchestra at the Deutsches Theatre.

While agreeing with him on one point, it is only fair to give them credit for doing their best, even though they do fall short of the result attained by some of their more complete contemporaries at large cafes or cabarets.

I admit that their attempts are amateurish but be merciful. They are scarcely "Nerve-racking". MUSICIAN.

WIVES AND THEIR PASSES.

Sir,—I cannot conceive why "Officer's Wife" should feel rather indignant when a D.A.P.M. politely and civilly requested the production of her white pass.

She evidently displayed her indignation at the time, otherwise the officer would have simply examined her pass and passed on, instead of entering into a lengthy explanation.

"Officer's Wife" must learn not to feel indignant at the precautions taken to ensure that the wearing of the official brassard is not abused, but on the contrary assist as much as possible by immediately establishing her identity and so saving the Provost Officer's time.

As a matter of fact "Officer's Wife" should consider herself very fortunate in being out here at all. There are many officers' wives at home who would only be too glad to produce white passes on demand would circumstances permit their being out here with their respective husbands. ANOTHER D.A.P.M.

ORDNANCE SHOPPING.

Sir,—When will the Ordnance Department make better arrangements for business in the Officer's Clothing Store in Cologne?

For about the ninety-ninth time I attempted to purchase a pair of boots yesterday. I arrived there at ten minutes past four and found the door closed. Another officer was disconsolately standing outside and informed me that he had made three trips from Düren to buy some necessaries but had failed in his ambition each time.

If one can get served without waiting in a queue for a couple of hours or so, the department has not got what he wants. On the occasion of other visits the place has been shut.

DOWN-AT-HEEL.

SWEETHEARTS.

Sir,—A little ceremony at the Parish church to the accompaniment of wedding bells, will settle "Lonely's" problem. That can easily be arranged while he is on leave, and when the girl is Mrs. Lonely all that remains to be done is to apply for passport and brassard. Q.E.D.

ARE WOMEN CARELESS?

Sir,—I rather think your correspondent "T.B." of yesterday, has given her husband away.

It seems rather an unfortunate admission to make, especially when written in conjunction with "Careful Woman's" letter of the day before.

I wonder if "F.B's" husband was the officer who used to inspect my barracks and expect to find everything in its place? How these little matters do leak out.

TIDY.

WOMEN DANCERS WANTED.

Sir,—I write on behalf of the proposed dances for senior N.C.O's on G.H.Q. staff. A Committee has been formed to inaugurate a series of Subscription Dances open to wives and friends of senior N.C.O's resident in Cologne.

At present, however, there is a slight dearth of ladies and anyone who would care to attend the proposed dances would be made most heartily welcome. Ladies are invited to write to Secy, Sgt. L. Goldie A.P.O. S. 40, from whom full particulars can be obtained. A.B.C.

A PLEA FOR RUGGER.

Sir,—I quite agree with "Gunner R.F.A." that Rugby should be played more in the Rhine Army. Why not form a "Cologne Post" League, all wishing to enter to apply to the "Post". I think a League could be formed in a very short time. R. O. DEMOB.

CLOSING OF FIELD CASHIERS.

Sir,—Why, oh why, "Buff Book?"

Don't sigh married or single officers but let me refer you to G.R.O. 3424 of 19 9 19.

When the bank rate was anything over 100 Marks to the Pound sterling, the Field Cashier's services were not required.

Why moan now the speculation is over?

I should imagine that if "Buff Books" had been used instead of "Cheque Books" in the past few weeks, the Field Cashier would still be able to oblige. C.V.

A PROFITEERING COMPLAINT.

Sir,—I wish on behalf of several other soldiers to protest most energetically against the system of some institutions which are making a good thing out of the fluctuations of the mark.

For example, on Wednesday evening the N.A.C.B. on the Rhine Embankment advanced their prices to correspond with the fall of the mark, despite the fact that Tommy was paid at the late rate of 96 marks to the £1.

This sort of thing is decidedly unfair. More especially as it is highly probable that the N.A.C.B. purchased the goods also at the old rate. TWISTED.

Sir,—No doubt, "Exchange" has good reason to think that it "does not seem right" that he should lose 33 1/3 per cent on a £1 as at present.

On the other hand I presume "Exchange" took every advantage of the rates of exchange during August and September whereby one could realize a profit of 25 per cent. Did "Exchange" raise any objection then? I think not. CHANCE.

RESERVED FOR OFFICERS.

Sir,—With regard to the letters appearing in your to-day's issue from "R.A.S.," "Sapper" and "One of them," I beg to offer my sincere regrets to all O.R.'s if my letter was taken as classing them with Germans.

Nothing was further from my intention; I joined as a private myself, so I think that is sufficient indication that I do not regard O.R.'s in the manner suggested by "Sapper."

But I still maintain that carriages reserved for officers, should be used by them and their wives only. G.F.D.

(This correspondence is now closed. Ed.)

"HINDLE WAKES"—A REPLY.

Sir,—I was greatly surprised when I read C.A.R's letter on the production of "Hindle Wakes" by the B.R.A.D.C. for it is so contrary to the criticism published in your Friday's issue, to my own humble opinion and to the opinions I have heard expressed by numerous friends of mine who saw the production.

Everyone will understand, of course, that it was the isolated opinion of one person but it seems a pity that the splendid endeavours of the B.R.A.D.C. should be open to criticism not backed by public opinion.

C.A.R's letter is really a criticism of part of the audience too, and here I am somewhat in agreement with him, but I think most people will agree with me in testifying to the splendid work being so loyally carried out by the energetic personnel of the B.R.A.D.C. A.P.D.

[We have received a great number of letters heartily disagreeing with C.A.R's statements, so opposed to our criticism, but are unable to lend any further space to this subject Editor.]

TWO MONTHS—A CONTRAST.

SEPTEMBER.

Corporal Chifford is a typical, mystical cockney and like his famous predecessor in the pages of Kipling, is sighing for a sight of the streets of London, the taste of a Chantilly trifle at the Maison Riche, or the sound of the voice of Delysia singing about a "Paradise for two" at the Pavilion. Every morning as soon as his eyes open in the Bierhalle billet he begins his litany which has as its theme "demobilization" or rather the delay of it. "I'm fed up with Army life.. sick of being in khaki . putting putties on when the sun is hot enough to frizzle your hair.. dodging down side streets when an M.P. comes in sight and you ain't got 'em on.. everlastingly polishing brass buttons.. trying to make Jerry understand what you want in German shops.. give me England every time, English girls, English everything.. just because I didn't take the oath in 1916.. me, what offered my valuable services to the King in 1915 and was rejected.. chaps that didn't join up till 1917 and haven't been within 50 miles of the firing line, getting demobbed and me still here.. O, Divinity what would I not give to be back in Blighty again with a nice civvy suit on" etc., etc.

OCTOBER.

Sunday morning. Mr. Chifford is sitting on a bench in Hyde Park with a friend who has also recently become reacquainted with work. "Ah! sighs Chifford," those were happy days out in Cologne.. next to nothing to do.. buckshee rides in trams and trains.. ices and ice coffee, German wine and music at the Kaffee Palast.. high-brewed drama at the Deutsches Theatre at one mark a time.. "Remember when we paid 14 marks to get in the Opernhaus?" asks Alf. "Rather, and it was worth it, I'd a'paid 50 marks to see that scene where old Mephisto stands on the top of the stairs with a diabolical grin on his counting house, and the fräuleins was lying all about, and dancing round Faust." "Hadn't got much on, had they?" comments Alf. "It was a voluptuous bacchanale," explains Chifford. He falls into a dreamy reverie. "Ah! those were happy times.. tram rides to Bonn and Mehlem.. river trips to Coblenz.. buying souvenirs in the Hohestrasse.. strolling along the Rhine banks in the moonlight and talking about the wonderful things we were going to do.. snapshotting everything in sight.. dances at the British Empire Leave Club.. good grub.. buckshee cigarettes.. 96 marks to the quid.. O Divinity! I wish I was back again."

WEEK-END FOOTBALL.

140 Field Ambulance Beaten by R.A.O.C. Detachment, Nippes.

THE HAT TRICK.

At Kalk, a keen and interesting game was played on Saturday between 140 Field Ambulance and R.A.O.C. Detachment, Nippes. Although the visitors finished up the winners by six clear goals, the score hardly represents the run of the play, and had the medical men been in possession of a more reliable goalkeeper the score sheet would have read differently when the whistle blew for time. The R.A.O.C. won the toss and the teams lined up as follows:—140 F.A. Pax; Peasey and Page; Mansbridge, Mortimer and Parkes; Ray, Strachn, Nelmes, Gorman and Reddie. R.A.O.C. Pugh; Dunsmore and McGowan; Morley, Langton and Butterworth; Hurley, Burton, Wallace, Croasdale and Humpries. Referee: Sgt. Major Dodds.

The Ordnance soon took up the running and within the first minute secured their first goal, Wallace sending in a shot which Pax only partially cleared and Croasdale, following up, had no difficulty in finding the net. The Medicals made a very determined attack on the visitors goal and Pugh was obliged to give a corner from a shot by Nelmes, The homesters kept up the pressure and were unfortunate in not opening their account, Pugh just managing to punch away a splendid cross shot from Ray. The Nippes men now came away and Burton found the net, but the whistle had gone for offside. From a clearance by McGowan the visitors secured their second goal. Wallace receiving from Langton, put the ball well out of the goalie's reach. Enlivened by this success, the Ordnance men were soon on the attack again, Burton hit the crossbar, and from the rebound Croasdale meeting the ball registered the visitors third point by heading in.

On the resumption, Mortimer passed the ball out to Ray who, along with Strachn made a splendid run for goal, but Pugh managed to clear. Nice play by Butterworth and Langton saw the visitors on the attack again and Humpries, receiving, sent in a good shot which Pax fumbled. Croasdale had no difficulty in securing the ball and netting. A solo effort by Croasdale ended in a further score being registered for the Nippes men. Midfield play followed for a time, but with only a short time to go the Ordnance forwards made another attack on the home goal, and Pax again failed to clear a shot by Wallace and it was left to Croasdale to turn the ball into the net. Nothing further was scored and a very clean and sporting game ended with the score:—R.A.O.C. Detachments, Nippes, 6; 140 Field Ambulance, 0.

FOOTBALL RECORDS.

Splendid Performance of A/187 Brigade R.F.A.

Enviable achievements of Rhineland football teams have from time to time been published in these columns and many elevens have contested for the distinction of holding the record.

The latest details of meritorious performances come from A/187 Bde. R.F.A., the writer of which says.

"We have played since the beginning of June, 26 matches. Won 21. Drawn 2, Lost 3. Goals for 58, Goals against 10.

Included in the teams we have beaten are several belonging to Infantry battalions who have several hundred men to pick from. Whereas we have never had more than two goals scored against us in any match and this has only happened on two occasions." This is certainly a record to be proud of.

"HAT-TRICK" EXPERT.

A return match took place on Saturday between the above, played on the former's ground at Mülheim, which resulted in a good and well earned victory for No. 5 R.T.C. who played good all round football. The most outstanding player was Slack a very clever winger. It was his efforts which enabled Meadowcroft to do the "hat trick" for the second time in a week. The away team scored first after ten minutes play and after a very clever run through Meadowcroft equalised two minutes before half time.

In the second half the home forwards outplayed their opponents. Play was fast on both sides until Meadowcroft obtained the ball from the wing and went through beating two men. He caught the goal-keeper napping with an oblique shot. Within five minutes he scored again. Result:—No. 5 R.T.C. 3; 1st L.R.S. 1.

THE HAT TRICK.

A. Coy v. D Coy. 1/6 West Yorkshire Regt.

The above teams faced each other at Blucher Park on Sunday in splendid football weather to decide who should enter the 2nd round of the 2nd Northern Bde. inter-company knock-out competition.

2/Lt. Hunter, the captain of A Company, winning the toss set his opponents to face a strong sun with the result that they were placed on the defence, but splendid half-back play by Pte. Cockayne relieved the situation for "D" Coy. A word of praise must be given to Pte. Phillips for his fine full-back play for A Coy who repeatedly pulled up "D" Coy forwards when all seemed over. "D" Coy by now were playing a fine game especially their half-backs with the result that "D" Coy opened the scoring, Cpl. Butterill doing the needful. Half-time arrived with the score:—"D" Coy 1 "A" Coy. 0.

After the interval "A" Coy. somewhat fell away with the result that Cpl. Butterill further increased their lead by adding two more goals, thus performing the "hat trick." "A" Coy. had hard lines in not scoring but their shooting was not so good. In the closing stages Pte. Readhead who had played a good game scored with a shot from 20 yards range. Pte. Barker scored in the last minute of the game with a splendid header. A word of praise must also be given to 2/Lt. Hunter, who played a brilliant game. Result:—"D" Coy. 5; "A" Coy. 0.

KALK SHIELD.

Y.M.C.A. Football Competition Nearing the End.

DRAW FOR SEMI-FINAL.

The Kalk Y.M.C.A. Shield Competition is rapidly nearing the end and interest in it is still being maintained at a high standard. Appended are the results in the third round:

1/6 West Yorks 9; 6th Corps Signals 1.
"B" Bty. 190/R.F.A. 2; 63rd Bde. R.G.A. 0.
23rd, Royal Fus. 1; 53rd Northumberland. Fus. 0.
9th D.L.I. 2; 17th Royal Fus. 1.

The draw for the semi-final has now been made with the following result:

Tuesday:—23rd Royal Fusiliers v. "B" Bty. 190/R.F.A. Kick off, 2.30 p.m. Referee, Sgt. J. Dowie.

Wednesday:— 1/6 West Yorks v. 9th D. L. I. Kick off 2,30 p.m. Referee Lt. J. Woods.

Both games will take place on the 93rd Bde. ground which may be reached by the Berg.-Gladbach tram.

INTERESTING MATCH.

Tuesday's game is bound to attract considerable interest, the 23rd R.F.'s being the favourites. The team is a well balanced one, composed of yougsters who are particularly keen. They made an excellent show against the 53rd Northumberland Fus. Their opponents for next Saturday's game lack combination and method, but they have won twice and it is quite possible they may spring a surprise.

In connection with Wednesday's match the West Yorks have five forwards who are always capable of scoring goals. The wing halves are not too good and the backs occasionally show unsteadiness. Nevertheless, the side is a particularly strong one all-round and indications go to show that they will win the Shield.

The 9th D.L.I. are also very strong and if their performance against the 17th Royal Fusiliers on Sunday is any criterion, they should make a keen bid for the prize.

A PYRRHIC CONTEST.

9th D. L. I. v. 17th R. F.'s at Kalk.

The meeting of these teams on Sunday afternoon in the third round of the Y.M.C.A. (Kalk) Football Competition provided a game full of first-class sport and lively with incident. The match was played on the 93rd. Bde. ground, Kalk under ideal weather conditions. The D.L.I., being victorious by the odd goal in three, won the privilege of meeting the 1/6th West Yorks in the semi-final next Wednesday. Both teams were well, not to say boisterously, supported, and the band of the R.F.'s supplied music before and after the match.

Handicapped with the sun in their faces and the slope against them, the Durhams were soon aggressive, but the R.F.'s found their feet when following an offside decision against Gray, Capt. Gibson, the Fusilier outside left, delivered a beautiful drop shot which was kicked away by Sgt. Rocks, the Durham goalkeeper.

FIRST GOAL SCORED.

Then at the end of 8 minutes' play, came a goal which gratified the D.L.I. supporters. Gosling, their outside right, after clever work, forced a corner. Reynolds met the return from his own kick and put in a fast shot. From the rebound, Conway scored at close quarters, Howard the R.F. custodian having no chance of saving. The Durhams were now playing artistic football, their heading, particularly Slack's, being skilful and effective.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

The North-countrymen were now struggling to retrieve their form, and the R.F's had an anxious time when Sgt. Darrah (right back) fouled Slack just outside the penalty area, but Howard easily reached Slack's shot. The Durhams in turn had a narrow escape when, following a long kick by Lt. Carson (left back) the R.F's forced a corner and Saggers' shot just fell clear.

Halfway through the second half, the Durhams recovered and re-asserted themselves. Their star was once more in the ascendant. Gosling, their fast outside-right, travelled past all opponents, finishing up with a dropping centre, which Reynolds headed past. With only a quarter of an hour to go, enthusiasm was great, and the Fusiliers seemed revitalised in turn, so that the Durhams had to fight to maintain the lead. Reynolds was responsible for a hard drive, which Howard did well to save. Then the referee gave a questionable decision, pulling up Slack for offside when he looked like scoring.

Breaking away, the R.F's bombarded their opponents' goal and Rocks had to punch away several times from Smith. The Durhams reciprocated and Gray shot well from a centre by Gosling, but Howard fisted the ball away.

Play was still fast and exciting when the whistle blew.

The R. F's retaliated, and after pretty combination, Smith dropped in a high shot which Rocks just tipped over the cross bar. The Durhams returned to the attack, Slack, Reynolds and Conway forcing corners, and the R.F. goal had several narrow escapes. One of these was when Reynolds aimed a shot inches too high, as also when Slack sought success with a shot just over the bar.

SPEED AND SCIENCE.

In the second half the Fusiliers dispelled any idea of the result being a foregone conclusion by their display of speed and science. They broke away, and Rocks did well to punch out a corner kick from Saggers, whose delightful centres from the wing were admirable.

Monopolising the play, the R.F's scored five minutes after the recommencement, to the unbounded exultation of their supporters. Saggers dropped a lovely centre, and in the ensuing scrimmage, Smith (centre forward) tapped the ball through. Fate hung in the balance! The Durhams seemed under the spell of an evil genius, and the Fusiliers should have profited from the many corners which they forced. Once Gray (D.L.I.) broke away, only to put a feeble shot wide, and Reynolds, after a brilliant run, shot high. The Durham goal had hair-breadth escapes when Saggers, hugging the line, ran down and was a few inches wide; and when Buckland, after pretty head work, skied a long shot, which Rocks cleverly caught.

SURPRISE RESULTS.

Turn Of The Tide At Last For Aston Villa.

SATURDAY'S MATCHES.

Surprising football results on Saturday were Chelsea's atonement at Burnley and the Rovers taking two points from Highbury. Aston Villa at last have turned the corner, taking the full spoils from Bradford. One hopes they will now get back into their old stride for a regularly beaten Villa eleven reads like a fairy tale.

In Division 2, South Shields accounted for Clapton and climbed nearer their goal, the top of the table, while Hull put on 4 goals to Burys 2, wiping out last weeks disaster. Tottenham only drew at Lincoln this being their first check, albeit a fine performance, considering their weakened forces.

The Southern League was responsible for the highest score of the day in English football, Swindon defeating Gillingham by 5 goals to 2; Plymouth chalked four against a nil return for Northampton, a smart performance, and Exeter received a shock at Cardiff, the Welshmen putting a stop to the City's conquering career. Brentford were surprised by Southend, the latter taking two points from them somewhat easily.

Scotland had its sensation, Hamilton drawing at home with Raith Rovers. Ten goals in one match is rare. Rangers got five against Kilmarnock and made some amends for the previous slump, while Clydebank also had a scoring fit, their forwards contributing a quintette. Dumbarton did well to draw with Hibs, but Boghead folk must be getting tired of drawn matches.

Celtic again won the Glasgow Cup defeating Partick Thistle by one to nothing. The "old firm" are as reliable as Big Ben, and always out for victims.

Seven English teams won away from home but no Scottish League visiting eleven was successful. One draw in the first Division, four in the second, and three in the Southern League, were not unlooked for. The Scottish League, however, had five, an unusual happening.

EARNED HIS BENEFIT.

An Appreciation of Bob Hawkes, Luton's Ex-International.

It is difficult to estimate what Robert M. Hawkes, the old captain and left half-back of Luton Town, has done for football, especially in the South. No player has done more to keep the game clean and attractive, and none has been more impervious to the gold bags of wealthy clubs.

He is now playing with the Reserves, and making them quite a happy little company, but he has lost none of his skill, and very little pace, and his return to the first eleven would not surprise anyone.

In recognition of his sterling services the directors have granted him a benefit, and the Watford club have agreed to come to Luton for that purpose on Oct. 15. It is the match the spectators, as well as Bob Hawkes himself, would choose, for he has captained the Herts County XI. on many occasions.

Hawkes was born at Breachwood Green, on the borders of Hertfordshire, and close to Luton. He is in his seventeenth season with the Town, but did not sign a professional form until 1912. He got his International cap against Ireland in 1907, has played in the Olympic games, and in almost every country where football is played.

MULE GYMKHANA.

London Division Artillery's Successful Meeting.

COMPLETE DETAILS.

The London Division Artillery were favoured with a fine afternoon for their Mule Gymkhana at Westhoven on Saturday. Sport was interesting and good. The three races open to the Army of the Rhine all attracted large fields. The most important race of the day, the Rhine Mule Oaks, was won from a field of 19 by a great mule of the 10th Queen's, "Be Careful." The same mule won the Rhine Scurry from a field of 30, the odds being 6 to 1 and 4 to 1 respectively.

A Field of 31 went to the Post for the Open Officers "Mule National". Lieut. Wilsdon's (Southern D.A.C.) "Black Jess" won by a length from Lieut.-Col. Harrison's (51st D.L.I.), "Dick," Capt. Hetreed-Brunt's (29th Bn. M.G.C.) "Fly by Night" being a good third.

The preparation of the course and the general ground arrangements were most admirably carried out by Captain Hart, R.F.A., who also acted as starter.

By kind permission of Colonel Cameron and officers, a composite band of the 1st London Infantry Brigade played during the afternoon.

ATHLETICS.

75th Brigade, R.F.A., Final Monthly Sports Meeting.

The final monthly sports were held at Dansweiler on Thursday by kind permission of Lieut.-Colonel S.W.L. Ashwanden, D.S.O., R.F.A. A very successful programme was carried out, the enthusiasm of the Batteries being intense as the award of the Monthly Sports Shallenge Shield largely depended on the day's results.

The Alarm Race was easily the most popular and most exciting, only a few seconds separating the firing of the 1st round and the last.

Tilting the bucket caused great amusement, especially when one Officer made his second run in a Mackintosh after receiving a couple of buckets of water between his shirt and breeches.

There was a large attendance in spite of all Batteries being sadly depleted owing to demobilization, and many ladies favoured the proceedings with their presence.

RESULTS.

220 yards flat:—1, Bdr. Elford; 2, Sgl. Bamford; 3, Major Worrall.

Despatch race:—1, Cpl. Hampton; 2, Gnr. Radcliffe; 3, 2/Lt. K. G. Chilman.

Gun team turn-out:—1, "C" Coy. 78½ pts.; 2, "D" Coy. 77½ pts.; 3, "B" Coy. 68 pts.

Tilting bucket:—1, Gnr. Done; 2, Sglr. Penny; 3, Gnr. Wylie.

Three-legged race:—1, Cpl. Hampton and Sgl. Coulson; 2, Gnr. Wylie and Sgt. Bamford; 3, Dvr. Cox and Gnr. Radcliffe.

Lloyd lindsay:—1, "D" team; 2, "C" team; 3, "A" team.

Alarm race:—1, "D" Coy.; 2, "B" Coy.; 3, "A" Coy.

440 yards flat:—1, Bdr. Elford; 2, Major Worrall; 3, Dvr. Dean.

Signallers race:—1, Sig. Hill and Sig. Wilson; 2, Bdr. Davis and Sgt. Coulson; 3, Sgt. Boardman and Sgt. Hoborough.

Obstacle race:—1, Major Worrall; 2, Bdr. Elford; 3, Dvr. Dean.

Band race:—1, Pte. Rain and Pte. Brooks; 2, Pte. Gilston; 3. Pte. Usher.

Total points for the day:—
D/75 27 pts. C/75 14 pts.
B/75 11 pts. A/75 5 pts.

BIG BOXING PURSES.

In America recently five 6 round contests were fought for purses aggregating £4,227. This was surely worth sharing The winner of the chief bout received £2,271, and his opponent £1,101. The attendance was 22,000 and the total sum obtained from these was £7,201. They certainly do things in great style over the pond, and Mr. Cochran's mouth must have watered when he learned of such a show. We would advise Billy Wells to go there and try the 'come back' stunt; it would be worth it, even if he did encounter another fateful "73."

5th LABOUR COY. v. 78th LABOUR COY.

This match in the Labour Group League was played on Saturday at Nippes. The first half was evenly contested each side scoring twice. One of the 78th goals was from a penalty. Pace scored both goals for the 5th.

In the second half the 5th had the better of the play, and scored another three goals through Grant (2) and Williamson. In this half Bainbridge, the 5th goalkeeper made a brilliant save. An interesting game ended 5th Labour Coy. 5; 78th Labour Coy. 2.

AMUSEMENTS AND RECREATIONS.

The R.A.D.C.

"The Importance of being Earnest" (Oscar Wilde) was revived at the Deutsches Theatre by the Rhine Army Dramatic Company yesterday evening and was given an enthusiastic reception by a crowded house.

A New Programme.

Last evening "The Jesters" made their re-appearance at the Palace Theatre before a full house. Presenting an entirely new programme the show went better than ever. Since their arrival in Cologne "The Jesters" have established themselves firm favourites and packed houses are anticipated throughout the week.

Leave Club Concert.

The band of the 13th. K.R.R.C., gave a most enjoyable concert at the British Empire Leave Club on Sunday night. The hall as usual was packed. They played various selections, amongst which their rendering of Chu Chin Chow was particularly appreciated. Miss West played, in her usual delightful style, a Sonate, by Handel which met with great applause, and was followed by a most charming Cradle Song. Miss Marjory Moore aroused much enthusiasm by her singing of "Roses of Picardy", and "Back Home in Tennessee." "Behold the Dawn" and "To-morrow", a new song by Frederick Kiel, were beautifully sung by Major Bowen, and were very much appreciated, while L/Cpl. Williams sang "Eleanor", which met with a well deserved encore. The band concluded by playing Rogan's "Military Tattoo", a delightful finish to the evening's entertainment.

Another Attraction Suggested.

There is a proposition before the amusement authorities which, if it materialises, should provide one of the most attractive entertainments we have had in Cologne. Half a dozen or so members of a comic opera company have made their appearance here and it is suggested that they should produce a Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera at the Deutsches Theatre, in conjunction with the Rhine Army Choral Society, whose members could undertake the choral work. It would certainly be a very agreeable change to have an opportunity of seeing one of these delightful plays once again and provided the performance was well done and there is every reason to suppose that it would be the effort would undoubtedly be extremely popular.

JACQUES.

ROWING ON THE RHINE.

The Bonn Station Boating Club's Operations.

There is considerable activity on the Rhine at Bonn where the Bonn Station Rowing Club carries out its operations. There are 80 to 90 members although a large number of these are not active participants in the healthy sport of rowing. Still, a considerable number are frequently on the river. The club has the use of a good boathouse and has bought a second-hand racing skiff from one of the colleges at Cambridge.

An officer who has taken a lively interest in the club from its inception last spring states that the interest taken in rowing by the German male population of Bonn is very noteworthy. He further says that a German translation of Woodgate's wellknown manual on rowing is in circulation and largely read. Germany seems to be indebted to England for much of its knowledge of the sport, and the Germans are not slow to accept any hints that are given.

TURF TOPICS.

By "Jerry M."

Two recent races have shed some light on the Cesarewitch and the big race looks like proving one of the most interesting for many years past.

At Gatwick "Golden Melody" made a great impression, winning comfortably from Ivanhoe and Happy Man with the remainder "out with the washing." So easily did he win that it is difficult to see what is to prevent him capturing the bigger prize at Newmarket with only 6st 3lbs. to carry.

Stay-at-home backers must have been delighted at the S.P. return of 9 to 2. This generous price was due to the fact that a "chalk" jockey (W. Speck) was given the mount. In all the early books "Golden Melody" was a firm favourite at 9 to 4 with 7 to 2 and 4 to 1 offered about Ivanhoe. Immediately the jockies names appeared the market underwent a lightning change. Ivanhoe received heavy support and came down with a rush to 2 to 1, "Golden Melody" weakening to 7 to 2 then 4 to 1 and finally on offer at 9 to 2. "Golden Melody" in the race laid nearly last till 1/4 of a mile from home then came through his field and forged ahead to win pulling up.

A word of praise must be said for his young rider who showed up in remarkably good style. And if able to get down to the weight he will probably be given the mount in the big race.

NEWBURY RUNNERS.

The Newbury Cup was marred by the start when "Unitoi" was left at the post and took no part in the race. A firm favourite right from the opening of the books, it was not surprising that a groan went up when it was seen that his case was hopeless from the first moment the tapes flew up. He was broadside on and making for the left rails. F. Lane appeared to have some difficulty in preventing him dashing into them. By the time he got his mount straight the others were a furlong away. The Stewards held an enquiry and Lane was severely reprimanded and suspended for the rest of the meeting. Of the race nothing held much chance with the winner, Silver Bridge, who strode along in good style to win easily from Langdon Hills.

Haki found his big weight too much and finished last. None of the runners appear to hold any chance in the Cesarewitch against the Gatwick winner "Golden Melody" who is now favourite at 100 to 12.

Cambridge University Team.

Mr. J. S. F. Morrisen (Charterhouse and Trinity) will captain the Cambridge University Association Football team during the coming season. He obtained his blue as a full back in pre-war days. Mr. G. Ashton (Winchester and Trinity), centre-forward, will be the honorary secretary, and several of those who played in the few matches at the latter part of last season are expected to go into residence again.

Transferred To Arsenal.

Toner (Belfast United) has been transferred to Woolwich Arsenal, and it is stated that the Irish club will receive £300 out of the transaction.

Macs Galore.

Celtic's preference for "Macs" is very noticeable. McNair, McStay, McAtee, McInally, McMenemey and McLean all figured in a recent match.

"B" Coy 1/4 York and Lancaster Regt. v. 142nd F. A.

This match one of the first round contests in the 2nd Northern Bde. Company Knock-out Competition, was played at Blucher Park on Wednesday afternoon. The York and Lancs, soon showed their superiority and Capt. Darnell opened the scoring in their favour. Just before the interval Smith also scored after a pretty piece of footwork by "B" Coy's forwards. In the second half with the wind in their backs the York and Lancs had things much their own way and goals were added by Guest, Captain Darnell, L Cpl. Shirtcliffe and Ashforth, leaving the final score: "B" Coy 1/4 York and Lancs 6; 142nd Field Ambulance nil.

The winners forwards all played a good game whilst Cpl. Simpson (back) and L/Cpl. Brown, centre-half, were the outstanding figures in the defence.

OUR SKILL CONTEST.

Successful Competitors' Names In To-Morrow's Issue.

Our coupon matches last Saturday provided us with some surprises.

Everton fell to Sunderland at Goodison Park, an altogether unlooked for event, and Bradford City silenced the chirping "Throstles" at Valley Parade. These results stumped a number of competitors, whilst the defeat of the Wolves by Leeds City also upset many calculations.

Fulham who were playing at Bristol (not as stated at Craven Cottage) were worthy winners. Leicester City proved too good for Coventry and Queen's Park shared the honours with St. Mirren at Hampden Park, where the Saints always do well.

The names of the successful competitors will be published in our issue of tomorrow (Wednesday).

Meanwhile coupons for this week's contest—No. 3—are reaching us by every post. Have you filled up yours?

Coupons must be addressed:—

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 3,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S.40 Rhine Army.

List of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of this, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

FOOTBALL COMPETITION No. 3.

Date of matches, Saturday, Oct. 11th.
Closing date, Friday, Oct. 10th.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

The Two Times.

There were some bewildered folk in Cologne on Sunday morning, and the looks of blank astonishment when people compared their watches with the clock on the station tower were remarkable. Everybody didn't know, although they were warned in this column, that although summer time still remains in force in occupied Territory, railway time has been put back an hour. Until railway and ordinary time synchronise there is bound to be much confusion and probably cases of gnashing of teeth as well.

The Wrong Order.

A Padre points out that the monk mentioned the other day who is so popular with the street children of Cologne can scarcely be a Trappist, that being a strictly cloistered order. He is more likely a Franciscan.

Overcharging for "The Post".

Our publishing department tell me there have been some glaring instances of overcharging by newsvendors lately. Forty pfgs. or even more has been demanded for "The Cologne Post" whereas the price printed on the paper is only 35 pfgs. Any information our readers can give us will be welcomed, as it is a practice we are endeavouring to stop.

Two Points.

There seem to be only two weak points about the Cologne-Bonn electric tram service. One is the overcrowding at times — which perhaps can't be remedied — and the other is the extremely bad ventilation, which of course can.

Motor-Smash.

While motoring to a village on Friday to address one of his popular and informative lectures to an outlying unit, Sir George Paish was involved in an accident which effectively prevented his arrival at the appointed place. Swerving to avoid an obstruction in the road, Sir George's chauffeur was unable to prevent a skid, so that the car in which he was riding collided with a tree on the road side.

Which to Choose.

The "Earwig" was emptier than ever last night and most of those present were talking sadly of its approaching closure. But the concensus of opinion seems to be that if either club must close it should be the Annexe rather than the old favourite "Earwig."

A Cologne Incident.

A rather amusing incident, occurred on Saturday. A fruit hawker's barrow was standing beside a baker's van and hanging from it was a short length of rope. Two urchins seizing a favourable opportunity tied this to the rear of the van. A few minutes passed, then the driver mounting his perch, drove off. Immediately yells, imprecations and curses filled the air, apples, pears and plums were rolling around in glorious profusion, while the hawker strove manfully to save the rest of his stock from going the same way. What this cost the fruit merchant I could not say, but I saw a lot of his goods "going west," many would-be helpers thinking these fair prey.

A Tragic Accident.

A British soldier was killed by a motor car on Friday last on the Aachener Strasse between Müngersdorf and Melaten. The chauffeur who tried to avoid the soldier ran his car against a tree and was wounded, while a man sitting in the motor car lost an eye in the smash.

Cheap Fuel.

Every day one may see carts leaving the goods station at the Bonner Tor on the way to Bonn. These cars are mainly loaded with briquets; as soon as a car comes out on the road about a dozen children climb on it from the back and steal the coals. Usually one throws the brickets on the road; the others pick them up and fill bags and sacks. Coals are cheap this way.

New Books.

I hear from the Librarian that among the books just added to the Y.M.C.A. Central Library in Friesenstrasse are: Stephen McKenna's Sonia Married; Shiela Kaye-Smith's Tamarisk Town; Helen Boulnois' Some Soldiers and Little Mamma; André Maurois' The Silence of Colonel Bramble; Rudyard Kipling's The Years Between; Patrick MacGill's Diggers, and Conan Doyle's British Campaigns in France and Flanders, 1918.

A German Ball Game.

What is the game played by the Germans with a thin stick and a moderate sized ball? I saw it in full swing on the ground in front of Bonn University on Sunday. It seemed to call for considerable skill.

Printers' Errors.

I came across two printers' errors this week which I think rank as gems. An "assault at arms" appeared as "assault at Arras" (that comp. must have been a soldier), while the pretty saying "Heaven is around us in our infancy", was distorted into "Heaven is around us in our infamy."

Better Beds.

Correspondence has been passing in an English newspaper on the respective merits of German and English beds, and the writers of the letters seem to come pretty generally to the conclusion that the German bed scores in comfort. That will be the opinion of most of those billeted in Rhineland as it was probably the opinion of most of those who had the fortune to find private billets in France.

Beware!

There is a lot of profiteering going on Rhineland. At the hairdressers the other day I bought an antiseptic tablet for use after shaving for three marks. Next day my friend purchased the same article at another shop for two marks. Yesterday in a different part of the town I saw the identical article priced at 1.50 marks. So it is up to Tommy to keep his eyes open

Skilful Dentistry.

I am told, though I'm happy to say I have not had any occasion to need dental treatment since I've been in Rhineland, that the dentists of Cologne as a rule are particularly skilful. Many of them have studied in the clinics of the United States where dentistry is a very advanced science.

The German Short Story.

There seems a dearth of short stories in Germany. The novel is popular and works of the modern authors run into many editions. Probably the Teutons have no time for the shorter gems of fiction; though it seems strange to me that those wonderful stories of E. T. A. Hoffmann, weird and uncanny as they are, should be read so little in Germany.

Old and New.

The Wraf Book Shop and Reading Room in Cologne which has always been a mystery to me, for it seldom seemed to be functioning, has now I see, disappeared, but there are rumours of a new and much better one on different lines occupying the same premises in the Hohestrasse Arcade.

A Bonn Boon.

When I visited the X Corps Club at Bonn the other day, I was surprised to to find it so empty. One would scarcely think it paid to run it, now that the military personnel in the University town is so reduced in number. But all the same its existence is a great boon to any officer happening to be in Bonn. I have seldom tasted better tea than is served there.

Is it the Last?

In striking contrast to the corresponding day the week before, last Sunday was perfect. There were sunshine and warmth and it was ideal weather for country excursions. It is somewhat unlikely that we shall get many more of such days this year.

Straight Prices Best.

I am sure the shopkeepers will find it pays them well to have every article in their windows plainly marked with the price. Their turnover will be greater, even if the strict observation of the order checks profiteering on certain articles. Many people will buy if they know what the price is before they enter a shop, who would otherwise pass one and perhaps go without altogether.

Green Leaves.

The trees are retaining their green foliage very well at this late season, and the country of Rhineland looks charming just now. The chestnut trees are in great form and the youngsters are securing a huge harvest of "Conkers".

A Happy Man.

That the happiest man in town is a Tommy and not a civilian is perhaps not surprising, but when I tell you that this serene individual, after six months' residence here, has never been inside a theatre, cinema, or operahouse, you may wonder how on earth he evades dull care or sidetracks boredom.

Where Does He Go?

Even canteens are but a name to him, and he has not yet had the democratic pleasure of riding on a tramcar. "Where does he go?" you ask. "How does he succeed in currying favour with the gods?" Simply by spending most of his leisure hours in the Army Book Shop in the Hohenzollern Ring.

A Bookman's Paradise.

Hoping to catch the infection I dropped into the Book Shop yesterday morning to find a very "substantial world both pure and good." The library at the Y.M.C.A. is wonderfully large and comprehensive, but it must yield to the Army's depot in point of size and the number of the volumes on the shelves. A more skilfully selected collection of educational and general literature it would be difficult to find. These can all be borrowed on making a humble deposit.

The Occupation.

According to a French journal the fifteen years of occupation of Rhineland will start on November 1st, 1919.

The Elections.

So far as I could see, apart from an additional use of printer's ink and paper, and the free use of hoardings there was little about the municipal elections on Sunday which would lead one to regard it as any other than an ordinary Sunday. If any interest was taken in the event, it was not very apparent. One piece of billsticking attracted my attention. If you have travelled Merheim way you will have seen a statue emblematic of the dignity of labour. On the chest portion of this imposing creature a handbill had been stuck.

Furniture Vans.

Everyone must have remarked the immense length of the furniture removal vans in Rhineland. You almost wonder how the horses, of which there are never more than two, manage to pull them so easily, even when loaded. It is remarkable too how skilfully the drivers steer and manage them in traffic.

RHINELANDER.

VANITY FAIR.

A Feature for the British Woman in Rhineland.

No Clean Lines.

The cape collar on big coats or coat dresses is an established fact. It drapes the shoulders or folds round the head, and is quaint rather than graceful, especially when worn with a big hat, as it generally is. Enormous pockets widen the hips, and it is astonishing that women look as slim as they do, for there is no sense of clean line in any of the new modes. The shoulders are heavy with drapery, the hips likewise, and the feet and legs look like flower stems.

Right or Left.

The controversy as to the desirability of the wooden house is bringing out sketches of kitchen arrangements which show that men have not yet realised that a woman washing dishes takes the articles from the water with her left hand and requires the draining-board on that side. An otherwise admirably planned kitchen sink hailed with delight by the men on a building committee was condemned by the only woman member because the draining-board was on the right hand side.

The Florentine Haircut.

Children in France are charmingly dressed just now in straight short frocks in light tones or vivid colours with ribbon trimmings or bold embroideries, always gay and simple in design. Checks, stripes, bright green, vivid blue are used for coats, and hats are of every shape and kind, from the poke bonnet to the close cap. Long black velvet streamers float from hat or bonnet and short hair is the fashion for many, cut à la Florentine.

A Simple Solution.

How to clean suede shoes is a little domestic problem that puzzles most women. The solution is really very simple. Take a piece of fine sandpaper and rub the shoes with it gently. The result will be surprising. Doeskin and buckskin gloves can also be cleaned in the same way.

Resentful of Censure.

The reproach brought against some of the present fashions has caused a French writer to explain that the Paris dressmakers only make the eccentric modes for foreigners. She says that no Parisienne would dream of wearing the strange models which cross the seas as the latest fashions from Paris. This is true enough of the Parisian lady, but it is equally true of the ladies of other countries. It is also true that the eccentricities born in Paris are just as much worn by Frenchwomen as by foreigners.

To Restore Furs.

Fur that has lost its freshness in wear should be well combed, then brushed with a damp brush. It should then be left to dry, and when dry a piece of brown paper should be placed over the hair side and ironed with a warm iron. The fur should be then thoroughly shaken and beaten on the right or hair side with a thin cane.

AGNES.

LOSING A CHUM.

Jack came to me this morning with a buoyant step and a glad light in his eyes. "Peter, old boy" he said, "it's come at last, I'm off home to-morrow, have to report at Reception Camp, Cologne, at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning, and then Good-bye, Germany and khaki, and back in the old civvies again." "By Jove," he added, "won't the old lady be pleased?"

I received the news with a smile, but with a little ache of the heart, for the friendship which we had cemented amongst the mud and horrors of Paschandale, and the hell when Mont Kemmel fell, was to be broken, and we were to part perhaps for good, for our homes are far apart.

"I'm sorry you're going, Jack," I said quietly, "I shall often think of the times we have had," and remember that you write when you get home."

"Sure thing, "Jack replied, "and don't you forget either to write."

We were both silent for some time, and my thoughts strayed back to the pals we had made, fellows who were pals in the truest sense of the word, some who had "gone West," some maimed and broken, and others who had come through and got their "ticket," and as I remembered, a feeling of sadness and loneliness came over me, and I tasted again of the bitter fruits of parting, for if there is one thing in the world that is hard to part from, it is from a good chum.

The times we have had, the mud of the trenches, then the "rest" billet with the evenings in the old barns that did for billets, with the lights from the brazier flickering amongst the beams, and we, singing in chorus the old songs, "Nellie Dean," "Fred Karno's Army" and all the doggerel that we knew.

Then again, chaffing Marie, of the Café de Station, about her fiancés, and saying "no comprée" to the old farmer, as he poured forth torrents of abuse upon us for taking his fuel for our fire.

And then the dug-out by candlelight as we listen to "Jerry" crumping, and we light cigarettes and try to talk nonchalantly as we hear them dropping nearer.

Those were the days when friendships were real and — and then I came back to reality as I heard Jack say, "Well, I must be looking over my kit. S'long, we will have a farewell bust-up to night."

WONDERFUL HEALING.

A BOON TO EVERY SOLDIER.

LIKE the precious balms used by the ancient Gladiators, Zam-Buk depends on costly herbal extracts for its magical power. It is a rare and wonderful balm, quite unlike mere ointments and fatty salves.

When Zam-Buk is applied to a Cut, Scratch or Wound the pain is stopped, germ infection prevented, and the broken tissues promptly knitted together. Zam-Buk ends the burning irritation of Eczema, and gets to the root of the disease. It draws poison and inflammation out of Ulcerated and Spreading Sores, and banishes Sores and Pains that have defied all other treatments. Zam-Buk does this with more certainty of lasting benefit, more quickly, and at less cost than anything else.

Zam-Buk has such a wide range of usefulness for accidents and skin diseases that no Soldier or civilian can afford to be without a box of this magic healer.

You can obtain Zam-Buk at the Chemists or from the Canteens. Should they be temporarily out of stock ask the folks at home to send you out a box, or send direct to the Zam-Buk Laboratories, Leeds. No kit is complete without a handy box of Zam-Buk.

MISSING.

News urgently wanted of Pte. Robert Stevenson McLean, known as "Mac" 37208, 9th Batt. K.O.Y.L.I., missing since 25 April 1918. Enquiries through the usual sources bringing no result, this advertisement is inserted in the hopes that some soldier, still serving with the forces, may be able to give some information as to his fate. He was an observer, attached to the 64th Brigade Headquarters, was last seen in a trench dug-out in advance of the Head Qrs. on the morning of the 25th April, near Kemmel Hill when the enemy came over. Some of the observation party got back safely, but Pte. Mc. Lean failed to return to Head Qrs. It was thought he might be a prisoner, as his wallet was taken from a German Red Cross prisoner on the same day. There is just a chance that he may have lost his memory and be with the British troops under another name. He was tall, and slenderly built — about 6ft in height — very straight, blue eyes, brown hair, long thin fingers. Any news of him, alive or dead, will be thankfully received by his aunt (who looked upon him as a son).

VOLUNTEER SERVICES TO BE RETAINED WHILE ARREARS ARE CLEARED UP.

TRADE UNIONISTS WHO MADE THE PEACE.

THE AFTERMATH.

FINAL INCIDENTS OF THE STRIKE.

The success wherewith both Government and people met the railway strike is greeted on all sides, though care is taken, in the interest of good feeling, not to emphasise too clearly the absolute defeat of the strike. The terms of settlement do not go beyond the terms offered by the Government before the strike was declared, with the exception that the guarantee for maintenance of the present wages is extended from March next for an additional six months. Even this is merely a repetition of the general undertaking not to reduce wages until the cost of living has fallen to below 110 per cent. over its pre-war level and it is not considered probable that this fall will have taken place during the period for which the present wages are guaranteed. The men are to resume work at once, as the Government insisted all along, and then negotiations will be resumed on the fixing of standard rates.

The men themselves express satisfaction with the settlement and if they are satisfied it is certain that the general community is satisfied. Mr. J. H. Thomas, the strike leader, said the settlement was honourable and a credit to both sides. Mr. Cramp, another leader, said that although the men had not obtained their strike formula he was satisfied with the terms.

It is generally agreed that the success wherewith this sudden strike has been combated will have a most wholesome effect for the future. It probably means an end of lightning strikes and it also proves that a determined community with the resources which Britain possesses, is not at the mercy of a minority as, in this instance, the minority had calculated. Modern mechanical developments have changed all that and it was this object lesson that showed the labour leaders the urgent necessity of accepting the Government's terms before worse befell them. The organisation of the public services met with amazing success.

Peace with Honour.

The nine days railway strike has ended in peace with honour. There is little talk of victory either by the railwaymen or their opponents, but instead there is a general feeling of satisfaction. The Railwaymen have obtained an assurance which gratifies them that wages will be stabilised at their present level until September 30th 1920 an extension of six months from the date on which the Government intended to revise the rates paid in accordance with the cost of living at that time, and they have also received a renewal of the promise that no adult railwayman shall receive less that fifty-one shillings so long as the cost of living is not less than 110 per cent. above pre-war level.

Actually, however, these assurances will probably be found not to go beyond the general undertaking of the Government made at the beginning of the dispute, that they would in no case reduce wages until the cost of living falls below a figure 110 per cent. over pre-war level, as the likelihood of such a fall occurring during the period over which the assurance to the railwaymen extends is unfortunately small.

Strike Lessons.

There was throughout the strike an absence of sabotage and no unruly behaviour or provocation—a remarkable fact when the number of men involved and the steps taken by volunteers to undertake their work is considered.

It was purely an industrial dispute which has taught several lessons. One is that no section of the community can hope to succeed in any dispute without the support of the public. In this case the sympathy of the public was alienated by the short notice which the Union officials gave of the intention to cease work.

As Mr. J.R. Clynes, the leading Labour member, points out, "It has proved that, however great the provocation may appear, lightning strikes or efforts to subdue the Government by acts of surprise are more likely to fail than are stoppages at the end of the term of a notice given in the customary manner. Just as workmen resent being put to inconvenience the public in the mass is indignant when they suddenly find themselves involved in loss and inconvenience through a surprise act of someone else."

In this sense the strike has been a heavy blow to the extremists. They are indeed an insignificant body, as is demonstrated by the fact that the leading Unions in the country acted not as an influence in the dispute but instead provided the deputation which did invaluable work as mediator between the Government and the Railwaymen. As the "Daily News" says, the meeting, representing thirty Trade Unions, which appointed this conciliatory body deserves as signal a mark in the national calendar as many a military victory. Tributes are also numerous to the sound judgment and sense of justice displayed by the Prime Minister, to whom the strike settlement is one more personal triumph.

Transport Development.

To the public the most amazing discovery during the strike was the rapidity with which the organisation was completed to ensure a working supply of trains and abundant supply of foodstuffs. None suffered the slightest shortage of any kind. Furthermore the strike provided a useful stimulus to commercial air service, to the renewal of coastwise shipping services, which had not recovered from the effect of the war, and to the greater utilisation of motor action in the service of commerce and the State. These methods of transport had been much discussed. During the strike they were put to a practical test with excellent results and they are not likely now to be abandoned.

Chief Labour Member's Conclusion.

Mr. G.N. Barnes, the Labour Member of the Cabinet, when interviewed, said that the impressions he drew from the strike were its revelation of class solidarity on the part of labour; the sense of responsibility as citizens displayed by the mediating Unions; the restraint and general orderliness of the men; the equal restraint of the Government, and the remarkable revelation of the new resources of the State, which would have a moderating effect on extremists in the future. The strike was a needless and wanton attack on the well-being of the community. The strikers could have obtained everything by negotiation. The Government should be relieved of the settlement of disputes in which it was a party. Adjustment should be made by an independent authority, as they were for other Government workers, preferably by a Board comprising representatives of the men, the Railway Executives, and the users of the railways.

Fourteen Peacemakers.

The Fourteen Mediators appointed by the Conference of Trade Unionists which was convened by the Transport Workers' Federation who succeeded in making peace were:—

Mr. H. Gosling (President Transport Workers),
Mr. R. Williams (Secretary Transport Workers),
Mr. Clynes, M.P. (National Union of General Workers),
Mr. Henderson, M.P. (Secretary of the Labour Party),
Mr. Bevin (Transport Workers),
Mr. O'Grady, M.P. (General Workers),
Mr. J. T. Brownlie (Gen. Sec. A.S.E.),
Mr. Bowen (Postal Workers),
Mr. Muir (Electrical Trades Union),
Mr. Naylor (Printing Trades),
Mr. Walker (Parliamentary Committee Trade Union Congress),
Mr. Frank Hodges (Miners' Federation),
Mr. Bowerman (Secretary Parliamentary Committee, Trade Union Congress), and
Mr. Stuart Bunning (Postal)

Hymns of Thanksgiving.

The news of the termination of the strike was celebrated in many parts of the country by the ringing of the church bells and singing of hymns of thanksgiving at the evening services.

A man entered Chertsey Church during the recessional hymn and handed the Vicar a slip of paper bearing the words "Strike is ended—official." The vicar read the news to the congregation, which sang "Oh God, our help in ages past."

Meetings of railwaymen at Carmarthen, Peterborough and elsewhere sang the Doxology.

Many similar incidents are reported. A thanksgiving service was held yesterday at the Mansion House.

A Few Malcontents.

In some parts of the provinces some dissatisfaction with the terms was shown and strong feeling displayed against the non-strikers. One meeting at Taunton, attended by over 1,000 strikers, adopted a resolution demanding that the Executive should resume the strike if blackleg and non-Union labour is not removed within the week.

Retaining Lorry Service.

Government lorries will for the present continue work on food distribution thus relieving the congestion on the railways due to the partial suspension of goods traffic during the nine days strike. This will leave the railways more free for the transit of coal and raw materials. Regents Park will consequently continue to be closed to the public, but Hyde Park, which was used for milk only, will be opened in a few days.

Better Than Pre-Strike Days.

Officials at the Great Northern goods yard, King's Cross, declare that they sometimes had bigger accumulations than at present. The yard will be working normally by Wednesday night. Throughout the week all perishable stuff has been promptly cleared, including huge consignments of potatoes.

Two Volunteers Killed.

A motor food lorry struck the parapet of the bridge at Penicuick, Midlothian, and fell into the river. Two of the four occupants were killed.

PEACE AT HAND.

TREATY PROBABLY OPERATIVE NEXT WEEK.

The debate on the German Peace Treaty in the French Senate is expected to be brief and a vote in favour of the ratification will probably be given before the end of the present week. It is also believed here that Italy will signify her approval almost immediately. In the event of ratification having been accorded by England, France, and Italy by Sunday next, which it is expected will be the case, a formal record will be made of the fact by the Peace Conference at its seat in Paris, and the date on which this record will be made will be that on which the Treaty will come into operation. Simultaneously the state of war will come to an end and official relations between Germany and the Entente Powers will be resumed.

The importance of this date lies in the fact that as soon as the Treaty of Versailles becomes operative it will be necessary, under its provisions, to convoke a meeting of the Council of the League of Nations. This Council, which is composed of delegates representing Great Britain, France, the United States, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Brazil, Greece, and Spain, will have the duty of intervening immediately in regard to several urgent questions. It will have to nominate a High Commissioner at Danzig, and also within a fortnight three of the five members who (with one French and one German representative) will constitute the fixed Commission to settle the exact frontier of the Saar territory in accordance with Article 48 of the Treaty.

STRIKERS BECOME STRIKE BREAKERS.

In view of the fact that the dustmen, road-sweepers, and other employees of the Paddington Borough Council, who recently struck work and were afterwards re-engaged, have since been loyally carrying out their duties, the Council will be asked by the works committee, at a meeting to-morrow, to allow the men, as an act of grace, to come once more within the provisions of the Superannuation and Pensions Act, and count their previous service with the Council for pension purposes, on payment of the arrears of their contributions.

THE MILNER COMMISSION.

There is in Egypt a growing agitation to boycott the Milner Commission and the Ministry is showing great lack of decision in the matter. At any rate it is not desired that the Commission should arrive before peace is signed with Turkey. There are indications that attempts will be made to engineer a general strike when the Commission arrives, and students are already threatening to come out, although they have not yet returned to work.

PETROGRAD BIRTH RATE.

During the last six months 40,000 persons have died in Petrograd, whereas the births registered total only 5,800.

Leave Re-Opened.

The following is officially announced: All officers and men whose leave was curtailed owing to the strike will now receive their leave due, plus an extra seven days. Officers not on leave, who volunteered for service in connection with the strike have received seven days leave. Demobilization is being resumed.

It is also officially announced that now the strike is over leave will be re-opened for all troops stationed in France, Flanders, Italy and on the Rhine, to admit of their sailing from France by the 14th October.

Belated Gondoliers.

The Carl Rosa Opera Company, unable to proceed from Wolverhampton to Nottingham by rail, owing to the strike, travelled by motor, sending their properties by two barges. Although these were loaded on Saturday they had not arrived by Monday morning. Members of the company were continually going to the banks of the Trent hoping to catch a glimpse of the "Gondoliers." They were faced with the prospect of having to play in ordinary clothes, as several other companies were compelled to do during the strike.

Comedy of Stolen Lorries.

During the motor lorry mobilization in Regents Park two men, assumed to be volunteer drivers, entered the park and drove off lorries unchallenged.

As an offset to this loss it was discovered from the engine numbers that three of the lorries commandeered at Oxford Circus and elsewhere were lorries stolen from the Government during the war. The Government is accordingly one up on the balance.

No "Stand Down" Yet.

Rationing regulations will remain in force until the congestion caused by the nine days' stoppage is relieved and volunteers will continue working on certain railways until superseded by regular employees.

Sir Eric Geddes' Denial.

A news agency is authorised to deny the report in circulation that Sir Eric Geddes has resigned his office as Minister of Transport. The report is absolutely without foundation.

LEAVING N. RUSSIA.

ALLIED FLAGS REPLACED BY REPUBLICAN.

The last British troops to leave Archangel arrived at Liverpool on Saturday aboard the Cunard liner "Tsar", which disembarked some 1,000 officers and men chiefly belonging to the Oxford and Bucks Light Infantry. While the troops expressed themselves as glad to get home, they viewed the railway strike with some dismay.

An officer stated that all difficulties connected with the evacuation were successfully overcome and the Bolshevists held in check until the operation was completed. Warships covered the rear, while gunboats and monitors offered protection at strategic points along the upper reaches of the Dvina, which is very narrow in places.

As the last men of General Grogan's and General Jackson's forces left, the Allied flags were replaced on the principal buildings by flags of the new North Russian Republic.

General Ironside remarked to a journalist that he thought too much had already been said about the Russian expedition. It has done its work and Russian loyalists should now be able to stand by themselves.

BIG WHISKY RAID.

DISTILLERY IN A BELFAST VILLA.

Irish constabulary have made another successful raid on an illicit distillery.

Entering a large detached villa at Lisavon, East Belfast, approached by a spacious avenue, they found an extensive distillery in full working order.

The raid was made just before dawn, and resulted in the seizure of two large stills, still heads, worms, 160 gallons of poteen, and numerous empty barrels.

The owner, who was formerly in the licensed victualling trade, was arrested on the premises.

RE-ENLISTMENTS TO CEASE.

An Army Order states that re-enlistments of serving soldiers for two, three or four years under Army Order 124 have ceased, the necessary numbers required under the provision of this order having been obtained.

A Royal Warrant states that it has been deemed expedient to cancel the provision for the grant of temporary commissions in the Cavalry, Royal Artillery, Royal Engineers, Infantry, Machine Gun Corps, Tank Corps, and Royal Army Medical Corps to Warrant Officers, Non-commissioned Officers and men serving on ordinary peace attestations in the regular army and of emoluments to officers so promoted. Army Orders 159 and 293 of 1918 are cancelled accordingly, but officers promoted under these Warrants who were serving on the 29th September 1919 are not affected by the new Warrants.

BALTIC STATES WANT PEACE

A report issued by the General Staff of the North West Russian Army says the offensive is proceeding satisfactorily in the direction of Luga. General Judenitch's troops have crossed the river Sabba and occupied fifteen villges. They captured about twenty villages on the Pskoff front.

Reports from Reval state that a conference of representatives of the Baltic States at Dorpat has decided to send Tenicherin a telegram announcing the willingness of the Baltic states to open peace negotiations at Dorpat, among the terms laid down being recognition of the independence of the Baltic states.

An answer is requested by October 25th.

CROWN PRINCE VISITS HIS FATHER.

It is stated at Amsterdam that the purpose for which the German ex-Crown Prince is paying a ten days' visit to the ex-Kaiser at Ameron en is to arrange some urgent questions regarding the settlement of his property in Germany for the benefit of his children. This is the first time that the ex-Kaiser has seen his son since their arrival in Holland.

AN IRISH COURT-MARTIAL.

The result of the Court-martial in connection with the brothers Kelly in Londonderry is announced as follows: Hugh Kelly, a carter, was sentenced to one year, mitigated to thirty days, for having a live bomb in his possession. His brother James for having revolvers was sentenced to ninety-one days, mitigated to thirty days.

D.S.O. WORTHILY WON.

The D.S.O. has been awarded to Major (tempy-lieut.-colonel) Henry Ernest Lavie, attached 13th Battalion Yorkshire Regiment, to whose personality and power of command the entire lack of success of enemy attacks made on his front in North Russia are principally attributed.

To combat smuggling the German Government has instituted a system of control on the border of the whole of the territory occupied by the Allies.

SUMMARY COURT.

THREE MONTHS FOR THREE OFFENCES.

There were three charges against Margarita Wilsberg of 22 Kämmergasse:—(1) Harbouring a deserter, (2) obstructing the police and (3) allowing soldiers on her premises while it was out of bounds.

L/Cpl. Matthews, M.F.P., in searching the house, found a soldier's greatcoat and tunic and a pair of spurs. The woman refused to give any information as to the whereabouts of the soldier, but on a search being made he was found on the roof. The man was an absentee, his unit being at present in England.

Three months imprisonment was the sentence.

A Varied Assortment.

When Sergeant Simmons, of the M.F.P., searched the house of Heinrich Utzerath at 19 Wissmann Strasse, Ehrenfeld, he found the following Government property:—One overcoat, three pairs socks, one leather sheet, one boot, one can of petrol, one can of lubricating oil, and one gas container—quite an interesting assortment.

The explanation given by Heinrich at the Summary Court was that he found the tins of petrol and lubricating oil in the street and that he picked up the other articles in a field where they had evidently been discarded as useless.

He was sentenced to three weeks imprisonment, although he pleaded hard to be allowed to pay a fine.

ITALY AND FIUME.

SETTLEMENT SAID TO BE IMMINENT.

A Rome newspaper publishes a letter from General Peppino Garibaldi, who denies the report that he has accepted a candidature for Parliament.

General Garibaldi says he is fully convinced of the necessity of annexing Fiume but believes it indispensable to restore the discipline of the army by withdrawing the regulars and leaving only volunteers for the defence of the town. He condemns the tendency to imperil foreign alliances, sympathies and friendships by rash acts like D'Annunzio's, but thinks the Allies should not oppose annexation of Fiume by the Italians if they wish to avoid serious complications.

In a further message from Rome the solution of the Fiume question is considered to be imminent. It is understood that the first meeting between the Duke D'Aosta and D'Annunzio's delegates was satisfactory.

"DRIEST" YEAR ON RECORD.

England and Wales were "drier" in 1918 than in any previous year, according to statistics in a Blue-book issued on Saturday.

It is pointed out that the decrease in convictions for drunkenness began in the latter months of 1914, and continued down to the end of 1918, in which year the total of 29,075 was recorded. This figure is 84.61 per cent. below the total for 1913, when the figures reached 188,877. The figures for convictions of men in 1918 were 21,853 and for women 7,222. The proportion of total convictions contributed by Greater London was 34.9 per cent.

GENERAL'S MURDER CONTRADICTED.

A message from Warsaw states that Brigadier General Jadwin, of the American Peace delegation, and Lieutenant Bowe, his companion, have reached the Polish lines safely. They were reported as having been captured and murdered by Bolshevists.

ENGLAND TEACHES.

Apropos our report in yesterday's issue concerning the boy who was ordered a birching for stealing some Army underclothing, the Kölner Tageblatt of to-day completes the story. It describes the culprit as a "three-cheese-high, too ripe for his age" and after detailing the facts of the case, relates that while crying in anticipation of his punishment the urchin fell asleep. The manufacture of a birch caused some delay and the president of the Court provided, at his own expense, a good lunch for the boy.

The paper adds: "In England such punishments are the rule for children, brutal people and souteneurs. Britannia docet."

HONORARY CHAPLAIN'S BADGE.

Some uncertainty appears to exist in the minds of Temporary Chaplains who have been granted the rank of Honorary Chaplain to the Forces as to the use of the badge which was sanctioned by Army Order 294/1919. In view of this the War Office states that the badge may be worn only by Honorary Chaplains to the King, and not by Honorary Chaplains to the Forces.

Since May 1st War Savings Certificates to the value of over £55,000 have been sold in the Rhine Army.

TANK INVENTORS.

ELEVEN CLAIMANTS FOR CROWN REWARDS.

The Commission on awards to inventors which is to decide on various claims in connection with the tanks, opened its sittings yesterday under the Chairmanship of Mr. Justice Sargant.

There are eleven claimants, viz., Major-General Swinton, Sir E. Tennyson D'Eyncourt, Commander Sulter, Lieut.-Colonel Bootney, Sir William Tratton, Colonel Crampton, Lieut. R. E. McFie, Major Wilson, Major Hetherington, Mr. A. C. Nessfield, and Mr. Legros.

The Chairman said that each of these was making a claim to the Bounty of the Crown, although it did not necessarily follow that the Crown would grant a bounty, as it might be that no claimant is entitled to anything. Having regard to all the circumstances the Crown stood in the position more or less of defendants. The Attorney General would make a general statement regarding the history and evolution of the tanks. This would open the field, upon which the various claimants would have to state their cases, which would be taken in historical order.

After the Attorney General's opening, Mr. Winston Churchill, Secretary for War, as the first witness, would place his knowledge on the matter before the Commission. It would then be open to any Counsel to cross-examine Mr. Churchill, but within very narrow limits. His Lordship hoped that all the claims would be finished by the end of the week.

The Commission then adjourned.

MAD JURYMAN'S ACT.

The manner in which the strain of serving on an Old Bailey jury at a murder trial affected a man's brain was told at an inquest at Paddington on Saturday on Mrs. Emily Payne, aged seventy-one, wife of Walter Payne, a Kilburn greengrocer, who died from injuries to the head alleged to have been inflicted by her husband with a hammer while she was in bed. Her three daughters were also attacked and injured.

Miss Currington, who lives in the house, said that Mr. Payne had been strange in his manner and unable to sleep since the Prah-road murder trial, and had said that it was a terrible experience to listen to a judge sentence a man to death.

The inquest was adjourned.

FATAL CIGARETTE SMOKING.

It was stated at an inquest at Islington on Margaret Crespe, late living at Albiongrove, Barnsbury, that she was in the habit of smoking a good deal, and liked to have a cigarette in bed because it soothed her nerves.

Early on Wednesday loud screams were heard, and she was found lying on the floor of her bedroom badly burned, while her matitress was also on fire. She was removed to hospital, and died from blood poisoning resulting from the burns.

In hospital she said that she had been smoking and had fallen asleep.

INDIAN ARMY PAY RAISED.

The Secretary of State for India announces increased rates of pay for officers of the Indian Army. These are granted in consideration of the high cost of living.

LATEST BALKAN FASHIONS.

A message from Bukarest states that the American Red Cross has distributed more than four hundred thousand suits of pyjamas in the Balkans. These garments were originally intended for use in the hospitals but lack of clothing is so great that the women and children have been glad to make use of them as ordinary day garments.

ALLIED LOAN TO GREECE.

It is stated that an agreement has been concluded between the Greek Government and the Allies for a loan of 50 million dollars to Greece.

M. Venizelos, the Greek Premier, will probably stay in England until the date fixed for the signing of the Bulgarian Peace Treaty in Paris.

GERMAN CONFESSION OF GUILT.

At the final meeting of the World Alliance Church Congress, Dr. Fred Spiecker, of Berlin, made, on behalf of the whole German delegation, a frank confession of Germany's moral guilt for the invasion of Belgium.

WAR TROPHIES REFUSED.

The London Borough of Bethnal Green declines to accept four pieces of German heavy artillery and four field guns with carriages in addition to a number of less bulky souvenirs.

NORWEGIAN PUSSYFEET.

The two days plebiscite which is proceeding in Norway concerning prohibition of the sale of alcohol is extremely keen. Both sides are distributing masses of propaganda literature by motor car and aeroplane.

Willesden Workhouse in future is to be known as Greatfield House.

BRITISH PATRIOTISM.

Life in Germany at the present time makes every thoughtful man want to examine the different forms which patriotism takes among the nations of the world.

English patriotism is probably the most interesting and most subtle of them all

It is often misunderstood by foreigners who fail to grasp the really remarkable fastidiousness which characterises almost every Englishman, and makes him constantly suspicious of any exaggeration.

Our love of country cannot be expressed in at all the same kind of words as Germans use in their song "Deutschland über alles."

Any excessive glorification of England seems to us bad taste and absurd. Rupert Brooke, enumerating in exquisite language the qualities that lie hidden in the dust of the English dead in foreign soil, wrote of "The thoughts by England given....
And Laughter learnt of friends, and gentleness
In hearts at peace under an English heaven".

The words "Hearts at peace, under an English heaven" express exactly the dumb ideal of many an Englishman and boy out here. He is homesick for English fields and lanes, even for English industrial towns. Love of country is the deepest thing in him, and made him an incomparable soldier in spite of his national and reasonable dislike of war, because he realized that the thing he cared for most—his ideal of home and his love of kind English ways—was being attacked and he knew that he was ready to face death, wounds or disfigurement to protect them.

The ostentation of patriotism is distasteful to us. It is probable that no race—not even the Greek—had a more inborn dislike of pageantry than we have. The Roman, crowned with laurel, returning to drive in triumph through the streets of Rome, was the reverse of the modern Englishman, who, be he general or private soldier, would usually be very glad to be let off from taking part in a triumphal march through London.

The fact that so many of our soldiers do not join in singing the National Anthem is much commented upon by our critics, and indeed it is difficult to understand.

If you ask a private soldier why he does not sing he does not seem able to give any satisfactory explanation.

There may be many reasons, but the underlying fact is that the more showy sides of patriotism—the flying of flags, the singing of national songs, do not strike the Englishman as quite real. His love of country is far deeper and far quieter than any outward expression. What he loves is "Hearts at peace, under an English heaven."

We love and admire French patriotism, It is a most beautiful plant, but its roots are no deeper than English patriotism though its flower be different. The Frenchman can express what the Englishman feels compelled to hide. Among the many verses which have been written by the most poetical of all nations about the war, we recall the lines in memory of the Contemptibles who fell in 1914.

"Their shoulders held the skies suspended.
They stood, and Earth's foundations stay."

And we remember the men who, joking and grumbling outwardly, gave their lives for their ideal of an English heaven that they carried hidden in their hearts.

MERELY POTATOES.

If we were honest with ourselves we should acknowledge that some of our most vivid memories hung about meals. A man grows old, he can know once only the raptures of first love — but the joys of good food and wine remain perennial. And yet a meal need not be exquisite, it need not even be good to be savoured, time and again in memory.

Most campaigners could tell us of food which was more than a banquet, though it was swallowed in a trench. One remembers a hard grey morning before the war, when a mug of greasy cocoa, drunk perilously, while the cutter nosed into green seas near the Owers, was beyond an exalting Burgundy.

Food was certainly the pre-occupation of the three of us who descended in the falling dusk to Boppard by a stony path among the vines. High on the hills between Rhens and Boppard we had come upon two things—a field in which a board warned us to beware of "böse stiere", and a field of potatoes. We had met — or surmised that we had met — the cattle, which seemed meek enough milch cows, driven easily by their herd. And in the potato field, remembering that we were very hungry, we had rooted up potatoes, with a watchful eye on the hedges, till our pockets and our packs were heavy with them.

It was night and we were dog tired when we reached the level at last and came down to the Rhine bank. The two German lads washed the potatoes in the river, peeled and sliced them. It was left to the "Englander", who had boasted that he could make omelettes, to fry them. But it is not easy to cook in the dark, for it was densely twilight, in spite of a thin slip of a moon and a sky which grew full of stars.

The "Englander" stretched himself luxuriously on a blanket laid on the grass, watched the pale blue flame of the spirit-lamp and listened to the sputtering of the fat in the pan. It was no time for niceties, one could not wait to see the blue smoke rising from the fat, even if the electric torch could have shown it. We were hungry and we guessed, and the potatoes went recklessly into the pan. There followed a meditative pause, while one turned over the chips with a fork and thought of watched pots. We had the luck to sprinkle the dish with salt and not with sugar.

Of course the potatoes never browned, but they cooked and they smelt aromatically. Fork, taking the air, walked on the bank above us, discerned the "Englander" dimly, and talked, one guessed, of English madness. If I were charitable, I should say they talked of "Wanderlust."

Anyway, the interminable minutes passed, the potatoes softened beneath the fork, and I pronounced that they were done. My reputation hung on the moment. We groped for mislaid forks; the German boys tasted and sighed with content. I breathed—but I did not flatter myself. I was as hungry as they were, and hunger is as blind as love.

We ate, and no food ever tasted better than those badly cooked, stolen potatoes, in that relaxation of ease and contemplation. The Rhine chimed below us; the thin moon slipped down the sky; a sweet air breathed down the valley and the hills were solemn and darkly violet. Life and the Rhine and Germany were very good.

Presently we hunted in the grass for lost things, slung our packs on our shoulders and went along the avenue of pollarded limes into Boppard. We found our inn; the wine was golden in the glasses, and the tobacco in the pipes a herb from Paradise. The Germans sang appropriate songs after the manner of their race, and we turned to bed with the melody which has been set to Uhland's distressing ballad in our souls:

"Es zogen drei Bursche wohl über den Rhein, Bei einer Frau Wirtin da kehrten sie ein."

And the next day found us heating Maconachie among the ruins of Rheinfels.

LOOKER ON.

ARE YOU LITERARY?

We pay for all literary contributions to "The Cologne Post," and are pleased to consider articles, humorous sketches and poems by members of the Rhine Army. No article should exceed 500 words, and even shorter ones can be submitted.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

We Hear all Sides and Accept no Responsibility for our Readers' Views.

DUTY ON SOUVENIRS.

Sir,—There are now many of us returning to England on demobilization and the majority will take with them souvenirs of the Rhineland for their relations and friends. As duty is now charged on certain articles, a definite statement by the Authorities on this subject would be welcomed by all.

What is needed is a list of all articles on which duty has to be paid and the amount chargeable.

This would obviate a great deal of unnecessary trouble and confusion to all concerned. B.M.G.

CLOSING THE FIELD CASHIER.

Sir,—With reference to the inconvenience caused to officers by the closing of the Field Cashier, may I quote the following incident which occurred to me a day or two ago?

Owing to the fact that the Field Cashier is no longer available for making advances of pay to officers, I had to cash a cheque at Cox's at the civil rate of 90 marks to the pound.

Later I went to the N.A.C.B. Club, and, while there bought a ticket for the Cambridgeshire Sweepstake, having to pay 60 marks for it, in other words thirteen shillings and four pence for a ticket marked ten shillings, because the Military rate of exchange is 120 marks to the pound! Is this fair or right?

I do not know where the authorities responsible for selling these tickets will change the marks they get for them into English currency, but, I presume, at a bank, where they will get the civil rate of exchange for them, and will be making a clear three shillings and four pence on every ticket sold!

In short, at present, officers on the Rhine can only obtain money at the rate of 90 marks to the pound, and, when ever they go to make a purchase at a Military club or Canteen, they have to spend it at the rate of 120 marks to the pound! DONE.

OUR MUSICAL TASTE.

Sir,—I think one effect of our sojourn on the Rhine will be that when we return to old England we shall want more and better music.

The numbers of our troops of all ranks who have become regular habitués of the Cologne Opera is, I feel sure, bound to have its effect at home.

There are large numbers of us who will miss the frequent enjoyment of the musical works of the great masters and will demand it.

It is to some extent true perhaps that we English are not a musical people, but it is largely a matter of opportunity. Given the chance to appreciate the best most of us will respond.

Those who cater for our amusement at home usually underrate the average person's intelligence. People go to what is provided for them, not always from choice, but by reason of necessity.

B. FLAT.

THE ENDED STRIKE.

Sir,—I thought your leading article on the great strike, happily ended, was one of the best of your editorial efforts.

It struck the true note. It was most impartial and showed how you realise that in a conflict such as that just concluded there must necessarily be two sides.

Some of the London papers have, I am sorry to see, been far from fair in their comments. The fault could not have been entirely on one side as many of them tried to make out.

Although a soldier—and a loyal one, I hope—I am a Trade Unionist with every sympathy for fellow labour men in Blighty and I must pay tribute to the fairness of your editorial opinion in reviewing the strike just finished. LABOUR.

THE MARRIED OFFICER.

Sir,—It seems about time somebody in high authority took up the troubles of the married officers.

1. No Field Advances. The Government Exchange—120 Marks. The Monopoly Banks 90. Loss 30 Marks in the £1.

2. The married officer whose wife is out here has to pay at the Government exchange for her rations—a further 30 Marks loss.

3. The new rates of pay consist largely of increased allowances. The married officer has to produce a marriage certificate. What about the poor devil whose wife is out here and the marriage certificate locked up at home, and no means of getting it unless one of them goes personally. English ladies don't usually carry their marriage lines sewn in their clothing.

Result:—No allowances until produced. I for one have already produced mine to my bankers when claiming child's allowance; should not this be sufficient or if not, a certificate from C.O's? P.B.O.

NO RUSH FOR BUSINESS.

Sir,—As an ex-officer over in Cologne trying to do business I must say my eyes have been opened.

I find England crying out for certain goods and thinking that the Germans are on their knees for our business.

But to be honest they are not. They are extremely busy and very independent as to future orders.

I am not by any means satisfied with my trip to the Rhine for I find I can make very few purchases of any size.

TRAVELLER.

ADVANCE GRIEVANCES.

Sir,—I have read with much interest the letter written by "P.W.F.B." in which he complains of the difference in the rate of exchange between the Banks and the Field Cashier.

I would like to bring to his notice a fact that he has obviously forgotten, i.e., that when the Military Rate of Exchange was 96 Marks to the English Pound, the civilian Banks were paying at the rate of from 120 to 130 Marks to the Pound and instead of complaining, the N.C.O.s and men, who now apparently receive as much as a Second Lieutenant, did not complain and take the trouble to see how much they were losing, but took things as they came, which is an optimist's point of view. AN N.C.O.

BOOKS FOR REFERENCE.

Sir,—On visiting the Rhine Army Book Shop Reference Library the other afternoon, I was informed by the N.C.O. in charge that no one was allowed inside the rail to examine the books.

If this is the rule, it seems a pretty foolish one, since no book can be properly judged merely by its outside, and the books are exhibited on shelves that are too far from the rail to permit of even the titles to be seen properly, much less their contents to be judged.

On the not unnatural assumption that the Reference Library is intended for use, it is suggested that prompt steps be taken to rescind the order in question.

STUDENT.

OVER FASTIDIOUS.

Sir,—I can't help thinking that comfortable living in Rhineland is making us all over-fastidious in our tastes.

I find that entertainments got up entirely as a labour of love for our special benefit are carpingly criticised, dramatic companies compared with crack London castes, orchestras sneered at by those who couldn't play a tin whistle or a jews' harp if they were asked.

The difficulties of all who do their very best to entertain us are immense. Demobbing has depleted everything and we on the Rhine are growing far too critical.

Let us remember we are soldiers and try to put up with things in a cheery spirit, I should like to see less tendency to pick holes in other people's well meant efforts. Could we do better ourselves, is the question. Of course not, and so let us be more reasonable and more charitable. E.E.D.

NUMBERED THEATRE SEATS.

Sir,—"Book your seats at the Palace Theatre" was the advice freely and publicly given on the placards announcing the recent Benefit Concert.

Surely the common idea of booking your seat means that any person doing so is assured a seat at the performance, without having to stand in a queue or rush in immediately the doors are open and patiently wait for the curtain to rise.

Apparently the management of the Palace Theatre does not intend its announcement to be read in this light.

On this and previous occasions I have been beguiled into "booking a seat" under the impression that accommodation would be available at the time the performance commenced, but I have yet to learn where the advantage comes in.

Would much extra expense be entailed or extra staff be necessary if the simple and universal system of numbering tickets and seats were adopted at this theatre?

At any rate it would prevent the irritating disappointment caused by innocently "booking your seat" and finding none vacant upon arrival.

HAD SOME.

WIVES AT OUR CLUBS.

Sir,—Yesterday morning I went into the N.A.C.B. Officers' Club in Cologne where my husband, who was with me, desired to see some friends about business.

I went into the reading room meanwhile, and had scarcely got seated when one of the members of the club staff approached and requested me to leave. The consequence was that for quite half an hour I had to remain standing in the entrance hall awaiting my husband's return.

If officers' wives are permitted to have meals in the club why on earth — if the reading room accommodation is inadequate —cannot a small room be allotted as a waiting-room for the wives of officers who have absolutely nowhere else central to go while trying to kill time during the temporary absence of their husbands.

ANNOYED WIFE.

AN INVITATION TO BOYS.

Sir,—Scoutmasters and Scouts at present serving in the Army of Occupation, have formed a circle which meets every Wednesday evening at 5.30 at the Y.M.C.A. Lindenthal.

There are several English boys staying in Cologne and if any of these lads, from 11 years old, whether scouts or not, would care to take advantage of such scout training as can be given them here, the members of the circle invite parents to allow their boys to come any Wednesday evening.

At the meeting held last week it was decided to devote the first hour i.e. 5.30-6.30, to any boys who may wish to take advantage of this invitation.

Should any parents desire any further information, will they kindly write to Scoutmaster c/o The Secretary Y.M.C.A., Lindenthal. SCOUTMASTER.

WINTER DANCING.

Sir,—Who would dare to interfere with the Y.M.C.A. amusements by suggesting that the Great Hall in the Central Y.M.C.A. should be used as a dance hall?

"Maxima" and "Hawkeye" must understand that we are not all dancers. And just to satisfy their craze everything is to be turned into a dance hall.

I am sure the Y.M.C.A. authorities themselves know what is best for the army's welfare without any help from dancers. S. M.

ENGLAND.

Far from the hearts of friends, where love
Is but a name, and fellowship
With men does nought save stronger prove
How close the ties, that daily grip
My heart, acclaim it,—ENGLAND.

England, thy glories I would sing,
Till every wind from overseas
Afar resounds, and mountains ring
With all thy praise. Upon my knees
I'd murmur soft a name,—ENGLAND.

May I be worthy of that name,
That parenthood, that English sons
Upon a foreign field in victor's fame
Have whispered ere they died, and won
Fresh laurels for the crown of ENGLAND.

BAYONET FENCING.

Southern Division Organise Interesting Competition.

2/4th HANTS ON TOP.

An exciting bayonet fencing competition was organised by the Southern Division, at Burscheid, when there was a large audience in the Gymnasium.

The officials were: Lt.-Col. Betts, D.S.O. Referee; Capt. Brown, M.C., Judge; C.S.M. I. Murray, A.G.S. Judge; and C.S.M. I. Stubbs, A.G.S., Recorder.

Nine Battalions competed and the 1st round was contested by the 52nd Devons and the 51st Royal Warwicks. The Warwicks won by 14 wins to 9. Other results are appended:—

SECOND ROUND.

51st R. Warwicks 16 15th Hants . . 7
53rd R. Warwicks 14 15th Devons . 9
51st Hants . . . 12 51st Devons . . 11
52nd R. Warwicks 9 2/4th Hants . . 14

SEMI-FINAL.

51st R. Warwicks 10 53rd R. Warwicks 13
51st Hants . . . 6 2/4 Hants . . . 17

FINAL.

53rd R. Warwicks 9 2/4th Hants . . 14

FIGHT FOR 3rd PLACE.

51st Hants . . . 14 51st R. Warwicks 9

Some exciting fencing took place in which the 2/4 Hants excelled. The whole proceedings were splendidly carried out by Lieut.-Col. Betts, D.S.O. and his able officials. The event should go far to further this grand old sport of which Lt.-Col. Betts is a past master.

THE LEEDS CITY SENSATION.

What Led Up to the Directors' Resignations.

The announcement that the whole of the Leeds City F.C. directorate had resigned was a bombshell to the football world, except to those who were acquainted with recent developments.

"Sporting Life" published some time ago the information that allegations of grave irregularities had been made against the conduct of Leeds City's affairs during war emergency football. The prima facie case established was so strong that a joint commission of the Football Association and the Football League, with Mr. J. C. Clegg as chairman, was appointed to investigate it.

Certain documents, which, it is believed contain important evidence, and which have been in possession of solicitors, were asked for, but the directors of the club assured the commission they could not produce them, as other parties were concerned, and the solicitors would not release them until the consent of all parties to this course had been obtained.

When the commission sat last week at Manchester the directors were again ordered to produce the documents, but again they sheltered themselves behind the plea that they could not persuade the solicitors to hand them over. The commission arrived at the conclusion that they could not proceed further without them, and they decided that unless they were produced on or before Oct. 6 the club should be suspended as from that date.

The documents have not been handed over to the F.A., and the voluntary resignation of the directors presumably follows unsuccessful attempts on their part to obtain the documents. The hope is entertained that, should a new set of directors be at once appointed, the Commission will not enforce the suspension until further efforts have been made to comply with their orders.

KILLED IN RUGBY MATCH.

Demobilized French Officer Succumbs to Injuries.

Lieut. Logues, just demobilized after four years' service in a French chasing squadron, who was taken prisoner and escaped from Germany, was killed on Monday playing in a rugby match between the Racing Club and the University Paris.

He was playing for the former when he was tackled and sustained injuries to his neck from which he died in the evening.

FEATHER-WEIGHT MATCHES AT N.S.C.

Feather-weight matches loom large at the National Sporting Club this month, seeing that one occupies pride of place in the programme each Monday night.

Thus on Oct. 13 we find Mike Honeyman, who is in the same interest as Conn, matched at 9st with Billy Marchant; on Oct. 20, the "special" night of the month, Jim Driscoll and Ledoux are to decide their match for stakes and purse money amounting to £1,450, although this is not at the standard feather-weight limit, but at 3lb less; while on Oct. 27 there is the match at 9st between Charlie Stone, of Taffs Well, and Fred Jones, of Rushden, a couple of boxers who have been doing exceedingly well of late.

From among all these men of the same division the committee should be able without difficulty to choose a couple of belt contestants.

AUSTRALIAN DERBY.

The Australian Jockey Club Derby, resulted in a dead-heat between Mr. A. D. Murphy's and Sir S. Hordern's Artilleryman and Mr. J. Baron's Richmondmain. The stakes were divided.

The Metropolitan race at Randwick, New South Wales, was won by Rebus (10—1), Kenilford (5—1) being second, and Amazonia (33—1) third. The winner won by a head, two lengths separating the second and third.

T.M.'s BEAT SCHOLARS.

VI Corps Schools v. Northern Division T.M.B.

In an interesting match, Pte. Mazza, the School's right back, played well throughout and Lt. Beale excelled himself.

The T.M.B. outside right played remarkably well, and made repeated attacks on the School goal. There was no score till after a half-hour of exciting play, when a splendid pass from L/Cpl. McFarlane was secured by Pte. Carr who beat Lt. Oldbury in the School goal with a difficult shot, making the score one-nil in the T.M.B. favour at half-time.

In the second half the game became still more furious, the T.M.B. forwards pressing again and again. However, the School backs did not allow them to have it all their own way, Pte. Costin especially distinguishing himself, while Lt. Oldbury made repeated saves, preventing the T.M.B. from any further scoring. Result: T.M.B. 1; VI Corps Schools 0.

ARCH FOOTBALLERS.

Rivalry of Record Breakers Elicits a Challenge.

The rivalry of the many Rhineland football teams whose records are much above the ordinary average is as keen as ever. A few days ago in these columns, was published the record of the B/246 Bde., R.G.A. team with the remark that it was doubtful whether any team in the British "Army of Occ." could beat them on their present form.

This has elicited a letter from the secretary of the A/187 Bde. R.F.A. team, whose achievements were enumerated in yesterday's issue of "The Cologne Post". He writes, "I consider the record of our team is quite as good as that of B/246 Bde. R.G.A. and we are open to play them on our ground at Eil on any day they wish."

A match between these tough customers should be interesting.

BETTER TEAM WINS.

No. 2 v. No. 3 Coy. Lancashire Divisional Train.

On Sunday, on No. 2 Coy.'s ground with a considerably strengthened team since the last meeting, coupled with the fact that No. 2 Coy. were without their dashing centre forward, No. 3 entertained visions of victory. The home team, however, with a re-arranged forward line, took command of the game right from the kick off and never looked anything else but winners. A few minutes from the start Earnshaw opened the scoring. This was soon followed by a good goal by Keegan. Before half time the visitors broke away and opened their account, Acton the home goalkeeper making a plucky attempt to save.

After the interval No. 2 kept the visitors penned in their own half of the field and had it not been for a splendid display by their goalkeeper, No. 3 Coy. would have been a few more goals down. Shots of every description were rained in on him and it says much for his ability that he was only beaten once this period, a shot from Earnshaw giving him no chance. No. 2 Coy., in winning this match by 3 goals to 1, still keep their undefeated record and on recent displays are likely to do so for some time. The winners' defence, after properly settling down, gave nothing away, Walker, Thornton and Dixon being unbeatable. The home forwards gave a good display, being all over their opponents.

D/190 BDE. R.F.A. V. 69TH AUX. STEAM COY.

Played on the Gunners' ground, at Polo Wiesen. First blood was drawn by the "Field," through neat combination in the forward line, after fifteen minutes. The home team continued to press hard, but were met with a stubborn defence, and sides changed over without further scoring. The second half was characteristic of the first, no scoring taking place for either team, though the Artillery pressed hard throughout. Result:—D/190 Bde. 1; Aux. SteamCoy., 0.

D/190 BDE. R.F.A. v. INNISKILLING DRAGOONS.

On the former's ground. This proved to be a very level and fast game, the ball swinging from one end of the ground to the other. The home forwards were a little too fast for their opponents, however, and managed to find the net after 20 minutes hard work. The Inniskillings pressed hard at the end of the first half, but the excellent play of Dvr. Bingham and Howard, and the cool game of Dvr. Morphew, in goal, kept them out. In the second half the play was confined more to the Inniskillings goal, and after some exciting minutes, a goal was again scored for the Gunners. The whistle blew shortly afterwards, leaving "D" winners by 2-0. The Battery team really played up splendidly, against a far heavier side, and every credit is due to their organisers, Sgts. Harris and Gaymer.

Death Of Noted Cricketer.

The death is announced of Ernest Halliwell, the well-known South African wicket-keeper, who collapsed following an amputation for a gangrened leg.

McLEAN CHALLENGE CUP

A/50 v. C/50: Replayed Tie At Niederembt.

These teams, after having played a drawn game on C/50's ground, proved a great attraction on Saturday. C 50 at once became aggressive but good half-back work by A/50 prevented any danger. Each end was visited and a fine piece of forward work by the home team resulted in Bdr. Munsie, the speedy inside right, forcing his way through C/50's defence and sending in a fine low oblique shot which the goalie just managed to scrape past the upright. Half time came without either side scoring. The second half was even more keenly contested. C 50 had rearranged their forward line but failed to overpower the good defensive work of A 50, the r half-backs working like niggers. A word of praise is due to A/50's midget left-half, Dvr. Foster, who, by keenness and trickery invariably came out on top and fed his forwards well. C 50's defence was splendid, their right back, Bdr. Truefoot, being the team's salvation from defeat. The game ended in a goal-less draw which well represented the play.

51st V. 52nd NORTHUMBERLAND FUSILIERS.

Played at Marienburg Barracks on Saturday, in fine weather. The game had only just started when the 51st through some fine footwork broke through the 52nd defence, and Cpl. Atkinson, making no mistake, shot a fine goal. The 51st, still keeping up the pressure, scored another goal through Cpl. Atkinson. The 52nd with a desperate rush reached their opponents goal and the outside left tricking the defence scored brilliantly.

On the resumption on the game, the ball passed from one end of the field to the other, but neither side was able to take the opportunities offered. For the visitors, Capt. Pigg took an able command of the forward line and was conspicuous throughout the game for his fine judgment and head-work. Result. 51st Northumberland Fusiliers 2; 52nd Northumberland Fusiliers 1.

CHAMPION WRESTLER.

Winner of First Bout Rendered Unconscious.

CONDITION SERIOUS.

The world's wrestling championship took place at Geneva on Saturday night resulting in a victory for Cherpillod.

Deriaz won the first bout but became unconscious in the 2nd and Cherpillod was declared the winner amidst great cheers.

Deriaz was still unconscious after one hour. The doctor states his condition is serious.

CARPENTIER WINS IN SPAIN.

Georges Carpentier was to have boxed in the open air at San Sebastian on Sunday, Sept. 21, but owing to rain the affair was postponed for a week. Again, however, the contest had to be postponed for the same reason, and rather than take any more chances the promoters decided to bring off the match indoors last Monday evening.

Carpentier's opponent was Croisilles, who proved no match for the French champion, and was knocked out in the second round.

The King of Spain was present and offered his congratulations to the victor.

BASKET BALL CUP.

6th Corps Trophy Presented To 1/6 West Yorks Regt.

An interesting presentation took place on Monday morning when Lt.-Col. Barwell M.C. presented the 6th Corps Basket Ball cup and medals to the above team. He congratulated the players on their fine performance, adding that he was sure he was voicing the appreciation of his Battalion when he said that he was proud to command such a sporting unit. The unit he continued, was very disappointed in not winning the "Cologne Post" Cricket Cup but they had since satisfied themselves that the Cup had found its rightful resting place.

The C.O. said he was very sorry that he was parting with some of his best men owing to demobilization, but he hoped that those who remained would carry on the sporting traditions of the Battalion. The young guards should be taught so that they could follow.

Capt. Rees M.C. replying on behalf of the players, thanked the C.O. for his kind words and appreciation.

The cup was then handed to R.Q.M.S. Franks, no accommodation at present being available in the prize case.

SPORT IN BRIEF.

Disputed Goal.

Chelsea were rather lucky to beat Burnley, for the score was level at half-time, and the deciding goal, obtained by Abrams, was disputed, the ball lodging on top of the net, which was broken.

An Excellent Game.

A crowd of nearly 35,000 people watched an excellent game at Highbury, where The Arsenal had the better of the play but failed to score, and a goal shot by Shea half-way through the second half enabled Blackburn Rovers to win.

Scratched.

The following Rugby football matches, which should have been played on Saturday, were scratched:— United Services v. Blackheath, Pontypool v. Swansea, Moseley v. Manchester, and Rosslyn Park v. London Hospital.

Sporting Form.

Form more often works out correctly in golf and lawn tennis than in any other sport. It has done so again in the final stages of the "News of the World" golf tournament at Walton Heath.— "Sporting Life."

Not Won a Match.

Lincoln City and Coventry City, of the Second Division, are the only clubs who have not won a match.

Ring's New Chief of Staff.

Divisional Detective-Inspector C. Hawkins, who for the past six and a half years has had charge of the M. (Southwark) Division of the Metropolitan Police, having resigned the force after 30½ years, has now been apointed chief of staff at The Ring:

Cross-Country Season.

The cross-country season may be said to have generally opened on Saturday, although a few are holding over their opening runs until this week.

Greyhounds.

The two greyhounds Telesilla and Glad Surprise, by Hadfield out of Haggard Witch, have been purchased privately by Mr. W. Allinson and Mr. S. H. Child for 250gs., but they will remain under the charge of their trainer, J. Chields-Tomlinson, of Newmarket.

Feature of Game.

One of the features of the game between Richmond and London Scottish was the success of Robert Jones, of Bedford, at stand-off half-back for Richmond.

530,000 Spectators.

The strike did not prevent the playing of the important League matches arranged for Saturday. There was, indeed, an increase in the attendances, which, for the 33 matches, amounted to about 530,000 people.

Record Entry.

The autumn meeting of the St. Andrew's Artisan Club was held on Saturday over the Old Course. There was a record entry. Mr. John Melville won the scratch medal with a return of 79.

Isthmian League.

The two matches in the Isthmian League, arranged for Saturday—West Norwood v. Woking and Oxford City v. Civil Service—had to be postponed owing to the railway strike.

N.S.C. Season.

The National Sporting Club season opened on Monday night, when the chief contests were between two of the best feather-weights in the country, Joe Conn and Francis Rossi.

AMUSEMENTS AND RECREATIONS.

A Concerto.

It was gratifying to find a large audience assembled in the Cologne Central Y.M.C.A., on Monday, for the announcement, "A Concerto Analysed and Illustrated" did not seem likely to make a wide appeal. Doubtless the reputations of Miss Merriman as a lecturer and violinist, and of Miss Nash as a pianist, attracted the music lovers in the Rhine Army; and certainly they had an evening of deep delight. Mendelssohn's concerto for the violin was the subject; and both in the lecture, in which it was analysed and in the playing by which it was illustrated, it was treated with exceptional knowledge and skill. Miss Merriman speaks with as much precision and force as is found in her playing; and by the use of a blackboard, she initiated her hearers into many mysteries of music which some of them must previously have thought to be above their powers of comprehension.

* * *

At several points of the lecture, there were violin and piano illustrations of the exposition of the theme, and then Miss Merriman gave a brilliant rendering of the whole Concerto, entirely from memory. It was necessarily a long performance; but the audience was held spell-bound from the beginning to the end, finding new significance and therefore deeper delight in an old piece of music. Acknowledgement should be made of the aid given by Miss Nash at the piano where she proved that she can interpret "the Masters" as well as she renders her own compositions. Dr. Francis, in proposing a vote of thanks, stated that next Monday a concert will be given in the same Hall by Miss Nash (piano) Miss Merriman (violin) and Miss Beale (songs).

"The Jesters" Return.

With a brand new programme that remarkable combination of talent, "The Jesters" are once more back at the Palace Theatre, Cologne. They opened a week's engagement on Monday before a packed house and, without exception, the numbers were received with considerable enthusiasm. For variety, and the very high ability of each individual artiste, the performance of "The Jesters" would indeed be very, very difficult to equal anywhere. The company includes Mr. Joe Morley, the celebrated banjoist from the London Palladium; Miss Mabel Martin, an altogether delightful soprano with a voice of wonderful purity and power; Miss Jessie Mountjoy, a young lady who dispenses the daintiest little songs at the piano; Mr. Chass Lewis, a ventriloquist who has been described as being right in the front rank in his own particular line of business; Mr. Harry King and Mr. Frank Hook two of the richest comedians I remember seeing for a very long time. Under the direction of Mr. Alfred Hurley, the party is always bound to meet with approbation.

"The Indispensables."

During the summer months there was not a great deal of demand for indoor amusements in Duren, the delightful surroundings within easy reach of the town affording ample and healthy facilities to while away one's leisure time. Now, with the arrival of cool and dark evenings, however, entertainment caterers are once more coming to the forefront. Among the indoor amusements available, I notice that "The Indispensables," the concert party of the 5th Tank Bde. M.T. Coy. are due at the Stadt Theatre, on Thursday and Friday. Several of the many who saw this party during the recent tour in the Montjoie area are unstinting in their praises of the excellence of the performance they submit.

* * *

A feature of the programme announced will be a spy farce entitled "A Collection will be Made," in which the successful comedian Cpl. Ellis will appear as the Rev. Cuthbert Cheese. He will be assisted in the laughter producing business by Sgt. Clark while others included in the programme will be Capt. Paltersen, Sgt.-Major Tribe, Q.M.S. Caulll, Cpl. Crisp and Ptes. Clark, Kaye and Voorsanger. There will be an orchestra under the conductorship of Cpl. Lamb.

Schumann Oratorio.

The "Jatho Choir," well known in Cologne is giving a concert on Friday evening at 7.30 p.m. in the Bürgergesellschaft. With the participation of an orchestra of 50 artistes, the oratorio "Paradise and Peri" by Schumann will be performed.

INMAN v. REECE.

Opening Match at London's New Billiard Hall.

The billiard season in London opens this week with a match between Inman and Reece for £100 a side. The match, which is bound to attract considerable interest, commenced yesterday in the new match room opened by Messrs. Burroughes and Watts, in St. James Street. The two great rivals will play 15,000 up, of which the champion concedes 1000 start.

The meeting of Inman and Reece is always an appetising dish for followers of the game, says "The Sporting Life", but they have never met under such conditions as will surround the occasion under notice. In assisting at the house-warming of a new and up-to-date billiards hall the champion and his greatest rival will be playing under conditions that will fully test their adaptability and skill. The neutral playing conditions render a forecast of the result much in the nature of a gamble. Under normal circumstances Inman would probably start a pronounced favourite and more likely than not justify it, but Reece, ever an optimist, is unusually sanguine of being able to extend the champion during the next fortnight. Reece is particularly fit just now, and as he has been practising diligently for some time he should be in excellent trim. Inman is also very well, and as confident as always that the match will end in what he terms the usual discomfiture of Reece.

CAMBRIDGE RUGBY CAPTAIN.

Capt. John Greenwood, who captained Cambridge University Rugby XV in 1913, is going up again and has agreed to captain the XV this year. He will be in his fifth year, but the Oxford Union, recognising the need of Cambridge for matured players and a re-organisation of their team, has agreed to wave the old regulations limiting the number of years players can represent a university.

1864 MARKS DIVIDED.

Eight Winners In Our Football Competition No. 2.

As we anticipated the number of coupons sent in in our second football competition was considerably in excess of the number in the opening contest.

The total number of entries was 1864 and no one succeeded in forecasting accurately the results of more than nine matches.

The sum of 1864 marks falls to be divided among eight competitors, all of whom sent in nine correct results out of a possible twelve.

An unusual feature of one of the coupons was the forecasting of winners in every case instead of losers, so that if the competitor had reversed his prophesies he would have been the winner of 1864 marks.

It is also interesting to note that a very large percentage of competitors correctly forecasted the draw between Queen's Park and St. Mirren.

Draws should be indicated by leaving both teams unmarked, and wins should not be recorded by affixing a cross, but by leaving the name of the winning team untouched. Losing teams should always be completely deleted.

Appended are the names of the prize-winners:—

Lieut. Holden, Army Science Col., Bonn.
Sgt. C. Simpson, B.O.R., 52nd D.L.I.
Sgt. A. Turner, 12th R. Irish Rifles.
Pte. T. Myers, A. Mess, London Div., D.H.Q.
Pte. G. Cave, 91st Labour Coy.
A. Croft, 145 Army Troops, Bonner Wall, Cologne.
R. Baker, 153 Labour Coy.
Dvr. W. G. Fenby, R.E., 1st Pontoon Park, Zollstock.

Meanwhile coupons for this week's contest—No. 3—are reaching us by every post. Have you filled up yours?

Coupons must be addressed:—

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 3,

List of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

FOOTBALL COMPETITION No. 3.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Evading the Lights Order.

I am told there are cases where riders of motor bikes are evading the regulation as to carrying a light at night. Riders of push bikes get hauled up but no one has the temerity to stop riders of mo, bikes travelling at thirty miles an hour, so they get off. Hardly sportsmanlike, to take advantage of speed in this way, though.

Not Solo.

In our Football Contest this week one of the competitors managed to forecast ten results wrong—some achievement. But unfortunately a football competition isn't solo whist; so the accomplishment counted for nought.

The Flotilla Mascot.

I saw quite a crowd the other morning watching the playful antics of a small monkey, tied to a capstan of one of the boats of the Rhine Flotilla and clad in a "regulation" blue naval coat. Once he nearly fell overboard during his tricks, and only his halter saved him from an unwilling plunge into the river, and dignified English soldiers, stern-faced Germans, and little children, looked each other straight in the face, and indulged in a hearty laugh.

Does She?

As a variation from the stereotyped "English spoken," a cafe propietor at Bonn announces in his window, "The waitress speaks English."

Eastern Pests.

One wonders if it is the presence of Tommy that accounts for so many Eastern hawkers in Cologne. These profiteering pests dog the soldier in cafe, cabaret and canteen, and are always at a pinch ready to part with their wares at a third of the figure which they first mention. But the merchant who last evening tried to sell a table centre with a representation of Albert Cathedral to a German must have had a sense of humour, for needless to say, no business was done.

Pay Only the Price.

Never on any account pay more than the proper price of 35pfg. for this paper. If any one demands more, will you report the case to this office?

As in England.

Down by the riverside the other evening I saw something which took my thoughts back to the early days of '15. Up in the North Country the humbler streets were always lavishly decorated with flags to celebrate a soldier's home coming. Now here in Cologne residents celebrate in like fashion the return of prisoners. One street was gay with bunting while the individual concerned held a reception on his doorstep.

From a Chess Player.

I have been asked if there is a British Military Chess Club formed anywhere in Cologne and if not whether such a club could not be started and the meetings held at some suitable centre such as the Empire Leave Club or Central Y.M.C.A.

A Weird Effect.

Brassards like everything else get dirty. At least that is the complaint of a lady correspondent. The white portion is changing colour and she fears the effect produced by the German weekly wash. One English wife was to be seen the other day wearing a brassard of Cambridge blue effect. The washing has not been exactly successful.

Motor Cars for England.

A point which has aroused considerable difference of opinion relates to the importation of motor cars into England. As cars are not now on the list of restricted imports members of the British Army may remove them from Germany without condition as regards re-sale.

Railway Notices.

A visitor to Cologne Hauptbahnhof will have noticed that the German notices—entrance, exit, no entrance, not exit, platform—have been left severely alone by the British Authorities, no English renderings having been added. The French, however, differ from us on this point, as may be observed in Mainz station, where each of the aforesaid notices has a French translation appended.

Mostly Captains.

I have been asked which is the rank of officer most commonly seen in Rhineland to-day. I pump for that of Captain.

Didn't Comply.

One at least of the big establishments that have been closed by the Cologne authorities because of their failure to comply with the conditions of the order as to price-marking is I hear up in arms and threatens legal proceedings against the City of Cologne for loss of trade.

Not so Small.

The reduction of troops in Rhineland will probably be found to be less drastic than some people suppose. A good many drafts replacing demobilized men have arrived, I hear.

Beautiful Bensberg.

I would advise any nature lovers who wish to view a beautiful blending of colours to pay a visit to Bensberg; they will be well rewarded. Around here are many meadows where hyacinths and autumnal blooms are growing in wild profusion. I noted too the "Autumn Crocus" a flower which like Shamrock grows only in certain parts. There is but one other spot in Europe where this pretty flower can be found and that is in the wilds of Galloway in Scotland.

Profits from Fruit.

The fruit trees bordering the country roads, the produce of which I am told, contributes to the local rates, must be bringing in a goodly sum this autumn, for the crops are splendid.

A Roof Garden.

There is an old lady living quite close to my billet who is passionately fond of flowers. She had even converted the roof of the house into a flower garden and each morning, might be seen, watering-can in hand, tending to her treasures. I had begun to take quite an interest in the progress of the little garden Heavenwards, but alas illness has overtaken her, and the flowers are now left neglected.

Sock Displays.

Do those young subs who float about Cologne with slacks at least a foot from the ground and displaying a plenitude of gay coloured sock consider they look very smart in the military sense? If so, I don't agree with them.

An Old Excuse.

Tradesman are quick to seize upon any old excuse for the non-supply of an article, particularly in the way of foodstuffs. The railway strike in England was put forward a day or two ago as a reason for non-delivery of an article that does not come from England at all.

For Business Men.

Starting to-morrow the Editor tells me he is arranging for a column to appear twice weekly which will especially appeal to those who are commercially engaged in Rhineland. It will be written by a business expert.

Mutual Benefit.

A Staff officer was telling me yesterday what a help to those in authority is our "Letter Box." It enables them to hear of grievances which otherwise might not come to their knowledge and thus they are able to remedy them promptly.

RHINELANDER.

WHAT TO SEE IN THE RHINELAND.

THE BERGISCHES LAND.

A few miles to the south-east of Solingen lies a district of rolling hills and narrow valleys, covered by thick woods, which the Germans speak of affectionately as Das Bergisches Land.

Undoubtedly the best way of seeing the country is to go with a native who is familiar with it, but if that is impossible, here is a route which takes one to several of the most noted places, and from beginning to end passes through a countryside of exceptional beauty.

Starting from Solingen market place, we take the tram to where the roads branch to Müngsten, Salberg, and Burg. From there we walk along the Burg road for about half a mile, until we come to a footpath on the right, leading downhill through the woods to Glüder.

THE ROUTE TO FOLLOW.

We follow this to the bottom of the valley and then up again past a water mill and along the side of the opposite ridge, through woods the whole way. A stream runs along the valley below us, and beyond rises the tree covered slope of the opposite hill. If we shout across the valley a fine echo answers us.

At length we come to a bridge across the little river — the Wupper — and crossing it climb, the other hill, and follow the path through the pines and heather and bilberries, until we reach the Glüder Talsperre, or reservoir.

Here a wall a hundred feet or more in height and a out fifteen or twenty feet wide at the top, has been built across the narrow valley, forming a dam which converts the upper half into a lake. Instead of crossing the dam, we turn back and go over the hill towards Burg, which soon comes into view, perched on a hill across the next valley, and dominated by the Schloss.

Very little of the old building remains, but the original style of architecture has been preserved in the modern additions. With its squat round towers, steep roofs, with dormer windows peeping out one above the other, and little turrets crowned with night caps, it has a quaint mediaeval air.

MANY ANCESTORS.

We can climb the hill to the Schloss, but it is occupied by troops and so the museum which is housed there is temporarily closed. However if we can find a friend there, we may go inside, and see the genealogical tree which traces the ex-Kaiser's descent from Adam.

Coming down again and into the main street, we see in the shops little rings of the bread for which Burg is famous, decorated with sprigs of heather, and supplied with ribbons, so that the visitor can go home with a "bröstel" from Burg hanging round his neck.

We follow the main street to the bridge and then turn off to the right along the path by the Wupper until we reach the toll-bridge. We cross that and find ourselves in the woods again.

The footpath leads us along the hillside by the Wupper until at last the Kaiser Wilhelm Bridge comes into sight, and after many windings we reach it and stand underneath it. It is a tremendous iron railway viaduct, with a huge central arch a hundred and seven metres in height and a length of five hundred metres.

If we like we can climb the hillside and go over the bridge, and then recrossing it, strike the Solingen road from Müngsten, or we can follow the lower pathway until it becomes a road, and after a long walk, brings us to the Schaberg-Solingen road, and so finally to the trams to Solingen, and the end of our day in the Bergisches Land.

NOTES FROM LONDON TOWN.

BEAU BRUMMELL AGAIN.

A number of London tailoring firms are going to make a bold experiment. Why not—they say—the ruffles, knee-breeches, and bright-coloured coats of the 18th century? They have started a movement to bring back the coloured garments of a couple of centuries ago. It is hoped to dress up a number of brave young men in costumes reminiscent of Beau Brummell and Monsieur Beaucaire, and set them perambulating the London streets on a missionary enterprise. A smart city suit, in this new-old era, will consist of something like this: A plum coloured, waisted lounge coat and breeches, yellow waistcoat with white stock, black hose and black shoes with silver buckles, a golden soft felt hat, and light cane. In evening dress stock and ruffles will take the place of the shirt front, and half an inch or so of trimming will be seen at the cuffs. The colours of evening suits will vary from scarlet to royal blue. It is pointed out that well-cut knee breeches will outlast any pair of trousers.

THAMES TUNNELS.

The place of Thames tunnels in London transport is recalled by the sixtieth anniversary of the death of the younger Brunel. His father's Thames Tunnel, begun ninety-five years ago, had been preceded by more than one projected subway, attempted and abandoned, the earliest, as far back as 1799, between Gravesend and Tilbury. The Brunels undertaking was only completed in 1847, after weary suspensions and by Government aid. But the first man through, from the Wapping side—where during the war the "old stairs" have been replaced by swift lifts—was the younger Brunel, who as a mere boy had assisted his undaunted father in his twenty years' fight for what looked like a lost cause. Wrongly advised by the geologists, the engineer tunnelled at a level which brought the crown of his arches within four feet of the river water. When P.W. Barlow, just fifty years ago, joined Tower Hill with Tooley-street, he drove his subway at an average of thirty feet below Thames water, through the solid London clay.

THE STRATFORD PLACE LIONS.

Before the war the house at the south-west corner of Stratford-place, in Oxford-street, was demolished. The fine residence at the opposite corner had long since made way for a bank. It is a pity that Stratford-place, dominated by the splendid Adam house in which Lord Derby lives to-day, could not have been left untouched. At the entrance to this notable cul-de-sac are two little eighteenth-century watchman's boxes, each surmounted by a lion. That on the City side was carefully preserved when the bank was built. Recently the long-delayed work of demolition was begun again at the other corner, and it is satisfactory to note that the lion there is carefully shielded from harm in a little wooden box. So that it would seem that the watchman's hutches, with their beasts atop, are to be preserved for all time.

OLDEST LONDON HOUSES.

Now that Crosby Hall has been removed to Chelsea and the Dick Whittington Tavern in Cloth Fair demolished, it will be difficult to find a more ancient dwelling-house in London than the picturesque building above the early Thirteenth Century archway, which has been for fully six centuries the western entrance to the oldest church in the City—St. Bartholomew the Great, Smithfield. The gateway, which shows the moulding and dog-tooth ornament characteristic of its period, and the fine superstructure were saved from obliteration in 1908-9. The old house and six feet of the adjoining, which hid the south side of the archway, cost £2,100, and the obstructive portion is now cleared away, thus leaving in full view one of the most interesting examples of Mediaeval architecture in London.

WESTMINSTER BRIDGE.

Is history to repeat itself in respect of the most graceful of our London bridges? It is within living memory that a cry of alarm went up that old Westminster Bridge, designed by Labelye, was in danger. The alarm was justified, for some of the piers sank, and much of the superstructure was removed to relieve the deadweight the bridge had to bear. But the precautions were in vain; the bridge was condemned and removed, and the present one was opened for general traffic in 1862. It may not compare in grandeur and solidity with Waterloo Bridge, but its light, airy grace commends it to all lovers of beauty. It is to be hoped that the present rumblings, rattlings, and vibrations are noise and thrills and nothing more.

MORE HONOUR FOR ALLENBY

TANK INVENTORS AND THEIR CLAIMS

EUROPE'S SUCCESSFUL AIR SERVICE

ALLENBY'S FREEDOM.

PALESTINE VICTOR AT THE GUILDHALL.

Field Marshal Lord Allenby yesterday received the Freedom of the City of London in the presence of a notable company of soldiers, statesmen and civic dignitaries gathered in the Guildhall.

The victor of Palestine delivered a racy speech. He began by correcting a sligh error made by the City Chamberlain, who in his address said that Lord Allenby was not originally intended for the Army, having passed for the Indian Civil Service. Lord Allenby said that he had tried but failed to pass and he was happy now that he did fail.

With regard to the campaign in Palestine Lord Allenby emphasised his indebtedness to the 60th (London) Division under Sir John Shea, which took the leading part in the capture of Beersheba and was the Division which ultimately accepted the surrender of Jerusalem.

The General commanding had given orders to preserve Jerusalem from injury and the city was gradually surrounded and it surrendered without a shot having been fired in the neighbourhood.

He had such an army as no other man had ever commanded. Ten or twelve nationalities were represented. The 60th Division worked so hard that on one occasion the General commanding had to order the men to eat more, drink more and work less.

Emir Fiezul was a picturesque and majestic figure at the ceremony at the close of which Lord Allenby proceeded with the Lord Mayor to the Mansion House.

At luncheon the Premier said he had come to join in honouring a great soldier, who had contributed in a great degree to the overthrow of the Central Powers. Speaking of the recent strike he said that now the episode on the home front was over we must work together all ranks and classes for the good of the country. Prussianism in the industrial and economic world must not prevail. Great Britain had once more rendered a deep and lasting service to real freedom by defeating an effort to hold up the community and to strangle it into submission. He wished to thank the multitude who had come to the defence of the country and proved their efficiency. The nation meant to be strong and firm, a just master in its own household, but always master.

EUROPEAN AIR SERVICE.

FIRST LINK ESTABLISHED.

The Airco express aeroplanes, which fly daily between London and Paris, on Saturday completed their sixth week of continuous operation.

"I started this service," said Mr. Holt Thomas in an interview, "to show that besides providing transport at 100 miles an hour, aeroplanes can now be flown to a time-table in bad weather. We have since we began scheduled 86 flights. Of these, though on 28 days the weather was unfavourable, we accomplished no fewer than 83. Only one flight had to be abandoned through weather. On that day conditions were worse than they had been for years. The progress of another flight was interrupted by mist and exceptionally low clouds. As a proof that the aeroplane is no longer unreliable, I may mention that once only during 20,750 miles flying has a pilot alighted through mechanical trouble.

"The service is the first link in a European chain of 100 miles an hour aerial ways. Before long we shall be able to save, not merely hours, but days, in the transport of letters from London to some of the great Continental cities."

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS RESUMED.

It is a remarkable fact that no Railway accidents occurred during the strike. Yesterday, however, after the resumption of normal working, a train dashed into another at Carstairs Station. Two carriages were telescoped and a number of passengers were badly injured, one of whom has died. Soldiers and sailors assisted in the work of rescue.

WILSON IMPROVING.

Last night's bulletin from Washington says that President Wilson passed a comfortable day and continues to improve.

The "Echo de Paris" states that General Mangin, brother of the General commanding at Mayence, has been sent on a mission to Deniken.

Statistics for 1918 show that 92,132 civilian cases of tuberculosis were notified in England and Wales. There were also 4,273 cases among soldiers and sailors.

The death is announced at Sydney of Mr. Alfred Deakin, Premier of Australia from 1903 to 1910.

TANK CLAIMANTS.

FULL SIZED MODEL AT LINCOLN'S INN.

The old hall at Lincoln's Inn was crowded on Tuesday with claimants who desired bounties from the Crown for various inventions in connection with the evolution of the tanks. A fine specimen tank stood at rest in the sequestered courtyard of the Inn, brought there for demonstration purposes, while a scale model tank of the old fashioned variety stood behind Mr. Justice Sergeant, who presided. A brilliant array of Counsel was present.

The Attorney General, Sir Gordon Hewart, opened with a general historical survey of the development of the tank, pointing out the differences between the Mark I tank of 1916 and the subsequent improved edition of 1918.

He was emphatic on the point that solution of the question of credit or responsibility was not in itself the object of the enquiry. Its object was to decide who among the claimants was entitled to any and to what awards. He paid a warm tribute to the foresight, energy and persistence of Mr. Winston Churchill in connection with the development of the tank.

Mr. Winston Churchill, Secretary for War, then gave evidence. He mentioned the idea of the tanks as having been suggested by Mr. H. G. Wells, in an article written some years ago. Replying to the Attorney General, Mr. Churchill said he thought there was never a time when it was possible to say that the tanks had been invented, and it was impossible to say of any man that he invented the tank. Certainly, however, there was a time when the efforts of certain men culminated in its perfection.

In October 1914 he sent for Admiral Bacon, who subsequently produced a machine which crossed trenches by carrying a bridge which it laid down and after the crossing picked it up again as it proceeded. A certain number of these machines were made, but in June 1915 the War Office rejected the machine on account of its inability to cross a double line of trenches.

Incidentally, Mr. Churchill mentioned that had the war continued, the tanks would this year have been fitted with apparatus enabling them to discharge smoke clouds. Meanwhile he consulted Major Hetherington and Sir Tennyson D'Eyncourt and experimental work proceeded from which was evolved the model of those tanks which fought on the Somme in September 1916. These were the prototypes of all their successors. He himself was not a claimant.

General Swinton then opened his case. He contended that the tanks used to the end of the war were in general conformity with the suggestions originally advanced by him.

Mr. Churchill, cross-examined on behalf of Colonel Crompton, said the latter played a very useful and valuable part in discussions.

The enquiry was then adjourned.

DERELICT MINES.

DANGERS OF NAVIGATION.

The Prince of Monaco, who is one of the greatest authorities on ocean currents, has informed the French Academy of Science that stray mines will be a source of danger in the Atlantic for many months, particularly on European coasts, the Canaries, Madeira, the Azores and the Sargasso Sea.

The chief factor, he says, is the Gulf Stream, in which mines have been floating for four years. This current brings them back to Europe from America.

MIXED MARRIAGES.

HYMEN BUSY IN PARIS DURING THE WAR.

Official statistics of civic marriages in Paris during 1915-16-17, have just been issued. They show that 726 Belgians married French women; 336 Belgian women married Frenchmen; 149 Englishmen married French women; 72 English women married Frenchmen; 61 Americans married French women and 15 Frenchmen married American women.

ITALY RATIFIES PEACE.

The King of Italy ratified the Peace Treaties on Tuesday with Germany and Austria by virtue of his Royal Decree.

A large number of demobilized members of the City of London Regiment met at Anderton's Hotel on Monday night and decided to form a regimental association. It was resolved to hold an annual dinner and smoking concert to keep old comrades to touch with each other.

OUR BIG TEST.

EXAMPLE TO LABOUR THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

Various international aspects of the strike have been much in the minds of thoughtful people during the past few days. The "Times" says "An industrial crisis of such magnitude cannot pass in this country without causing repercussion in others where similar conditions exist and similar forces are at work. The war has left a world-wide social ferment behind it. In some countries the result has been a violent eruption, which has burst through the bounds of social order. In others with more liberal institutions and less explosive materials to hand the ferment has worked more quietly, but it is present and its force cannot be easily gauged. Much depends upon example, for the passions that underlie it are contagious. And Great Britain is a sort of testing ground. If disorder gained the upper hand here the effect would travel round the world like the shock of a great earthquake. Ours was the first country to develop industrialism, which is the special mark of our age, and the first to evolve those social problems that accompany it — problems of the modern town and the factory, relations of employers and employed and economic conditions of the people. Out of these have arisen the labour movements and we have led the way in all of them. Other countries have followed as they became industrialized. What happens here in regard to labour questions still gives the lead to other countries or at least exercises a strong influence. But there is another and perhaps in the present connection more important sense in which Great Britain is a testing ground. We possess a long-standing and well-founded reputation for sobriety and solidity of character. It is called stolidity by critics and common sense by admirers. They mean different aspects of the same quality. It was conspicuously displayed in the war, as our friends and enemies alike admit. The underlying question since the war has been whether it would see us safely through the ferment of peace. Interest abroad is natural and indeed inevitable, for if British common sense or stolidity failed to stand the test our enemies would rejoice and our friends' confidence would be severely shaken. It is impossible to set any limit to the results of a real breakdown here. On the other hand the triumph of the national quality makes for stability everywhere. For these reasons the railway strike and its outcome are events of world wide importance."

CABINET PARTNERS.

FUTURE CONTROL OF INDUSTRY.

Mr. Harry Gosling, President of the Transport Workers' Federation and Chairman of the Committee of mediators in the railway strike, advocates in an article in the "Daily News" a permanent central Trades Union committee empowered to act on behalf of Labour in negotiation with the Government. At present each unit of Labour has its head but there is none for the whole Labour movement when it comes to the matter of industrial action. The new body would be similar in constitution to the Executive of the Trade Union Congress but more closely knit, more powerful, and more readily brought into action. Mr. Gosling maintains that there is a tremendous and irresistible tide advancing, which is the movement of the workers toward a fuller share in the control of industry, a movement in the status of the employé to that of partner. He and his friends believe that the flow of such a tide is not only natural but right and they hold it to be their duty to direct it into valuable channels instead of trying to check it with brooms or send it rolling over all our ordered institutions. Briefly, he says, the time has come for our political cabinet to take an industrial partner, lest a worse thing befall us.

GERMAN EVASION.

SUPREME COUNCIL NOT SATISFIED

The Supreme Council in Paris considered yesterday the German reply regarding the evacuation of the Baltic provinces and decided that it is unsatisfactory. They have accordingly instructed Marshal Foch to send a fresh note.

AMERICAN OFFICERS RESIGN.

The American War Department announces that since the Armistice more than 1,700 officers of the United States Regular Army have resigned their commissions owing to inability to live on their present pay.

In a few weeks' time it is expected that this number will be considerably increased by the resignation of those officers who are relinquishing temporary ranks.

LIBERTY OF THE BRITISH PRESS.

At a meeting of the Committee of the London District of the Institute of Journalists, held yesterday, a resolution was passed recording strong disapproval of the attempt to apply trade union pressure in certain newspaper offices in order to prevent the free expression of public opinion, and expressing warm appreciation of the firm action taken by newspaper publishers to maintain, in the public interest, the traditional liberty of the British Press.

IRISH GAOL RIOT.

SINN FEINERS' DESPERATE OUTBREAK.

A serious outbreak occurred among Sinn Fein prisoners in Mountjoy prison, Dublin, About forty prisoners, twenty-six of whom were recently brought from Cork after hunger striking, have been agitating for so called political treatment and presented an ultimatum to the Governor threatening trouble unless their demands were granted.

Through the intervention of the Chaplain they consented to remain quiet through Sunday but at midnight they proceeded to wreck their cells, smash the windows and furniture and started to break through the walls.

All the prison warders were summoned to quell the outbreak but the disorder continued for several hours and numerous casualties were sustained by both sides.

WRAFS AND WRENS.

TRIBUTE TO SPLENDID WOMEN.

In view of the termination of the railway strike the demobilization of the W.R.E.N.S. and W.R.A.F.'s is being resumed. In the case of the former it is to be completed by the 15th October and the latter by the 8th November.

The Air Council has issued an order expressing appreciation of the good work of the W.R.A.F.S. The order says that despite difficulty and in face of hostile and unjust criticism, the W.R.A.F.'s have left a record of which they can well feel proud. Their good work went far towards enabling the Royal Air Force to reach the dominating position in the air which had been a direct influence in the achievement of the final victory.

NEGRO CONSPIRACY.

DISCOVERY OF PLOT TO MASSACRE WHITES.

Despatches from Arkansas report that sundry negros arrested there have revealed the existence of plans for a rising among the blacks of that district to massacre the whites. Confessions indicate that the negroes had arranged to assemble at certain points to shoot down the whites at sight. The Mayor of Pine Bluff reports that he has discovered 50,000 rounds of ammunition in the school house.

ROMANCE OF PAGE FOUR.

Have you the priceless gift of imagination? If so you can invariably find romance, tragedy and comedy in "The Rhineland Exchange," in which they jostle each other at the rate of four marks a line.

Look at to-day's announcements on page four. Lady Robertson has lost a brooch made of two tiger claws. Does that suggest the Commander-in-Chief's career in India and a personal trophy of the chase?

Then somebody who read a book during a performance at the Deutsches Theatre was too shy to speak to a fair neighbour. His plea for a letter is costing him twenty marks daily.

Again, although the Germans had not advanced as far as Bullecourt by the 22nd March last year, a private of the 4th Lincolns disappeared on that date and news is desired of his whereabouts.

Only the other day the late Sir H. Beerbohm Tree's car was advertised for sale. How did it get to Cologne? To-day, for 50 marks you can participate in a sweepstake for a this-year's 12 h.p. car.

Read the announcements daily. Sooner or later they will be of use to you.

FULL RATIONS NEXT WEEK.

Only sugar and butter will be rationed this week in England and the Ministry of Food hopes that it will be possible to resume full rations next week. The last consignment of milk for distribution from Hyde Park arrived yesterday and many lorries hitherto engaged in milk distribution have been diverted to other work.

At the end of last week there were 25,000 motor vehicles working for the Food Ministry all over the country, including privately owned and requisitioned vehicles, which are now being released.

MEDALS FOR CONDUCTING OFFICERS.

The Army Council has decided that draft conducting officers will be entitled to the War Medals awarded for service in the theatres of operations in which they served.

The communiqué says that the work of these officers (usually men having done considerable service and incapacitated for duty in the front line) if unobtrusive and not brought to public notice, yet contributed materially to the efficient conduct of the war.

FIRST PEACE HOUSE.

Without rate aid or State subsidy a private builder has completed a house which is now occupied at Clapham.

This is believed to be the first house in London built and occupied since the armistice.

SUMMARY COURT.

MILITARY POLICE SERGEANT ASSAULTED.

A savage assault on a military policeman at Dunwald had its sequel when Wilhelm Steinkruger of 116 Schnellweiderstrasse was charged with assaulting Sgt. Cobley. The Sergeant was in charge of a detachment of police, who were searching for six civilians wanted for assault. They entered a café and found Wilhelm and another man with two girls. Whilst examining their passes, Sgt. Copley was struck from behind and was set upon by all four. As a result of the assault he had seventeen cuts on his face. In the struggle the accused kicked him. His face was smothered in blood and altogether he was very badly knocked about. He was unable to draw his revolver or blow his whistle for assistance. The other man and the two girls escaped but he managed to stick to the prisoner.

Steinkruger's defence was that he wanted to stop the fight, but the other got away and the Sergeant overpowered him. He denied having committed any assault.

Steinkruger was sent to prison for five months.

While in charge of a wagon and two horses Georg Goldschmidt, of Riehl went to sleep and left the wagon drawn diagonally across the road. When a motor tender attempted to pass, the horses took fright with the result that there was a collision and Q. M. S. Byrne of the Rhine Army Troops M. T. Coy. was rendered unconscious. Goldschmidt, who stated that he had been driving for three days, practically without rest, was fined 100 marks

BALTIC EVACUATION.

GERMAN REPLY TO ALLIED NOTE.

A semi-official message published in Berlin reproduces the orders issued by Herr Noske, the Defence Minister, to the effect that the troops of the Sixth Reserve Corps shall be immediately brought back to the region of Schaulen, whence the transport to Germany of all troops will be arranged.

No further pay shall be given to any failing to obey marching orders. Transfer to Russian service is forbidden and made henceforth punishable. Germans already transferred are to be summoned to return to their regiments.

The Government declares that it is grimly determined to do everything in its power to fulfil its obligation in the matter of evacuation, but it protests strongly against the threat of a renewed blockade, pointing out the consequences for the civilian population. It finally suggests the appointment of a mixed German and Entente commission to take and supervise the necessary measures.

"OH! TO BE IN ENGLAND."

Complaints continue to be made by demobilized French soldiers who, having worked in England before the war, and having obtained positions there again, are prevented from going to them by the British passport authorities in Paris.

The explanation given at the Passport Office is that Frenchmen who have obtained positions in England must, before being permitted to enter the country, obtain authority from the Ministry of Labour and the employers. It is complained, however, that in almost every case authority is refused.

LEADERS OF THOUGHT.

According to the votes of the readers of Great Thoughts, the living leaders of thought are: Mr. Lloyd George, President Woodrow Wilson, Sir Oliver Lodge, Lord Leverhulme, Mr. Rudyard Kipling, Mr. H. G. Wells, Signor Guglielmo Marconi, Viscount Grey of Fallodon, Earl Haig, Marshal Foch (France), Mr. Thomas Alva Edison, Mr. H. A. L. Fisher, M.P., M. Clemenceau (France), Lord Northcliffe, Earl Beatty, Mr. H. H. Asquith, Mr. A. J. Balfour, M.P., the Rev. Dr. J. H. Jowett, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, and Mr. J. R. Clynes, M.P.

SHIPBUILDING SUPREMACY.

That mercantile marine supremacy, hard won by the United States during the war, is now passing back to Great Britain is the assertion of an American writer on shipping and commercial topics.

"The American shipyards have passed the peak of production," he writes "while the British yards are on the ascent, with every prospect of continued progress. Within a very short time Britain may have regained her lost laurels, the palm of production may have passed across the Atlantic for the second time."

LLANELLY BOXING STORY.

When the Llanelly Town Council yesterday dealt with an application by soldiers for the use of the Market Hall for boxing contests an amazing story was told by Alderman Joseph Roberts. He said that these contests did not end where they began and declared that after a recent match at Halfway Park, from 200 to 300 men were found at night in the People's Park. The majority were stripped to the waist and they were all fighting each other. The Council refused the application.

TEMPORARY RANK.

IMPORTANT CONCESSION TO W.O.'s AND N.C.O.'s.

An Army Council instruction states that Warrant Officers Class 1 or 2, or Non-Commissioned Officers serving at home or overseas may be promoted to temporary rank for the period of the Armies of Occupation (i. e. to 39th April 1920.) in the R.E., R.A.S.C., R.A.O.C., R.A.V.C., R.A.M.C., M.P.S.C. and Corps M.P. Promotions to temporary rank will not be made however from a date prior to September 25th, 1919.

Acting rank will not be given on regimental establishments except that in the interests of efficiency a vacancy for which promotion to temporary rank is permissible may in the first instance be filled by acting rank, but at the end of a period of two months the soldier so appointed, if considered qualified, must be given temporary rank equivalent to his acting rank, or if not considered fitted to perform the duties of his acting rank he must be reverted.

NEARING PETROGRAD.

BOLSHEVIST COMMUNICATIONS SEVERED.

According to reports from Stockholm the railway line between Pskoff and Petrograd has been cut and the Bolshevists forced to retire along roads which are very difficult owing to lack of horses. It is added that tanks have rendered valuable services in the offensive against Pskoff.

Intercepted Bolshevist wireless messages confirm the report that the Red Troops have lost Devinsk after violent street fighting.

The Swedish Foreign Office learns from private sources that the Swedish Legation in Petrograd has been sacked by Bolshevists. Enquiries are being made.

FINNISH REGENT'S POLICY.

General Mannerheim, former Commander in Chief of the Finnish White Army, and Regent of Finland, is now in London. In an important statement on Finnish aims and policy he considers that if the Allies only give the sign, Finland could still liberate Petrograd and the surrounding region from Bolshevist misrule. If the attempt is to be made at all, it must be made within the next few weeks before the frost sets in.

WAR GRATUITY PROGRESS.

The War Gratuity granted in December last has now been issued to the legal representatives of over 170,000 officers and men who died in the war. The cases of all who died on or before December 31, 1916, have now been taken in hand, and if the representatives of any of them have not already received a communication from the War Office on the subject of the gratuity, they should send particulars at once to the Secretary, War Office, Imperial Institute, London, S.W. 7. Until further notice, no application should be made in respect of officers or men who died after December 31, 1916.

LONDON CITIZEN GUARDS.

At a meeting convened by the Lord Mayor of London at the Mansion House yesterday it was resolved that citizen guards be enrolled. They will be affiliated for purposes of command, administration and finance with the City Police Reserve. These companies of citizen guards would only be utilized for protection of life and property in the City of London and only when the Commissioner of Police declares a state of emergency. Colonel Tempest Stone has been appointed organising officer.

MEMORIAL SCHEME ABANDONED.

The Vicar of St. Matthew's, Ealing Common, has abandoned his church colour scheme as a parish war memorial. A poll of the congregation resulted in an adverse vote of 83 to 71. The idea was to paint the interior "a warm shade of white" and to have medallion portraits of fallen soldiers above the ten pillars connected with festoons of flowers.

LIVING WAGE IN N.S.W.

In the New South Wales State House Assembly, Premier Holman announced that the standard "living wage" is to be increased from 60s to 77s 6d. weekly. He explained that this increase meant an additional burden on New South Wales industry of 6,500,000 pounds sterling per annum.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

Baron von Eckardstein, formerly Counsellor of Embassy in London, professes to show in a book he is writing that between the years 1895 and 1901 the ex-Kaiser and Prince von Bülow rejected a number of offers from the British Government to form an Anglo-German alliance.

IRISH RIOTERS FIRED ON.

At Banbridge, near Belfast, the police fired on a crowd which was attempting to rescue a prisoner who had been arrested for placarding a notice concerning a proclaimed meeting. One lad was wounded in the thigh, and the crowd fled.

BLOCKADE.

A blockade is merely a siege on a large scale, with a view to cutting off economic supplies and using this pressure, rather than the direct slaughter or mutilation of field-fighting, to compel surrender. Sieges have of course always been a recognised form of warfare and Troy is as famous as Marathon, the sieges of Metz and Paris in the war of 1870-71 as the battles of Gravelotte and Sedan.

A blockade is a siege from the sea, and is, except in the case of an island, necessarily only partial. While Paris in 1871 could be and was completely surrounded by the Germans so that the population, including of course the women and children, was entirely cut off from food supplies, the pressure exerted on a section of the frontier of a country which contains large agricultural tracts is of necessity far less severe than any other form of siege.

Yet the Germans, who would have been amazed had anyone suggested that their siege of Paris was not an ordinary method of warfare, and who in the late war sought by unrestricted submarine warfare against merchant vessels to starve England, consider our blockade of their coast an inhuman and wicked measure, and based much of their "hate" on it. This surely shows a most extraordinarily illogical mentality and perversity of judgment.

The fact is that their attempt was defeated, ours was successful. Hence the rancour. Had the reverse been the case, what would have been their astonishment had anyone protested against siege methods being a recognised form of warfare?

It is interesting to note the one essential difference in the power of blockade to-day as compared with previous wars. Take, for instance, the Civil War between the North and South of the United States in the sixties of the last century. All the elements of modern blockade were there, though mostly in their infancy. Armoured vessels with gun turrets, torpedo attack of a primitive kind, mines etc. were employed, though the rapid development of applied science, with the enormous use of electricity and the invention of the petrol engine, has intensified and improved these elements beyond comparison.

However, that knowledge is at the service of attackers and defenders, the old principles being merely developed and their application carried out on the increased scale made possible by greater production and improved technical knowledge.

But there is now as, I said, one new factor, so important to-day and so certain to be more so in the future, as to change essentially the possibilities and conditions of blockade. It is the appearance and swift development of aircraft—of travel in three dimensions instead of confined to two.

The submarine also comes to some extent under the three dimensional conditions, but the sea near the coasts being extremely shallow as compared with the air, blockade measures by mine or otherwise can be brought into line with the war in two dimensions.

It is evident that, given clouds at various altitudes, given the present power of aircraft to manoeuvre up to 20,000 feet and the rapid improvement in speed, range of action, and carrying capacity of both kinds of aircraft, the possibility of establishing an effective blockade is a new problem.

The difficulty of maintaining a thorough surveillance and, when required, an effective barrage curtain in any weather along a whole coast, and of catching or destroying air blockade-runners who have not just a single path to port but a wide and deep extent of country for which to make through heights of air and cloud—this difficulty is something which changes entirely the age-long principles and conditions of blockade. One thing is clearer than ever—the command of the air becomes as important as that of the sea

A DOUBTFUL "ISSUE."

Private Spratt had consistently refrained from wearing Service decorations. Neither chevrons nor ribbons added their touch of colour to relieve the drabness of his khaki.

It was not that he was a Bolshevist conscripted into service. He was quite regularly attested during the reign of Lord Derby, and his political opinions, so far as he expressed them, were as free of revolution as was his crime sheet of crime.

If asked to explain his reason for his failure to put up ribbons or chevrons, he invariably answered perfunctorily and hastily changed the subject.

He might easily so have continued till the day of his discharge had he not paraded one morning on the only subject for which men do parade — nowadays — Demobilization.

He obtained but little information on this subject — nothing, in fact, more definite than that his release would not take place till he was properly dressed.

In more direct language, he was told to put his ribbons up. He did so — at least, he put one of them up, and enabled us all to appreciate his failure previously to do so.

It was to Playhard to whom the solution of the mystery was first revealed, though we who "kipped" with him were all similarly favoured an hour or so later.

The revelation was made to Playhard in somewhat painful circumstances and is best described in his own words, as we heard them on the following morning.

"I was hanging round the Billet last night" he said, "wondering where to pass an hour and silently anathematizing the rain, when Spratt came to the door. I asked him where he was going, and he answered to a Cafe for some cocoa and would I care to come with him.

"As you know, Cocoa isn't exactly a cousin of mine, and it didn't seem quite the medicine for drooping spirits, so I tried to persuade him to come with me to the 'Coliseum,' for some liquid of a somewhat lighter hue and more exhilarating qualities.

"But he was in a Pussyfoot mood and as set on cocoa as most of us are on Demob, and thinking that perhaps cocoa in company might be better than champagne in solitude, I agreed to accompany him.

"The cafe was a bun-struggling sort of flare-up with scarcely any food worthy of a plate, and in desperation we plumped for four doughnuts — fit solid for our liquid.

"We had just given the order when, following my lead, Spratt removed his greatcoat. You could have knocked me down with a 'Z' form! He'd certainly got one ribbon up, and I could only give silent thanks to Heaven that he had decided to carry out the O. C's order by instalments.

"The ribbon, as it appeared on his tunic, resembled a tailor's sample suiting more than anything else of which the mind of man could conceive.

"He had spent the whole issue exactly as he received it, so that it sprawled from the end of his pocket to the button. It was a case of raw material usurping the position — and more than the position — of the finished article. It was more than a decoration: it was a challenge.

"If Jerry had any doubts on the subject of 'Who won the War?' Spratt's ribbon would have killed them at a five miles' range.

"I began to see the finger of Providence which had directed us to a comparatively deserted cafe and shuddered as I tried to imagine the scene had Spratt yielded to my entreaties to go to the the "Coliseum."

"Luckily, no troops entered, but some might arrive at any moment and I was beginning to feel that the atmosphere was getting a little unhealthy and the necessity for "taking cover" was becoming urgent.

"I began to seek means of escape as Spratt, perfectly unconcerned, and quite oblivious of the mental agony I was enduring, proceeded slowly on his doughnut debauch. Would he never finish? Apparently, he was there for "duration."

"The situation was getting desperate. Nearly choking myself with the comestible, I "remembered" that I had forgotten to lock my kit-box, containing, among some other valuables, a wallet in which reposed some 300 Marks.

"Thus excusing myself I escaped; three Jocks entered the cafe as I left it. What happened then I don't know, though I'd given my chances of demob. to have watched the scene unobserved."

We were all feeling pretty low in spirits that night. A drizzling rain had been falling throughout the day, and "kip" seemed the only place worth patronising.

It was about 9.0 when Spratt entered, throwing off his great-coat in a manner suggesting anxiety to furnish proofs of his compliance with the order he had received.

At 10.30 our billet still rang with echoes of the laughter which followed the removal of that garment. "One ribbon for making up his mind and another for coming up"—this, and similar pleasantries demonstrated the hilarious condition to which Private Spratt's ideas on the wearing of the ribbon had reduced the troops.

When, at length, his comrades had laughed themselves hoarse, Pte. Spratt, now bereft of all pride in his achievement, remarked, as if in extenuation,

"Well, I broke three needles putting it on, anyway."

The question now dividing our billet into parties is, "What will happen when Spratt puts up his chevrons?" After Playhard's narrow escape, none of us care to run the risk of his company on rainy days. We tremble for what new monstrosity may be revealed when next he removes his greatcoat.

E. Y. TELLUM.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

We Hear all Sides and Accept no Responsibility for our Readers' Views.

OPERA HOURS.

Sir,—Now that the closing hour in Cologne is so much later than it used to be would it not be possible for the Opera performances to start at a more rational hour than they do.

Most of us have to forego our dinners and be content to munch chocolate or a few biscuits during the performance. When we turn out it is usually too late to get a satisfactory meal.

What do others say? CARMEN.

WINTER DANCING.

Sir,—I have read with interest and appreciation the letters upon this subject addressed to you, and especially those of them that have suggested and those that have repudiated the suggestion that frequent dances should be given in the Great Hall of the Cologne Central Y.M.C.A.

Dancing may be not merely a recreation but also an educational influence; and those who afford facilities for it, under proper conventions are undoubtedly rendering great service to our troops.

The British Empire Leave Club deserves well of us all, for this, as for the other features of the varies activities promoted by its resourceful staff. "Maxina" and "Hawkeye" may rest assured that we shall give effect to their suggestion, if and when that can be done without detriment to our general scheme of work which as we believe, experience has proved to be the best that can be devised for the use of our premises and our resources in the interests of the troops in Cologne.

Every evening we have our great hall filled with men who come to our concerts and other entertainments: not infrequently it is "heaped up, pressed down, and running over." That means that we have an audience of from 1500 to 2000 men. Owing to certain structural peculiarities only a relatively small proportion of the Hall is level floor, and in consequence, every time that we had a dance, we should drive from 1000 to 1500 men from our doors. Possibly a few of them might care to be spectators; but certainly even these would prefer to see and hear such entertainments as we now provide. This gives us pause. ALEC FRANCIS.

OFFICERS' WIVES AND HOSPITALS

Sir,—Now that there are a large number of officers' wives in Rhineland I am sure some of them have a lot of spare time that they find difficult to occupy and I might suggest that they would fill in those weary hours visiting the patients in the different C.C.S. hospitals in Cologne.

Hospital life here is naturally dull and a daily visit from some of those ladies should play a big part in the rapid recovery of patients who always crave for sympathy and consolation from woman in their agonies.

I believe some officers' wives would be quite pleased to do this charitable and human work if they realised how much it would be appreciated by patients who must lie in bed for weeks without chatting with anyone except the busy sister and orderly. A BED PATIENT.

BRASSARDS—WHICH ARM?

Sir,—Reference the question raised, as to the correct arm on which brassards should be worn, it is a matter of little importance, but brassards being a distinctive sign should be worn on the "outside" arm. The "outside" or sword arm of a man is the "right," consequently that of woman the left.

Hence the difference in the position of buttons on male and female coats, so arranged as to permit of the outer hand being inserted for the sake of warmth, gloves or muffs not being contemplated when the garment was originally designed. LIEUT-COLONEL.

A PROFITEERING COMPLAINT.

Sir,—In answer to "Chance" I would like to refer him to G.R.O. 3424: if he has broken this order, is it wise to advertise the fact? EXCHANGE.

THE RATE OF EXCHANGE.

Sir,—In reply to "Twisted," I should like to point out that since the N.A.C.B. have raised their prices they have been prepared to change English money at the corresponding rate i. e. 120 Marks. for £1. I can vouch for the truth of this, having changed a £1 note myself a few days ago. This seems to me to justify them in altering their prices.

"SATISFIED."

TRIVIALITIES.

Sir,—I am a little tired of the reiterated complaints of some of your correspondents as to profiteering by Germans or in our canteens, the value of the mark, the quality of cups of tea and kindred commonplace and some time trifling topics.

I would like to see less reference to L. S. D. in your correspondence and more discussion on the bigger things of life.

Most of the complaints I see ventilated seem to me petty and make one feel that those who make them have nothing more vital to occupy their minds and their time. VERAX.

CABARETS AND LADIES.

Sir,—I wonder whether through your columns I could learn exactly what rule is in force with regard to cabarets and lady guests.

Last week I was at the Kaiserhof with an officer and his wife when I was asked if I was with my wife. On replying that the lady was the wife of the other officer, I was left in peace, but two officers who were sitting at the next table with two German girls had their names taken.

Although I am far from wishing to hold a brief for officers or men who fraternize with the late enemy, I must say it is universally believed that this is allowed.

If there is a G.R.O. against it perhaps one of your readers could quote the number and explain whether it extends to prohibiting one from sitting at the same table as a German, of whom one may know nothing?

If so, should not this be known to café proprietors, as was formerly the case, so that they might warn officers and men against sitting at a table where a German already was, and Germans against sharing a table with an Englishman?

CLEAR HEAD.

OVER FASTIDIOUS.

Sir, — I support E.E.D. in his timely protest. It is out of place for those whose wants are catered for so generously to cavil if certain shows provided may not happen to be quite up to the mark or up to the standard these hard-to-please people set up.

Do they realise the immense amount of voluntary work that is entailed and that while they can sit still and criticise these fellows are spending hours in preparing these entertainments for them?

I am glad E.E.D. has spoken out because I know he voices what many have felt but have not cared to write about. Y. McC.

OUR MUSICAL TASTE.

Sir, — Your correspondent "B Flat" complacently pats us all on the back with the self-satisfied remark: "We are a musical nation, we are, we are, we are."

But these are only words. Turn to facts and what do we find? London — the greatest city in the world — can with difficulty support one Opera house for a limited season.

Is there any other place in Great Britain of the size of Cologne or larger that can boast an Opera house at all?

Quite apart from opera going, however, what proportion of the people of England can play a musical instrument or even know the notes of music or how to sing a tune?

No, "B Flat" you are hopelessly wrong. We, British can justly claim to be good business people, good engineers, and good shipbuilders, good miners and explorers, but when it comes to the arts such as music, let us please be more modest.

C. SHARP.

ORDNANCE SHOPPING.

Sir,—If all those who have reason to complain of their wasted time at the Officers' Clothing Store were to write you, it would be necessary to publish a series of supplements to the Cologne Post merely for typical extracts from their letters.

Surely a better system could be devised with quicker service. Why, for instance, should officers whose requirements could be settled at once be kept fuming outside the barrier whilst an attendant is only occupied in waiting for the decision of another officer who is trying on pairs of boots.

Assuming that the time of officers is worth something to their country, the aggregate loss resulting from repeated fruitless visits and hours of protracted waiting must be enormous, to say nothing of the inconvenience and annoyance caused to the individual officers.

DISGRUNTLED.

THE WINE TAX.

Sir,—I see by Battalion Orders to-night that one does not pay wine tax on one dozen or more bottles.

Officers and Sergeants' Messes are protected by the above order, but anyone who wants a glass or bottle in a cafe must pay what the German wants to charge.

On the wine cards one used to see the cost of the wine and then the tax. Now the wine cards have one price which says "Incl. Steuer". Can any of your readers tell me what percentage is charged as tax? I understood it to be ten per cent, but in two cafes in Bonn on wine priced at M. 20 the tax was 3.70 and 5.60. Why the difference?

In the U.S.A. area, soldiers do not pay the wine tax, and the wine card is stamped and dated. I am given to understand that this card cannot be altered unless made out again and restamped.

Something of this sort would be very welcome in the British area, and would stop the British soldiers from being robbed.

W.O.

ARE WOMEN CARELESS?

Sir,—Of course they are! Don't they marry US. O. WYNOTT.

LEEDS CITY SUSPENDED.

Lord Mayor Proposes To Manage The Club.

DOCUMENTS STILL MISSING.

The reported resignation of the Leeds City F.C. directorate is now followed by the announcement that the club has been suspended.

As stated yesterday, it appears that the directors were ordered to produce certain documents in connection with the Football Association investigation into the charge against the club of making illegal payments to players. As these documents were not forthcoming, the club has been suspended.

Meanwhile the Lord Mayor of Leeds, who was a former director of the club, proposes that he should be allowed to take over the management of the club until a new company is formed. In the hope that such an arrangement may be acceptable to the Football Association, the present directors offered to resign.

The Lord Mayor interviewed a member of the Football Association Commission yesterday and it is hoped that as a result the club may be saved from permanent suspension.

ENGLAND V. AUSTRALIA.

Team to be sent to Antipodes in 1920-21.

The Marybone Cricket Club Committee sent a telegram to the Australian Board of Control on Tuesday saying:—

"Regret we cannot contemplate Australian visit in 1920 but we will endeavour to send a team to Australia in 1920-21 and would be glad to receive a visit from Australia in 1921."

The first class counties who were all consulted were about equally divided as to the Australians being asked to come here next summer.

YACHTING IN BELGIUM.

Lt.-Col. Stone Finishes Third In King's Trophy.

There were six starters in the yacht race for the King's trophy at Brussels. The result was as follows:—

Argonaute (Colonel Cornely, Belgium), 1;
Aeronaute (Lieutenant Connerade, Belgium), 2;
Duckling (Lieutenant-Colonel Stone, Great Britain), 3.

NEW BILLIARDS HALL.

Inman and Reece Begin a Match of 16,000 Up.

Messrs. Burroughes and Watts opened their new billiards hall at the corner of St. James's street and Piccadilly on Monday afternoon, when Inman and Reece began a match of 16,000 up, Reece receiving 1,000 start, for £100 a side.

Reece was the first to find his touch, and in the opening hour he scored twice as fast as the champion, putting up breaks of 78, 95, 53 and 63. Late in the session Inman contributed a brilliant break of 357, and afterwards ran to his points with 59 unfinished; previously his best had been 54, 77 and 61.

Interval scores: Reece, 1,349; Inman, 638.

In the evening Reece made breaks of 226 and 217. Closing scores:—Reece in play 2,100; Inman 1,235.

Rugby Result.

Pontypool 3; Newport 3.

LAWN TENNIS.

Covered Courts Meeting At Queen's Club Postponed.

It has been decided to postpone until the 20th inst. the start of the covered courts lawn tennis championship meeting at Queen's Club, originally fixed for this week, owing to certain structural alterations not having been completed. The programme will include men's singles' ladies' singles, men's doubles, and ladies, and men's doubles championships. The entries will close on Thursday, the 16th inst., and the draw will take place on the following afternoon at three o'clock.

TENNIS MATCH.

No. 1. R. S. Coy v No. 6. R. T. Coy at Mulheim.

An interesting tennis match took place on Tuesday afternoon between No. 1 Light Railway Signal Coy and No. 6 Railway Telegraph Coy on the latter's ground at Mulheim.

The game was keenly contested, but the visitors, who had journeyed from Duren, found the terrific service of Captain H. M. Chrystal rather demoralizing and the home couple secured an easy victory. Result:—6—2; 6—1.

HOCKEY.

3rd Bn. M.G.C. beat 51st Northumberland Fusiliers at Riehl.

A good game was witnessed two days ago when the Gunners were at home to the 51st Northumberland Fus. From the bully-off, the team started to press, and after a short time a nice shot from Major Bennett put them one up. The game continued to be in the visitors half, for the most part, and before half time Lieut. Winchcombe added another goal for the "Emma Gees."

On resumption the visitors seemed to get together better, but all their attacks were broken up by the defence of their opponents especially the half backs where Lts. Roberts and Derry and Pte. Rees played a sterling game. Lieut. Smith and Sergt. Neal each added to the score of the home side, and a fast and sporting game ended with the result—3rd Bn. M.G.C. 4, 51st N.F's. 0.

London Betting.

The latest London betting over the Cesarewitch discloses a shortening in price of King John which has dropped from 9—1 to 7—1.

ANGLO-BELGIAN GOLF.

Royal Golf Club Brussels v. British Army Of The Rhine.

The following were the results of an interesting golf match played at Brussels on Sunday between the Royal Golf Club, Brussels and the British Army of the Rhine. The names of the Belgian players are given first.

CESAREWITCH PROBLEM.

Some Light on the Big Newmarket Handicap.

The problem of the Cesarewitch run on October 15th is occupying the attention of many racing scribes. Writing on the subject "Boris" in the "Referee" says:

Immediately after the publication of the acceptances for the Cesarewitch I named five horses which I thought included what would probably be my final selection or selections for that event. Since then Keysoe has been scratched, but the remaining four still hold good, so far as such probability is concerned. They are Golden Melody, Gay Lord, Ivanhoe, and Chuette. Golden Melody beat Ivanhoe fairly and squarely in the Stayers' Handicap at Gatwick and with a couple of extra furlongs to go in the Cesarewitch the weights only favour Ivanhoe to the extent of 1 lb.

Still if I were compelled to back one or the other I am not at all certain which I should choose, and if Gay Lord is better than Ivanhoe at the weights, and should represent Mr. James White at Newmarket, I fancy that I should be tempted to back both of them. At Gatwick Golden Melody was quite capably ridden by one of Escott's apprentices named Speck, and I understand that the boy will ride the gelding in the more important race.

On the next day at Gatwick Speck scored again by winning on Longerline for Mr. Bottomley. The Newbury Autumn Cup on Friday, won by Silver Bridge, showed us that Langdon Hills, beaten a couple of lengths, may have to be reckoned with in the Cesarewitch, but told us nothing about Unitoi, whose change at Newmarket is highly thought of in some quarters. Unitoi was left at the post, and cantered in after the others.

Later in the afternoon it was announced that the jockey concerned, F. Lane, had been suspended for the rest of the meeting. Unitoi had opened a strong favourite, and finished up a firm second at 7 to 2, so that many were naturally disappointed at what amounted to not getting a run for their money.

Tattenham in the "Sunday Express" writes as follows:

ALASNAM.

What about Alasnam? The question has greatly troubled those who are interested in Cesarewitch prospects, for Sir Abe Bailey's colt has undoubtedly been substantially supported, and he belongs to a stable which is not in the habit of making many mistakes. Four or five weeks ago, when every one seemed to have Gipsy Lad as a supposed "good thing" for the Cambridgeshire, I was assured that Alasnam would be the best from Reginald Day's stable in that race. It came as a surprise, therefore, to find him a strong order for the long-distance event, and the story now is that he is expected to bring off the double!

The student of form is baffled when he endeavours to estimate the prospects of a three-year-old who has only once been seen in public this season, and was then "down the course," in a five-furlong affair. If you turn up Alasnam's two-year-old running, however, you will realise that the handicapper may easily have blundered badly in letting in Sir Abe Bailey's colt with bottom weight in the two autumn handicaps. On one occasion the colt finished in front of Sir Douglas at even weights, and proved himself to be very little behind Mademoiselle Foch. Alasnam is essentially one to watch in the market.

THE PUZZLE.

We all looked forward with keen expectancy to the Newbury Autumn Cup, and now that it has been run what help does it give us in the task of unravelling the Cesarewitch problem? Its effect has been to make the big Newmarket race more interesting than ever. Instead of making the issue appear clearer, it has tied it into even a more difficult knot than before. First, you have to consider Unitoi. Most unluckily for his hundreds of backers, he took no part in Friday's race, but you cannot overlook the fact that he was supported with much confidence by those connected with his stable, and it is just possible that he will compensate for their bad luck by carrying off the Cesarewitch. Obviously, Unitoi had been well tried to get the distance, and it is expected that he will have no difficulty in staying the Cesarewitch course.

THE LATE CHARLES HART.

At The Ring a collection was made on behalf of the widow of the late Charles Hart—son of the well-known distance runner, C. W. Hart—who was knocked down by a heavy motor lorry while assisting his father in his attempt to run from London to Bath and back last Wednesday. £56 8s. was quickly collected.

"NO CONTEST."

Tame Fighting in Opening Day's Programme at N.S.C.

CONN v. ROSSI.

The chief event in the opening programme of the new boxing season at the National Sporting Club, on Monday, petered out in a disappointing manner.

The contest, over 20 rounds, was between Joe Conn, of Bow, and Francis Rossi, Pontypridd, but so tame was the display that a "no contest" verdict was returned in the seventeenth round.

Both men appeared to box much below real form and the opening rounds were quiet, Conn being slightly more aggressive than his opponent. Rossi livened up somewhat in the 10th round, scoring with the blows to the face. The boxing was clever, but each man seemed to be adopting safety tactics. The exchanges continued in a monotonous manner, so much so, in fact, that by the 12th round the spectators began to file out.

As the pace failed to increase to any appreciable extent the referee, without previous warning, stopped the fight in the 17th round saying he was satisfied that neither man was trying. As stated he declared the fight "no contest."

NOT FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP.

The match was originally intended to decide the feather-weight championship in connection with which the Lonsdale Belt would be awarded. Events during the "close" season caused an alteration in the arrangements, however. Rossi won certain renown by drawing with Jim Driscoll in a fifteen round contest, but when he could achieve no more decisive result against George Hinds (Wickham) his sanguine future received a set-back. This was intensified when, later, Hinds was defeated by Mike Honeyman. Conn also lost a match, the decision of which, according to form, should have fallen to him. Hence the re-arrangements in Monday's match.

The principal fight which ended so tamely was preceeded by a contest between Johnny Broker, of Marylebone, and Frank Kestrell of Cardiff. In a 15 rounds fight, Broker was given the verdict on points.

BASHAM V. BILLY WELLS.

A welter-weight contest between Johnny Basham and Bermondsey Billy Wells has been fixed for Saturday, at the Holborn Stadium.

McGOORTY AND CARPENTIER.

Eddie McGoorty, the American boxer, is proceeding to Carpentier's training camp to act as a sparring partner and to assist Carpentier in his preparations for his forthcoming fight with Beckett, the English champion.

BOXING AT THE RING.

In a 20-rounds contest at the Ring between W. Fry (Tylorstown) and J. Starmer (Kettering), Fry won in the second round.

A FAST GAME.

78th Labour Coy. v. 5th R.T.C. at Kalk.

An exciting game was witnessed at Kalk on Tuesday afternoon when the 78th Labour Coy. entertained the 5th R.T.C. in a friendly match. The 5th R.T.C. won the toss and elected to play with the wind, in spite of which the 78th Labour Coy broke away and Withington, the centre forward, scored, within the first five minutes. The game now became pretty even both sides playing good all round football. Half time:—78th Labour Coy 1; 5th R.T.C., 0.

In the second half Withington again got through and scored within the first few minutes, beating four men. The superiority of the 78th Labour Coy. now became evident; after a few more minutes Clark scored the third. The 78th now pressed and after ten minutes hard play one of the 5th R.T.C. fouled within the penalty area. C.S.M. Fox took the penalty and scored with a fast ground shot, the goalkeeper having no chance at all. Nothing further was scored and a very good fast game ended with the score:—

78th Labour Coy. 4;
5th R.T.C....0.

SOUTHERN DIV. SIGNALS.

H.Q. Section beat Sand in Inter-Section Final.

The match was played on the Signal Ground at Altenberg, and proved the best of a series of hard fought games. Sand opened with the wind which was blowing strongly down the ground. From the start the game was very fast, Sand getting slightly the better of the play. After good combination on the left, Spiers scored for Sand with a nice cross shot. The Sand forwards continued to press strongly, but the opposing defence was equal to the occasion, and half time arrived with Sand leading by one goal.

On resuming, the H.Q. forwards, making full use of the wind which was now in their favour, assumed the attack and took the game well into their opponents half. At this period of the game an H.Q. forward was brought down outside the 25 yards area, and from the resultant free kick Ketteringham scored a lovely goal. H.Q. were not to be denied, however, and after good work on the left wing Whitcombe put in a perfect centre which Lyons converted. The H.Q. supporters now feeling assured of victory gave full vent to their vocal powers and amidst great excitement time arrived with H.Q. winners by 2—1.

NEWMARKET TOWN PLATE.

The race for the Newmarket Town Plate will be run at Newmarket to-day. The race was established by King Charles II. in 1666, to be run at noon on the second Thursday in October for ever on the Round Course at Newmarket. The prize is the rent of a parcel of land together with the entries for the previous year's race. Mr. Robert Sievier won it last year with Green Falcon.

ARMY RUGBY.

Fifty Players Invited To West Kensington.

PROBABLES V. POSSIBLES.

Prevented, through the railway strike from bringing off the first of their trial games at the Queen's Club, the Army Union have little time left in which to build up the first-class side necessary for the formidable programme arranged. There exists, of course, plenty of material, but the quality is at the moment unknown, and a fifteen well equipped at all points must be ready within the next fortnight. To this end (writes Col. Philip Trevor C.B.E. in the "Daily Telegraph.") some forty or fifty players from all parts of the country have been asked to put in an appearance at the West Kensington enclosure next Saturday, and in the course of the afternoon all who do so are to be given a trial.

A week later a team of Probables oppose a side of Possibles, and four days afterwards the Army take the field against the University at Cambridge. With so much uncertain at the moment, it is fortunate, that if next Saturday's match fails to reveal any large amount of fresh talent, the Army executive have available something more than the nucleus of a powerful fifteen in several of the players who last spring, appearing for the Mother Country in the Inter-Services Competition, made such a close fight for the King's Cup. Among these are Lieutenant H. L. V Day, the wing three-quarter, and scrummagers in Captain Finlay, Captain Hedderwick, Major Lawless, C.S.M.I. Jones. Possibly also Major E. S. N. W. Harrison, a very speedy three-quarter, will turn out, and Captain McIlwaine, the England international; while others of good experience on the Rugby field are Major Rodrick (Llanelly), Captain Hedley (Durham), and Lieutenant Jones (Newport).

RHINE ARMY TROOPS M.T. COY. v. D. of S. and T. G.H.Q.

The meeting of these two teams on Saturday at Poll resulted in a win for the Rhine Army Troops by five goals to two. The first half was evenly contested, first one side and then the other striving hard for the opening goal, which eventually came to the M.T. Coy. the scorer being Lieut. Hodgson, whose shot the goalie was unable to hold.

During the second half, further goals were registered by Lieut. Hodgson, Cpl. Widdowson, Eatch and Hamilton for the winners but the G.H.Q. team were not entirely out of the picture, as they managed to score twice before the whistle sounded for time. Result: Rhine Army Troops M.T. Coy., 5; D. of S. and T. G.H.Q. 2.

"C" COY. v. DRUMS 52nd K.L.R.

This match was played at Obercassel on Monday. There was only one goal scored before the interval and that was obtained for "C" Coy. by Hampson from a penalty. "C" Coy. opened the second half rather sensationally. Lt. Long, leading the attack, helped splendidly by the inside men, rushed down and scored with a shot which left the goalie helpless. Later, another goal was obtained by Spence who scored with a fine shot. Good play was seen on both sides after this but the "Drums" although they tried hard could not penetrate "C" Coys. defence, and the final came with the score:—"C" Coy. 3; "Drums" 0.

G.H.Q., SERGEANTS' MESS RIFLE CLUB

At the Weekly Spoon Shoot which took place on the Merheim Ranges on Saturday last, Staff/Sergt., Withers R.A.S.C., won the Spoon with a score of 88.

The next Shoot will take place on Saturday next. Two prizes will be given. Meet at No 1. Sergts. Mess., Salomongasse 13.30 hours prompt.

SPORT IN BRIEF.

Hole In 1.

Playing on the Tooting Bec Club's course, S. Yotsumoto holed out the eleventh hole—238 yards—in 1.

Newport v. Reading.

Newport did most of the attacking in their home game with Reading, but the visitors' defence was very good.

Percy Jones' Benefit.

Rhondda sportsmen intend to make a huge success of the "benefit" for Sgt. Percy Jones, the ex-fly-weight champion. It is likely that Joe Beckett and Eddie McGoorty will be present.

Royal Liverpool Club.

Seventy members competed on the first day of the autumn meeting of the Royal Liverpool Club. The Dowie Cup for the best scratch score was won by G.Q. Diver with 78.

At the Ring.

Charlie Webb (Bow) beat Young Nipper (Bermondsey) in the sixth round of what was scheduled as a twenty-rounds light-weight boxing contest at The Ring.

Jacks And Gardner Matched.

The well-known feather-weights Fred Jacks, of Aldgate, and Tom Gardner, of Smethwick, are to meet in a 20 3-min. round contest at The Ring, Blackfriars, on Monday afternoon, Oct. 13.

Warwick's Chance.

A Cesarewitch candidate for whom quite a good case can be made out is Warwick (7st 9lb), who up to a point this year was a strangely unlucky animal.

Pontypool's Achievement.

In drawing with Newport at Pontypool, the Pontypool fifteen accomplished a very fine performance, seeing that Newport, who last Saturday defeated Cardiff in decisive fashion, placed their full strength in the field.

Cardiff 'Chases Abandoned.

As the local railway authorities are unable to deal with any horse traffic this week, the Stewards had no option but to abandon the Cardiff Club Steeple-chase meeting fixed for Friday and Saturday. A new fixture in November has been applied for, when a similar programme to that abandoned will be put forward.

AMUSEMENTS AND RECREATIONS.

"Strife."

Very appropriately, when one considers the present state of industrial turmoil in the world, the R.A.D.C. staged John Galsworthy's great play "Strife" on Tuesday. The performance was honoured by the presence of the Commander-in-Chief of the Rhine Army, and when I arrived at the Deutsches Theatre "House Full" was displayed at the doors.

* * *

I have seen Galsworthy's "Silver Box"—one of the most impressive plays ever written, but "Strife" of was new to me. It is a realistic piece work and a difficult one. The Rhine Army Dramatic Company undertook a severe task therefore in presenting it. On the whole the members came off with flying colours. "Strife" is the story of an industrial strike in which the obstinacy of the capitalist is set against the obdurate demands of the workers. The poignancy of the bitter struggle which has lasted for months until the men and their families are reduced to starvation is dramatically brought out in the three acts of "Strife." The story is too long to tell in detail, and will be familiar to most playgoers, and each development of the plot and all the telling lines were followed intently by the large audience.

* * *

One of the successes of the evening was the realistic crowd of strikers harrangued by leaders and men. It was most effective. Of the characters in the play it is hard to select those who most distinguished themselves, but one noteworthy performance was that of Pte. T. Turner in the part of Henry Thomas the old Welsh worker. Lieut. Humphrey-Hope was excellent as the obstinate unbending chairman of the Trenartha Tin Works which was originally played by Mr. Norman McKinnel, and Lieut. S. E. Percy as David Roberts the men's leader, and Lieut. Cornish as the union official were almost equally good. Other male members of the company who did praiseworthy work were Lieut. Landon Ronald as secretary of the works, Lieut. E. Mearns as the manager, and Capt. C. F. Ball as a plump self-satisfied director. Capt. Dennis, Lieut. Linford and Lieut. D. A. Onions as directors all played their respective parts creditably. Turning to the ladies, the difficult role of Enid Underwood was extremely well played by Miss Frances Chisholm and that of Madge Thomas forcibly enacted by Miss Gabriel Paul.—The other female parts were capably played by Miss Shirley King, Miss A. E. Drew, and Miss Y.H.M. Hughes, Mrs. Mearns and Miss E. K. Beale.

* * *

A very large caste is needed to present "Strife" and the crowd of strikers alone numbered over thirty. The waits between the acts were rather long, but owing to the large amount of scene-shifting necessary this could not be helped. The waits were enlivened by the orchestra, and although not quite equal to rendering very difficult classic works their efforts generally were successful. An enthusiastic call at the close brought Lieut. S. E. Percy to the front and a neat little speech resulted. At a somewhat late hour we all departed thoroughly satisfied with the result of a sincere and ambitious effort.

"The Crumps."

For the re-entry of the "Crumps" on the Rhine stage I can have no word of adverse criticism. True, events were against them, in providing for their first re-appearance — a theatre with bad accoustic properties and rules that forbid the playing of sketches. A splendid performance was nevertheless the result. Perhaps the hit of the evening was the song — "A little of what you fancy" sung by Tich Whetton, an artist whom we shall be sorry to lose in Rhineland. I hear he is shortly to be demobilized and prophesy a golden future for him.

* * *

In spite of "sketches" being "verboten" the play "The Rosebud of Stinging Nettle Farm" was graciously allowed to be produced and — needless to say — received the applause it deserved. Lieut. "Jackie" Knight as "Sir Narcissus Slapdash" scored a distinct dramatic success whilst utterly failing in his nefarious attempts to carry off the village beauty — "Rose Turnipfield" — thus deserving his-thrice-inflicted death at the climax oft he farce. It is difficult to pick out members of the "Crumps" for individual a praise — the tout ensemble is too good — but Tolly de Mache" and "Dora Harris" are "some" girls — believe me!

In few Words.

On Oct. 16th a series of interesting boxing matches will commence at the Munich Beergardens, Luna Park, near the Zoo. Further particulars are given in our advertising columns.

I hear that Mr. Alfred Hurley is well pleased with the reception in Cologne of "The Jesters." During his short stay, he has made numerous acquaintances in Rhineland by reason of his sunny disposition.

Lieut. Knight tells me that "The Crumps," completely reorganized, will be busy on tour for some time to come.

Tuesday's performance of "Strife" marked the 100th performance of the British Rhine Army Dramatic Company.

JACQUES.

GOLF MATCH.

Ladies' Parliamentary v. United Services at Northwood.

The Ladies' Parliamentary Golf Association will play a match by singles and foursomes against the Ladies' United Services Association, at Northwood, on the 24th inst. The teams are not yet complete; but Mariota Countess of Wilton will act as captain of the Parliamentary side, while Mrs. Martin Hall will lead the United Services.

Mixed Foursomes at Addington.

A Mixed Foursome Tournament will be played at Addington on October 18, when the Addington Golf Course will be opened The four couples who will play in this tournament are:—

Miss Barry and Lord Charles Hope.
Miss C. Leitch and Mr. A. H. Read.
Mrs. Olaf Hambro and Mr. Angus Hambro.
Miss Griffithe and Mr. G. C. Mellin.

"Zar und Zimmermann."

Many who visited the Opera House on Tuesday last were pleasantly surprised by "Zar und Zimmermann," so little known to English audiences. The acting throughout was excellent. Especially well done were the caricatures of the Burgomeister and the envious lover, by Herrn Mertens and Salomon, respectively; and the playing of Frl. Klemperer, as the lady love, was entirely charming. Those taking part seemed to enter thoroughly into the spirit of the play, to the extent even of making successful additions to the printed text. The whole piece was an alternation of bizarre humour and pretty music, and all the music and all the songs, with the exception perhaps of the sextettes, were well sung; the chorus, too, were in excellent form. The music is simple, so that there were none of the harsh effects due to sudden changes or the need for outsinging a powerful orchestra. Very pleasing too were the neat, bright Dutch costumes and the clog step dance. The audience was throughout very appreciative, Herr Renner who played the "Zar" being encored in his last song but one. Those who wish for an evening of good light opera (including a considerable amount of acting, unaccompanied by music) should not miss seeing "Zar und Zimmermann" if it is again played.

NO WAITING.

Appreciated Feature Of Our Popular Skill Contest.

One of the most satisfactory features of our weekly football competition, according to the prize winners, is the promptitude with which the result is made known and our liabilities disposed of.

It is a fact familiar with the majority of competitors in competitions organised by most journals, that there is invariably a tedious wait before the entrant knows his fate. And, should he be fortunate enough to secure a place in the prize list, another long delay usually ensues before the prize-money arrives.

There is nothing like that about "The Cologne Post." Matches are played in England on Saturday, the results come buzzing along hundreds of miles of wires to Cologne and then our competition staff "get busy" as the Yank would have it.

Saturday's competition result was made known on Wednesday morning and several of the fortunate winners—as a reward for forecasting only nine out of the twelve matches—were each in receipt of a cheque to the value of 233 marks in the evening. The others, living further afield, should receive theirs this morning.

May we point out the importance of giving complete particulars as to rank, number, address etc. to obviate the risk of the prize money going astray. This applies to each entry as of course everyone stands his chance of winning. To meet the requirements of the A.P.O. the official postal address should be given.

Coupons must be addressed:—
FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 3,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S.40 Rhine Army.

List of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this Journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

FOOTBALL COMPETITION No. 3.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Chilly Nights.

Marvellous how British warms are being trotted out these chilly evenings. Lots of men I know are using their handkerchiefs more than usual. There is a mild epidemic of colds.

Buffet Hints.

Would it not be possible to serve other drinks than merely wine in the officers' refreshment buffet at the Deutsches Theatre? Coffee and beer would be acceptable to many and another suggestion is the provision of sandwiches or other snacks especially when the play lasts from 6 until 9.30 as "Strife" does.

Like Civvies.

Soon, very soon, alas! the free riding on the trams will cease and we shall all be on the civvy level tendering our 25 or 50 pfg notes for fares.

Next!

A young and comely Fräulein had been bitten by a savage dog. The usual crowd had gathered round and a Tommy, commenting on the occurrence, remarked to a German civilian, "bloomin' dawg ought to be shot." "Bitte?" said the "Jerry" interrogatively. "Bit'er!" exploded Tommy, "'es got 'arf of 'er leg in 'is mouth, anyway!"

Better.

Officers changing cheques at Cox's yesterday were agreeably surprised to find they were receiving 100 marks to the pound sterling.

German v. British Beds.

One of our readers objects strongly to my recent note on the comfort of German beds. His bed consists, he says, of three straw-filled 'biscuits', with a pillow of such dimensions that he is invariably cramped in the lower end of the bed, while the whole thing is capped with a preposterous bag of feathers which has a nasty habit of falling off. Well, opinions differ.

The Current Bloom.

The Michaelmas Daisy is the flower almost monopolising the stalls of the Cologne street sellers just now.

A Composer's Son.

I wonder how many who have seen Lieut. V. Landon Ronald in "Strife" at the Deutsches Theatre are aware that he is the son of Mr. Landon Ronald the famous composer and orchestral leader so well known to London concert-goers. Young Landon Ronald has considerable dramatic talent and can write humorously, too.

To Chessplayers.

Somebody asked about chess in Rhineland, and now I hear that there are to be chess tournaments every Monday at the Central Y.M.C.A. for prizes.

Tramway Accidents.

On two successive mornings I have witnessed tram accidents in Friesen Strasse, Cologne. Yesterday, a woman slipped from the pavement in front of a tramcar and disappeared underneath. She was extricated only after considerable difficulty, rather badly cut and bruised. On the previous morning, a German, in attempting to board a passing tram, stumbled and was thrown violently on his back.

Ramshackle.

There is generally a certain smartness about anything connected with the State in Germany, but I think the Post Office vans in Cologne are the most ramshackle, shabby concerns I have ever seen.

Antiques and Baths.

For antique shops, hotels, boarding houses and baths commend me to Weisbaden. They are almost as plentiful in that princely pleasure resort as the trees and the seats. In one antique dealer's shop, the other afternoon, I saw a copy of one of Sir Walter Scott's novels, published in 1826. The price was only 10 marks and it would now have been mine had the day of my visit been other than Sunday.

For Business Men.

Our new column for business men on the Rhine which starts to-day, is to appear every Monday and Thursday in future. I think it will appeal and be useful to many.

Less Khaki.

There is a marked falling off in the patronage given to certain cabarets. I dropped into one last evening to find it crowded and two subalterns the sole representatives of the Army. Earlier on it would have been difficult for a civilian to find a seat. Is it that the attractions of the cabaret have palled?

What is the Truth?

Yesterday I was told at the "Earwig" Lamp that there is no likelihood of that popular resort being closed yet. But whether the Annexe will go, I couldn't find out.

The Supreme Optimist.

I met him yesterday — the super-optimist and in a cemetery of all places. He is the caretaker of the Crematorium at Westfriedhof between Cologne and Bocklemund and when I visited him there were twelve adults and ten children awaiting cremation. He sleeps alone on the premises and when I asked him if his surroundings had not a depressing effect on his spirits, he smiled, and replied that he was perfectly happy. "My charges never give me any trouble," he added with a grin.

The "Moke."

Apropos my note on donkeys, one of my readers, tells me he saw three real live ones, of the four-footed species too, in the Hohenzollern Ring yesterday morning. They were quite young donkeys and judging by the crowd of children, grown-ups and soldiers who surrounded the trio, these animals must indeed be a rarity in Rhineland.

Unpopular With Conductors.

A tram conductor in Cologne was telling me he is not looking forward to time when every soldier has to pay his fare. It will mean a tremendous amount of extra work for him.

The New Way.

Have you noticed the new scheme in operation in at least one Cologne business house? It certainly demonstrates above all else upon which section of the present community the tradesmen in question relies for his trade. All the goods are duly marked, but civilians are reminded that over and above these prices they must pay the ten per cent luxury tax.

The Right Figure.

I dont know how one of my colleagues fell into the error of saying yesterday that the amount of War Savings Certificates sold by the Rhine Army since May 18th was only £55,000. The correct figure is much greater, being £139,707.

More Cafés.

The café idea must be a profitable one judging by the number springing up on all hands. It is a source of wonderment to me how it is possible to make them pay in view of the competition. There is every likelihood of an all English café in Cologne in the near future controlled by enterprising ex-officers.

Parents Note.

I learn from Dr. Francis that he is asking parents, who are concerned about the Education of their children in Cologne, to meet him in the Central Y.M.C.A. to-morrow at 3 p.m.

Then and Now.

You will be familiar with the fall from state of the many German accoutrements and the anxiety with which the average German tradesmen got rid of his stock. Classed as souvenirs they found ready buyers. A certain ex-German officer produced for inspection an imposing helmet and suggested that a Britisher might like to acquire it. When he learned the price at which similar articles were being sold in Cologne his surprise was very apparent.

About a Plough.

Some correspondents point out that the double or "one-way" plough used in Germany was introduced into England three or four years ago, but to what extent it is used at home I cannot find out.

A Place for Everything.

An orderly place is the average German kitchen. Nails for the towels, each for different use, and labelled for such; rows of pots and jars, also labelled as to what is or should be contained therein. One finds very little of the usual motley assortment of tins and dishes containing one knows not what till one looks inside.

Not Good.

A English official formerly resident in Cologne is now exiled in the course of his duty to a small township where English rations are unobtainable. That is his one grouse, his inability to get a meal after his English taste.

A Pair of Wheels.

Visitors to Mayence will have noticed that the Arms of the city, painted on the electric cars and elsewhere, have a pair of wheels as the leading feature of the design. They look curiously modern for such an ancient town, but in reality they date from the 8th century. The first Bishop of Mayence was the son of an English wheelwright, and the prelate assumed a pair of wheels as his armorial bearings. Hence the arms of the City.

Didn't Use Their Eyes.

Many readers who write us as to German customs which they consider differ from ours can't, I imagine, have been very observant when at home. Many of the things pointed out are common to most civilized countries and not peculiar to Germany.

Lightning Conductors.

The majority of lightning conductors on German buildings protrude a considerable height above the top of the protected building. Some people think this is a waste of material and that should the lightning flash towards the building, it would be diverted down a conductor that only extended a few inches above the structure just as well as down one that soared several yards above it. But that is not the case. The long conductor adds to the safety of the building.

To Units.

The Business Manager ask us to say that in future he cannot supply units with a smaller daily number of "Posts" than two dozen copies unless they pay in advance. With reduced personnel is is necessary to keep down bookkeeping to a minimum.

A Change.

When I passed the Army Bookshop in the Hohenzollern Ring the windows were empty — probably for re-arrangements. Now I see they are full of interesting books and fine photos.

FOR BUSINESS MEN IN RHINELAND.

COMPETING FOR TRADE.

After the signing and ratification of the peace treaty we are confronted with the task of re-establishing the normal labour of the world, the first step to which is the interchange of commerce between the various countries. Ever since the commencement of the Armistice period the Rhineland occupied territory has been flooded with business men from all parts of Europe and even America and with numerous representatives from every Allied and neutral country competing for Germany's trade. Britain must not fall behind in securing her share of the trade there is to be done.

PROS AND CONS.

It is no part of our business to enter into the pros and cons of trading with late enemy countries. Our only concern is to render some assistance to those British traders who are here to take advantage of the openings afforded by the removal of Government restrictions and the new conditions prevailing. We leave it to the powers that be to present points of policy and to impose such restrictions and regulations as are deemed necessary for the protection of British manufacturers and British trade. Such official information and notification of restrictions will be published from time to time in this column as information is received from reliable and authentic sources.

WHERE TO GET ADVICE.

The Military Governor's Bureau of Commerce and Information, with offices at Domhof, has been established for the assistance of commercial men coming to Cologne and has rendered invaluable service from the earliest days of occupation. All representatives should call there to secure information and advice so necessary before commencing operations in this country. The British Chamber of Commerce, Cologne, now settled in new offices at 100, Hohestrasse, is another useful organisation, and all business men are invited to avail themselves of the services of the Chamber. Further information respecting these organisations will be given later.

THE FRANKFURT FAIR.

There is still time to visit the International Import Fair at Frankfurt-on-Main which continues until October 15th. Frankfurt is known as the oldest banking and exchange locality in Germany and as one of its most important metropoli. The fair will accept the products of every land, including raw material and partly manufactured goods. The exposition of German goods and fabrics will convince visitors of the existence of goods which can profitably be exported in exchange for objects purchased by Germany. The Fair Palace will be the imposing hall in the grounds near the main Railway Station; it is an ideal building, everything can be easily accommodated in this splendid place including private Post Office and all other necessary departments. Frankfurt is not only accessible by the Rhine, but is also at the junction of the Mid-European Railways. The address of the fair is Internationale Einfuhrmesse, Festhall, Frankfurt-on-Main Germany. The invitations to the fair are printed in 10 languages and also in Esperanto.

For the convenience of visitors as well as exhibitors, the management has opened a tourist office at the office of the North German Lloyd, at No. 76 Kaiser Str. this city in immediate vicinity of the Grand Central Railway Station. Visitors are therefore requested to address all enquiries relating to travelling matters to the Messamt, Stadtstelle, Verkehrsbüro, Norddeutscher Lloyd, Frankfurt-on-Main.

CATERPILLARS ON TANKS.

CLAIMS BASED ON THE RE-DISCOVERY OF AN OLD IDEA.

VISCOUNT HALDANE AND THE KAISER.

TANK HISTORY.

CATERPILLARS' NUMEROUS SPONSORS.

The Commission of Inquiry into the Tank Awards was resumed yesterday. Counsel for Colonel Boothby, who commanded the armoured cars; emphasised the point that Colonel Boothby desired rather recognition of his services than a reward in the shape of a bounty.

Colonel Boothby, giving evidence, claimed that he was the direct cause of the first caterpillar being assembled in June 1915.

The Solicitor General, while not disputing Colonel Boothby's zeal and ability, opposed the grant of a bounty on the ground that the services rendered were not such as to entitle him to a reward.

Counsel for Commodore Murray Sueter read a letter from the Lords of the Admiralty dated 8th November 1917, stating that the idea of the tank was the outcome of a proposal made by Commander Sueter, Wing-Commander Briggs and Squadron Commander Hetnerington.

Earl's Court Wheel.

Commander Sueter, giving evidence, said that Squadron Commander Hetherington's big wheel scheme was a very crude proposal. The wheel was about the size of the big wheel at Earl's Court. He got his assistants to boil the idea down and subsequently demonstrated with a caterpil ar-supported vehicle on the Horse Guards parade, when Mr. Winston Churchill was much impressed. The witness specially emphasised that not only the caterpillar wheels, but the upturned bow for getting out of holes was also his idea. He mentioned that Sir Tennyson D'Eyncourt once told him he wished to resign the chairmanship of the Land-ship Committee, as he believed there was not much of a future for land-ships. Witness however, persuaded him to stay on, but he said he would only do so if Colonel Boothby were removed from the committee. The chairman (Mr. Justice Sergeant) deprecated his going into this story.

Commander Sueter's claim was supported by Commander Briggs, who was his Chief Engineer Adviser, Lieut.-Commander Berry, Mr. Booth, his Engineer Technical adviser, and other witnesses. Crown Counsel opposed the claim declaring that nothing in the caterpillar idea was new to Mr. Winston Churchill when Commander Sueter communicated it.

The claims of Lieutenant McFie, were then submitted by counsel, He also claimed to be the originator of the caterpillar idea, the scheme of which he submitted to the D'Eyncourt Committee.

FRENCH MINES.

FIVE YEARS TO RESTORE THEM.

A message transmitted through the German Government wireless stations says that the Commission of German mining experts who have undertaken a tour through the damaged mining territories of Northern France estimate that the length of time which will probably be required for the work of restoration in the pits will be two years in the eastern districts and from six to eight years in the western districts. The French mining administrations have already elaborated plans for the work.

NORTH RUSSIA.

EFFECT OF BRITISH INSTRUCTION.

Events of last week, says Reuter's Archangel correspondent, have definitely proved the fighting capacity of the Russian Northern Army. The strategical withdrawal on the Dvina front necessitated by the departure of the British troops is now accomplished. Russian troops successfully repulsed all enemy attacks. Reserves then took the offensive and drove the Reds back seventeen versts, causing great losses. Volunteer units recruited from prisoners took part in the action. Denikin's communiqué announces the capture of 15,000 prisoners and fifteen guns in the Voronezh region.

GERMANY'S GOLD FOR AMERICA.

Germany's first consignment of gold to the United States, in part payment of $158,000,000 worth of food and supplies, arrived in New York on Monday aboard a United States destroyer, and was conveyed safely to the New York Federal Reserve Bank. The shipment amounted to 5,125,000 dollars, and included a quantity of English sovereigns dated 1870 and French napoleons of the same date. There were also Austrian, Belgian, and Russian gold coins in the consignment, but no German gold.

HALDANE SPEAKS.

STORY OF HIS PRE-WAR VISIT TO GERMANY.

The first instalment of Viscount Haldane's recollections was published in the "Westminster Gazette" yesterday.

As to the German people generally Viscount Haldane thinks they are very like the British except that they are trained to obey and do simply what they are told by their rulers. Brutality by German soldiers in the war he attributes to instructions from their superiors.

In conversation with Von Moltke during his visit to Berlin in 1906 Viscount Haldane was satisfied that Von Moltke "did not look with any pleasurable military expectations to war with the United Kingdom alone" which Von Moltke thought might prove indecisive. Recounting incidents which occurred during a review of troops at Berlin, Viscount Haldane described how the Kaiser rode up to him and said: "A splendid machine I have in this army, Mr. Haldane. And what could I do without it? I am between the Russians and the French. But the French are your Allies, are they not? So, I beg your pardon." Viscount Haldane replied that were he in the Kaiser's place he should in any case feel safe from attack.

Next day he had a full and cordial talk with the Kaiser, who said he believed the Anglo-French Entente must even facilitate good relations between France and Germany. In the course of further conversation the Emperor said that what he wanted was not territory but trade expansion. He also trusted that disarmament would not be proposed at the Hague conference as, if it were, "he could not go in."

Viscount Haldane also describes the ex-Kaiser's visit to Windsor in 1907, when the proposal to hold a conference at Berlin between Great Britain, France, Russia and Germany relative to the Bagadad railway interests was accepted, but subsequently rejected by Germany, who did not wish to bring France and Russia into the discussion.

IN THE KING'S NAME.

HONOUR FOR ESTHONIAN GENERAL.

Colonel Herepath, Head of the British Military Mission to Esthonia, conducted an investiture on Saturday last. In the name of the King he conferred the Order of K.C.M.G. on General Laidoner, Commander in Chief of the Esthonian forces. This honour was bestowed on the General "For having, firstly, freed Esthonia from Bolshevists; secondly, repulsed the German invasion of Esthonia; thirdly, aided the national movement in Latvia; and fourthly, organised help for the Russian North West Army."

FIUME FUMINGS.

D'ANNUNZIO'S LATEST PROCLAMATION.

D'Annunzio has issued a remarkable appeal to the Croatian people wherein he attacks vehemently "The so called League of Nations" which he says was invented by International Jews and aims at laying hands on the port of Fiume.

He declares that Italy would gladly guarantee every race inhabiting the hinterland freedom of access to the Adriatic for their commerce. Both Italians and Slavs have a common interest in preventing other nations from gaining a footing in the Adriatic. D'Annunzio has also issued a decree fixing November 16th as the date of election at Fiume for the Italian Chamber. The only candidate is Captain Rizzo, who sank the Austrian dreadnought Viribusunitis.

BOLSHEVIST PANIC EXECUTIONS.

Recent telegrams from Omsk report that in consequence of the successes of the anti-Bolshevist armies the Soviet authorities have issued orders for a revival of extreme terrorist measures.

An extraordinary commission in Moscow recently condemned sixty-seven politicians, professors and officers to be shot on the pretext of an alleged plot.

Among those shot were Astrof and Shohopkin both influential members of the Cadet party, and Prince Andronnikoff.

ELECTIONS IN FRANCE.

It is now stated that the French Parliamentary elections will take place on November 16, and it is expected that before the opening of the electoral campaign M. Clemenceau will deliver a political speech in one of the towns of South-West France.

The Federal Government offers a reward of ten thousand sterling for the discovery in Australia of oil, suitable for commercial use.

NEEDLESS STRIKE.

STRIKING REVELATIONS BY A MINISTER.

It has been stated on more than one occasion that the officials of the railway unions and the men could have obtained without stopping work for one minute all they got by the agreement reached at Downing-street on Sunday night after holding up the whole railway system of the country for nine days.

This was fully and absolutely confirmed by Mr. G. H. Roberts, the Food Controller, at a meeting of the Industrial League and Council.

In the course of his speech he made some very pertinent remarks about the strike.

"Many of the strikers," he said, "are going to ask themselves, 'Why were we brought out on strike and compelled to inflict suffering on neighbours who have not done us any injury, when we might have had all we have got the day before we came out?'

"I was present at the negotiations," Mr. Roberts continued, "and, therefore, know of what I speak. I say publicly that the agreement which was signed on Sunday last was obtainable on Friday week. It is true you do not give everything away at once. But the Prime Minister clearly indicated the directions in which the Government were willing to go."

"I say it was a little short of a calamity that negotiations were broken off then—not by the Government—because we were prepared to go on. The Prime Minister appealed for an extension of time for those negotiations, and that was denied and the strike took place, with the expressed intention of holding up the community and thereby compelling the Government to yield by force what they failed to convince them by argument and reason was right and proper."

These disclosures evoked a strong protest from Mr. Cramp, President of the National Union of Railwaymen.

Mr. McCurdy, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Food, said at an interview that within a few days of the strike the Ministry had ensured practically a normal supply of essential foodstuffs. He emphasized the fact that the Ministry's work had been strictly neutral. "We fed strikers and non-strikers alike. Our priority certificates for infants' milk went to the families of strikers just as freely as to the general public." He paid a warm tribute to Trade Unionists for the exemplary order maintained and said that syndicalists in France and direct actionists in Great Britain had been shown that in Great Britain it is not so easy to throw society into a state of anarchy as they had imagined.

VON DER GOLTZ.

HAS HE GONE OVER TO THE RUSSIANS?

The German intrigue in the Baltic States deepens. According to an unconfirmed Berlin report General Von der Goltz and his Staff have "joined the Russians," and are now officially disavowed by the Germans.

Last week Von der Goltz, posing as a man with a mission to "save the world from Bolshevism," said that some of his troops would return to Germany, but 15,000 would remain in the country "not as Germans, but under Russian command."

WILSON'S PROGRESS.

Last night's bulletin stated that President Wilson had passed a comfortable day and his condition is slightly improved. Dr. Dercum, the neurogolist, says the President's mind is clear and alert. His two married daughters have returned home from the White House, where they had been staying for the last few days.

FAMOUS NEWSPAPER FOR SALE.

The "Freeman's Journal" (Dublin), the "Weekly Freeman," "Evening Telegraph," and "Sport" are offered for sale by tender as a going concern. Established in 1763, the "Freeman's Journal" has long played an important part in Irish politics. As the recognised organ of the National party, its editorial chair has been filled by many distinguished Irishmen, amongst them in latter days being Mr. Thomas Sexton, who, with Mr. T. M. Healy, Mr. T. P. O'Connor, and others, did so much to strengthen the hands of Mr. C. S. Parnell in his prolonged battle for Home Rule.

TROOPSHIP ROBBERIES.

An adjutant on a troopship told the Liverpool magistrate that he had tried for four years to capture thieves who had preyed on soldiers on board.

He said he had never experienced such a perfect system of thieving as by members of the crews of these vessels.

Returning home from Russia on the Czaritza £250 had been stolen from soldiers. Eighteen revolvers and a number of other articles had also been taken.

"SO I MURDERED HIM."

Johann Jäger, a farmer, of Weissenbach, Bavaria, was envious of his brother Sebastian, whose appetite was such that he consumed more than twice as much food as Johann did.

Johann therefore slew Sebastian with an axe and flung his body over a precipice into a stream. He was sentenced to fifteen years' hard labour.

ALLIES' FORCES.

IMPORTANT CHANGE IN COMMAND.

It is announced in Paris that General Mangin has been recalled from Mayence and placed at the disposal of the Ministry of War. The Tenth Army, which he commands, and all troops occupying Rhenish Prussia and the Palatinate will be grouped into one army under General Degoutte, who also replaces General Fayolle as Commander in Chief of the Allied forces in Rhineland.

The "Temps" understands that General Fayolle is to be Head of the Commission to supervise disarmament in Germany. The "Matin" states that General Gouraud, the hero of Champagne, who lost an arm at Gallipoli, will shortly take command of the French troops in Syria and Silicia.

AMERICAN AIR RACE.

BRITISH GENERAL COMPETES.

Brigadier-General Charlton, the British Air-Service Attaché at Washington, was among the competitors who left Mineola, Long Island, on the 2,700 mile air race to San Francisco. Twenty-one stops are allowed and all flying must be done between sunrise and sunset.

The Brigadier said he entered the race not with the idea of competing with American aviators but in the spirit of sportsmanship common to all aviators. He has since telegraphed that he was compelled to descend at Ithaca and is now out of the race.

While the competitors were starting, a military aeroplane carrying Mr. Crowell, Assistant Secretary for War, as passenger, fell 150 feet and was wrecked. Mr. Crowell and the aviator were badly shaken but otherwise unhurt.

LUTON RIOT BILL.

HEAVY PRICE FOR PEACE CELEBRATION.

A portion of the bill for Luton's unhappy peace celebration on July 19, when the town hall was burnt down, amounts to £6,597. This includes the cost of personal property destroyed and the cost of police protection.

The claims for property destroyed totalled £2,137 11s. 9d., and for police assistance £2,164 1s, 1d., the largest item in the latter amount being for police meals, £729 14s 6d.

Municipal Mutual Insurance, Ltd., state that they cannot make any payment in respect of the loss sustained by the destruction of the town hall.

In addition, there will be a large bill for the temporary accommodation of the corporation staff, and eventually the provision of a new town hall.

KING'S CERTIFICATE.

FOR INVALIDED R.A.F. OFFICERS.

It is announced by the Air Ministry that the King has approved of the issue of a certificate to R.A.F. officers who have relinquished their commissions during the war through having been invalided.

The King has further approved of the issue of a special distinctive certificate, to be entitled the King's second certificate, to officers who, after having become eligible for the award of the King's certificate, voluntarily served again, and again were invalided and relinquished their commissions during the war.

GERMAN DEPUTY WOUNDED.

Herr Haase, leader of the Independent Socialist Party, was shot at and wounded on Wednesday as he was proceeding to the Reichstag to make a speech.

Fortunately he was only slightly wounded. The motive of the would-be assassin, who is feeble minded, was a personal grievance.

OVER 51 YEARS IN PRISON.

Sentence of six months imprisonment was passed at Marylebone Police Court on Wednesday on Ellen Adams, otherwise Greenwood, for stealing two hats from the premises of Messrs. Marshall and Snelgrove, Vere-street.

It was stated that the woman was seventy-nine years of age, and that she had spent fifty-one years and five months in prison, having been first convicted at the age of sixteen.

WOODEN HUTS DEPRECATED BY THE L.C.C.

The London County Council Building Acts Committee, in reporting on the question of using Army and other wooden huts in order to relieve the housing scarcity, expresses grave anxiety on account of the liability to fire. If such huts are used at all it should be only until the housing problem is relieved and in any case for not more than seven years.

DEUTSCHLAND IN THE THAMES.

Towed by three tugs, the commercial submarine Deutschland, with which Germany endeavoured to evade the Allies' blockade, was brought up the Thames yesterday.

The vessel was moored off the Embankment, opposite Cleopatra's Needle.

SUMMARY COURT.

NECESSITY FOR BILLETING CERTIFICATES.

The Town Major of Cologne appeared to give evidence in a case in which Frederick Bourart, manager of the Hotel Du Nord, and Director Zeuzen, manager of the Hotel Kronprinz, were charged with permitting civilians to stay on their premises without a billeting certificate, or permission of the British Authorities.

These hotels, the Town Major said, were largely occupied by civilians, who had no billeting certificates, a practice contrary to the regulations affecting requisitioned hotels. In his opinion the porters at the hotels were really the guilty parties. They were evidently doing a little profiteering on their own account.

One of the defendants stated that he had a number of English gentlemen staying at his hotel. They informed him that they were unable to procure billeting tickets and refused to leave when requested to do so.

The case was adjourned for the hotel porters to be summoned.

Prefers Cologne.

Pleading guilty to entering British occupied territory without permission Catharina Müller of Düsseldorf pleaded she was not aware of the gravity of the charge. This was her second offence. She was found in Cologne on the 24th September without the necessary permit and was sent back to Düsseldorf. For the second offence she was fined 500 marks or ten days imprisonment and ordered to be deported.

PUT BACK THE CLOCK.

SUMMER TIME TO CEASE ON SATURDAY.

At midnight on Saturday, October 11th, all clocks in the British Occupied Area will be put back one hour, and on Sunday civil and military clocks will (or should) coincide.

All thoughtful people will therefore get an extra hour in bed next Sunday morning. The thoughtless will pay the usual penalty.

DRAPERS AND GROCERS.

REFUND THE PROFITEERING HALF-PENCE.

The investigations of the Hackney Profiteering Committee—the first to get to work—have resulted in a local draper being ordered to refund three-half-pence to a customer, whom they considered he had overcharged by this amount. In another case in which a draper had charged 5½d for a roll of cotton of which the pre-war price was 2d, it was decided to report the matter to the Board of Trade. A third delinquent was ordered to refund 2½d to a customer who had paid 5d for one ounce of pepper.

LABOUR CONFERENCE IN U.S.A.

GERMAN DELEGATES TO ATTEND.

Mr. C. W. Bowerman, Secretary to the Parliamentary Committee of the Trade Union Congress, stated yesterday "The Committee have been informed that the German and Austrian Governments have accepted an invitation to send delegates to the Labour Conference at Washington. Therefore nothing stands in the way of the British delegation proceeding to Washington."

BUS AND TRAM WAGES UP.

The award was issued yesterday of the arbitration enquiry into the application of the National Transport Workers' Federation for an increase of twelve shillings per week for tramway and omnibus workers in London and the provinces.

The court granted an increase of four shillings to workers over eighteen and two shillings to workers under eighteen.

CANADIAN PROHIBITION.

Mr. Doherty, the Minister of Justice, has introduced into the Dominion House of Commons at Ottawa a Bill to amend the Canadian Temperance Act. The Bill seeks to provide that where the majority of electors in any province declare in favour of prohibiting the importation or manufacture of alcoholic liquors, such manufacture or importation shall be prohibited by proclamation. This course has become necessary owing to the expiry of the war-time prohibition Order in Council.

VIA THE HOOK OR ANTWERP?

The Great Eastern Railway Company resumed yesterday the boat services to the Hook of Holland and Antwerp. All the boats are those which were running before the war but they have been refitted throughout.

NORWAY DRYING UP.

So far as they have been counted, the votes in the prohibition plebiscite of Norway show a majority of over four to three in favour of prohibition.

BURNT TO DEATH.

FOUR WOMEN TRAPPED IN BLAZING WAREHOUSE.

Five persons — four women and a lad — were burned to death and several others badly injured in a fire which broke out in a building in the heart of the city of Manchester on Tuesday in a warehouse in Turner street, in the centre of the business quarter. It consisted of four floors, the first occupied by Isaac Wolff, a dealer, the second by Isaac Osschinsky, a dealer, who employed 19 hands, the third by C. H. Seddon, a mantle dealer, and the fourth by Hermann Goldstone, a mantle and cos ume manufacturer, who employed about 30 hands.

A police officer noticed flames bursting from the first floor. He raised the alarm, and the fire brigade were soon on the scene, guided to the spot by the screams of the workers, mostly women, in the building.

It was found that a number of the workers in the upper floors had escaped through the roof. There was a danger of their being cut off, but the brigade got their ladders into position and the fugitives on the roof were brought to safety amid cheers.

By the time the fire was got under control the four floors of the building had been burnt out. It was then found that several lives had been lost, and five bodies, badly charred, were recovered. Eight other persons were taken to the infirmary suffering from burns and injuries of various kinds.

INSURANCE BUSINESS.

GERMAN COMPANIES BANNED FROM POLAND.

From the 1st October all German insurance companies have been compelled to cease operations in Poland, and only insurance concerns from Great Britain and the Allies in the Great War are to be allowed to undertake insurance work for the future. Arrangements have already been made to open up agencies in the principal centres, such as Warsaw and Konigsberg.

UNIVERSITY HOUSING PROBLEM.

The university authorities both of Oxford and Cambridge, are finding extreme difficulty in providing room for the large body of students anxious to come into residence for the Michaelmas term.

At Cambridge the entry for next term will be a record in numbers and includes Princes Albert and Henry, who become undergraduates at Trinity. The difficulty of lodgings has largely been surmounted by extending the area wherein undergraduates may lodge from a one mile radius from St. Mary church to two and a half miles.

Oxford has made a similar arrangement to enable men to find sleeping accommodation in country districts, while Keble has added to its room by erecting wooden army huts.

RELIEVING DOCK CONGESTION.

About one thousand lorries are said to be going to Liverpool to relieve the congestion at the docks. It is hoped that the employment of these lorries, of which the Government were using over twenty-five thousand at the end of last week, will assist the system of inland distribution, the breakdown of which was the chief cause of congestion at the docks.

Their use should also provide further experience showing how far road transport of this kind is a practical proposition for commercial purposes. At present, of course, any loss in working will be more than offset by the lessening of the enormous loss resulting from the detention of ships unable to discharge their cargo.

FAMOUS MEN HONOURED.

Cambridge proposes to confer the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws on the King of Italy. Admiral Sims, General Diaz, Lord Jellicoe, Lord Allenby and Admiral Hall.

ALIENS NATURALISED.

Certificates of British naturalisation were granted in September to 202 aliens, of whom 4 were American, 5 Austrian, 3 Czecho-Slovak, 5 Danish, 9 Dutch, 9 French, 13 German, 4 Italian, 11 Polish, 125 Russian, and 14 of other nationalities. Sixteen of the persons naturalised including 3 of the Austrians and 7 Germans, are widows of British birth.

GEN. IRONSIDE KNIGHTED.

General Sir Edmund Ironside, who commanded the British Forces in Northern Russia, was received by the King at Buckingham Pa ace yesterday, and was invested with the insignia of a Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath and also that of a C.M.G.

LETTER WRITING.

Few blessings, it is to be feared, accrued from the recent industrial conflict in England, but one of them was the excuse, as plausible as it was rare, which the Postmaster-General provided for the dilatory writer of letters.

He recommended us not to utilise the post for other than urgent or important correspondence, which seemed to be a very good reason for resting our oars a little while in epistolary waters. How seldom can we do so with as calm and easy a conscience! How rarely do the inventive faculties obtain so placid a respite!

During Armageddon most of us were inveterate writers of letters, some of them tedious to conscientious censors, many of them gay even in the hour of darkest peril, but all of them it may be hoped profoundly welcome to recipients. Even the trusting mater who received the weekly assurance "Dear Mother, I am enclosing a postal order for half-a-crown, but not this week" must surely have been rewarded some day.

Since the Armistice, however, quills have become more sluggish, the welcome cessation of anxiety at home rendering the despatch of personal news less pressing. The arrival of many wives in our midst, moreover, who were ever the eager recipients of such intelligence, has given the pen a holiday.

In one sense this easing off in our letter-writing is to be regretted. At the present time our prose is vastly inferior to our poetry. "I am not happy about the the prose of to-day," says Mr. Edmund Gosse, who recently celebrated his seventieth birthday. "The poetry is so good and the best that you can say about the prose is that it is indifferent."

Now the only prose that the vast majority of us write is solely expressed in letter writing, so that any decline in the practice of that art means less opportunity for the cultivation of good prose. If by writing less we wrote better, such a diminution, far from perturbing us, would be a source of gratification. But it is gravely to be feared that in the majority of cases the quality deteriorates in proportion to the quantity.

Many of our readers with commendable wisdom have started writing to us. It is an excellent habit. Most of these correspondents we have no doubt pay more attention to their thoughts than the manner in which they are expressed; to them the body is more than raiment, the wine more than the bottle, but, notwithstanding, the quality of the style is uniformly and agreeably high. The number of people who can compose well in their letters is higher, we are convinced, than most critics imagine. Hyper-criticism, fortunately, need not corrupt one's style.

It was Dean Swift who wrote as follows to his correspondent, Isaac Bickerstaff Esquire—"Sir, There are some abuses among us of great consequence, the reformation of which is properly your province, though, as far as I am conversant in your papers, you have not yet considered them."

That is the burden of the song of most of our correspondents, but we prefer to hear from them rather than be doomed to silence. We are as fond of the disputatious as Sarah Battle was of whist.

WHY NOT?

With educational training in the Army at such a high pitch, surely now is an opportune time for introducing classical and poetical language into the humdrum routine of life.

Think how much nicer it would be to the finer feelings of a defaulter being "weighed off" by the Colonel, or an innocent recruit trying to "wangle" a "hard case" Quartermaster, were the following scene enacted:

(Scene: Quartermaster's Stores, Umpteenth Battalion, Umpshire Regt.)

Quartermaster: "Hail to thee, blithe spirit! What ails thee?"

Recruit: "In all humility I crave the wherewithal to encase my legs, O kind Sir!"

Quartermaster, (aside): "A scurvy knave; fain would I teach him a lesson".

Quartermaster (To recruit): "I am not coveteous for gold, nor care I who doth feed upon my cost; it yearns me not if men my garments wear; such outward things dwell not in my desire.

A thousand pardons. To-day I have none!"

(Takes a sip at a mysterious bottle to sustain his part.)

Recruit: "A thousand thanks. Peace be with you. I will call again."

* * *

An air of gallantry underlies the whole business; there is a complete absence of those riotous assemblies so often to be deplored in the vicinity of the Quartermaster's Stores.

Or imagine the following:

(Scene: Orderly Room, Umpteenth Battalion, Umpshire Regt. Dejected looking prisoner being "weighed off" after having imbibed too freely).

Colonel (to prisoner): "Come, come! 'Twere better far to follow the paths of virtue, bearing thyself with modest humility. What sayest thou? A lapse forsooth!"

Defaulter: "A privileged occasion, Sir. A comrade in arms departing for his native heath."

Colonel: "Justice shall be done, though the heavens fall. Far be it from me to administer it with a heavy hand. I sentence you to one day's fatigue in cleaning my pet canary's cage."

(Scene closes showing Colonel engaged in reading "The Merchant of Venice" whilst the Sergeant Major is seen on the verge of an apoplectic seizure.)

HAWKEYE.

A MEETING.

He stood on the hill by the Observatory at Greenwich contentedly looking over London as it lay spread out at his feet.

He was just demobbed and had returned to his once favourite spot for a view of London previous to setting out once again to make a living in that huge city.

It was obvious he was just demobbed. He wore his Balmoral at an acute angle and although only a Lance Jack, sported slacks, (neatly pressed) and carried a silver headed cane, only permitted in the army to sergeant-majors. smoked a pipe and carried his disengaged hand in his pocket.

Another figure in khaki came up the main Park road towards the Observatory. One glance at him showed clearly that he had once belonged to the Sanitary Section of the R.A.M.C., by the twitching of his nose in search of drain smells, and two watchful eyes, and ears kept open for the sight or hum of a stray late mosquito.

At the sight of the Balmoral adorning the head of the man still gazing over London he quickened his step, forgetful of drains and quitoes. At the sound of the steps the first figure turned lazily round, but at the sight of the other his face lit up and his hand met that of his friend in a firm grip. "Billy!"—"Jack!"

They laughed together as they shook hands, and dispite several waiting vacant seats stood and talked. They had met twice previously since donning khaki.

The first time in Hazebroeck, dead, dreary, dismal Hazebroeck still within shell fire end subject at intervals to be further demolished by bombs.

Then again at Cologne. — What a difference! Cologne gay, full of life, Opera, cafés, theatres, clubs, a fit town to be occupied by a cheerful victorious army,

This was their third meeting, when each was entitled to wear civvies—when he could get them—and the Observatory frowned grimly at their laughter. Forgotten was London, civvies and the delight of civilization: they were back again in the old times of mud, shells, trenches and still more mud.

Some time later a glance at the Observatory clock warned them it was tea time and with a last look over grey old London, nearly enveloped in the evening mist, they turned back towards Blackheath, this time flaming for the future in which tales of "out there" would be kept for the winter hours over a cheerful fire while duly paying homage to My Lady Nicotine.

R.Y.W.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

We Hear all Sides and Accept no Responsibility for our Readers' Views.

ENGLISH YET NOT ENGLISH.

Sir,—May I make a plea for the position of the English wife of a German? I have always maintained that the English are first, yet this evening I was refused admittance to the Empire Leave Club, concert, because I wore no brassard, being the wife of a Repatriated German.

Am I any worse than the British soldier or officer who openly escorts a German girl, and this at a time when we are still if not actually at war, not yet friends?

At least, when I got married so many years ago there was no question of war. I have only been away from England a few months, am terribly homesick, and feeling very patriotic towards England and proud of my country, I only count the months when I hope to return there, even if leave my husband.

What more natural than that I should want to go to amusements organised by the English. There is no more patriotic English woman in Cologne to-day than I am. In spite of the law I still am and intend to be an English woman.

Is it fair then I ask to refuse a place at an English Concert to a poor English woman who has no "right" to a brassard? May I just mention that it was the fact that the British were here, that finally induced me to come to Germany at all to join my husband and it seems hard not to be able to go to an English concert.

AN EXILE.

BOOKS FOR REFERENCE.

Sir,—Your correspondent signing himself "Student" must surely be shortsighted if he cannot read the names of most of the books on the shelves at the Army Book shop.

If he is, that is his misfortune as special arrangements can hardly be expected for such as he. There exists a complete catalogue of all the books however and this can be consulted with ease at any time.

As I have found from experience there is practically no limit to the patience of the assistants who will show one any number of books one fancies, in the catalogue.

It is but right in my opinion that only the staff should be permitted to remove books from the shelves as this ensures the return of volumes to their proper places.

ANOTHER STUDENT.

Sir,—I read with interest "Student's" remarks with regard to the Rhine Army Book Shop. Being a student he is probably a learned and well read man, but if he can point out to me a reference library of any note in England run on the lines he suggests I shall only be too pleased to visit it, and, incidentally to appropriate as many books as possible without undue reference to the librarian.

I believe students are usually versed in the character of books also in the names of good writers on the subjects they study, and, in consequence, should be in a position to walk into the library and ask for the book they want. In case of requiring a book for perusal or reference, I understand there is always a librarian on duty to remove the volumes from the shelves as required, and may he remain there to hand a few more tomes of learning to

A DUNCE.

UNSEEMLY.

Sir,—I went to a Fancy Dress dance in the Church Army Hall, Hotel du Nord, the other evening.

I am sorry to have to bring this forward, but an otherwise enjoyable evening was spoilt by a certain number of men, who seemed to regard the Dancing Hall as a bear-garden. I refer to some of those that make a habit of attending these dances in female attire.

As there were English ladies present, I consider their conduct very infra dig, as I happen to know that several of the ladies have taken a very decided objection to the behaviour and remarks of these would-be female impersonators.

Nothing, it seems to me can be done to stop this nuisance, unless the pressure of opinion is brought to bear upon it.

The general tone of these dances is excellent and is only spoilt by these few mentioned.

TERPSICHORE.

WIVES ON THE RHINE.

Sir,—Your letter box has lately contained a large number of letters from husbands and the wives who are now resident with them on the Rhine. One lady to-day asks that special accommodation be set aside in the Officers' Club for her use.

Husbands are daily beating their breasts because they cannot now, as they did last month buy their ration coupons at a lower price than the official valuation.

Do they calculate the joys of marital reunion in terms of marks? If so let me appeal to them to conceal from the bachelor's wondering eyes an aspect of conjugal felicity which verges on the sordid.

To all these good people of both genders I would say; please do not give the impression that you think the Army of Occupation exists for your special convenience and remember that you are a small minority who cannot have everything run entirely as you wish, be your soprano ever so shrill.

MEFIEZ VOUS.

THE MARRIED OFFICER.

Sir,—I have read "P.B.O.'s" letter in the "Cologne Post" and consider it rather unfortunate that one of your correspondents should venture to pass a verdict on a subject with which he does not appear to have made himself conversant.

I refer to the last paragraph of his letter where he states that failure to produce a marriage certificate involves forfeiture of allowances. This is certainly not the case, and if "P.B.O." is temporarily deprived of the increased rates in the absence of his marriage certificate, he will certainly continue to receive allowances as heretofore.

If on the other hand he cares to consult the authorities responsible for the issue of allowances, I have no doubt they will be able to comfort him considerably and probably find some means of avoiding delay in increasing his allowances by obviating the necessity of producing his marriage certificate in consideration of some other suitable evidence such as he refers to. I feel confident he will find that Paymasters are very sympathetic in the matter.

Furthermore your correspondent's lament seems somewhat inopportune having regard to the fact that the adjustment of the increase is not due until the beginning of next month — under a G.R.O. — and he can hardly know, therefore, what is to be done in his case.

ALMOST QUITO.

OUR MUSICAL TASTE.

Sir,—I am interested in this subject because I am a lover of catchy tuneful music and do not agree that to be musical one must slavishly worship the heavy classical compositions so much favoured by the German.

Because I cannot sit through four or five hours of opera, I won't admit that I or British folk generally are unmusical.

Each country has its own taste in music and provided they get the kind they like I believe we British are just as music-loving as any other nation.

At home you will find every street boy whistling the latest music hall ditty. Here in Germany I dont hear this, nor do I find piano-organs playing in the streets to enliven the inhabitants with the newest popular airs.

In my billet the family never play the catchy tunes Englishmen love; they never dream of Ragtime, that most exhilarating of music, but, instead they have a repertory of all the classic musicians — stuff which bores me stiff — and makes me long for the airs we can hear at home.

POPULAR.

YOUR TEA WILL COST YOU MORE!

Sir,—May I give you another instance of discrepances in prices charged to troops in Rhineland?

In the Market Place at Bonn two institutions for the welfare and convenience of the British soldiers exist, one comes under the category of the "old firm", and the other is apparently a women's philantrophic institution working at a great loss.

At the Triangle depot, where the place is placarded with numerous notices to the effect that you are effusively welcomed, the beverage of doubtful quality and certain weakness will cost you 50 Pfgs. per cup.

Walk across the road and a much better, larger cup of good brew is served for 25 Pfgs.

Considering that one association is a much larger concern than the other, and therefore in a position to buy in greater quantities, the 100 per cent increase in charge is not easily understood. In fact the business seems to savour of profiteering.

TOCK.

THE RATE OF EXCHANGE.

Sir,—I was just sitting down in the Club to add another to the stream of indignant letters you have received on the rate of exchange and the closing of the Field Cashier when someone came in and told me that official was at work again and merrily handing over the shekels.

I was dazed at first by the unexpected news but when I recovered I began to put two and two together. And then I wondered!

HUNDRED AND TWENTY.

PHOTOGRAPHY IN WINTER.

Sir—So many men in The Rhine Army have taken up the pursuit of photography in the past summer, that it must seem to many of them a hardship to have to, as many less enthusiastic people would instruct them to do, pack the camera away for the winter. Let us for a moment consider the facts and fallacies, which have given rise to this most erroneous idea.

First and foremost, one must suppose, is the out-door discomfort of many winter days. But what is that to the man who is determined to express nature, in picture form, as he sees her? Whether it be a howling gale, tossing the tree tops, whirling the last leaves of Autumn from the parent stem, or whether it be a quiet, misty, morning with the early sun licking up the vapours for its morning toilet, what matters it? Is it not Nature, powerful, glorious in its might, or again, Nature loving and kind and beautiful?

Secondly, the technical difficulty of an impoverished light. It is the great factor of exposure once again, that will make for success or failure. A rapid modern plate should not leave much wanting in the way of sufficient exposure. Of course a tripod is practically a "sine qua non" for pictorial work in the depths of Winter.

To the ardent pictorialist what better scope can he have for his energies, than an undulating expanse of pasture-land, backed up by a group of dark trees, the whole sprinkled with a light mantle of snow, and in the foreground a few sheep huddled together for mutual warmth and comfort.

I say to those who would join me in a tramp through the coming Winter bringing their cameras with them: "May your journey, your struggles with the difficulties of winter be met with success, and your album be garnished with the beauties of Winter as well as those of Summer."

BOULOGNE.

The Sea is awake.
D'ye hear the song of his waking
Where the waves break.
In thunder of symphonies, shaking
Earth chords that mix in the music they make?
And the wind, the invisible Rider
With invisible whip
Guider, misguider
Of cloud and of wave and of ship,
Laughing confider
Of morning — red dawn at her lip —
Scatters over the glimmering floor
Hither to me
Where it falls, jasper heaps on the shore
The white dust of the Sea.

KALK SHIELD.

Last Lap in Popular Y.M.C.A. Football Competition.

SEMI-FINAL RESULTS.

From the commencement, considerable interest has been displayed in the Kalk Y.M.C.A. Football Shield Competition, and the process of discovering the best team among the many entries has produced keen and exciting games. High pitched rivalry was revealed in the semi-final encounters which resulted as under:—

23rd Royal Fusiiers 1; "B" Bty. 190/R.F.A. 0.
1/6th West Yorks 2; 9th D.L.I. 1.

The final will be played on Sunday on the 93rd Bde. ground Exerzier Platz, Kalk (Berg.-Gladbach Car). The kick-off is timed for 2.30 p.m. and the shield and trophies will be presented after the game.

COMPOSITION OF FINALISTS.

The 23rd R.F. are a hard-working, rather than a brilliant team. They have won all their Shield games by the odd goal, and give one the impression of just rising to the occasion. In each game they have played, their opponents set the pace. The goalie is very safe covered by a good pair of backs. Of the halves, the centre is the only man with a true conception of the game, the wing halves being too wild. Forward, the two wingers are far above the average, especially the outside left but it's the inside forwards who mar the team; they are slovenly. Still the team should give a good account of itself, and make the 1/6 West Yorks go all out.

The teams record in the competition is as follows:—

1st round beat Bakeries Kalk. 2-1.
2nd „ „ 87th Field Ambulance 1-0.
3rd „ „ 53rd N. Fus., 1-0.
Semi-final „ "B" Bty. 190/R.F.A. 1-0.

WEST YORKS TEAM.

1/6th West Yorks possess a well-balanced team, with two or three brilliant players, i.e. centre-half, centre forward and inside left. They have won all their games by clean football. The desire to play the game for the games sake is fully installed into the players by their admirable skipper. The goalie is useful and the backs, if not great, are at least safe. The wing halves are plodders and the forwards real match-winners. They certainly have the more impressive record.

Their record to date is appended:—

1st round: beat 93rd Bde. R.G.A. 4-0.
2nd „ „ 11th Queen's 2-0.
3rd „ „ 6th Corps Sig. 9-1.
Semi-final: 9th D.L.I 2-1.

CUP TIE FORM.

1/6th West Yorks v. 1/9th D.L.I. Semi-Final.

The semi-final of the Y.M.C.A. (Kalk) Shield competition proved a stiff tussle. The fact that the same teams met under similar conditions last season heightened the interest among their supporters, and the West Yorks were successful in their resolve to settle the account. The match was played in perfect autumn weather on the 93rd Bde. R.G.A. Ground, Kalk. Both teams were strongly supported from batman to brigadier, and the band of the West Yorks played selections before and at the close of the game.

In the first half the Durhams, suffering the disadvantages of slope and sun, were ill at ease and never attained their usual form. After five minutes play the Yorks became dangerous, and Middlemas, the Durham left back, conceded a corner, but Lord (right back) easily cleared Bennett's kick from the right flag. Next the D.L.I. missed an easy chance. Jones at left back made a weak clearance, and Gray (inside left) misfired with an open goal before him.

A Magnificent Game.

Then ensued a continuous pressure on the part of the West Yorks, who were playing scientific football. But for Sgt. Rocks their custodian, who played a magnificent game, the Durhams would have been nonplussed. Early on he skilfully robbed C.Q.M.S. Thaine when the latter was dribbling through. Then Womerley, who played a clever game for the Yorkshires at centre-half, shot inches wide.

The centre-forward, Lt. Rumney, was equally brilliant and kept sniping at the D.L.I. goal. These two players were ably supported by their outside-right, R.Q.M.S. Franks, who was very speedy, and put in a good drop shot, from which Lord conceded a corner-kick that Rocks did well to touch away. A little later Rocks saved brilliantly from a high header by Lt. Rumney.

Well Deserved Goal.

At the end of twenty minutes' play, the Yorks gained the goal they well deserved. Womerley made an individual effort and found the net with a low drive at close quarters. This reverse acted as an incentive to the Durhams, whilst the West Yorks slowed down considerably. After pretty headwork by the miners' forwards Conway headed just over.

Then followed the goal by which the Yorkshires won, Butterill scoring at close quarters though he appeared to be yards off-side. Next Middlemas deliberately handled, and Womerley aimed a high shot which Rocks did well to divert over the bar. On yet another occasion Rocks was the saviour of his side when Lt. Rumney sent in a low drive which he saved, throwing himself full length.

When half-time arrived, the West Yorks were easy favourites. Early in the second half, Lord handled near the danger area, but kicked away Lt. Rumney's low shot. Then the Durhams resuscitated themselves and played as though for their lives. They were rewarded a quarter of an hour after the resumption. Reynolds centred from the left wing and Stock easily beat Trill with a low cannon drive. Time and again Slack broke through, but success seemed elusive, and Reynolds and Gray headed over.

Put up a Barrage.

Shortly after, Gray had to retire as the result of a collision, but returned 5 minutes later. Again Gosling had to withdraw after a shake-up with Phillips and the Durhams had to play on with ten men. They were now putting up a barrage on the Yorks' goal and Rutter, Conway and Slack came near to success. Rocks saved again from Bennett and C.Q.M.S. Thaine, and then Slack scored.

LEEDS F.C's FUTURE.

Possible Election of Port Vale to the League.

JOINT COMMISSION MEETING.

It is expected that a definite future regarding Leeds City Football Club will result from Wednesdays meeting of the joint Commission.

In the event of suspension being continued it is understood that the Football League is ready to substitute another club for Leeds City which will probably be Port Vale who have already attempted to secure election to the League.

Rule 28.

There is one aspect of the matter, on which a few sentences may usefully be written, (says G. Wagstaffe Simmons in an article in "Sporting Life.") Rule 28 of the F.A. states:

"The Council shall have power to call upon any associations, clubs, or players to produce any books, letters, or documents, and other evidence the Council may desire."

That rule is so plainly worded that there cannot be any mistake as to its meaning. To that rule Leeds City subscribed. It bound itself to observe it, but when asked to produce documents that are believed to throw important light on certain transactions of the club, the directors state they are unable to do so because they are in the custody of their solicitors, who are under a pledge not to release them unless the consent of all parties is first obtained.

The solicitors, of course, are blameless. They are acting upon the instructions of their clients, and as they have not received the formal consent of all the parties to release the documents they still retain them under lock and key. It is the club that must be held responsible. The Commission naturally takes the view that if the club was stupid enough to get itself into a difficulty of this kind the club must get itself out of it. Those documents the Commission has made up its mind it must have, and it is for the club to produce them. The directors say: "We cannot get possession of them." Here is a deadlock so far as the documents are concerned, but it threw upon the Commission the onus of suspending the club for a serious infringement of the F.A. rules, and there the matter remains for the immediate present. There may be interesting developments at Sheffield.

MID-WEEK FOOTBALL.

Southern League.

Exeter 3; Southend 0; Reading 1; Merthyr 0; Portsmouth 0; Brighton 0.

ENGLAND v. WALES.

Cardiff International to be Played.

Mr. F. J. Wall the secretary of the Football Association, yesterday morning got into communication with the Great Western Railway, and the information he received was so satisfactory that he was able to state definitely that the "Victory" international match arranged for Cardiff to-morrow between England and Wales would be played.

With regard to the first of the two matches, that was postponed from last Saturday, a new date for this is not likely to be fixed until the International Select on Committee meet in London next Monday.

The England team to meet Wales next Saturday is:—Williamson (Arsenal), Ball (Birmingham), A. E. Knight (Portsmouth) captain, Voyzey (Millwall), Hilditch (Manchester United), Grimsdell (Tottenham Hotspur), Hendren (Brentford), Buchan (Sunderland), Kitchen (Sheffield United), Barnes (Manchester City), Brooks (Wolverhampton Wanderers). Reserves: Mitchell (Queen's Park Ranger), and Edmonds (Watford).

LONDON CUP SEMI-FINALS.

The draw for the semi-final of the London Challenge Cup, to be played November 10, has been made as follows:—

At Chelsea.—Fulham or Arsenal v. Crystal Palace.

At Highbury.—Nunhead or Chelsea v. Queen's Park Rangers.

The Fulham v. Arsenal replay will take place at Highbury on Monday next, unless the Football League order Fulham to meet Bristol City on that date, in which case the Challenge Cup replay must take place on or before October 20.

LEADING GOAL SCORERS.

The following is the list of the leading goal scorers in the First, Second, and Southern Leagues, down to date:

First League.—Kitchen (Sheffield United) 12, Buchan (Sunderland) 10, Smith (Bolton) 10, White (Arsenal) 7, Barnes (Manchester City) 7, Browell (Manchester City) 7, Elliott (Middlesbrough) 6, Woodcock (Manchester United) 6. McIlvenny (Bradford City) 6, Roberts (Bolton) 6.

Second League.—Lane (Blackpool) 12, Cock (Fulham) 11, McLeod (Leeds City) 9, Bliss (Tottenham, 8, Newton (Barnsley) 7, Bate (Wolverhampton) 6, Puddefoot (West Ham) 6. Cock (Huddersfield) 6, Millard (Birmingham) 6.

Southern League.—Broad (Millwall) 11. Stringfellow (Portsmouth) 7, Grimshaw (Cardiff) 6, Boyne (Brentford) 6, Evans (Cardiff) 5, Turner (Merthyr) 5, Armstrong (Portsmouth) 5. Burrill (Southend) 5, Edmonds (Watford) 5.

SCOTTISH GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

The draw for the Scottish Professional Championship, which takes place at Monifieth to-day and tomorrow, was made in Edinburgh on Tuesday, when the record entry of 46 was received.

The principal pairings in the first day's draw are: L. B. Ayton (St. Andrews) and A. Thomson (Macrihanish); B. Syms (North Berwick and J. McAndrew (Cruden Bay); Tom Fernie (Turnberry) and H. Bain (Carnoustie); A. Kirkcaldy (St. Andrews) and P. Robinson (Braids).

BILLIARDS.

Closing Scores:—Reece 3187; Inman 2501. Reece 295 and 393; Inman 312.

KING JOHN.

Favourite At The Moment For Cesarewitch.

"AN A1 CHANCE."

The situation for the Cesarewitch becomes increasingly interesting, King John, Unitoi, and Eton Rambler being the horses most talked of this week.

The first-named came remarkably well out of a recent gallop over two miles, and there is certainly a probability that he will add to Mr. P.P. Gilpin's successful record in this race (writes "Watchman" in "The Morning Post.") King John is already as good a favourite as any in the entry, and I expect he will be in first request on the day.

A NOTE ON KING JOHN.

Another racing scribe, "Captain Heath" in the "Daily Chronicle" writes as follows:—At the moment the Newmarket correspondents favour King John above and before all others for the Cesarewitch. They have a good word to say for Bridgend, and also for Eton Rambler, but King John is the reigning candidate for the great event next Wednesday. In a fast gallop the other day King John "lost" White Heat before the end of the journey, and Mr. Gilpin's horse finished the long journey alone without faltering.

When I was at Doncaster I saw King John beat Rothesay Bay over a mile and a half, but he went over to Lord Derby's horse and interfered with him to such an extent that he was promptly disqualified. When a horse does this it is usually the result of distress at the end of a tiring journey, and at the time I noted the fact that King John might not be a real Cesarewitch horse.

Gilpin, however, is, like Taylor, a wizard in training horses for long distance events, and if he thinks that King John has got an A1 chance, then I am sure that it would be folly to leave the horse out of calculations.

MR. BOTTOMLEY'S SUCCESS.

Third On List of Winning Owners in Belgium.

Mr. Bottomley's raid on the Ostend meeting has resulted in his occupying third place in the list of winning owners in Belgium.

The Stockel Stud comes first with 126,041fr., proceeding M. R. de Bocarme with 125,338fr., then Mr. Bottomley with 102,141fr.

The Stockel Stud's winnings have been earned on the flat, while M. de Bocarme and Mr. Bottomley have scored under both rules.

The latter's total is formed of 80,731fr. won on the flat and 21,410fr. over jumps—the highest figure for the year.

LONDON BETTING.

Cesarewitch.

6/1 King John; 9 1 Gay Lord; 10/1 Unitoi; 100 6 Ivanhoe; 100,3 Warwick and Zinovia; 20/1 Clarion and Dromio.

SPORT IN BRIEF.

Abandoned.

The Cardiff races, fixed for Friday and Saturday, have been abandoned owing to railway difficulties.

At Manchester.

In six round contests F. Wood (Salford) beat Young Tatt (Rochdale) and Eddie Matthews (Salford) beat J. Lancaster (Salford).

Smith v. Lawrence.

Smith and Lawrence are playing a match of 12,000 up at Thurstons Leicester-square Hall, Lawrence receiving 4,500 start.

Postponed.

The Southern League match between Queen's Park Rangers and Newport County fixed to take place at Shepherd's Bush on Thursday has been postponed.

Too Late For Cup Tie.

The Chelsea players were unable to get back from Burnley in time for the cup-tie at Nunhead and the match was postponed until Monday next.

Aldershot Boxing.

The 4th K.R.R.C. held a successful tourney at Marlborough Lines Gym., Aldershot, when the novices' competitions produced some keen boxing.

Exmoor Staghunting.

From the meet at Alderman's Barrow the Devon and Somerset Staghounds had over a two hours' run. A stag was roused in Hawk Combe, and was eventually killed at Horser Green.

Hitting Low.

A ten round contest between Jim Connor (Miles Platting) and Andy Geraghty (Rochdale) was going strongly in favour of Connor when he was disqualified in the third round for hitting low.

Racing At St. Cloud.

Sportsmen who had been deprived of a week's racing turned out in numbers at Saint Cloud. The fields were large and gave backers plenty of scope for speculating, and they managed to prove fairly correct in their choice.

New Billiard Rule.

The new rule 21 (relating to the referee's duties) renders any misconception impossible, for it is enacted that the referee "shall (at any time), on appeal by a player, decide any question of fact connected with the play."

Beaten On Points.

At the Alhambra Theatre, Openshaw, Manchester. Jim Riley (Wigan) beat Kid Lees (Oldham) on points in a 13 round contest at catch-weights, the persistency of the winner gaining him the verdict in a stubborn bout.

DESTROYED FOOTBALL DAMAGES

In Peterborough County Court this week a small boy named Sebastian Trentlein claimed compensation for a football destroyed. He was playing in his father's field when the wind blew the ball into a neighbour's garden. The man thrust his garden fork through the ball three times.

The judge awarded the boy half a guinea damages.

BASHAM-WELLS MATCH OFF.

Why the Great Welter-Weight Fight is Postponed.

SUBSTITUTE PROGRAMME.

It was announced in these columns yesterday that the important welter-weight contest between Johnny Basham and Bermondsey Billy Wells would take place at the Holborn Stadium to-morrow evening. The match has now been postponed, however.

The fixture was originally billed for to-day at the Stadium and then came the railway strike. This led Mr. Cochran to cancel the contest but with the sudden finish of the labour trouble, it was decided that the fight should take place on Saturday.

But the two men chiefly concerned had something to say about this. They argued that since they had both suspended training on account of the cancellation of the original date they would be unable to get fit again at so short a notice. The plea is certainly reasonable enough, and so the contest has been held over until a later date.

In the meantime, another attractive bout has been arranged as a substitute in Saturday's bill. Willie Farrell and Joe Attwood, welter-weights, will try conclusions.

GIANT v. GIANT.

Fulton Matched to Box Gordon Coghill.

Fred Fulton's perseverance, or rather his manager's, is not to go unrewarded, as Captain Gordon Coghill has consented to meet him on October 30. Coghill hails from Australia, where he was generally regarded as the heavy-weight champion, and only the outbreak of war stopped him from securing that distinction. He distinguished himself on active service by his daring and initiative, for which he received promotion from the ranks.

Though not quite so tall or so heavy as Fulton, he is big enough for the job. He is 6ft. 3½ins. in his stockinged feet, and weighs about fourteen stone. His pluck is unquestionable, and now that he has fully recovered from his wounds he may be expected to give Fulton a stiff argument; stiff enough, maybe, to make our other "heavies" regret the shyness they have shown whenever Mr. O'Rourke has invited them to meet his protégé.

McGOORTY AND BECKETT.

On Saturday night, in Paris, Eddie McGoorty, the American, will have a contest with the French middle-weight, Balzac, and Joe Beckett and many other notable boxers will give sparring exhibitions. Francois Descamps, manager of Carpentier, writes to say that McGoorty, after his affair with Balzac, will proceed to La Guerche to assist the French champion in his training for the match with Beckett on Dec. 4. Charles Ledoux is preparing for his contest with Jim Driscoll at the National Sporting Club on the 20th inst. at Manitot. Carpentier, who left for La Guerche last Monday, states that, except for a visit to Paris next Saturday in order to see Beckett box, he will remain at his training quarters until he crosses the Channel for his match with the English champion. He is especially pleased to have McGoorty as his principal sparring partner.

TOMMY NOBLE REPEATS HIS CHALLENGE.

The ex-bantam-weight champion Tommy Noble has posted a deposit of £200 to make a match at 8st 10.b with the winner of the contest on Oct. 20 between Charles Ledoux and Jim Driscoll. He is also open to give Eugene Criqui his revenge in a match at 8st 10.b, for £200 a side and the best purse.

A VIGOROUS GAME.

37 C.C.S. V 36 C.C.S. Football Match at Deutz.

These teams met on the former's ground at Deutz on Wednesday afternoon, the visiting club winning an interesting and well-contested game by two goals to nil.

There was a lively opening. Both goals were vigorously assailed, but the defences proved equal to the occasion, and it was not until midway through the initial half that Thompson, taking advantage of the miskick of a home back scored with a fast shot which landed high in the net. Stung by this reverse, the home side played up in spirited fashion and Ayres in the "36" goal had an anxious time, but by some admirable goalkeeping and aided by Lewis at back he kept his charge intact, half time arriving with "36" leading by a goal.

Strong Pressure.

The second half was also evenly contested up to the last quarter of an hour of the game. It was during this period that the visitors, keeping up a strong pressure, scored a second goal, the goalkeeper badly fumbling a long shot from Kirk. Up to the final whistle 36 C.C.S. held the upper hand and ran out winners as stated.

"36" were full value for their victory, the re-arranged forwards playing good football. The main feature of the game, however, was the capital display of Sergt. Lewis at left back. Both his tackling and kicking were of a clean order.

The losers, who played a vigorous, but thoroughly clean game, had hard luck on two occasions, their forwards when well placed shooting wildly. Their defence was of a high order, Mason and Burkenshaw at back both kicking in resolute fashion. Fagan was the best of a good middle line, whilst of the home forwards Burnett and Cottage were the most conspicuous.

Pre-War Form.

They got back to pre-war football at Selhurst when Crystal Palace defeated the 'Spurs before 4,000 spectators by 3 goals to 2.

FOOTBALL JOTTINGS.

By W. Le C.

The defeat of the Spurs by Crystal Palace, may be ascribed to the fact that Tottenham's team contained eight reserve players. What is surely a record for penalty kicks happened in this game. Two against each team and each producing a goal was the order.

* * *

Tonner, the Arsenal's new outside left, did not get much chance to shine against Fulham in Mondays cup-tie, but he will show his paces ere many days have passed.

* * *

West Ham need a right wing, and badly too. When this deficiency is remedied, the "Hammers" will win matches.

* * *

Queens Park Rangers possess a grand pivot in Mitchell, his mastery of Puddefoot on Monday must have made the English Selectors wonder. He is reserve for the match at Cardiff.

* * *

The new date for the postponed international game at Stoke will be fixed on Monday next. The game with Wales, at Cardiff, takes play on Saturday as arranged.

* * *

Plymouth Argyle have a forward who is making "Blotts" on other teams records.

* * *

Cox, South Shields new centre-half, is probably the tallest player in first class circles, he stands 6 foot 3 inches.

* * *

All the players transferred from Scotswood last season have already appeared in first class circles.

* * *

Aston Villa are looking for new talent, One or two famous players in their ranks may doff the famous jersey ere 1919-20 closes.

* * *

The 5th Border Regt. are fortunate in possessing players of the type of Capt. Rasser, who will be remembered as the well known Oxford player, and is a centre-half who will not be denied; L/Cpl. Aston, who was a popular player in the Central League while with Nelson his play, at left half despoils many dashing right wings, and Pte. Dixon right back who, on his present form, will catch some "spotters" eye in Rhineland.

PENALTY SECURES POINTS.

R.A.O.C. Detachments, Nippes, v. C/187 R.F.A.

A very fast and interesting game was played at Nippes on Wednesday between teams representing the R.A.O.C. Detachment, Nippes and C/187 R.F.A. Play was of a very even nature both ends being visited in turn, and poor shooting was the only reason that goals were not registered. A nicely placed corner by Humphries caused a little excitement and Whitfield was responsible for a very smart save off Croasdale.

On play being resumed, the homesters took up the running and made several attempts to get through the gunners defence, and only good play by Davies and Wilde kept them out. Langton receiving the ball set the home forwards going and Wallace when about to shoot, with only the goalie to beat was fouled in the fatal area. McGowan took the kick and although Whitfield reached the ball, he was unable to hold it and the first and what proved to be the winning goal was registered for the Ordnance men. Jones was obliged to concede a corner to relieve a critical situation. Harrison however kicked over the line. The gunners tried hard to get on level terms, but were unsuccessful, and a very clean and sporting game ended in a win for the home team by the only goal of the match.

"A" v "D" COY., 51st R. WARWICK REGT.

The above teams met at Kurten on Tuesday. The opening exchanges proved very keen and interesting "A" Coy doing most of the pressing, but from a breakaway, Cpl. Layton secured and, eluding the backs, opened the scoring for "D" Coy. Even play followed and "A" Coy had very hard lines in not equalising, their forwards making repeated attacks, but D's defence held out. From another breakaway, Phipps added a second goal for "D". Following a shot from Lieut. Lycell, Stokes handled in the penalty area and from the resultant kick, Cpl. Kempton opened "A" Coy's account. Half time arrived with no further scoring.

The second half opened with "A" Coy making tracks for "D's" goal and from a centre by Sgt. Dee, "A" Coy had hard lines in not equalising, Cpl. Kempster shot, just grazing the bar. After smart who combination, Sgt. Dee got the equaliser with a shot that glanced off Stokes' leg. The goalie had no chance to save. No further scoring took place and a hard fought game ended in a draw, 2-2.

HOCKEY.

3rd Battalion M.G.C. v 51st Bn. North'd. Fus. (Officers).

Played at Riehl barracks on Monday. The game started with the M.G.C. dribbling up the field and the centre forward, (Major Bennett) broke through the 51st defence and shot a fine goal. The 51st then made a good effort and through a piece of fine combination, reached the shooting circle, only to put the ball outside. The 51st continued to press and had another piece of very hard luck with a shot from Capt. Parry. Just before half time the M.G.C. scored a rather lucky goal. Half time. M.G.C. 2 51st. Bn. North'd. Fus. 0.

During the second half of the game the 51st. fell off, the M.G.C. scoring two more goals. Result: M.G.C. 4; 51st. North'd. Fus. 0.

Beckett Fixture.

Joe Beckett, the heavy-weight champion, is due to box an exhibition bout at York next Tuesday evening.

"Damaged Goods" at Solingen.

Continuing their programme of Sunday performances, the B.R.A.D.C. is performing "Damaged Goods" at Solingen on Sunday next. On this occasion, the part of Mme. Dupons will be played by Miss Adeline Bourne, of the B.E.L.C., by kind permission of Miss Decima Moore.

Sunday at the Deutsches Theatre.

The first of a series of concerts will be given at the Deutsches Theatre on Sunday evening next at 6 p.m. The artistes are Modest Menzinsky, Wanda Achsel and Alfred Barker. Barker of course, is well-known but the others, beyond their reputation at the Opera House are still strangers to the English fraternity in Cologne.

Modest Menzinsky is Swedish born and has sung many times before his king. His last appearance in England was at Covent Garden in June 1905 when he played "Lohengrin," "Tannhauser" and the "Mastersingers" under the direction of Dr. Richter, who, in those days used to be conductor of the Hallé orchestra and Covent Garden. On Sunday, he will sing selections from Richard Strauss and Wagner and also several songs by Sjogren, a prominent Swedish composer.

There are but few who have not heard Wanda Achsel in "Madame Butterfly," "Mignon," "Faust" or "Othello." She is one of the best known operatic stars in Cologne. Among other items she will render an aria from "Mignon" and the Jewel song from "Faust" on Sunday evening.

To-night's Recital.

Archie Mozley is holding his first recital in Rheinland at the College Commerner Strasse, Euskirchen, this evening at 7 p.m. He will be assisted by Alfred Barker, the violinist of the Backhaus concerts and Walter Brickell the tenor. Sgt. Beindie, who is directing the affair, tells me the recital augurs well to be very successful. Will Hartley will be the accompanist.

READ THE RULES.

Mistakes Made By Competitors In Our Football Contest.

Before filling in the coupon for our third football competition, make quite sure you understand the rules. Coupons frequently arrive wrongly marked. For instance, several forecasts last week were made out with the winning teams indicated by means of a cross, instead of the probable losing team being struck out.

Other competitors forecasted a draw by striking out both teams, whereas they should have been left them standing. Every rule is necessary for the successful running of the competition, otherwise it would not have been made. Therefore make sure that you do not run the risk of being disqualified on these grounds.

Coupons must be addressed:—
FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 3,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S.40 Rhine Army.

List of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received, after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

A 'Tish' oo.

The epidemic of colds is spreading. The sudden change from warm summer to chill autumn has been too much for many of us. By the way can anyone tell me of an infallible cure for rheumatism?

Ending "Summer-Time."

There is an important announcement as to this on our first page to-day. Soon ordinary and railway time will be the same.

Translation Difficulty.

Another translation peculiarity in the programme of music at the N.A.C.B. Officers' Club Cologne, was observed on Wednesday. "Anna, what is then with you, waltz," appeared in the list of items to be rendered by the orchestra. The English equivalent should of course be "Anna, what is the matter with you." "The Magic Flute" recently appeared as "the wonderful whistle."

Heard The News?

The Command Cashier is weighing out once more and is giving 120 marks to the pound. Follow the crowd.

Habits of German Beds.

Concerning my recent paragraph on the subject of the relative comfort of German and English beds, a correspondent reminds me that Mark Twain once wrote in a description of a holiday in Germany:—"They were fully as narrow as the usual German bed, too, and had the German's ineradicable habit of spilling the blankets on the floor every time you forgot yourself and went to sleep."

A "Pro" Wanted.

I hear that the Rhine Army Golf Club is needing the services of a professional player.

Be on Your Guard.

So many cases of theft from soldiers on leave to the United Kingdom have occurred of late that men are again warned to be on their guard against thieves at railway stations and rest places in England. Tunies, it appears, have been stolen while men have been washing themselves.

Good for the Office.

Looking around the shops of Cologne, it does strike me that all articles of Office equipment and furniture are reasonably priced and very good. I notice many notions too that spell economy.

Prophylactic Stations.

The following lists of prophylactic stations in Cologne is published for information:—Staple Haus, on embankment, near Hohenzollern Bridge; Brinkgasse, towards Opera House; Elster Gasse near Art Museum; Folier Strasse, towards Ubier Ring; Empire Leave Club, Langgasse. Zoological Gardens, near Y.M.C.A. Hut. In addition there are prophylactic stations at Divisional Hostels.

Here They Come.

They are rolling in more merrily than ever. I refer to the Football Coupons. One of these days perhaps there will be a solus winner and then he will scoop in a tidy sum. Will it be you?

An Interesting Statue.

One of the most interesting statues in Rhineland is that of Gutenberg the inventor of printing. It stands in the oldest quarter of Mayence and was designed by Thorvaldsen and executed in Paris, the subscriptions coming from all parts of Europe. All round the statue the buildings are old and quaint, among them being the "King of England" the golden sign of which delights the eye of every English traveller.

The Favourite.

The national musical instrument of Germany would seem to be the guitar. I have yet to enter a Rhineland household where the ubiquitous instrument is not conspicuously displayed.

Why Cold Water?

Why does the German barber always use cold water when lathering? I put the question to my friseur the other morning and he assured me that warm water was injurious to the skin. Still it is not very pleasant to have a cold brush dabbed on your face, particularly when there is a wintry atmosphere about.

Shutting Down.

I learn that the Scottish Churches premises in the Schildergasse will shortly be closed and the ladies at present there will return to their native heath. The passing of this popular canteen will be greatly felt by all the troops with whom it was a favourite rendezvous.

The Victory Medal.

The Allies' War Medal is designated the "Victory Medal" because it is the one title for a war medal which the German cannot copy. On the obverse there will be a winged figure of Victory, the borders and back-ground will be plain without either description or date. On the reverse there will be inscribed, "The Great War for Civilisation," translated into the different languages.

Tram Line Points.

Whatever may be the real reason for constructing the points in the tramway lines so that they may only be manipulated by means of a special long hook, there is the obvious advantage that mischievous children are unable to tamper with the metals.

Command Cashier Re-opens.

The news travelled rapidly round Cologne, yesterday morning that the Command Cashier had opened his doors again and was paying out at the generous Army rate of 120 marks to the pound. There was an immediate rush for cash, and to-day, I shouldn't be surprised if there is a huge queue to deal with. Subalterns may draw up to 600 marks and Captains up to 800.

The Cologne Baths.

In future the Cologne baths near the Opera House will be reserved for officers on Wednesdays from 14.00 to 19.00 hours instead of on Mondays and Thursdays.

Barristers and Wigs.

The German barrister is not quite such a picturesque figure as his English confrere. He wears the orthodox silk gown but the absence of the awe-inspiring wig robs him of that dignified mien which we have come to associate with the legal profession in England.

Not in Great Request.

Speaking of lawyers, the legal profession does not appear to be a very lucrative one in Rhineland, judging by the proceedings at the summary Counts, where it is the exception rather than the rule for a lawyer to be engaged. Perhaps it is that the litigants agree with Bumble's famous dictum that the law is a "Hass."

All Satisfied.

The share out of the surplus canteen profits amongst the members of the clerks and orderlies messes at the Monopol has I hear, given great satisfaction and certainly suggests careful supervision of money earned from Tommy by business-like methods.

A Silly Joke.

During the performance of the "Walküre" at the Opera House last Monday it was noticed that during the first act several false notes were given on the wind instruments. The manager of the Opera House tells me that these false notes were the result of a mischevious trick perpetrated by a practical joker who added them to the scores from which the Orchestra played.

A Tragedy.

I met a sad, very sad young subin the Club yesterday morning. He had just cashed a fiver at a Bank and received a shade over 100 marks to the pound, only to hear five minutes later that the Command Cashier was functioning once more and was giving as much as 120.

Held up.

Extraordinary is the number of traffic breakdowns that occur daily in the town. Even in crowded business streets it is nothing unusual to come across some huge wagon which has become "kaput." Yesterday morning in the Hansa Ring the wheel of a furniture van came off holding up the tramcar on which I was riding. The usual crowd quickly gathered, and struggled in vain for some time to put the vehicle in going order, after which the occupants of the crowded tram decided that their best policy was to alight and walk.

Visitors to Cologne.

According to the statistics now published 2,683 foreigners visited Cologne in July last. These comprised 563 British, 722 Belgians, 1201 Frenchmen, 184 Dutch, 77 Italians, 12 Austrians, 40 Russians, 14 Swiss and 10 Americans.

Promiscuous Literature.

Some German booksellers do not seem to have much idea of classifying books in their windows. In one shop I noticed six volumes side by side. The first was a volume of Schiller's works, next to it was a problem novel, while a text-book on German grammar, a novel of Storm's, Nietzsche's "Thus spake Zarathusa," and "Huckleberry Finn" in English, completed the row.

Can't Be Answered.

The Editor complains to me that a great many questions still reach him from readers which could easily be answered in the Orderly Room of the enquirers' unit. Don't, please don't, address such questions to the Editor.

Interest.

Have you noticed the interest displayed by the average German of the professional class in internal happenings in England? I was talking to one the other day and he was singularly well informed on all things at home. There was nothing touched upon about which he did not speak with knowledge gleaned no doubt through English newspapers.

A Mild Sensation.

There are parts of Rhineland occupied by our Allies, where the appearance of a British soldier makes a mild popular sensation. One such, arriving the other day at Kempen, beyond Crefeld, was amused and embarrassed when the Belgian guard at the station presented arms, and Belgian soldiers in the street saluted him, while German officials, taking their cue from the Belgians, did likewise. And in the house he visited, the children of the family were solemnly brought to see him, as the first English soldier who had been to Kempen. Kempen, a clean dull little town, has a memorial to Thomas à Kempis, who is reputed to have been born there, and as a curiosity what must be one of the ugliest statues on earth, set up to a local worthy.

AROUND AND ABOUT.

NO SMOKE WITHOUT FIRE.

A new smokers' fashion has been introduced from France, and seems to be catching on among folk of discrimination. It consists of a specially-cut kind of cigarette paper, about three inches broad, and shaped like a heraldic rose. The smoker packs into this a charge of his favourite tobacco and puts the whole into the bowl of his pipe, and it is claimed that it smokes cooler, more economically, and is far better than the usual primitive process, as the paper projects from the pipe bowl in a kind of mushroom head, the new fashion cannot fail to attract notice; but an old smoker tells me that there is nothing very new in it.

CLAYS.

During the whole time the Germans were in occupation of Belgium, there was actually one industry which was not idle for a moment. It was only a small one, to be sure, and consisted of the making of clay pipes by hand labour in the neighbourhood of Andenne. This fact is the only cheerful item one can discover among a host of sad statistics showing how difficult is the road of reconstruction. It is a remarkable feature that the subjects which adorned these clay pipes were the features of generals and prominent persons among the Allies! It was even permissible to send the pipes to prisoners of war, and their sale was never prohibited. The reason seems to be that they were so much cheaper than wooden pipes, and then, "business is business".

BRITISH CINEMA ENTERPRISE.

Two big British film companies have recently been formed to fight American cinema enterprise. Mr. Charles Higham, M.P., founder of one of the new companies, explains the reasons why he has such good hopes of success in the prevalent keen competition. "People speak of the wonderful scenery of the Rocky Mountains, the orange groves of California and the Pacific coast, but Italy, Spain, Portugal and Switzerland are much nearer to London than California is to New York. British films propose to give to the world real Florence, Naples and Monte Carlo scenes."

Mr. Higham says his Company is completing the largest studios in the world at Harrow Weald park, and he hopes to induce dramatists like Pinero, Carton, Sims and others to write their own scenarios.

THE ORIGIN OF THE "LOVING CUP."

It is said that the origin of the "loving cup" is traceable to Henry IV. of France. While hunting he strayed from his companions, and, feeling thirsty, called at a wayside inn for a cup of wine. The serving maid, on handing it to him as he sat on horseback, neglected to present the handle. Some wine was spilled, and the king's white gauntlets were soiled. As he was riding home the thought came to him that a two-handled cup would present a recurrence of this accident, so he had a two-handled cup made at the royal potteries and sent it to the inn. On his next visit he called again for wine, when to his astonishment the maid, having received instructions from her mistress to be very careful of the king's cup, presented it to him by holding it herself by each of its handles. At once the idea struck the king that a cup with three handles was the thing needed. The idea was promptly acted upon, for, as his Majesty quaintly said: "Surely out of three handles I shall be able to get one!"

VANITY FAIR.

A Feature for the British Woman in Rhineland.

Sensations Everywhere.

They are to be seen everywhere—at the races, in restaurants, at the theatres, They cause sensations, as they are meant to, and everyone knows that the sort of woman who wears them is to be found in all nations, although Paris produces the greater number, because the Parisienne is so clever in making and wearing the most striking fashions. She creates fashions, other women follow them.

Renovating Furs at Home.

Just at the moment furs loom largely on the horizon of Fashion land. Many a woman is contemplating her peltry unpacked from its wrappings, with an anxious eye. She is conscious of the alterations and renovations that are necessary and conscious also of the cost they will entail. There is no doubt that any extensive alterations to furs should be placed in the hands of a good furrier, but on the other hand furs may be restored and altered very successfully at home.

Women Hotel-Keepers.

There never was a time when the strain on hotel accommodation was so great. The manager of a hotel combine states that this will probably continue and that, in his opinion, we are becoming very American in our hotel-living habits. Obviously the main reason for this is the expense and the difficulty of present-day housekeeping. People are giving up their houses, for they find that by living in hotels they are spared the troubles of catering. A habit of this kind once cultivated is apt to grow. Here, then, is a golden opportunity for the woman who is an expert hotel-keeper. The trouble is that not many women have all the experience or the gifts required for this particular occupation. The perfect hotel-keeper must combine in herself the talents of a good caterer, a bookkeeper, a tactful manager of staff and of guests; she must have patience, good health, and a business brain.

BALFOUR ABOUT TO RETIRE.

FUNNIEST IDEA OF THE WAR. A TANK TO CROSS THE RHINE.

AUDACIOUS PLAN OF VON DER GOLTZ.

BALFOUR RETIRING.

IMPORTANT POLITICAL CHANGES.

Several changes are imminent in political circles. Lord Milner leaves in the course of a few days to direct the Commission of Inquiry into the troubles in Egypt. Mr. A.J. Balfour has asked the Premier to relieve him as soon as possible of the office of Foreign Secretary, as he wishes to retire. He will probably be succeeded by Lord Curzon. Lord Inverforth is also expected to retire very soon from the Ministry of Munitions, while rumour says that Earl Beatty will succeed Sir Rosslyn Wemyss as First Sea Lord.

GOLTZ'S INTENTIONS.

ALLEGED DESIGNS ON PETROGRAD.

The Supreme Council will probably decide to-day upon what will be the answer to Germany's observations on the ultimatum demanding evacuation of Lithuania under pain of the reinstitution of the blockade. Marshal Foch has prepared a new note to Germany reiterating the demands of the Allied and Associated Powers that German troops shall evacuate Lithuania immediately. It is possible that a Commission of Inter-Allied representatives may go to Lithuania to superintend the evacuation.

The Helsingfors correspondent of the "Times" sends the following message from General Nassilovsky: "Just returned from Reval. Von der Goltz's troops beginning careful movement on Latvia and in less than a fortnight with advanced guard under Colonel Bernont, will begin offensive in direction of Pskoff, occupy Esthonia and march on Petrograd with object of installing German monarchical regime. Request forward this message to Marshal Foch."

SCAPA FLOW.

NO MORE GERMAN VESSELS TO BE SALVED.

Of the German war vessels which were scuttled at Scapa Flow, the battleship Baden, three light cruisers and eighteen destroyers have been salved. This work was carried out in a period of less than four weeks, Commander Kay, of the Liverpool Salvage Association directing the operations.

With regard to the other submerged vessels, the cost of salving and reconditioning would be anything up to five hundred thousand sterling. The anchorage at Scapa is so extensive, however, that the wrecks do not constitute any serious restriction to navigation and the authorities are therefore not recommending further salvage operations.

WAR ORPHANS.

TO BE PROVIDED WITH REAL HOMES.

A new scheme has been devised by the Ministry of Pensions by which several thousands of British war orphans are to be found real homes. The children will be placed in families of their own religion, brothers and sisters being kept together as far as possible, and provision will be made for the maintenance, health and education of the orphans. The scheme will be put into operation by Local Pensions Committees, acting through special sub-committees. A weekly allowance of twelve shillings will be made for the first child and eleven shillings for each of the others.

PIG PENALTY.

PROFITEERING ACT EXTENDED.

The Profiteering Act is to be greatly strengthened. Under the new schedule the following articles will probably be brought within its scope: fuel, smokers' requisites, tools, glass or stone bottles, toilet accessories, medical or surgical appliances, stationery and photorgaphic materials.

Fines amounting to £918 were imposed yesterday on William Gyte a Sheffield pigdealer, who was charged on nine summonses for selling pigs above the maximum price.

UKRANIA DECLARES WAR.

The Ukranian press bureau reports via Copenhagen that the Ukranian Government has declared war on Denikin and that heavy fighting is proceeding, Denikin's advance westward being held up. The bureau alleges that Denikin first attacked the Ukranians.

TANK TALKS.

"ONE OF THE BEST IDEAS OF THE WAR."

The Tanks Commission of Inquiry continued the hearing of the claim of Lieutenant Macfie, who in April 1915 submitted to the Tank Committee drawings of a tank with caterpillar tracks of a triangular form.

Counsel for Lieutenant Macfie related that Colonel Boothby gave permission to his client to make a large model. While this was being done Lieutenant Macfie missed a small model which he had made. Towards the end of June, on entering a room at the Admiralty, he was astounded to find a number of senior officers before whom two civilians were demonstrating with his model. He was so amazed that he immediately picked up the model and took it away. Shortly afterwards, said counsel, the Tank Committee began building a tank containing the distinctive features of his model.

After Lieutenant Macfie had given evidence, Colonel Boothby and others gave evidence in support of his claim. Lieut.-Colonel Delacombe told how, at a meeting of the D'Eyncourt Committee, Major Hetherington said "If you are going in for a land-ship, why not take the gasometer at the Oval, put wheels on it as big as the Great Wheel at Earls Court, and put 10-inch guns inside. Then it could not only go across country but even across the Raine." Witness added that he thought that was one of the best ideas he had heard during the war. (Laughter).

Major Hetherington was called for the Crown. He said he advocated a big wheel for a particular landship of, say, 300 tons. He took Lieutenant Macfie to the Committee because he was an able officer, very keen on the question of "caterpillars."

The Solicitor General submitted that Lieutenant Macfie had no claim whatever. He had altogether failed to show that he had been a useful factor in the solution of the problem.

The case of Engineer Nesfield, who claimed that he was the inventor of the upturned track as well as other improvements, was then heard.

COLONISING RUSSIA.

800,000 GERMANS TO BE NATURALISED.

The "Matin" learns from Berlin that the Council of Workers charged with the Eastward emigration, and whose headquarters is at Leipzig, is negotiating with the Government at Moscow for the sending of 800,000 German unemployed to Soviet Russia.

Entire factories will be placed at the disposal of the unemployed, who will have the privilege of acquiring Russian nationality.

Doubtless this is the beginning of the colonisation of Russia by Germany.

MOSCOW AMENITIES.

LENIN, TROTZKY AND PETER THE PAINTER.

A message from Helsingfors states that the troops in Courland are said to have received a wireless communication, according to which serious rebellions are taking place in Moscow.

Lenin is reported to have ordered Trotzky to be taken prisoner, but instead Lenin was arrested.

According to a communication from Reval social revolutionaries have begun a reign of terror against the Bolsheviks at Moscow.

It is reported that among the killed is the Bolshevik leader Peters.

INFLUENZA RETURNS.

Though only in a mild form, influenza has returned with the colder and damper weather. It caused eleven deaths in the London area last week, compared with nine, four, and four cases in the preceding three weeks, but, as the average is nine, the mortality rate is little beyond the normal. The deaths in the 96 great towns from the disease numbered 32. The general death rate in London was the same as the average for all the great towns—12 per thousand.

"MENTIONEL" CERTIFICATES FOR NURSES.

The War Office states that nurses whose names are mentioned in despatches will receive a certificate of the King's appreciation of their services provided that their mention is for work in France, Egypt or other places overseas.

The negotiations between the Railwaymen and the Government will be resumed on Tuesday.

THE GREAT STRIKE.

BRITAIN'S LESSON TO AMERICA.

The American ambassador has placed it on record that he has never seen any public phenomenon which was more impressive or of greater promise, not only to the people of Great Britain but to the people of the civilized world, than the good temper and tolerance shown during the railway strike. It was a demonstration of inherent, innate, deep-seated love of order that prevailed among the people of Great Britain, a reverence for established institutions, an eagerness for the reign of law and determination to preserve order, even if a fight had to be made for it.

It was that quality which year after year and age after age had made the forces of despotism and anarchy beat against this island as against a rock. That was the contribution which the English people had made to civilization, which they were ready to make again and for which civilization might thank them and its divinity through all the years. There were common problems that confronted the world at this time. What happened to-day in England might happen tomorrow in America and what took place to-day in America might take place tomorrow in England. It was the same problem, the relation of man to man. "We shall learn from Great Britain," said Mr. Davis, "we must learn from Great Britain. I am devoutly thankful that we learn from a race that has an innate love of order."

PENNANT INQUIRY.

PROMINENT WITNESSES TO BE CALLED.

The Committee appointed by the House of Lords to inquire into the dismissal of Miss Violet Douglas-Pennant from the command of the Women's Royal Air Force will meet at the House of Lords on Tuesday next.

Sir Edward Carson has, owing to his political engagements, given up his brief for Miss Douglas-Pennant, Mr. J. A. Hawke, K. C., will now lead for her, with Mr. Stuart Bevan, K.C., and Mr. Buchanan.

Several past and present heads of Air Ministry Departments will be seen in the witness box.

Miss Pennant's chief witness will probably be Miss Eileen O'Sullivan, who held an appointment in the clothing branch. General Branker, General Paine, Major Baird and Mr. Winston Churchill may also be called.

IRISH AFFAIRS.

CABINET COMMITTEE TO TRY AGAIN.

A Cabinet Committee has been appointed to draft a new scheme for Irish settlement.

Mr. Walter Long is the Chairman, and among the members will be Mr. Shortt (Irish Secretary), Sir Auckland Geddes, Lord Birkenhead, Mr. MacPherson, Lord French, Mr. H. A. L. Fisher and Mr. Worthington Evans.

POLICE CHARGE A PROCESSION.

There was a scene of wild disorder in Fifth Avenue and Washington Square New York, yesterday, when a body of fifty mounted and 300 unmounted police dispersed a crowd of 5,000 Reds who were attempting to parade the streets with banners demanding that the United States should recognise the Soviet Government in Russia. Five of the Red leaders were arrested and many persons were hurt.

HARD LABOUR FOR A ROGUE

Sentence of twelve months' hard labour was passed at Dorset Quarter Sessions yesterday on Reginald Heald, who said he was the son of a clergyman, for obtaining £12 from the proprietor of a Weymouth hotel by means of bogus cheques. It was stated he had been posing as the son of a Devonshire Peer, and that he was wanted all over the country on similar charges.

DISCHARGED POLICE APPEAL.

A deputation from the Police Union waited yesterday on the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Council and asked the latter to introduce a Bill repealing certain clauses in the Police Act in an endeavour to get discharged men reinstated. The Committee promised to consider the matter. The deputation also asked for financial assistance for the dismissed men. An appeal will accordingly be issued to affiliated societies.

PRESIDENT WILSON IMPROVING

A late bulletin last night stated that President Wilson had spent a good day but there was no decided change in his condition. Subsequently the physician in attendance said that the President is holding his own and improving slowly.

PRINCESS MARY'S EXAMPLE.

Princess Mary and her two brothers have set a good example in the matter of travelling. They did the journey from Scotland to London by sea. The two Princes go into residence at Cambridge to-day.

BEFORE THE WAR.

VISCOUNT HALDANE POINTS THE MORAL.

The second instalment of Viscount Haldane's recollections, which are appearing in the "Westminster Gazette," deals especially with his visit to Germany in February 1912.

He considers that both Bethmann-Hollweg and the Kaiser were at that time sincerely in earnest in desiring to improve relations with us and to keep the peace. The Kaiser, however, was pulled at by his naval and military advisers and by the increasingly powerful Chauvinist party, which became decidedly stronger in the course of the next two years. Viscount Haldane formed the opinion that the power of the Kaiser in Germany was considerably misinterpreted and overestimated. The really decisive influence was that of the Minister who managed to secure the strongest following in the country and clearly Von Tirpitz was the man at that period.

There was also a decided tendency to swollen headedness in the German nation. Personally he believed that phase of militarism would pass, but he quite recognised the possibility of an explosion and when he returned to England and explained to his colleagues the reason for his hopefulness he also reported three matters on which he felt uneasy. The first was his strong impression that the new German fleet law would be insisted upon. Secondly the possibility of Von Tirpitz becoming Chancellor, and thirdly, the want of continuity in the supreme direction of German policy, more especially foreign policy.

With regard to the outbreak of war itself he considered that Bethmann-Hollweg let himself be swept into a course of which at heart he disapproved.

"To-day" he concludes, "Germany lies prostrate but not dead. We must prepare ourselves by study and organisation against her competition in scientific industry. She will not attempt for generations to build again on military foundations but there are other fields of activity open and we must begin to realise this."

DRIVER'S NERVE.

SAVES PASSENGER TRAIN FROM DISASTER.

Messages from Barcelona say that at many places in Valencia the rivers are still rising and overflowing their banks and several villages are flooded. Passengers in a train had a terrifying experience, which but for the nerve of the engine driver would have ended in disaster. As the train was nearing a bridge over the river Todors, the driver noticed that it was on the point of collapse. It was too late for him to pull up, so he put on full steam and the train literally hurled itself across the quivering bridge, which collapsed and fell into the torrent just after the train was safely across. The passengers overwhelmed the driver with thanks and tangible expressions of gratitude for his remarkable coolness in the critical emergency.

DOINGS AT FIUME.

GENERAL AND ADMIRAL D'ANNUNZIO.

A communiqué issued by the chief command at Fiume on the 2nd of October states that D'Annunzio has 15,000 troops, also one dreadnought, one old cruiser and two torpedo boats, seaplanes, aeroplanes and ample munitions. In view of the concentration of armed bands in Jugo-Slavia the command has taken all precautions. Owing to the protest of the National Council, the blockade has been raised as regards foodstuffs and mails.

THE TRUE TRIPLE ALLIANCE.

Sir Kingsley Wood, M.P., speaking at Stepney said the true victors of the railway strike were the community, and the losers were the stirrers up of strife. Suspicion must give way to good will and ill will to understanding. The true Triple Alliance was brains, capital, and labour. It was on the true partnership of all three that the future of the country depended.

LOW RATES DUE TO RACING.

In East and West Molesey the rates for the ensuing half-year are only 1s. 7d. and 1s. 6d. in the pound, a reduction of 4d. and 3d. in the pound respectively. The reason given for this happy state of affairs is that, with the resumption of racing, Hurst Park racecourse is now paying full rates.

THEATRICAL WORLD'S RECORD.

On Friday, the 17th November, the longest run in the history of the English stage will be celebrated at His Majesty's theatre. On that night "Chu Chin Chow" will reach its 1,467th performance, beating "Charley's Aunt" by one point.

PADEREWSKI IN LONDON.

Paderewski, the Premier of Poland. has arrived in London to consult Mr. Lloyd George about important Polish affairs. He leaves again immediately for Warsaw.

SUMMARY COURT.

STEROTYPED EXCUSES OF NO AVAIL.

The traffic with English cigarettes still continues, despite the heavy fines inflicted, and there is a curious similarity about the excuses offered in Court by the accused. They almost invariably plead that the cigarettes are left in their charge by English soldiers. This was the excuse offered by Arnold Eupen of 10 Kupfer Gasse when charged with being in possession of 4,000 cigarettes but it was of no avail and he was fined 2,000 marks or three weeks imprisonment.

48 of the "Veribest."

In a private room adjoining the bar in the house of Peter Pambertz, Café proprietor of Vorgebirgs Strasse. Detective-Sergt. J. McMasters found 48 tins of corned beef of the "Veribest" brand. Asked for an explanation Lambertz stated that two German civilians whom he did not know placed it in his room and then departed, remarking that they would call for it later.

Lambertz amplified his story at the Court and said that the civilians returned for the beef the same night, but in the meantime it had been confiscated. When he informed them of this, one of them struck him. His son was also struck after which the men ran away.

He was fined 500 marks and paid the amount into Court immediately.

Unlicensed Cafes.

Else Blattheim, who keeps an unlicensed cafe at 19 Friesenplatz was charged with selling alcoholic drinks to civilians at 11.35 p.m. Three civilians were charged with remaining on the premises after eleven o'clock and with consuming liquor. The latter charges were dismissed the Presiding Officer being of opinion that there was no regulation in force regarding the hours during which such cafés may remain open, but the licensee was fined 2,000 marks or one months imprisonment on the count of selling alcoholic drinks.

PRIVATE LETTERS.

CURIOUS AGONY ADVERTISEMENT

In the "Times" personal column of Wednesday appeared the following announcement:—

Wing-Commander Ranken desires to inform his correspondents that their letters to him at his office are being opened under a. M. of M. Order, and that the addition of the words Private, Personal, or the act of sealing or registration is not necessarily a protection. He will be glad to receive letters at his private address.

The assistant secretary of the Ministry of Munitions commenting on the matter, explained that.

"Under an official standing order, dated May 8, 1919, all correspondence addressed to an officer is opened in the registry, unless the envelope is marked 'Personal.'

He added that it is, of course, quite possible that by inadvertence specially marked letters may be opened.

POPE RECEIVES BRITISH SOLDIERS.

One hundred British soldiers with a number of officers were received by the Pope on Wednesday in the Consistorial Hall. They were introduced by Father Butler, their chaplain, who said that the soldiers, owing to having lived in Italy some time, understood Italian. The Pontiff accordingly addressed them in this language. He urged them to be loyal to their religion, their country, and their superiors, remembering obedience and discipline were the first virtues of a soldier. His Holiness imparted to them, together with their families, the Apostolic benediction.

AERIAL DERBY'S BAD START.

The United States trans-continental aerial Derby, for which sixty-three competitors entered, some flying from Long Island to San Francisco and others the reverse way, started very badly. Three aviators were killed and one seriously injured on the first day of the race.

BE GRAFTED AND GROW YOUNG.

Startling statements were made by Dr. Serge Voronoff at the Surgical Congress in France in connection with the prolongation of life. He claims that he has succeeded in grafting certain glands of a monkey on old goats and rams, which immediately recovered their youth. A similar gland grafted on an old man would, he contends, restore his lost youth and strength.

DEMOBILIZATION RESUMED.

The transport service with troops for demobilisation was resumed on Wednesday, about 4,000 men from France and Germany landing at Dover from various ships. These men had been held up at Boulogne and Calais for ten days owing to the railway strike.

THE FIRE AT LONDON COUNTY HALL.

The estimated damage caused by the fire at the New County Hall last Thursday is officially stated to be £1,500, but this figure does not cover repairs to the permanent concrete floors, which are now being examined.

END OF THE WAR.

TREATY ABOUT TO COME INTO FORCE.

Replies having been received from all the British Dominions. the King's ratification of the Treaty of Peace is imminent.

The Peace Treaty Bill, it may be recalled, received the Royal Assent on July 31. Approval of the various Dominions was signified on the following dates: New Zealand, Sept. 2, Canada, Sept. 12, South Africa, Sept. 12, Australia, Oct. 1.

The French Chamber of Deputies has adopted the Bill dealing with the date of the cessation of hostilities. The Bill, which contains only a single clause, reads as follows:

"For the execution of laws, decrees, regulations, and contracts, the application of which was subordinated to the state of war, the date of the official promulgation of the Bill authorising the President of the Republic to ratify the Treaty with Germany will be that of the cessation of hostilities."

The Bill is the symbolic action signifying the end of the war. If there were any delay in the Senate voting on the Treaty, the Government might consider the question of postponing the date.

60,000 DOCKERS STRIKE.

NEW YORK SHIPPING PARALYSED

The strike of 60,000 dockers which is almost completely paralysing the port of New York is in direct violation of orders issued by the men's Union leaders. The Union had agreed to accept the decision of the National Adjustment Commission of the United States Shipping Board which awarded the men 3s per hour for regular work and 3s 5d an hour for overtime. The Carmania was unable to leave as scheduled on Tuesday night though all the passengers were aboard. The ship's crew were hard at work getting luggage aboard and filling the bunkers with coal. The Baltic was in a similar plight. The strikers declare their intention of preventing all trans-Atlantic steamers from leaving. Mr. O'Connor, President of the Union, yesterday served notice to the strikers that the Union intends to finish with them unless they return to work forthwith.

Later news says both the above liners sailed on Thursday although the Carmania was compelled to leave 500 tons of cargo and 1,000 tons of bunker coal behind. Fifteen hundred steamship office clerks have joined the strike.

T. U. DEMANDS.

FOUR HOURS INTERVIEW WITH PREMIER.

The Prime Minister yesterday received a deputation representing the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress and the Miners' Federation, who presented the demands of the Congress for the nationalisation of mines, the abolition of conscription and the withdrawal of troops from Russia. The proceedings were private but it is understood as regarding the mines that the deputation indicated that they were not acting independently but in association with the Trade Union movement generally. The deputation was engaged for four hours in Downing-Street. Mr. Smillie and other miners' leaders presented the case for nationalisation and Mr. Lloyd George replied in a long speech, in which it is understood that he adhered to the attitude indicated by his speech in the House of Commons.

ARTIFICIAL LIMBS FOR OFFICERS.

An Army Council instruction just issued provides that an officer who requires an artificial limb in consequence of having been wounded in action or being injured in the performance of a military duty may either obtain it under article 647 of the Pay Warrant or be provided with it at a special fitting hospital.

An officer who continues to serve may be supplied with a spare or duplicate limb under the same conditions.

The scale on which grants may be made under the Pay Warrants range from £10 to £40 in the case of mechanical arms required for an officer's future profession.

"THE QUEEN'S" REUNION.

The regimental dinner of the 22nd Battalion, London Regiment (the Queen's) will be held at Oddenino's Restaurant on Monday, October 20. Past, present, and attached officers wishing to attend should communicate with Captain W. B. Wray, M. C., Drill Hall, 2, Jamaica-road, Bermondsey, S.E.16.

M. POINCARE'S VISIT.

President Poincare will visit London on November 10, says an official announcement issued yesterday.

He was to have visited England next week, but the visit was postponed on account of the strike.

COAL EXPORT RESUMED.

The Coal Controller has agreed to permit the immediate shipment of coal from the Tyne abroad, providing no coastwise tonnage was available.

THE SERVICE—AN IDEAL.

After nearly five years of incessant warfare, often against overwhelming odds, it is only natural that there should come into many men's minds a feeling of distaste for things military. Involuntarily there are thoughts of beating bayonets into pruning hooks and using entrenching tools for the more peaceful art of digging allotments.

Hence there is much talk about demobilization, the joys of civil life and the hardships of the service.

But while this attitude of mind is quite understandable up to a point, there comes a time when it may become a source of grave danger. The remedy may be sought in what, for want of a better term, one can call Idealization.

At the moment there are a number of young fellows coming forward to join the colours urged by the desire to be part and parcel of that great body of men which their fathers and brothers helped to make famous, some at the cost of their lives.

Is it fair to meet them with grousings and grumblings? They knew full well that they were not entering upon a life which would be either easy or quiet.

But they came, called by that irresistible desire for travel, and possibly adventure, so proper to every healthy boy's mind. One can hardly say they have the glitter of a gay uniform to attract them. Khaki is a sombre and most workmanlike dress.

Naturally, on hearing their older comrades grumbling they will ask themselves the question is this what the service means? Is there no chance of ever doing anything? Is the regiment really like this? And gradually their minds will be warped and twisted and turned away from that for which the Service really stands.

The antidote for such unhealthy grumbling is, of course to teach the rising generation of soldiers to look at the Service through the eyes of Nicholson or Roberts, of Gordon or Kitchener, They were men who feared God and honoured the King. To them the service was everything, even unto death.

Those old Indian Troopers who yet survive the mutiny still sing a song of the death of Nicholson. Indian and British alike adore the name of "Bobs" as a man who loved the ordinary ranker.

The recruit can be taught something of what the service meant to these men, so that he can realise that to share in their life-work is to hold common lot with Kings and Princes.

The duty of teaching him lies in the hands of his officers, and we feel sure this is realised by those who rule the destinies of the British Army.

The method can best be done by personal example illustrated by precept and when all who hold His Majesty's Commission realise the importance of the duty incumbent on them, then we shall have reached a point attained our ideal.

"I'M ENGLISH."

About a week ago a friend and I were visiting Mainz. We were standing in the market place looking up at the Cathedral which rises over the tops of the houses, when a little boy of about ten years of age rushed up to us and rather out of breath, shyly placed his hand in mine.

For a moment or two he said nothing but just looked at us each in turn—with as much contentment in his face as if he had found a long lost friend.

Rather startled by this familiar greeting in a German town where I thought I knew no one I spoke to the boy.

"Well what's the trouble, little man?"

"I'm English" he stammered out, his voice quavering as if he were trying to stifle down a sob.

"I'm English;" ah, that explained a great deal. Then that was why, seeing two English soldiers dressed in the familiar khaki in a town where French blue prevails he had run as hard as he could through the crowded market-place, because he wanted to have speech in his own mother tongue with two of his own countrymen.

"I'm English!" and we continued to hold each other's hand. He was such a bright little fellow evidently from one of our big towns—with shrewd but sad eyes, and he looked about at the staring people as though he were half-afraid to stay lingering there in a public place with us.

I asked him one or two questions and discovered that he had recently come over to Germany with his German father and English mother and now, after ten years of England and English life, English schools and English friends, English games and English speech he had been uprooted and set down in the midst of those who had been enemies of England.

And he was miserable, he hated his new surroundings, he had "no use" for these Germans who had bombed the great city in which he had lived all through the war.

"I'm from Battersea Park, I am" he said with a nice rich London accent; and a ringing note of pride in his voice told us that his heart was in London and that he was quite aware that he must stand up as a representative of London in this quaint old German town.

I well understood much that was passing in the boy's mind and I could almost feel the hot resentment he felt against the fate which had flung him from the arms of an English mother to the arms of a German father—from the soil of England to that of Germany.

I hoped he would be happy in his new home and among his new surroundings and make friends with his schoolfellows and told him so. For seeing his box-shaped satchel on his shoulder (which seemed to indicate his burden of sorrow) I asked him how he liked his new school.

"I hate it," he flung out and I pictured in my mind the lonely English boy in a class of Germans and I thought of all the childish malice that was no doubt hurled at this fierce proud son of an Englishwoman and I saw him taking part in many a battle of words or fists and with his back to the school wall, answering his tormentors in defiant tones with the words in which he had greeted us, "I'm English."

It was with real regret, that, shaking hands with him and telling him to stand up for England because England would want him again, I wished him goodbye and he disappeared into the crowded market place once more. I shall never forget that meeting and those ringing words of welcome, "I'm English."

I thought often of that little chap that day and on many days since and I think of how there must be many boys and girls like him, born of English and German parents who are just as lonely as he—their lives made miserable and wretched because in one country or the other, or in both, they are derided and scorned.

THE RATE OF EXCHANGE AND PRICES.

There still seems to be quite a number of people who have not yet grasped the truth as regards the effect of variation on the rate of exchange on the price of commodities. A correspondent writes indignantly calling attention to the "extortionate charges" of the N.A.C.B. for cigarettes and compares the price with that charged in June: in each case he gives the rate of exchange.

Here are his figures:—

June. G.F. Cigarettes. 65 pfgs. per packet.
Rate of exchange:—£1-52.40 marks.
Sept. 30th. G.F. Cigarettes. 130 pfgs. per packet.
Rate of exchange:—£1-120 marks.

But is there a great deal to shout about here?

A little simple arithmetic shows us that on the two dates named the respective charges for the cigarettes were 0.0105 and 0.0108 of a sovereign, in fact, in more intelligible figures, they cost 2.52d. and 2.59d. respectively, a difference of about seven hundredths of a penny. A less difference could only be secured by fixing a very awkward figure, in fractions of pfgs. as the price.

We quite agree with our correspondent that "the figures speak for themselves" and would add that a little careful study of the facts would probably do away with many other "grouses" of like nature.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

We Hear all Sides and Accept no Responsibility for our Readers' Views.

A THEATRE SUGGESTION.

Sir,—The "Cologne Post" has become a medium for the ventilation of grievances, but might I, whilst expressing one of my own, which doubtless is shared by many others, suggest what would appear to be an effective remedy. Would it not be possible for the management of the Deutsches Theatre to devise a scheme of warning its patrons when intervals are about to terminate?

A full-toned bell rung about five minutes before an act is likely to commence, would suffice. This would materially add to the comfort and enjoyment of many supporters of the B.R.A.D.C., and would minimise the annoyance caused by those late-comers who have not the common sense or good breeding to deter them from noisily scrambling in to their seats after acts have commenced.

A particularly noticeable offence of this kind was perpetrated on the first night of the production of "Strife", and provoked not a few audible and pointed comments.

J.E.C.

SWEETHEARTS.

Sir,—In reference to "Lonely" concerning Sweethearts on the Rhine I wonder if he would like mother and family as well.

To me it seems that men think we are here for pleasure alone; certainly the authorities make it as comfortable and pleasing as possible for us, but we are here for a purpose.

Therefore I say let "Lonely" be lonely until he is demobbed, and then he can bring them all at his own expense.

1914 NOT LONELY.

VARYING WINE TAX.

Sir,—Is there any reason why the average Tommy's ignorance of the language and likewise his ignorance of the wine tax payable by British Troops, should be allowed as a means to swell the pockets of German waiters?

In the very numerous variety shows and cabarets in Cologne, a charge varying from two to five marks is made for admission and it is quite natural that Tommy, when ordering his wine, is often influenced by the prices stated on the Weinkarte, yet when paying his bill, as often as not, he learns that a considerable number of marks have been added as taxation.

Experience, however, shows that this amount varies according to the waiter's fancy, or the nature of the victim.

E.B.T.

ORDNANCE SHOPPING.

Sir,—The experience I have had at the Ordnance Department in Cologne has been different from what "Down-at-heel" alleges his has been.

I have been there several times, and on all occasions have been served in my turn, as promptly as possible, with the utmost courtesy, and have obtained everything I desired. If "Down-at-heel" and his disconsolate acquaintance have stood in queues and failed to get what they demanded, I cannot see that it is the fault of the Ordnance Department in Cologne, and if, on their arrival, they have found "the place" closed surely the fault is theirs.

Why did they not ascertain beforehand the opening and closing hours, as fixed by the R.A.O.C.? I may state that I am not in the R.A.O.C. nor am I any way biassed in favour of that most efficient Corps.

"Down-at-heel" has evidently joined the ranks of the chronic grousers.

"PERSPICACITY."

CONTINUOUS COUGHING.

Sir,—Is coughing a habit? It was at the Deutsches Theatre on Wednesday evening and during the whole performance a persistent loud coughing went on.

It brought forth a determined "Shh..." now and again from those who went there to listen to the play, but the effect was only momentary.

After the curtain has risen at the Opera House Tommy scarcely makes a sound until it falls again. Surely we can look for the same quietness in our own theatres, especially when listening to the excellent productions of the R.A.D.C.

A. PEEL.

OUR TASTE IN MUSIC.

Sir,—I read with amazement "C Sharp's" letter and cannot help thinking that he does not take a sufficiently broad view.

We may fall short in England in the way of Opera, but what about our orchestral and choral concerts, festivals, vocal and instrumental recitals etc.

He also asks what percentage of people can play or sing. We cannot all be executants, and I would point out that for a vast number more good may be derived by studying musical appreciation and learning how to listen to first-rate artists, than by being able to strum the "Spanish Chant" for hours.

The last paragraph jars one a little. If "C Sharp" has heard of such names as Elgar, Stanford, and Bantock, to choose a few at random, does he look upon them as mere ciphers to be dismissed with a wave of the hand, or does he regard them as important enough to rank with the stars in the business, engineering and exploring constellations?

Over-modesty, to my mind, is quite as dangerous at the other extreme. What we want to aim at is to

"B NATURAL."

Sir,—Is not your correspondent "C. Sharp" a little hard on the British people as far as musical taste is concerned?

If he has followed to any extent the articles in our leading musical journals he must have noticed that it has been pointed out time after time that the British people have not been educated sufficiently in Grand Opera.

In Germany the state looks upon music as an essential part of education and if necessary runs some of the greater operatic works at a loss in order that the people can educate themselves in this important branch of the art.

Until we British are given an opportunity of hearing the works of the great masters at more reasonable prices of course we cannot become musically educated.

W. W.

PITY THOSE WITH COLDS.

Sir,—Are we unsympathetic to other individuals who have colds yet expect a lot of sympathy when we have one ourselves?

This thought has struck me during the last few days with the advent of the autumnal cold. Individuals who have fallen early victims are treated as nuisances. When they are not so conversational as usual in mess we class them as bears yet when our turn comes, well!

BREAKER.

UNSEEMLY.

Sir,—"Terpischore" has my sympathies; what he witnessed was without a doubt a scandalous breach of decorum and the sooner such behaviour is checked the better for the reputation of the troops on the Rhine generally.

One or two thoughtless individuals can so easily do much harm in this way.

The matter seems to me to be linked to some extent with the too long prevalent custom of men impersonating concert parties, which you allowed to be discussed recently? This ought to cease also.

In Blighty, I know, as an ex-policeman, it is a criminal offence for a man to wear woman's attire in public.

I know of course that this doesn't mean at Fancy Dress dances, but it shows the view the law takes, of it anyhow.

X.

OPERA HOUSE HOURS.

Sir,—"Carmen" asks what others say. I'm afraid he would have felt somewhat abashed had he heard the remarks passed when his letter was read aloud in at least one billet room to-day.

Poor creature, having to forego dinner to attend the opera! I wonder if "Carmen" is aware that the average soldier has tea about 4.30 p.m. and has nothing more until breakfast next day.

Moreover when the latter is fortunate enough to get to the opera he does not display the arrant bad taste of munching chocolate and biscuits during the performance.

M.R.P.

CABARETS AND LADIES.

Sir,—I think a paragraph in your Rhineland Echoes of the 9th is explained by a letter in the same issue.

Cabarets are being avoided by officers on account of a feeling of uneasiness, founded or unfounded, which "Clearnead" courageously brings to light.

Nothing is gained by hurking facts; everyone knows the feeling to which I refer, and its cause.

A plain statement on the subject of fraternization generally is badly needed.

SOMME.

BOOKING THEATRE SEATS.

Sir,—As everyone is aware it is practically impossible to obtain a seat at the Deutsches Theatre, unless it has been previously booked.

To book a seat I must get to Cologne before 16.00 hours, which I can only do on Saturday afternoons; and I feel sure there are many in a similar position to myself.

The Booking Office at the Opera House remains open to 19.00 hours. Cannot the Deutsches Theatre follow suit?

L.M.S.L.

BOOKS OF REFERENCE.

Sir,—Over the nom-de-plume "Student" a correspondent has dealt with what, in his opinion, is a defect in the Reference Library at the Rhine Army Book Shop.

In one particular all will agree with him for we must admire his perspicacity (presumably the result of hard study) which enables him to assume "that no book can be properly judged merely by its outside" and "that the Reference Library is intended for use."

Quite so, use, not abuse.

There are many others who use the Library and to these consideration is due. Not all would-be students are of such an orderly nature as I venture to hope he may be, and it is questionable what guarantee we later visitors would have of finding the books we desired if free and unmolested access were allowed to the contents of the Library.

Again, is not order an asset to a Library even as to a parade?

The outcome of "Student's" suggestion would be the crowding of numerous people around the shelves, which, to quote again from his letter, would certainly look "pretty foolish" and doubtless detract from the utility of the Library.

Surely the contents of a book can be as well and even more satisfactorily judged by perusal in ease and comfort at the tables provided by the authorities for the purpose.

Surely it is far more simple to ask the assistant for books dealing with the subject required than personally to have to hunt the shelves.

But perhaps it is beneath the dignity of budding professors to ask!

The writer has always found the existing system quite satisfactory and cannot therefore support the motion of "Student."

"LEARNER."

TO MADELON.

I laughed at you, you did'nt seem to mind,
Because you could'nt talk our tongue, at all,
You used to smile at me when I tried hard to find
The words to tell you what was in my mind.

I laughed with you, because I found it hard,
To speak the words you had explained to me,
But you were cruel, you would not promenade,
Perhaps because you thought us Tommies bad.

You were a teacher patient and discreet,
And gradually you let yourself unbend,
Although my progress was not tout de suite
I learnt a lot. More than I dare repeat

* * *

You smile again. Those eyes of yours
are bright,
But now perhaps for Gustave or for Paul.
'Tis too, too true, you have forgotten quite,
The hours we spent that were such sweet delight.

The Cares of a Football Captain.

By J. W. Bache, Mid-Rhondda and England.

FOR MANY YEARS ASTON VILLA'S "SKIPPER."

As a man who had the pleasure of being captain of the Aston Villa side for some time, I supppose it is quite possible that I may be inclined to over-estimate the importance of the position, and of the part which the captain plays in the winning or the losing of matches. I must try not to do so, however, and at the very outset I must admit, from what I know of the two games, that generally speaking, the captain of a football team has not so many cares as the captain of a cricket side. While that is so, however, I am inclined to think on the other hand that the average man in the crowd is apt to under-estimate the part which he ought to play if he is really captain of a side, and not a mere figure-head. The spectator knows, of course, that the captain of a football team has the honour of being first out of the dressing room. He also shakes hands with the referee before the commencement of the game, and while the press photographers gather around he is deeply concerned about how the halfpenny will drop—whether it will come down "heads" or "tails." If the onlooker holds the impression that these duties sum up the beginning and the end of the cares of a football captain, he is quite a long way from reality. In the first place, the captain of a football team must be held mainly responsible for the type of football played by his team—I mean, the captain has it in his power to mould the whole play of the side. Doubtful play by any member of the team must of necessity reflect on the captain.

PLAYING THE GAME.

Thank goodness that during the years in which I was captain of the Aston Villa team my cares in this respect were very light indeed. We always tried to play the game as it should be played, though I don't wish to infer that we were plaster saints who were never guilty of a foul from the beginning to the end of a season. We weren't. But we always tried to keep the game clean, for when a side gets a reputation for doubtful play, then the captain must shoulder the responsibility to a large extent.

Naturally, too, the captain who has the real interests of his side at heart will do everything within his power to set an example of playing the game and nothing but the game. If the captain "does the dirty" how in the world can he expect the rest of the team to play fair and square? Hence the necessity for every side to make its choice of captain carefully, remembering that it is in the interest of every man who plays that the game should be kept as free from doubtful tactics as is possible for a strenuous game to be kept.

Again, while the care of the fair name of a team must rest upon the shoulders of the captain, so in the style of play adopted by the side the captain must of necessity play a big part. It is here especially that the value of a wise captain on a side is apt to be underestimated. A style of play which will beat one side will not of necessity beat another side, and lucky the team which has a captain who is quick to spot when things are going wrong, and who has the knack of knowing what to do to put them right.

SPOTTING A WEAKNESS.

It may be, for instance, that a team is playing on the strength and not on the weakness of its opponents. Suppose, to take an actual case, your opponents are weak in defence on the left. The captain ought to be able to spot that weakness, and having spotted it, he must give instructions that the play must be more or less concentrated on that side of the field. Just in the same way if a man on your side shows signs of being off form, obviously it isn't wise to feed him too much, or if the player who is having an "off" day happens to be a full-back then the captain must give instructions for the half-back in front of the weak player to help all he can.

Because it should be the duty of a captain to mould the team's play. I have always held the opinion that, other things being equal, the centre-half position is the ideal one for the captain of the side. The centre-half is the pivot of the team, and more than any other player on the field he is the determining factor of the methods adopted by his side. If the forwards of a side are playing too close, the centre-half is in the best possible position for opening out the game.

Perhaps of all times, however, the real cares of a captain arise when a member of the team is so badly hurt that he has to leave the field. Upon the actions of the captain then must depend to a large extent how the side shapes under the handicap of playing a man short. I don't think I am ever likely to forget my experiences in this direction connected with the cup-final of 1913, when I was captain of the Villa side.

A GRIM STRUGGLE.

We were playing Sunderland before a record crowd of 120,000 people, and those of you who were there will remember what a grim struggle it was—a game which will live in my memory as one of the greatest fights for victory in which I have ever taken part on the football field. The second half of that match was entered upon and up to then neither side had scored a goal. Then our goalkeeper—Sam Hardy—was hurt so badly that he had to leave the field. To lose any member of the team even in an ordinary match is bad enough, but to lose your goalkeeper in a cup-final is about the limit in calamity.

Practically speaking, it means throwing the whole team out of gear. I had to ask Harrop to come back from the half-back line and take the place of the injured Hardy in goal. That meant a gap in the half-back department which had to be filled from the forward line by Hampton dropping back. Fortunately everything came out right, for in a few minutes Hardy was sufficiently himself again to re-appear, and if you know anything about sighs of relief, you may bet your life I gave one when I saw him coming back.

"Gosh!" said one of our players to me after we had won the match and could afford to laugh, "I thought you were going to faint when Sam went off." I didn't know I looked like that, but I did know I had felt pretty bad.

There were other cares connected with our cup-tie experiences that year, but if the position of captain had its responsibilities—it also had its compensations. It makes up for quite a lot of things when you drive through the streets of the town in which the club has its headquarters, holding on high that coveted prize of the football world—the English Cup.

LANCASHIRE DIV. TRAIN.

No 2 Company Beat No 1 Company at "Soccer."

Played on the ground of the former on Tuesday. The game was very tame until the home team scored from a beautiful centre from a corner kick, Moores doing the needful. From that time onward the home team were continually attacking, but the score was still 1—0 at half time, the home goalie not having been troubled at all.

The play was much faster in the second half and some pretty play by the home forwards ably supported by the half backs was seen. Earnshaw who scored the next two goals played a great game at centre forward. A few minutes before time, Keegan got his foot to a good pass and the home team were 4 up. Walker at left back was always there to stop the visitors rare rushes, and Thornton, at centre-half was also continually in the limelight and kept the home forwards well fed. Result:—No 2 Coy 4; No 1 Coy 0.

No 4 Coy go under to No 1.

Played at Geislar on Tuesday. After only five minutes play, No 1 opened the score from a penalty which Crawford, the home keeper, first saved but was slow in recovering and the ball was eventually netted by the opposing centre. Play was now transferred to the opposite end of the field and it was not long before Cpl. Hill equalised from a splendid centre by Hillier. Following this surprise, 4 Coys' centre, overcoming all resistance, would certainly have scored but for Crawford's masterly clearance. Two minutes from the interval, Fisher added a second for No 1, and the same player put his Coy another goal ahead three minutes after the resumption.

This was followed by the visiting centre scoring with a glorious shot which Crawford was unable to turn over the bar. Each goal was then visited in turn but without effect until the visitors left back put through his own goal and a few minutes from time, Ayres added a fifth for No 1 Coy. For the home team, Fisher played a splendid game and Crawford kept a good goal. Cap. Crean played well at right back and Lieut. Penswick proved too tricky for the four opposing men who, in the second half, were set to watch him. For the visitors, their centre was well up to the mark and well deserved his two goals. Their outside right also played a good game but the lithe form of Cpl. Hill often hampered him. Score:—No 1 Coy 5; No 4 Coy 2.

THE SPORTING SPIRIT.

CORRESPONDENT COMPLAINS OF DISGUSTING CONDUCT.

"On Wednesday" writes a correspondent, "I witnessed a football match between two teams who were contesting the right to enter the final tie in a well organised competition. The behaviour of the spectators supporting one of the teams absolutely disgusted me. From start to finish, they did everything possible to discourage and hamper their favourite's opponents."

"Beginning by crowding round the goal to annoy the goalkeeper the "crowd" later abused the linesman—an old Blackburn Rovers player, by the way—and later the referee and players came in for many uncomplimentary epithets and even threats. Some of the members of the team were equally objectionable and unsportsmanlike."

"The pity is that there is no football association in Rhineland. If there had been such an organisation, the obvious thing that would have happened on Wednesday would have been the prohibition of any team affiliated to the body to arrange any fixture with the offending team for the remainder of the season. In the particular match in question the referee would have been perfectly justified in stopping the game and awarding the decision in favour of the other side."

"I do not desire to mention the name of the particular team I am discussing, but I have been unfortunate enough to witness a game played (or misplayed) by them previously. It struck me then that the men entered the field determined to win, apparently labouring under the delusion that it is preferable to win by foul means than to lose by fair tactics. I am glad to say that they lost both matches."

No 5 v. No 6 R.T.C.

These old rivals met at Mulheim on Thursday and after an exciting game 5th R.T.C. were victors. Play was very even until after a good run, Merrim's centre was headed in by Meadowcroft, the goalkeeper being helpless. This was all the score in the first half. The game was fairly even in the second half No 6 R.T.C. were pressing hard but failed to break the defence. After 15 minutes play, Meadowcroft secured the ball, and beating two men, soon found the net. The 6th broke away and after a muddle in front of goal, Dayle scored. There was no further score result:— No 5 R.T.C. 2; 6 R.T.C. 1.

LEEDS CITY F.C.

Match Against South Shields not to be Played.

2½ HOURS CONFERENCE.

The Joint Commission of the Football Association and the Football League renewed their inquiry at Sheffield on Wednesday into the allegation against the Leeds City F.C. of excessive payments to players during the war.

After 2½ hours' private conference, the Commission adjourned its inquiry until Monday, in London, and ordered the match against South Shields not to be played.

J. W. BACHE.

Writer of Special Article in to-day's, "Cologne Post."

"Joe" Bache the old Villa skipper whose article on the duties of a captain appears to-day has had many seasons of first class football. To-day the ex-Villan is getting on in years but he is yet a great force with mid-Rhondda.

It is interesting to note that "Joe" (as Aston folks will ever remember him) states that his most remarkable season was that of 1915. The Villa were cup winners, despoiling Newcastle United at the Palace, and on the same ground England beat Scotland in the international match. The only goal of what, Bache describes as the best international game he ever played in, was scored by this famous forward. He states he was very proud of this fact and goes as far as to say "It was my finest goal".

A well known football celebrity once said of him "He is a gentleman, a sportsman and a born tactician" and with this no follower of football can ever disagree.

N.C.O's v. MEN.

Interesting Rhine Army Troops M.T. Company Match.

To settle many long discussed arguments, this match took place on Wednesday before a good number of spectators, most of whom were quite as interested in the result of the game as the players. The Men's supporters had good reason to be satisfied with the show put up by their favourites, who at the finish ran out easy winners. There was not a lot to chose between the two teams during the first half, although the Privates always seemed to have something in hand, and they eventually scored through Eatch, the score at half time being 1—0 in favour of the Men.

In the second half the N.C.O's defence could not hold the opposing forwards, who combined very well and shot at every opportunity. The N.C.O's goalie had a very warm time, and was unable to prevent further goals being added by Eatch, Handel and Sallows (2) the final score being 5—0 in favour of the Men. The Men are now looking forward to a return match and hope that the N.C.O's will be able to find some new talent and thus give them a closer run for their money.

145 FIELD COY R.E. v. 43rd BATT. R.F.

The above met on Wednesday at Hentha Garden and after a splendidly contested game, the R.E.'s won by 5 goals to 3. Pte. Crowther, Pte. Watts, Williams (2) and Pte. Ball scored for the winners while for the Fusiliers, L/Cpl. Watson, Pte. Spaling and Pte. Evans found the net. Sgt. Horn refereed.

MORE FOOTBALL RECORDS.

"A" Company, 51st Highland Light Infantry have a record that appears to cap even the splendid performances detailed in the "Cologne Post" on various dates. The correspondent who sends this information has unfortunately failed to preserve a record of the matches played, but he adds that his statement can be confirmed.

The Company team has played numerous matches during the past eighteen months and still remains unbeaten. The secretary invites other record holders to participate in pitched battle with his team.

ARMY HOCKEY.

The Army Hockey Association announce that an inter-unit tournament will be held this season, open to all units stationed in Great Britain and Ireland. Each of the eight commands will find its best team by March 1, 1920. A knock-out tournament between the eight selected teams will commence at Aldershot during the third week in March, 1920.

THE AMERICA CUP.

In his challenge for the America Cup, which will be considered by the New York Yacht Club in the course of the next few days, Sir Thomas Lipton asks that the first race for the trophy shall take place on June 24. Mr. Charles E. Nicholson, the designer of the challenger, Shamrock IV., is now in New York to superintend a thorough overhaul of the yacht.

LEICESTER RACING.

CLARION WINS BIG PRIZE IN £1500 RACE.

CESAREWITCH FAVOURITE.

The racing at Leicester on the opening day was interesting enough to those on the spot, but excepting for the £1,500 race, had no bearing on coming events. Clarion unexpectedly turned up for the Leicestershire Stakes, and won the big prize from Knight of Blyth, who is rather an unlucky animal.

Details:—

Marden T.Y.O. Plate (5f., 10 ran):—Lord H. de Walden's Sabotage (Jelliss), 4-1, 1; Incense, 3-1, 2; Parisian Diamond, 4-1 3.

Rawcliffe Plate (6f., 3 ran):—Mr. H. Leather's' Maroon (Garnett), 7-2, 1; Some Scribe, 4-9, 2; Jewel of Ulster, 6-1, 3. ½:2.

Leicestershire Stakes (1¼m., 4 ran):—Sir G. Noble's Clarion (Lane), 11-8, 1; Knight of Blyth, 6-4, 2; Ninon, 7-2, 3.

Gopsall Plate (5f., 6 ran):—Mr. A. Boutall's Brilliant Sunshine (Robertson), 4-1, 1; Off Chance, 4-1, 2; Lesson, 5-2, 3.

Midland Nursery (5f., 7 ran):—Mr. S. Joel's Peah (Jelliss), 9-4, 1; Nova, 3-1, 2; Like Magic, 8-1, 3.

Camp Handicap (1½m., 6 ran):—Mrs. Cayzer's Jupiter (Robertson), 9-1, 1; Laugh, 2-1, 2; Sea Voyage, 8-11, 3.

King John.

The Cesarewitch field has been reduced by the scratching of Confessor and Happy Man. King John, who has become a firm favourite, is doing the best preparation of any horse at Newmarket. On Wednesday he was ridden by Martin in a two miles gallop. The Hon. G. Lambton's Devonpore went the first seven furlongs with him, whilst his companions over the last mile were Fitzclarence and London Pride.

London Betting.

Cesarewitch:—3/1 King John; 100/12 Golden Melody; 9/1 Gay Lord; 10/1 Uniter; 100/7 Ivanhoe; 100/6 Warwick; 100/3 Whiteheat; 40/1 Silverbridge.

Cambridgeshire:—10/1 Zinovia; 20/1 Clarion and Dromio.

ARMY ATHLETICS.

Cross-Country Championship to be Run Next Year.

An Army unit cross-country championship will be held during the last ten days of March, 1920, on a neutral ground in England, teams to consist of 15 of any rank, and 12 to count. The championship will be open to all Regular units serving in Great Britain and Ireland, units to be eliminated by commands so that not more than two teams from each command will run in the final race.

An individual championship will also be run at the same time, five entries to be allowed from each command at home, additional to members of unit teams competing. Individuals on leave from Armies abroad may compete at their own expense, subject to the approval of the Army C.C. Association Sub-committee.

TIME TABLE OF FIXTURES.

Many would-be spectators miss interesting matches, and many excellent matches lack would-be spectators, because the latter are not aware of the time and place in which they can function.

We propose with the help (which, of course is essential) of sports officers and club secretaries to publish daily a list of the chief matches etc. taking place in the occupied area.

We do not wish to restrict our list to football matches only; every kind of match, every kind of entertainment will, we hope, appear.

Organisers! let us have your lists at once; many people are wanting to see your future plans.

EXTRA TIME.

52nd King's Liverpools Beat 32nd M.G.C. In Final Spurt.

A very interesting game was witnessed on the Hofgarten ground Bonn on Saturday. The game was fast from the start, but there was no score at half time. In the second half both teams pressed hard to get a goal and the M.C. took the lead 15 mins. from time. Then the King's pressed and got a penalty which was put into the net by Barrow. Result: M.G.C., 1; 52nd King's, 1.

It was then decided to play 20 mins. extra time. From the start the King's were all over the M.G.C. and goals were scored by Carroll and Capt. Foss (2), and then the M.G.'s got a goal. The game ending with the King's winners by 4—2.

For the winners Fletcher, Carrolls, Capt. Foss and Barrow played a good game, and the 1,000 spectators present saw Macey, the King's goalkeeper, at his best.

SPORT IN BRIEF.

Golden Rule's Cesarewitch Rider.

J. Evans has been retained to steer Golden Rule in the Cesarewitch.

In Sale List.

Sir Thomas Dixon's three-year-old colt Ballyeaston, who started favourite for the Irish St. Leger, is in the private sale list.

Bulldog Cup.

The number of entries for the Bulldog Cup has been increased to 20. The draw for the first and second rounds will be made next week.

To-day's Boxing.

An interesting match is announced for The Ring to-night, this being between those well-known middle-weights Sid Burns, of Aldgate, and Nicol Simpson, of Newcastle, who are due to box 20 3-min. rounds.

Four Figure Gate.

The Bristol City v. Fulham match, at Bristol last Saturday, supplied the first four-figure gate in the history of the Western club. Over 21,000 paid for admission, and the takings fell very little short of £1,200.

RUGBY WANTED.

Facilities for Handling Code Inadequate, say our Readers.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

That there are many keen rugby players in Rhineland is clearly evidenced by the numerous letters on the subject received at this office from time to time. Yesterday's mail-bag contained several additions to the ever growing heap. One correspondent writes:—"May I suggest that a Rugby Football Club be formed in Cologne. Even if it is difficult to raise a fifteen in units out here, surely a sufficient number of members will be available to form two teams, so that we may keep our hands in until we can get home. There is a ground in the Deer Park, Lindenthal, complete with posts, which it seems a pity to leave unoccupied."

This is perfectly true, and there should be but little difficulty in getting together 30 or 40 players from among the large number of troops in Cologne. Furthermore, there are numerous men who would welcome the opportunity to learn the game that is steadily increasing in its popularity.

Another correspondent, after championing in enthusiastic language, the claims of the "Rugger" code submits a brain wave in the way of a scheme, the practicability of which certainly seems to be perfectly sound.

A BRIGHT IDEA.

Like the writer of the first letter, this correspondent admits the unlikelihood of individual units having sufficient players to turn out fairly respectable teams with any regularity. "But," he proceeds, "there is no reason why units should not amalgamate for this reason."

"Central areas might be decided upon—those adopted by you in connection with your excellent cricket cup competition, for instance—and all keen rugby players brought together from the various units stationed there. Then, according to the number of players available, teams could be formed to correspond numerically. One, two or three fifteens might be formed in each area and one ground to be played on on different days by the various teams would be sufficient for each area. Home and away matches would provide enjoyable visits to other units perhaps once a week.

"All that is necessary" concludes our correspondent, "is for one keen sportsman in each area to start the ball rolling by asking a representative from each unit in the neighbourhood to meet him to discuss the preliminary arrangements."

The idea seems to be an excellent one. Perhaps other readers would care to offer further suggestions.

LEAGUE TEAM CHANGES.

West Ham's Reshuffle For Match with Grimsby.

West Ham, who travelled to Grimsby by motor yesterday have again to reshuffle their team, consequent upon their poor display at Shepherd's Bush on Monday.

In the half-back line Kay is the only one that keeps his place. On the right it will be either Burton or Lane, while on the left Tresadern, who is now fit, will complete the line.

Biggin is dropped from the forwards, and his place will be filled by either Morris or Leafe. There may be eleventh-hour changes in the front line if the two new men the club are after are signed on Arsenal at Everton.

The Arsenal are endeavouring to get a 3 o'clock kick-off at Everton so that they can return home the same night. A 3.30 start means that they will have to stay in Liverpool all night and return to London by a slow train on Sunday.

CORINTHIANS' GOOD START.

In the first of their games arranged with some of the leading schools the Corinthians beat Charterhouse at Godalming by 6 goals to 2.

F. W. H. Nicholas (Oxford University), R. H. Allen, N. W. Sloley (the Cambridge Blue), A. G. Doggart (Cambridge), and H. F. Dupuis made too good a forward line for the School defence, but, apart from the actual scoring, the game went fairly evenly.

Moss in defence allowed Sloley, Doggart and Allen to get goals in the first 20 minutes. Sloley, Dupuis and Doggart added others in the second half. Mordaunt-Smith and Gilliat, the only colour playing, replied for Charterhouse.

£16,000 OFFER REFUSED.

Carpentier Declines Exhibition Fight With Dempsey.

According to a Paris newspaper Carpentier has refused an offer of £16,000 for a 6-round exhibition fight with Dempsey.

Carpentier says he wishes to beat Beckett in London on the 4th of December, then be ready to arrange a meeting with Dempsey not in an exhibition bout but for the world's championship.

REECE'S LEAD REDUCED.

There was little good play at Burroughes Hall on Wednesday afternoon until towards the end of the session, and then Inman made a break of 356 and Reece one of 218. Inman reduced Reece's lead from 686 to 538, the scores at the interval being: Reece (receives 1,000 in 16,000), 3,730; Inman, 3,192.

Closing scores Reece 4035; Inman 4001.

The interval scores at Thurston's were: Smith (in play), 12,751; Lawrence (receives 4500 in 18,000) 11,975. Breaks: Smith, 258, 117, and 205 unfinished.

FRENCH STABLE LADS' STRIKE.

The French trainers' syndicate have recognised the newly-formed stable lads' syndicate, and have agreed to look into all their grievances. In the meantime, to bring the strike to a close, they agreed to the following terms, which were accepted:—(1) Not to discharge any lad through the strike movement; (2) the days out during the strike to be paid at the rate of 5 francs; (3) wages fixed at 14 francs minimum for men living out; (4) lads with board and lodging to receive 140 francs a month.

Leave Club Whist Drive.

Many would-be players had unfortunately to be turned away at the Whist Drive held on Thursday evening at the Leave Club owing to lack of room, but the fortunate first comers had a most enjoyable evening. The scores were very nigh, Pte. H. Davis carrying off the first ladies prize with 161, while Pte. W. Howley and H. E. Cornwall were second and third with 157 and 155 respectively. Pte. F. Kirkland won the first gentleman's prize with a score of 157 and Ptes H. J. Jellis and G. Andrews were second and third with 153 and 152. It was in fact a most successful evening. Much gratitude is due to Lt. Rouch who presided and L/Cpl. Foore who acted as M.C.

B.R.A.D.C.

In "The Editor's Letter Box" column correspondents have frequently asked why the British Rhine Army Dramatic Company do not provide matinees for the benefit of those who cannot be in Cologne during the evening. A letter from Lieut. S. E. Percy, producer of the Rhine Army Dramatic plays on the subject, provides adequate reply to such questions. He says: "In response to appeals from "Exile" and others for matinees, the B.R.A.D.C. gave a matinee of "Hindle Wakes" last Saturday. The house was about an eighth full!—if that! This was the third matinee given by the B.R.A.D.C., and much as we like doing our utmost for the entertainment of the troops, we do not feel justified under these conditions in giving matinees again."

JACQUES.

Cardiff R. C.'s Misfortune.

Three members of the Cardiff Rugby Club have sustained accidents, and will be kept out of the game for some time. Each has a fractured collar-bone. At Bristol Dai Llewellyn was the victim, and on Saturday, in addition to Idris Richards, Bob Allison sustained a like injury whilst playing for the Reserves at Newport.

OUR COMPETITION.

Record Entries for No 3 Football Contest.

Yesterday was the last day for receiving coupons for our Football Competition No 3 and it is satisfactory to announce that the number of entries beats last weeks record by a considerable number.

The result will be published in Wednesday's issue of "The Cologne Post." As the Leeds City-South Shields match is cancelled only eleven forecasts will be required.

Below will be found coupon No 4 containing twelve matches to be decided a week to-day. Look up your back numbers of "The Cologne Post" for league tables and past results, and then forecast the results by striking out the team you think will lose. If you predict a draw, leave both teams standing. Send the coupon to this office but don't forget to enclose one mark with each effort.

Coupons must be addressed:—

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 4,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S.40 Rhine Army.

List of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

An Unfamiliar Tongue.

The British mules bought by the Germans do not seem to understand German yet. Yesterday I saw one stopping at the word "Vorwaertz."

Can you sing?

Passing the Soldiers' Club in the Antoniter Strasse, the other day I heard a chorus of male voices singing "Ye Mariners of England" charmingly. Entering, I found it was the Rhine Army Choral Society, rehearsing. I was told that it needs recruits.

A Question of Light.

"Now it will soon get dark with the new change of the clock" a Tommy on the platform of a tram said to another, who replied "No, it is just the contrary; it will keep light until later at night" A discussion began which lasted until I left the car and I do not know what was the result.

Their "Police Budget".

Have you ever noticed the "Criminal Zeitung" on the new paper stalls in Rhine and? It is almost an exact replica of our own "Police Budget." The heading follows the same style of lettering and the contents are just as full of horrors.

Ladies at the Clubs.

The presence of English ladies at the various officers' clubs is so common now as to pass unnoticed.

No Fish.

There was no fish to be bought in Cologne town during the first three days of this week. Yesterday I noticed prospective purchasers being admitted by twos and threes into one establishment.

The old Buff Book.

The news that the Command Field Cashier was prepared to do business through the familiar Advance Pay Book was eagerly passed from mouth to mouth in places where officers are to be found. It was treated as a rare tit-bit and I imagine that the Command Cashier did record business. Many, however, were unable to take use of the opportunity for the simple reason that their buff books were not available.

Why the Difference?

An officer friend has a watch which he wants to dispose of and as a preliminary to sale endeavoured to ascertain its present value. Judge of his astonishment when at one establishment they anpraised its value at £10 and at another 40 marks. He is trying a third expert.

Business Men Remember.

By a slip of the pen, forgetting that we don't issue our paper on Mondays, I said that the new Business column would appear on that day and on Thursdays. Now I have to tell you that Tuesdays and Fridays are the appointed days.

Successful Students.

In the recent results of Examinations for the Special Army Education Certificate the 51st Northumberland Fusiliers had another successful candidate, in Pte. T. S. Armstrong, to add to their list. I am told that this unit holds a record number of Special Army Certificates for The Rhine Army.

A "Locality"

Apropos my note on translation peculiarities, here is a notice which is exhibited in the window of a restaurant on the Nippes route, "This locality is now open to British Troops."

A Wounded Artist.

Above you will see some sketches of Cologne life by Captain E. Lander. I knew him before the war, when his clever work adorned the principal London magazines. In 1914 he joined up and subsequently lost his left arm. Someone in hospital said to him "Well, Lander, old chap, good thing it's not the arm you use in your work." "But it is" was the reply. And now Captain Lander is beginning to draw with his right hand.

The Fourth.

The fourth of our popular Football Skill contests starts to-day. It is expected to beat all previous records. Are you entering?

Station Signs.

A reader says he was interested in my allusion to the station signs at Mainz. Travelling recently in the Belgian sector he says he was surprised to observe that the signs of even the merest wayside railway stations have a rendering in no less than four languages Here is the most common example, "Sortie, Uitgang, Way out, Ausgang."

Unrecognisable.

I saw a funny printer's error the other day. It was perpetrated by a German compositor who set up "tunishelling progroms" instead of "inniskilling Dragoons."

Solomon's Double.

With the members of a certain Sergeants' mess in Rhineland it is a recognised custom to hang, on entering the mess, one's belt and side-arms immediately under one's own cap: for, some people make more of an exchange in belts than in one in the value of the mark. Last week, sergeant X hung his nickel-plated bayonet and adjuncts under the wrong cap, and of course, the natural consequence ensued. The case duly came up before the R.S.M. for decision. Held plaintiff would not be allowed to recover, having negligently but knowingly hung his belt under the wrong "heading."

Cinema Advertising.

The system of showing advertisements on the cinema is not so well done out here as in Blighty. There is a great lack of style in the matter screened. Our advertising manager informs me he could make his fortune designing plates, if he had the time at his disposal.

The Short Story.

Is it true to say that there is a dearth of short stories in Germany, asks a reader. He adds that there is in German literature a great and characteristic body of fiction called the "novelle," a form considerably longer than the short story as conceived in France and England, but shorter than the regular novel. The "novelle" is popular, judging from the number of books by such authors as Theodor Storm, which are on sale in the bookshops.

Chink's Festival.

All Chinese in France were given a day's holiday on Wednesday, the occasion being the Chinese Autumn Festival. Yesterday being the Chinese National Day, a further half day's holiday was given.

Near the Roof.

Have you noticed how much gymnastic artists monopolise the cabaret stage? Many of them are undoubtedly clever, but why they persist in getting as near the roof as possible when performing, beats me. Perhaps they think that if an accident does happen, it will be worth seeing.

A Wrong Practice.

The authorities view with disfavour the practice of officers' reserving sleeping berths on trains in their own names, but which are not for their personal use. The name of the person who will use the berth must always be given when registering.

The Only One.

For many months there was no busier place in Cologne than the Church Army Buffet at the Main Station. From 4 a.m. the lady workers had scarce a minute to themselves attending to the wants of British and Allied troops. During the early morning hours I have seen as many as fifty French soldiers there and as many Belgians, not to mention our own men who after forty-eight hours leave to Cologne, were out to catch the early morning trains to Duren, Euskirchen or Montjoie. Yesterday morning I dropped in there at half past seven to find that I was the only soldier in the place.

A Lost Camera.

A private in the Tank Corps tells me that he left a valuable camera in the cloak room of the Church Army Hostel in the Zum Hotel Cologne the other night, but in the morning was told that it had been stolen. He asks, first if he has any means of obtaining compensation and secondly if he may warn others from using this particular cloakroom.

Humorous Billsticking.

There is a billposting station which attracts my attention from day to day, not only because of the multi-coloured posters thereon, but because of the innumerable bills which seem to be given about half a day's publicity. You will find a sticker freely bedaubing and obliterating posters which were displayed for the first time the previous day while last week's election notices remained intact for but a few hours when others, issued presumably by a rival, were stuck over them.

Strange to Us.

I have noticed several times lately that German ladies accompanied by a gentleman pay for both seats in an electric car.

RHINELANDER.

AROUND AND ABOUT.

DRAFT CONDUCTING OFFICERS.

The decision of the Army Council to make draft conducting officers eligible for the 1914-15 Star, the British War Medal and the Victory Medal is a well-merited recognition of the services of these officers. Many of them were men well on in years and their job was by no means one of the most agreeable in the War. Yet I believe they generally succeeded in getting their drafts either to the railhead or base without losing a man. Sometimes they went through air-raids and shell-fire; while in one case, in Salonika, a certain by no means youthful officer so ruined his already enfeebled health at this work that he merely returned to England to die. But for the fact that they were not attached to any particular units, draft conducting officers would no doubt have always been eligible for the various War Medals.

THE LITTLE CORPORAL.

Most people have heard Napoleon spoken of as "The Little Corporal", but it is not generally known that the incident which led to the application of this epithet to the great general occurred at Coblenz. The story goes that in 1814, Napoleon was sorely defeated at Coblenz by the Cossacks, and would have been taken prisoner, had it not been for the presence of mind of one of his faithful followers, Corporal Spohn, who implored him to make an exchange of clothes to hide the Emperor's idenity. Before the battle had ended, Corporal Spohn, the pretended Napoleon, was being led a prisoner to the Russian General. When the discovery was made, the Cossacks were so enraged at being deceived, they slew the brave corporal. Napoleon, in appreciation of the self-sacrifice of this soldier, who had voluntarily given his own life to save that of his master, very frequently wore the uniform of a corporal, from which his friends familiarly called him "The Little Corporal."

HENDON FLYING CLUB.

The new Hendon Flying Club is more than likely to be very popular with members. The Club House is being erected by workers of the Grahame-White Aviation Factory who, as soon as aircraft building stopped, were turned on to this job. The decorations internally are truly Olympian and the furniture—chairs, tables and couches—was all made by the same workers whose skill in dainty work is well-known. The colour scheme, a dinky blue chintz affair, is said to be the work of Ethel Levey, wife of Mr. Grahame White. Her hand in the organization is by no means a hidden one if one may judge by the presence of the Hawaiian band which has come from Honolulu especially for the Club. The instruments of the native Hawaiian musician are quite wonderful, especially that large harp-like instrument from which they thrum the most eerie melody, and their rag-time music is really superb. One officer expressed the opinion that the music is perhaps bizarre to a person who cannot boast of being a futurist, but then, after all, he said, to be a modern dancer one has to be a bit of a futurist. Erstwhile patrons of Claridge's will rejoice to hear that the maitre d'hotel of that hotel has come to the new club, while the genius who made cock-tails at the American bar of Ciro's has also been imported. Perhaps however the main feature of the Club is the fact that it is a gigantic sports centre. You can hire an aeroplane for a week-end or short-flight, fish or learn fly-fishing in a real trout stream, and play almost every conceivable game from golf to tennis.

CHINA HATS.

Ta-jong, the wisest monarch who ever governed Korea, worked on more ingenious lines than those followed by its Japanese rulers of to-day. When Ta-jong came to the throne his subjects were the most quarrelsome of Oriental races, and the number of deaths caused daily by sudden brawls had reached alarming proportions. It was, therefore, decreed that no adult male should appear in public without a china hat in the shape of an inverted flower-pot. Hard fighting was impossible in such fragile headgear, the removal of which in any public place rendered the culprit liable to a dose of the bastinado for the first offence and decapitation for the second. Within a brief space brawling ceased almost entirely, and Ta-jong issued another decree congratulating his subjects on their peaceful behaviour. The Koreans still wear hats of this shape made of straw instead of china.

OPERA.

AN APPRECIATION AND A DIGRESSION.

Tommy is indeed privileged in Cologne. When one considers that for five marks (less than tenpence, English money) he can go to the Opera, and on different nights hear the strains of Puccini, the soul tearing arias of Verdi, the magic of Mozart, and the thunder and majesty of Wagner, one wonders if he really wants demobbing.

Will he be so fortunate when he gets home? I think not.

Here, for tenpence every night, he can have the whole panorama of human existence unfolded to him, comedy and tears, love and hate, jealousy and rage all skifully portrayed, and surrounded by the mystery of music.

Truly an education in itself, and I am at one with Browning when he said "There is no finer truth obtainable, than that which comes to man by music." Personally I am the happiest of fellows in such an atmosphere, for I revel in grand opera.

Only a day or two ago a friend of mine said to me. "You won't want demobbing, surely, with all these privileges around you," and yet I do and very earnestly, too.

Shall I tell you why?

I'm married, and being touched with a very romantic spirit, I am eager to be playing my part on the grand stage of life, where laughter and tears are real; and where hopes and disappointment crowd the stage in swift succession.

There are hundreds of others like me who will almost hear floating across the channel, Verdi's beautiful aria "Ah che la morte" telling as it always will, the world's sublimest tragedy.

Cologne is splendid, the operas are great, but when the grandest overture is ended, and the finest aria sung, the human heart still cries out for home and love.

THE STATE AND THE MINES.

PRIME MINISTER'S PLAIN WARNING ABOUT NATIONALISATION.

TACKLING THE IRISH PROBLEM.

NATIONALISATION.

"NEVER A MORE INOPPORTUNE MOMENT."

The text of the Premier's reply to the Trade Union deputation which waited on him yesterday regarding nationalisation of the mines has been officially issued.

It shows that he adhered to the policy announced by him in the House of Commons.

In the course of his reply Mr. Lloyd George said that Mr Smillie was right in saying that coal is the industrial life of the nation. It is also a great political issue and like very other political issue it is one which must be decided by the nation as a whole. If the nation is convinced that it is right in the interests or the people as a whole that this experiment should be tried, the nation has got the machine whereby it can express its will and carry that will into effective operation.

The Government can only state clearly what is its view and if that is not acceptable to the country there are means whereby the nation can not only carry out nationalisation but carry the Government out as well.

Proceeding, Mr. Lloyd George drew distinctions between the mineral resources of the country and the actual management of the mines by the State and said that the Government had definitely decided that it could not undertake State management of the mines. He also denied that State management would either save expense or increase the output. Referring to the suggestion contained in the report of the Sankey Commission that with the State as owner, the relationship between the miners and the community would be an improvement on the relationship between the miners and capitalists, he said "I might have thought so three weeks ago. I do not want to refer to episodes which are closed but they are printed pretty deeply in the public memory. There never was a more inopportune moment for pressing claims for nationalisation."

LABOUR CONGRESS.

BRITISH DELEGATES FOR AMERICA.

The representatives of the British Government to the first International Labour Congress at Washington will be Mr. G. N. Barnes, M. P., and Sir Malcolm Delevigne, K.C.B., Assistant Secretary to the Home Office.

The technical advisers for the Government are Dr. Legge, Senior Medical Inspector, Mr. Billhouse, Senior Factory Inspector, and Mrs. Constance Smith, Senior Lady Inspector, all of the Home Office, while Mr. Isaac Mitchell and Mr. Hodgson, the Secretary, have been appointed by the Ministry of Labour.

The Labour delegation includes Mr. Stuart Bunning, Chairman of the Trades Union Congress and Secretary of the Postmen's Federation, Mr. Arthur Henderson M.P. Mr. C. W. Bowerman, Mr. Sexton M.P., Mr. Onions M.P., Mr. Tom Shaw M.P., and Miss Mary MacArthur and Miss Margaret Bondfield.

Mr. G. M. Barnes will leave for America within the next few days and the bulk of the British delegates will sail in the Mauretania on the 22nd October.

IN THE FIELD.

GOLTZ ARMY STARTS FOR RIGA.

The German troops in Courland, recently under the command of General von der Goltz, have begun an offensive against the Letts, using aeroplanes, armoured cars and gas.

Numbering 20,000, their object is to occupy Riga and depose the present Lettish Government.

General von der Goltz who has gone to Berlin, is ordered to appear before the Council of war to answer for the proclamation inciting his troops to disobey the orddrs of the Government.

He declares that his army of 100,000 will stay where they are, turning themselves into Russians, thus converting the rich Baltic provinces into a state which will be nominally Russian but in reality German.

The Lettish Government meanwhile has appealed to Marshal Foch for Allied help, saying that the country will defend itself to its last drop of blood.

KING GEORGE RATIFIES THE PEACE TREATY.

His Majesty the King has ratified the Peace Treaty and the document has been dispatched to Paris.

IRISH PEACE.

NAMES OF CABINET COMMITTEE.

The Cabinet Committee which has been appointed to make recommendations for the future government of Ireland has now been finally constituted. It is a large committee, consisting of the following 10 Ministers:

Mr. Walter Long (First Lord of the Admiralty; Chief Secretary for Ireland 1905).
The Lord Chancellor (Lord Birkenhead).
Mr. Shortt (Home Secretary; Chief Secretary for Ireland 1918-19).
Mr. Fisher (President of the Board of Education).
Sir L. Worthington-Evans (Minister of Pensions).
Sir Auckland Geddes (President of the Board of Trade).
Sir Robert Horne (Minister of Labour).
Mr. Kellaway (Deputy-Minister of Munitions).
The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland (Lord French)
The Chief Secretary for Ireland (Mr. Macpherson).

Mr. Long will be the chairman of the Committee. No secretary has as yet been appointed.

The Committee has not yet met, and it will not hold its first meeting until next week. It will probably assemble on Tuesday, when Mr. Macpherson will have returned from his week-end consultations in Dublin.

OUR TRADE.

ANALYSIS OF LAST MONTH'S RETURNS.

Board of Trade returns for September give imports approximating 148½ millions, and exports 66½ millions corresponding increases of 50½ and 26¼ millions respectively. Imports during the last nine months aggregate 116½ millions and exports 541¼ millions.

"The Times" points out in a leading article that comparisons with a year ago are of little significance owing to radical alternations in prices and conditions. The only satisfactory basis is the previous month and taking the returns for August and making a small allowance for the railway strike we find a decline of over eleven million in exports of British manufactured goods while there is an increase of 2½ millions in the value of exports of raw material, almost all of which is accounted for by coal.

On the import side the totals for the two months are almost identical but imports of manufactured goods for September were valued at five millions more than for August. Summing up, "The Times" finds an adverse balance of 527 millions for the first nine months of this year, September's quota being 66½ million against fifty-nine for August.

It can hardly be suggested that invisible exports account for so enormous a sum, consequently there is no escape from the conclusion that we are getting deeper into difficulties with every succeeding month.

MURMANSK EVACUATION.

Although they were offered the chance of leaving the country aboard a British war vessel, the Russian General Miller and his troops in North Russia elected to remain from patriotic reasons. Many British troops also would gladly have remained as volunteers but in order to prevent any misunderstanding it was decided to bring every British subject away, leaving it open to any who wished to volunteer to return.

General Rawlinson sails to day and the British evacuation of Murmansk will be completed within the next few days.

PRINCE'S HOLIDAY CAMP.

The Prince of Wales returned on Thursday to the Royal train at Edenwold, walking most of the twenty miles to the station. He greatly enjoyed the four days under canvas with Commander Perry's North-West Mounted Police. He spent the time shooting and camping on the banks of lake. The duck shooting was especially good, despite an icy blizzard which froze the swamp and nearly carried away the tents.

M. P. SENT TO PRISON.

Mr. Patrick O'Keeffe, the Sinn Fein member of Parliament for North Cork, was yesterday sentenced by Court-martial to eighteen months imprisonment for seditious utterances.

A member of the King's household who acted as porter at a metropolitan station during the strike has forwarded £1 10s. 8d., the result of "tips" received by him, to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families Association.

TANKS AND CLAIMS.

JUDGE MAKES SCATHING COMMENTS.

On the reopening of the Tank Enquiry yesterday considerable time was consumed by a dispute as to whether the ideas embodied in Lieutenant Macfie's model and Mr. Nesfield's specifications were wholly Macfie's or Nesfield's. Various witnesses gave evidence and Counsel adduced arguments for each side.

The Chairman, interrupting Mr. Nesfield's Counsel, said: "We are very unfavourably impressed by the date of the application for provisional patent and specification. If a person with ideas goes to an expert to get his ideas embodied in a drawing it is very peculiar for the expert to proceed to take out a provisional specification."

In the course of the discussion Counsel mentioned that Lieutenant Macfie's tank was watertight and was intended to float.

Mr. Justice Sargant was incredulous and said he did not see how a thing of that size, weighing twenty-five tons, could possibly float.

Mr. Gordon K.C., who opened the case for Major Hetherington said that while the latter was acting as Chief Mechanical officer for the armoured cars at Dunkirk, he designed a car with very large wheels for use over broken ground. This design being rejected, Major Hetherington then worked out in his own mind the alternative viz, the Caterpillar tractor.

Counsel preceeded to refer to Major Hetherington's work as a member of the Land ship Committee when the Chairman interposed. "That is not a case for special remuneration," he said, "these gentlemen were simply carrying out their duties. To say that any one on the committee is entitled to special remuneration is a monstrous proposition."

After Major Hetherington had given evidence briefly, the Solicitor General contended that although Major Hetherington's energy had doubtless helped the Land Ship Committee and he had served the country well, he had not contributed a single definite factor to the evolution of the tank.

Mr. Justice Sargant also said that if the commission were unable to recommend any bounty for Major Hetherington it must not be understood as casting the slightest reflection on the way in which he had discharged his duties.

Sir Eustace D'Eyncourt's claim was taken next. The essentials to make the tank a practical engine of war were mobility, stability, strength, armour and armament and he claimed for the successful correlation of successful ideas. The selection of the proper combination practically amounted to invention. The Commission adjourned to the 20th October.

WAR NERVES.

OLD COMPLAINTS UNDER NEW NAMES.

In his presidential address to the Birmingham and Midland Institute Sir Hickman Godlee said that the war had shown how a large proportion of the male population was of a neurotic disposition. The conscript army contained more neurotics than the voluntary army, because few neurotics had volunteered. It was the universal opinion in the medical profession that no new nervous diseases had been caused by war. They had all previously been met with in civil practice.

PELTED WITH BOMBS.

JILTED LOVER'S TERRIBLE REVENGE.

An amazing drama of disappointed love has just been enacted with tragic results at Cottbus, in Brandenburg.

A young man, recently demobilized had been jilted by his sweetheart, who refused to see him. He wrote, warning her that he would be revenged.

As the girl stood, yesterday morning, among a crowd at the railway station, where potatoes were being distributed. the forsaken lover appeared, and hurled a number of bombs at the girl with terrible effect.

Six persons, including the jilted lover, were killed and twenty-one wounded.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS UNION.

All the foreign Ambassadors in England will attend the Mansion House meeting of the League of Nations Union next Monday. M. Venizelos, Prime Minister of Greece, has accepted the invitation of the Union to speak. In the evening Lord Robert Cecil and the executive committee of the Union will give a dinner at the Ritz Hotel at 7.30 to meet the Lord Mayor of London.

BALTIC STATES AND PEACE.

The Baltic States have received M. Tchicherin's reply to their proposal that peace discussions should take place at Dorpat. M. Tchicherin says that Soviet Russia would have preferred to negotiate within their own territory but nevertheless consents, and suggests that negotiations begin on the 12th October.

POOR RATEPAYERS.

The rates at Merthyr Tydvil have reached 17s 5d in the £1, earning for the town the unenviable distinction of having the highest rates in Great Britain or Ireland.

REPRIEVED!

FOX TERRIER'S PLEA FOR MERCY.

After the railway strike—a dog, to catch the public fancy.

A sensational trial which thrilled all London was begun and concluded yesterday at Clerkenwell sessions. The appellant was "Bobs", a black and white terrier from Fulnam, who appealed against a sentence of death pronounced on him by the West London magistrate on the ground that he was "ferocious."

Bobs came to court in a motor char-a-banc, accompanied by twenty witnesses, all of whom were prepared to swear that he was docile. His plea for life was put forward through his "next friend" as they say in Courts-martial,—Mr. Curtis Bennet K.C.

In support of the magistrate's decision, various witnesses gave evidence of unprovoked attacks by Bobs, which it appeared had among other crimes flown at policemen. When he was produced in Court and accommodated with a seat on the Barristers' bench, Bobs made a very favourable impression. His appearance bore out the statement of his mistress that he was the pet of the children and went regularly to the pictures.

Eventually Sir R. Wallis, Chairman of the Sessions allowed the appeal and quashed the conviction, subject to an undertaking being given that Bobs would in future be kept under proper control.

Bobs left in a subdued frame of mind but was warmly cheered by his supporters.

Twenty thousand signatures had been obtained to a petition against his death sentence.

AMERICA'S TURN.

MINERS, CHALLENGE TO THE COMMUNITY.

America finds itself faced with the prospect of having to fight for the life of the Community against yet another strike. Apart from the steel and dock workers demands, the most formidable menace to industrial peace now is the demands of the miners, who have declared their intention of laying down picks on November 1st unless before that date the owners concede a 60% increase of wages and a five day week of six hours daily.

The special commissioner of the New York Tribune describes the men as thirsting for a strike and believing that they can reduce the country to a state of starvation in a very short time, compelling a Soviet ownership of the mines.

One of the most sinister features of the miners' programme is a demand for the elimination from the new agreement of all automatic penalties for non-observance of conditions.

The New York Sun calls upon the American nation to imitate Great Britain's effort and fight back. It says the example of the triumphant British public is not likely to be lost upon other hard pressed public bodies.

BLACK SEA MUTINY.

FRENCH SAILORS WHO CREATED A SOVIET.

The naval court martial at Toulon has passed sentences on the men who mutinied on board the cruiser France in the Black Sea in April last.

The highest sentence passed is one of sixteen years on one man. Other men are given eight, seven, six and five years' imprisonment and degraded.

Sentences ranging from one to five years—in two cases with the benefit of the First Offenders Law—are passed on 21 men. Six of the accused are acquitted.

MEN SHOT IN DUBLIN STREET.

A sensational shooting incident took place at Rathmines, Dublin on Thursday afternoon. Shortly before four o'clock there was great commotion in Belgrave-square, where a large crowd had assembled. Three men were seen rushing out of a hotel in the vicinity, and after covering about fifty yards two of them fell. A third man, who has behind, ran back to the hotel, where a struggle took place between him and the police. The two men who fell, John Morris and Robert Purcell, were removed to hospital Both lie in a serious condition suffering from gunshot wounds. One of the injured men is a military officer. A policeman was injured in the struggle with the assailant. It is understood that an arrest has been made.

COAL CONTROLLER RESIGNS.

It is officially announced that Sir Evan Jones, Bt., M.P., who consented to accept the position of Controller of Coal Mines for a limited period at the urgent request of the President of the Board of Trade, has found it necessary to resign the position as from Oct. 8.

CHANCELLOR BALFOUR.

The Right Hon. Arthur J. Balfour yesterday was elected unopposed as Chancellor of Cambridge University in succession to Lord Rayleigh.

News has just been received at the War Office from the Head of the British Military Mission at Riga that all members of this Mission are safe and well.

SUMMARY COURT.

KNUCKLE-DUSTER LEADS TO IMPRISONMENT.

Friederich Tobst, of Mulheim, was described by a German policeman as a very bad character, who did no regular work and was always giving trouble. When the policeman asked him for his identity card he refused to produce it on the grounds as he said, that only the British police had power to make such a demand. He was taken to the police station and on being searched a knuckle duster was found in his possession. He was given ten days imprisonment.

A 20 years Character.

A tramway inspector named Josef Pollig was seen carrying three empty petrol tins in Schol-strasse, Lindenthal. Recognising them as Government property a Military policeman confiscated them and preferred a charge against Pollig of being in illegal possession of the tins.

Pollig, who has been twenty years in the employment of the Tramway Company, and produced a letter testifying to his good character, stated that he found the tins and was taking them to a military police station. In view of his good character and the doubt in the case Pollig was discharged.

New Line of Defence.

A two fold defence was put up by Jacob Peters of 9 Engelgarten, who has charged with the unlawful possession of 2,000 cigarettes. He contended that cigarettes, if wrapped in tinfoil are not canteen goods, and secondly that small numbers of cigarettes can come through the post and be sold in shops without being banded. His first line of defence was shattered by a witness who stated that canteen cigarettes are almost invariably wrapped in tinfoil and a customs officer deposed that none but banded cigarettes may be sold. Peter was fined 1,000 marks.

EXPERIENTIA DOCET.

NEW CRUSADER TILTS AGAINST OLD AGE.

Captain Oswald Mosley, the youngest member of Parliament (being aged twenty-two) who is Chairman of the London Branch of the League of Youth, has opened a campaign against "entrenched old age." He invites the youth of the country to "burst open the parlours of secret diplomacy, where old men are wont to barter the life of youth as counters in an after-dinner game."

He says the real division lies between the type that merely desires to return to 1914 and the type that longs to march forward to the winning of a better world: "Youth," Captain Mosley concludes, "has learned to distrust old age and loath its attributes."

S.R.D. AGAIN.

GOOD ADVICE TO TEMPERANCE SPEAKERS.

The conference of Church of England Temperance Societies which is sitting at Chester discussed yesterday the rum ration in the Army and Navy. After several speakers had condemned it an ex-soldier justified it and declared that while he was serving in France it saved his life. The Rev. P. A. Thomas, an ex-army chaplain, said it was a mistake for temperance advocates to speak in unrestrained condemnation of the rum ration. He knew many soldiers who would have died but for a tot of rum.

RAISULI'S RETORT.

Natives arriving here to-day from Raisuli's headquarters report that the Spanish authorities have requested Raisuli to release certain Spanish officers and men held prisoners by him and to allow the Spanish dead to be collected and buried.

Raisuli is reported to have replied that he will grant this request if the Spanish authorities will hand over to him all the Anjera tribesmen who have betrayed their country and their faith and are fighting on the side of the Spaniards.

GERMAN PRISONERS FROM ENGLAND.

The War Office announces that 4,187 German prisoners of war are being repatriated from England, beginning next week. The rest will be sent off at the rate of more than 400 per day. Repatriation from France and Belgium is nearly complete.

HIGH MASS IN WELSH.

Probably for the first time since the Reformation High Mass in Welsh was celebrated in St. Mary's Church (Church of England), Shrewsbury, yesterday. The occasion was the annual festival of the Catholic society of the Welsh Church.

LESS COAL FROM SILESIA.

Considerable decreases in the coal production are reported from Upper Silesia. Only 3 373 wagon loads have been produced, as compared with 13.000 in peace times and 10,000 in war time.

ONLY SHADOWS.

BRITISH TRADERS NEED NOT FEAR.

Sir Auckland Geddes, speaking at a luncheon at the Aldwych Club yesterday, said that careful investination showed that never had there been greater opportunities for British trade and never would there be greater opportunities in the future. Every nation of the world was short of something which Britain could supply. Germany for many years could not hope to rank among the great manufacturing nations. Many of her factories to-day were closed, either partly or wholly, material was lacking in every direction, and the men were hopeless, dispirited and unsettled. The cost of production was far higher in Germany than was commonly realised. Indeed he wished that Germany showed more signs of elasticity and development than she does, because she is one of Britain's great markets and could not buy from us unless she was producing wealth within her own borders. Britain must not be frightened by shadows and this fear of Germany, existing in many quarters, was a shadow.

As to Japan, said Sir Auckland, it must be remembered that Japan had to buy her raw material and machinery in the markets of the world, and her cost of labour was rapidly rising. Referring to American competition he declared that America was not well placed for world trade. Our exchange with her was hindering her exports to Britain. America was too rich for the world and because of her wealth could not drive us out of the market.

SAARBRUCK RIOTS.

FRENCH COLONEL KILLED BY SPARTACISTS.

Following a strike which was declared on Sunday, fierce rioting occurred at Saarbrück, owing to the arrival of a new Spartacists from the other side of the river. These changed a purely professional meeting into a revolutionary movement. This was stopped, but on Tuesday the workers delegates, on their promise to maintain order and return to work, obtained the liberation of the Spartacists. The same evening these men returned armed with revolvers and began an organised pillage and attacked the central telegraph station.

A state of siege was proclaimed and French troops intervened, with the result that a French battalion commander was killed and three soldiers wounded. Five Germans were also killed.

By Thursday morning most of the strikers had returned to work. The council of war has condemned one man to death and eight others to twenty years penal servitude.

KING OF ITALY'S THREAT.

WILL D'ANNUNZIO BE EVICTED FROM FIUME?

It is authoritatively stated that there is no truth in the rumour that Gabriele D'Annunzio has been murdered

While D'Anpunzio's forces have refused to leave Fiume the Italian Army and Navy is showing reluctance to carry out their orders to compel them to do so. It is reliably reported that the King of Italy has threatened to abdicate if the Army and Navy persist in this attitude.

"UNHEALTHY TREES."

Woking medical men have approached the local council with the suggestion that "all unnecessary trees in the district" should be felled or topped, on the ground that the trees are detrimental to health.

The doctors say that overgrowth of trees, especially near houses, prevents free ventilation, and that the trees "emit an injurious carbon dioxide during night hours."

The removal of the trees, they add, would "improve health and provide fuel at a time of national scarcity."

SWEDISH LEGATION SACKED.

The Swedish Foreign department issues a communiqué that it has received confirmation of the report that the Swedish Legation and Consular offices in Petrograd have been sacked by the Bolshevist authorities, who confiscated all valuables. The private apartments of the Swedish Minister, General Braendstroems, were also looted. According to the Bolshevists own statement the value of the goods plundered is about twelve million roubles. All the other foreign Legations are being treated in the same manner.

A FAMOUS ARTIST.

An exhibition of paintings by the famous Bavarian artist, Hans Thoma, who is now eighty years old, was opened at the Wallraf-Richartz Museum, yesterday by Dr. Witte, director of the Museum. The collection comprises twenty paintings and a number of sketches and are all in Hans Thoma's best style.

SOLDIER CHARACTERS.

The evening air now falling appreciably in temperature is as "full of strange oaths" as was the air of Picardy and there is still a sprinkling of old "swads" with an outlook slightly more extensive than that of a parson's daughter, but throughout the length and breadth of Rhineland the stuff of which "old Bills" are made is apparently lacking.

There is even in promising abundance, that "dram of folly" in our mixture the absence of which betokens, in Charles Lamb's opinion, "pounds of much worse matter in our composition," but "worthies" remain exceedingly rare.

Can it be that with the scraping off of the mud of France and Flanders men have also parted company with the qualities of heart and mind that constitute an original character whose mode of life and conversation is a source of perpetual amusement to numerous friends or acquaintances? With the departure of barbed wire have we also discarded barbed wit?

Mayhap the material is there only awaiting an Ian Hay or a "Sapper," a Mr. Service or a "Woodbine Willie" to start prospecting. So far, the Armies of Occupation have not given birth to a literary work of the type of "The First Hundred Thousand" or "Carrying On", and nothing in any way approaching the finest verse of Flecker, Nichols, or Siegfried Sassoon has been written by or about any soldier on the Rhine. This seems to call for immediate remedy.

Artists, like their literary half-brothers, sometimes create characters of enduring fame, and numerous admirable sketches of Army life as it is lived out here have come from both British and German craftsmen. Some of the work of the former, it pleases us to record, has greatly enlivened the pages of this journal from time to time. But the character or personality who will stir a continent like a Gibson Girl or a Buster Brown has still to be born.

Both in real life and in the realms of fiction no unit in our midst seems to have on its ration strength a type of humanity who could command an admiration such as the world bestows on the worthies who fill the sprightly pages of "Soldiers Three" or the "Three Musketeers".

If there is, let him make his bow to a grateful world either in the flesh or at the hands of a literary artist. Almost every calling in life has been blessed with a leavening of these choice and original souls, and the army in the past has not been without its share. While the war raged our portion in that respect was rich beyond the dreams of literary avarice.

Surely the fountain has not run dry! Professor Saintsbury once had the courage to name five nineteenth-century literary heroines whom he would have been glad to marry—let us hope not simultaneously! We could name five literary heroes whom the war produced and whom we should dearly love to meet. Cannot the British Army of the Rhine provide a sixth?

OUR HARVEST FESTIVAL.

It was distinctly inspiring to sing the old thanksgiving hymns that recalled happy memories of the past.

In our boyhood days the harvest festival appealed to us in many ways. It quickened the imagination, encouraged our love of the beautiful, stirred our hearts with gratitude and boylike made us long to taste the luscious fruit — grapes, apples, pears and plums — which were spread out before our fascinated eyes.

What times we had decorating the church with flowers, wheat sheaves and evergreens the night before.

How rich was the fragrance pervading the atmosphere It seemed to go through all the avenues of our being and reach our innermost natures.

So we did well to celebrate this ancient festival in Cologne and bring our gifts to the service. The October sun was shining outside and all nature seemed to sing a hymn of praise.

True the fruit was purchased in the German market and we were strangers in a strange land but what mattered it? God's gifts of the fruits of the earth are the same everywhere and in the hour of worship our thoughts were in the homeland.

With what deep feeling the men sang the old hymns —

"Come ye thankful people come."

"We plough the fields and scatter."

In front of them was a long table covered with flowers and fruit to remind them of the fulfilment of the ancient promise—

"While the earth remaineth, seed time and harvest... shall not cease."

The Colonel read the lesson. It is inspiring to see him standing there taking a part in the service, and the appropriate text:

"Cast thy bread upon the waters for thou shalt find it after many days."

At the close the fruit is distributed, the choice bunches of grapes, the loving gift of a Tommy, going to the sick lads in the hospital.

In a German Protestant church not far away they too were celebrating their Harvest Festival. The altar table was covered with choice gifts and all around the walls were hung numerous "In Memoriam" cards of members of the congregation who had fallen in the great war.

A strange contrast indeed.

Memory is at work in other directions; even on the field of battle in France we celebrated our Harvest Festival one day in the shadow of Ploog-Street Wood.

The Red Reaper had been at work and was still to gather in many more of our lads but we sang our harvest hymns even though the shells were screaming through the air. How much that service helped us. It took our minds away for a time from the dangers and privations which were our every day lot.

We need no cards to remind us this Harvest Festival day of our fallen comrades. They live in our hearts and above the noise of this City by the Rhine we hear the voice from heaven saying:—

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth. Yea, saith the spirit, that they may rest from their labours, and their works do follow them."

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

We Hear all Sides and Accept no Responsibility for our Readers' Views.

DIFFICULTIES OF BUYING.

Thought your readers night like to know my experience this week in obtaining Mess goods:—

Monday. Visit canteen to hand in list of goods required at a stated time on the following day. Position taken up in queue. Window reached and list presented in 35 minutes. List then filed by N.A.C.B. representative.

Tuesday. At stated time present myself at canteen taking up position in queue. Twenty minutes wait without getting perceptibly nearer window, retired from the struggle with intentions of "pouncing" in at a more favourable time.

Second appearance two hours later, same effort, same result. Retired beaten for the day. Dismissed Box Car.

Wednesday. Matter serious, Mess requires replenishing in order to appease members. Appear at canteen determined to "do or die." Position taken up in queue, window reached in 30 minutes. List taken from file, order made up and passed through to Cashiers Office. Position taken up in queue for Cashiers Office, window reached and money paid in 20 minutes. Attention given at counter. Examination of case of wine. Find two broken, notice of same given over counter. Chit for refund received with instructions to hand it to Cashiers Office. Position for Cashiers Office taken up in queue. Window reached in 15 minutes, chit presented. Informed chit must be handed in at "Orders" office. Remonstrations. Position taken up in queue, "Orders" office reached in 25 minutes chit presented. Refund voucher made out and handed through to Cashiers office. Position taken up in queue for Cashiers office. Window reached in 20 minutes, Money refunded. Finished. Mess members satisfied. Four days respite in which to prepare for the next bout.

OUR MUSICAL TASTE.

Sir,—I agree with "Popular". He has the courage to speak his mind even if some musical cranks would dub him "Philistine.".

I know lots of folk who go to the opera just because they think it is the correct thing to do. They come back to the mess and bore every one with so-called musical talk but I don't believe they have more taste for music than I have.

Melody is what appeals to me and most Britishers.

We like a good lilting air with a bit of "go in it," something you can hear once and carry in your head.

When we get the good old gramophone going in our mess not many of us want to hear "Lohengrin" or "Tosca" played on it. We want something that will set the feet tapping on the floor, cheerful and tuneful.

M. P. W.

CONTINUOUS COUGHING.

Sir,—I agree with "A. Peel" as to the "cough competition" which is held nightly at the Deutsches Theatre. A fellow near me won last night with umpteen thousand and nine spasms, but the number of runners up were tremendous.

Whilst sympathising deeply with the individual with a genuine cold I do think some restraint is possible. Doubtless irritation is caused by smoke and it makes one consider whether the management would not do well to prohibit smoking in the auditorium—it would at least do away with the match striking evil. Might I suggest that it is given a week's trial.

Nobody enjoys a smoke more than I do but if it is for the general welfare of the community then I'll be perfectly willing to take my pleasure of the weed between the acts.

C.B.C.

UNSEEMLY.

Sir,—Your correspondent "Terpsichore" has performed a real service in drawing attention to the behaviour of these would be female impersonators at fancy dress balls.

Cannot the promoters of these functions make it a rule that men dressed in female attire will in future be refused admission?

C.C.S.

BRITISH CHILDREN IN COLOGNE.

Sir,—In response to our invitation a number of parents met at our place on Friday and discussed the problem of the education of their children in Cologne.

We see our way to commence classes in "the three R's" on an early date and to arrange for private lessons in special subjects such as Latin as the need may arise. As the teachers are voluntary workers, and the classes will be held on our premises, there will be no charge for tuition except when special teachers are engaged. Of course the parents—they would not consent to have it otherwise—will bear the cost of books, slates, etc.

A number of children have already enrolled and a commencement will be made with a dancing class that will bring them into friendly relations with us and each other and enable us to know and classify them.

Further notices, as to dates and hours etc. will be given in the announcements of our lectures, entertainments etc. that appear daily in the advertisement columns of your paper.

We are acting in this as in all matters, on behalf and with the aid of Mr. Walter Ashley, the Y.M.C.A. General Secretary in the Occupied Territory, who takes a very special interest in this educational scheme.

For the Cologne Central Y.M.C.A. Staff
ALEX. FRANCIS.

OPERA HOUSE HOURS.

Sir,—I see by your edition of the 9th that "Carmen" would like the Opera performances to commence at a later hour.

I wonder if he is aware that people who do not live in Cologne also like to go to the Opera, and that if the Opera commenced later this would be impossible on most occasions, as it would mean staying the night in Cologne, which could not be done.

If "Carmen" is a lover of Opera the fact that he has to eat chocolate in place of a good dinner should not be a very great hardship; besides one can get an excellent cold supper in the Opera House Cafe between the acts.

"OPERA LOVER."

OVER FASTIDIOUS.

Sir,—I quite agree with "E.E.D.'s" letter, and have often thought of the same thing myself after hearing certain remarks being passed with regard to some of the shows—which are entirely the labour of love—set up for the benefit of Tommy.

I really think it is about time some of us in Rhineland, appreciated more fully the efforts, and the pains taken, to amuse, and to make our Army Life as pleasant as possible; and it is really surprising to me how anyone can pass any uncomplimentary remarks.

The splendid work that has been done in this respect for the benefit of the English troops is wonderful, and in this respect the British Army stands entirely on its own, and I can assure those who are unceasingly giving the best of their ability and talent for our benefit, that they have the highest appreciation of the great majority of the "Boys."

There are some of these "hard-to-please" people we know, whom an angel, in all his purity and perfection, could not please. Let them, and their remarks be set aside as not worthy of paying any attention to, and just "carry on."

SINCERE SUPPORTER.

A HOPE FOR THE FUTURE.

Sir,—Much has been said about the influence which military service may have on one's future life in relation to our fellow men and on our National life generally. How many—or how few—of the hopes and surmises in this direction will be realised has yet to be seen. But I believe that out of this great union and co-operation of all classes towards one great ideal—this unprecedented throwing together of men of every trade calling and social status should come a deeper sympathy and understanding between man and his fellows than have ever before existed.

Our great democratic Army was formed,—clerks, labourers, barristers, "gentlemen of independent means", managers, porters, farmers—all sleeping eating and roughing it together.—All were obsessed by the one great common cause. Gradually they learned to understand each other and to value their fellows for the men that they were, apart from any social status, and for the great hearts which beat beneath such various exteriors. The blessings of the war may be said to be few when compared to its horrors and sorrows, but surely this was one of them.

And now men are going back to their own little world once again will they forget the lessons they have learned? Will they get once more into the old ruts? Or will the outcome of it all be something akin to that great love and fellowship which the Man of Nazareth came to tell us about. If so, I dare to hope great things for England, and for the world—of the future.

THE CONVERT.

During that week which marked his evolution from civilian to soldier, when he was not a civilian yet wore civilian clothes, a soldier but un-uniformed, "Ed" was at great pains to make known the fact that although his age had hitherto prevented his enlistment, he was at heart a volunteer.

Later however, with the realisation that the brilliancy of a soldier's buttons was entirely dependent on certain external and altogether deplorable activities, there came a distinct change in his attitude; a change which became noticeable as he withdrew his support from the voluntary system and declared publicly and frequently that he was proud to be a conscript.

The advantage which this attitude carried with it was brought prominently to the notice of the unfortunates who were fated to share the same barrack-room as "Ed," for he, while cursing the "powers-that-be" for their unwarranted interference with his life, was never tired of pointing out that certain people who had chosen this path of martyrdom and drudgery had no one in this world but themselves to blame for any inconveniences which they had suffered, were suffering, and would surely suffer.

To say that he never tired of this sort of soliloquising gives a negative view of the case; he absolutely gloried in it from the time he rolled grumblingly out of bed, mentioning that while he had a perfect right to ratify "Reveille" and all its echoes and associations he didn't see what people who had asked to come into the army had to grouse about, until the sounding of "Lights Out" found him only beginning to make his bed and unloosed a flood of oratory which invariably terminated with proofs of his title to the monopoly of all grousings regarding military life.

So it went on until the Armistice found him still on the safe side of the water and changed his wail from the unauthorised liberty "they" had taken in pulling him into the Army so that he could be sent overseas to get killed, to the unauthorised liberty "they" had taken in pulling him into the Army, and then never sending him overseas or giving him a chance to do anything to justify the weary months he had spent in training.

This grouse in time was superseded by the more general one of demobilization, and because his lack of wound stripes, war service, and other necessary matters prevented any other means of release, he suddenly evinced a laudable and hitherto unsuspected consideration for the welfare of his widowed mother.

His Commanding Officer and other authorities so appreciated this consideration that his release was authorised and "Ed" was soon at home. His mother, I may say, did not in the least appreciate the credulity of the C.O. concerned, for as she explained to "Ed", with the demise of her bibulous husband and the mobilization of her son (who shared the paternal failings) she had found vastly more pleasure in this life than when she had been working to feed the trio.

In the days which followed, "Ed" found that an intricate knowledge of the "innards" of a machine gun is not of any marketable value, and although for a month after his return a thoughtful Government supplied him with sufficient funds to live on, he soon realised that one must work hard to acquire the wherewithal to provide the necessaries of this life, and it therefore required confoundedly hard work if one wished to indulge in even the smallest luxuries.

About this time too, he began to lose that self respect which glittering buttons and highly polished boots were wont to impart and the last straw was the dawning knowledge that when his present outfit was unserviceable, replacements could not be obtained by the mere presentation of his signature. "Ed" began to think of his late Quartermaster as a sort of fairy godfather, a thought widely diverted from his previous opinions of that personage who had usually been considered as a mephistophilian type of character existing only to thwart the legitimate aims of honest persons.

* * *

A week ago a small draft arrived for a certain unit. A barrackroom was allotted and as soon as they had settled into their places, one reached for his haversack, removed his tunic and having prepared his "Soldier's Friend" by — in the usual manner, was immediately busy polishing up, the while he whistled an accompaniment as tuneless as it was cheerful.

"Oh shut it 'Ed'" said one of them, "You give me the ear-ache."

RAS.

"RUGGER FOOTER."

13th Bn. v. 52nd Bn. The Kings Liverpool Regiment.

13th LEAD THROUGHOUT.

A very interesting game was witnessed between the above teams on Tuesday last, on the 52nd Bn. Kings' ground at Romlinghoven. A good deal of loose play marked the opening stages but gradually the visiting team improved and on more than one occasion had distinct ill-luck in not scoring. A feature of the game was a brilliant run by Lieut. Christian, who was brought down on the line, after running practically the length of the field. After repeated attacks on the home fort, Lieut. Cox opened the scoring with a good try. The goal kick was wide. Half time arrived with the 13th leading by 1 try to nil.

Resuming the visiting forwards carried play into their opponents half, Lieut. Costello adding the second try, which Lieut. Whittaker converted, with a beautiful kick. The 52nd now assumed the offensive. From a line-out on the 13th line, Cpl. Swift forced himself over at the corner. The goal kick fell short. Time arrived with the 13th victorious by 2 tries 1 goal (8 pts.) to 1 try (3 pts.)

91st FIELD AMBULANCE v. No 8 COY LANCS DIV. TRAIN.

This match was played on the Sports Platz at Bonn, on Thursday. The "Medicas" showed marked superiority throughout the game and emerged winners by fourteen goals to nil. The 3rd Lancs D.v. Train Coy became dangerous once or twice but their efforts availed nothing. The goal getters for the Ambulance were Sgt. Brown, Ptes. Graham, Bowler and Brown.

SIX GOALS TO ONE.

Southern Div. M.T. Coy Beaten By Light Div. M.T. Coy.

These teams met at Thilenbruch on Wednesday. Scoring was opened by Hawes for the Light Div., after about 15 minutes play, and this was quickly followed by another through Woodward, whose forward play was beautiful. A regrettable incident then occurred. Cpl. Broadhead, the Light's left half, had the misfortune to hurt his ankle and had to be carried off the field. Just before the interval he again took up his position but not before the Southern Div. had got one home.

The Light Div. opened well in the second half and played beautiful football. Woodward added another couple of goals to his credit, one being the result of a penalty. Carton also added two more for the Light Div. and a very pleasant game resulted in a win for them by 6 goals to 1.

Seven matches have been played by the winners of which they have won five, drawn 1 and lost 1, with a total of twenty one goals for and ten against.

THE AMERICA CUP.

Designer Of The Challenger On Her Construction.

The "New York World" expresses the view that the Cup Committee of the New York Yacht Club at its meeting next week will without doubt accept Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge to race for the America Cup next summer, probably in July instead of June.

Mr. Nicholson, the designer of the Shamrock IV., prior to sailing on the Baltic, gave out the first description of the challenger. The details of her construction show that lightness was the main consideration, and that the yacht is virtually without timbers except longitudinal, strength being derived from triple planking—two strakes diagonal and an outer one running fore to aft. Her mast is of hollow wood, and is the largest ever made. It is not even braced with steel. The yacht will carry more sail than either the Resolute or Vanitie. She will also have more beam and length, and therefore will have to give the defender a considerable time allowance. She has withstood the climate during her five years' stay here splendidly, and the aluminium frames are in perfect condition, some of the aluminium deck fastening being about all it will be necessary to remove. Mr Nicholson says the result of the inspection has much pleased him, and he will report to Sir Thomas Lipton that Shamrock IV. will be fit and ready when the time of the race arrives. He added that Mr. W. P. Burton will sail the Shamrock IV.

BREAK OF 401 BY INMAN.

Only 4 Points Separating Him from Reece.

The feature of Thursday's play in the billiards match between Inman and Reece at the Burroughes Hall, London, was a break of 401 by the champion. This is the highest of the match, so far. Other leading breaks were 71, 93, 89, 69, 70, and 101 (unfinished) by Inman, and 89, 122, 82, 98, 120, 155, 87, and 63 by Reece. Closing scores: Reece 5,194, Inman 5,190.

Lawrence, whom Smith is allowing 4,500 in an 18,000 up match at Thurston's Hall, London, is falling further behind. His best break was 147. Smith made a 130, 138, 178, and 103, and led at the close by 15,001 to 13,339.

CRACK CYCLIST REAPPEARS.

W. J. Bailey, the English crack professional cyclist, made his reappearance in open competition since the war at the meeting held at Brussels recently.

In the semi final heat of the Grand Prix he was shut out by Van Kempe, of Holland, the final being ultimately won by Bob Spears, of Australia.

POPULAR TENNIS.

The All England Lawn Tennis Club is contemplating extensive stand developments at Wimbledon. So keen is public interest in the game nowadays that applications have been received already for seats for next year's championship meeting.

'NATIONAL CHANGES.

Vizard And Jennings Not Allowed To Assist Wales.

BOLTON WANDERERS' ACTION.

As Kitchen of Sheffield United, and Grimsdell, of Tottenham Hotspur, are both on the injured list, Puddefoot (West Ham United) led the English forwards yesterday at Cardiff, and Grenyer (Everton) was at left half. These players were chosen for these positions for the postponed match at Stoke last Saturday, and presumably when that game is played Kitchen and Grimsdell will be given their places in the side if fit.

The refusal of the directors of Bolton Wanderers to allow Vizard and Jennings to assist Wales has caused considerable disappointment in Welsh football circles. The vacancies were filled by the inclusion of Keenor and J. Evans, both of Cardiff City.

The F. A. Council on Monday will consider the question of playing the match that should have taken place at Stoke last Saturday.

FULHAM v. BRISTOL CITY.

Match To Be Played At Craven Cottage On Monday.

The Football League has ordered Bristol City to play their return Second League fixture with Fulham, at Fulham on Monday. This is the game that should have been played last Saturday, but the League decided that Fulham must first fulfil their engagement at Bristol, which should have been kept on Sept. 27, but which fell through owing to the impossibility of securing the necessary transport facilities. The kick-off next Monday will be at 3.30 p.m., and Fulham expect to play the side that won at Bristol.

The London Challenge Cup replayed tie between The Arsenal and Fulham, at Highbury, was been fixed for Monday, Oct. 20.

ARSENAL'S NEW FORWARD.

Arsenal have signed on Sidney Lewis Lawrence, a centre-forward who has made a big reputation in the Army. He originally came from Southampton, stands 5ft. 9in., and weighs 12st. 4lb.

THE F.A. COUNCIL.

Proposed Extension Of The Season For Cup Ties.

At the meeting of the F.A. Council, to be held at Russell-sq., the Lancashire F.A. will make an application for permission to play the semi-final and final ties of the Lancashire Cup on May 8 and 15 next.

On behalf of the Association of that county Mr. Sutcliffe will also move:—

That, in view of the increased expenditure when County Associations will in future be called upon to bear, and the difficulty of arranging dates for the semi final and final ties in their County Cup competitions through the increased list of League fixtures, and with a view to encouraging the County Associations to do all in their power to foster and develop the growth of juvenile football and also to prevent mid-week matches, permission is hereby given to the various County Associations to play the semi-final and final ties during the month of May so that such competitions shall be completed not later than the third Saturday in May in each year.

That the clubs shall be allowed to pay to the players taking part in such matches and the reserve players in attendance not exceeding thirteen players £3 each.

The County Association shall pay all the expenses, including the railway fares of the visiting team reserves and officials actually paid not exceeding sixteen in number, and shall retain the net proceeds for the purpose of the county funds.

HOCKEY.

12th Loyal N. Lancs. v. 15th Lancs. Fusiliers.

The Fusiliers were the visiting team. Five minutes after the start, the North Lancs. secured the first goal. With this advantage, the spectators expected them to add yet another victory; however, the Lancs. Fus. equalised. The game proceeded very evenly until fifteen minutes before half time, when the Fusiliers put in a good shot and the goalkeeper was unsuccessful in stopping it. After half time, both teams played well and fast, but repeatedly the ball was in the Fusiliers goal mouth. The N. Lancs. failed to score.

Result: 15th Lancs. Fus., 2; 12th Royal N. Lancs., 1.

GLOUCESTER COUNTY CLUB.

The Gloucestershire County Cricket Club report a loss of £403 on last season, this being largely due to the bad weather experienced for the Cheltenham and Clifton Festivals, but the county started the season with a reserve fund of over £4,000 to its credit. It has been decided to re-engage Parker, Dipper, Smith, and Mills, and offer Huggins the post of official scorer. Ellis is to be retained until April, when, if reported fit, he will be added to the permanent staff. If Captain George Dennett, who is making a good recovery from the operation he has undergone at Plymouth, leaves the Army, he will also be offered an engagement.

FINE JOCKEYSHIP.

Favourite Beaten In Nursery Race At Leicester.

STRONGER FIELDS.

Stronger fields than on the preceding afternoon were seen on the concluding day at Leicester but the quality of the sport was not particularly good. One of the best races of the day was the nursery with which the programme began. It was expected that Pleasure Ground, who had been substantially backed at Ayr, would now prove successful. He made a good effort to justify his favouritism, but could never quite get on terms with La Hogue, who, aided by stronger jockeyship, scored just by a head, thus repeating the success she recently gained at Great Yarmouth.

Village Nursery (6f., 11 ran).—Mr. H. Kent's La Hogue (Griggs), 10-1, 1; Pleasure Ground, 7-4, 2; Gattamelata, 6-1, 3.

Welbeck Plate (5f., 7 ran):—Mr. A. Barton's Ambassadress (Jelliss), 6-1, 1; Some Scribe. 100-8, 2; Mother Shipton, 7-4, 3.

Kegworth Handicap (7f., 10 ran).—Lord Glanely's Sea Song (Whalley), 2-1, 1; Sabian, 7-1, 2; Main Royal, 6-1, 3.

Leicestershire Plate (1½m., 4 ran).—Major J. Foster's Marcato (Griggs), 5-6, 1; Periscope, 3-1, 2; Brandwine, 10-1, 3.

Bradford Handicap (5f., 11 ran).—Mr. J. White's Sans Atout (Templeman), 4-1, 1; St. Gingouph, 8-2, 2; Monte Faro, 7-1, 3.

October Plate (1¼m., 4 ran).—Major Holiday's Auramine (Wing), 6-4, 1; Blood Royal, 5-6, 2; Nichivo, 50-1, 3.

TURF MARKET REPORT.

The special correspondent of "Sporting Life" reports the following transactions on the London Turf Market:—

King John was a shade easier, 1,300 to 200 being laid and again offered.

Golden Melody was very firm, only trifles being invested at 8 to 1 before 750 to 100 and 500 to 70 were laid and 100 to 14 again offered.

Unitol also improved. Opening at 900 to 100, he closed at 1,000 to 200.

The stable companions Gay Lord and Ivanhoe each had a few admirers at 900 to 100 and 500 to 35 respectively.

Warwick opened at 1,000 to 35 and closed at 1,000 to 40.

John Jackett and Eton Rambler were each backed to win a few thousands at their quoted rates.

As to the Cambridgeshire, Zinovia again hardened, closing at 1,500 to 200 (taken three times) after 100 to 100 and 1,000 to 120 had first been secured.

Minor sums only went on Clarion at 20 to 1 before layers reduced their offers to 1,000 to 60, at which rate nothing was done. Prices:—

EPSOM STABLE LADS.

Threat to Cease Work Next Week for Higher Pay.

Epsom stable lads are demanding a minimum wage of 50/- per week. They offered to meet the trainers at a conference to discuss the matter, but the National Union of General Workers, not having received a favourable reply from the Trainers Federation, has advised the lads to hand in their notices to-morrow to cease work on the 18th inst.

NO RACING AT MERHEIM.

There will be no race meeting held on the Course at Merheim during the month of October.

FOOTBALL GATES.

Does The Shilling Charge Admit Of Profiteering?

BY "W. Le C."

When reading the reports of football matches again and again one sees the statement "before a record gate," or the scribe may add "before 40,000 spectators." May I say that it is good "copy" but how often is it far from the truth? In many cases the estimate is made by some one who knows nothing as regards the holding capacity of a ground or who bases his estimate from a position where it is a practical impossibility to judge the number present. Many indeed are wild guesses.

Take a case in point. I read three papers' estimates of a certain gate last Saturday, one was 60,000, another 50,000, and the third 40,000. The official statement said 43,209. However, you buy your favourite paper and take your chance of it being correct.

A gate of let us say 50,000 reads as good business for a club and one can hear remarks such as "They are coining money," "Money for nothing," or "So-and-so's doing well," etc., etc. But look at it this way; 40,000 spectators present presumably 10,000 of whom are boys, that means 30,000 at a shilling £1,500, and 10,000 at sixpence £250, or in all £1,750. To this add extra for enclosures and stands and here let us remember that a number will be shareholders and also many ladies. Let us suggest £250 and we get a total of £2,000.

OTHER SIDE OF PICTURE.

Now for the other side. Entertainment tax will require £450, referee, linesmen, police, checkers, gatemen, advertising and printing say £100. These deductions will leave us with roughly £1,450, but there is the visiting club's share, and this being 20 per cent works out at £290 and you have the so-called "Money for nothing" gate reduced to £1,160.

But again, we have to remember that many grounds have yet to be paid for and frequently a third of the gate will go to meet the demands of the builders then we find that the imaginary gate of £2,000 reduced to somewhere about £800. Rather a big difference and we have not taken into account wages, rent, rates, ground repairs and a small host of incidental items.

So when one reads of these record gates and money making of a club do not forget the other side of the picture and then ask yourself the question: "Where is the profiteering even in the shilling gate?" The gate we have dealt with was taken on a fine day; what of the bad weather gates? It is not altogether a bed of roses directing the fortunes of a football club. Ask yourself.

BOWKER STILL BOXING WELL.

Although many years have elapsed since Joe Bowker, of Deptford, won the bantam-weight championship of England, he still retains much of his former cleverness.

At New Cross Empire he knocked out Charlie Ward, of Hackney, during the 15th round. In a ten-rounds contest his brother Arthur beat Gordon Noble of Catford.

SPORT IN BRIEF.

N. U. Cup.

The first qualifying round of the Northern Union Cup is to be played on December 30.

Time Will Tell.

Oxford soccer was undoubtedly under a cloud before the war, and it remains to be seen whether it is really as decadent as the pessimists would have us believe.

Prize Money Increased.

There will be a big increase in prize money at the Warwick November Meeting. The total money set apart for this purpose is £4,150, and no race will be worth less than £150.

Public Schools Football.

Football, both Rugby and Association, is now in full swing at all the big Public Schools, and this week will see the winter programme of matches commenced in earnest.

Sportsman Honoured.

The Brazilian sportsman, M. Paula Machado, who races extensively in France, has been made a Knight of the Legion of Honour for services rendered to the French cause in Brazil during the war.

Chuette.

It would have been a great pity, from a sporting point of view, if Chuette had been unable to fulfil her engagement in the Cesarewitch. She is the heaviest-weighted of her age, and her weight—8st. 11lb.—is exactly the same as that carried to victory by Air Raid last year.

Welter-Weight Contest.

The welter-weight contest between Jerry Sea, of Newport, and Jim Falcus, of Newcastle, which was to have been the feature of Thursday night's show at the Liverpool Stadium, was postponed on account of the railway strike until to-morrow.

£50 Purse.

Mr. Harry Marks, who reopened the Queen's Hall, Cardiff, on Monday, states that he is prepared to give a £50 purse for the contest between Tommy Phillips of Neath, and Idris Jones, of Ammanford. If this is accepted a slight alteration will be necessary in the date agreed on by the boxer —Nov. 3 instead of Nov. 1.

A Bad Spell.

Coventry City have had a dreary experience of Second Division football to date. They have played eight games, and Tottenham Hotspur, Leeds City, Birmingham, and Leicester City have each taken four points from them.

Compulsory Athletics.

Harvard University has decided on a system of compulsory athletics for its freshmen. Each man will be allowed to choose a game in which he is particularly interested. Three hours of exercise will be required each week.

AMUSEMENTS AND RECREATIONS.

THE ELOPEMENT FROM THE SERAGLIO.

While nearly all composers have given the principal role in their operas either to the tenor or the baritone, Mozart, in the "Elopement from the Seraglio," performed at the Cologne Opera House on Friday, places the chief part in the hands of the bass singer. This was Julius Glass and he made the best use of his great opportunities as Osmin. What a splendid part it is! The manner in which Mozart introduces the character is in itself a masterpiece. After Belmonte's aria, which breathes the noblest feelings of love and sincerity, Osmin sings a love song — but one born of jealousy. The effect produced is colossal when Osmin repeats the last words of the song in the lower octave.

* * *

But his love song is interrupted by Belmonds and both emerge into a duet which is glorious in its realistic efforts. The refrain, "Ich habe auch Verstand" is intended to display all the dignity of Osmin and seems to crush poor Pedrillo. The striking effect of this refrain lies in the intonation, inasmuch as the orchestra accentuates the first beat in each bar while the singer uses first a fifth, and gradually, in the crescendo that follows, the octave. In the duet with Blonde, Osmin poses as a poltroon, and his jeremiad "You Englishmen, are you not foolish to let your wives have all their own" is just the reverse of his former love song. One is forced to enlarge on this performance of Herr Glass because of the importance given to the bass role by Mozart. It was written originally for the greatest of all bass singers, Fischer, of whom he wrote "His voice has the range of a violincello."

* * *

Karls Schröder was also splendid in the character of Belmonte and his rendering of the aria "O wie ängstlich, o wie feurig," was very fine. The part of Constance was well played by Kate Herwig. Hans Robert, as Selim Bassa, H. Clemens as Pedrillo, and last, but not least, Johanna Klemperer as Blonde, contributed their best to the excellent performance which was attended by a large and appreciative audience. C. L.

Mixed Voices Choral Society.

It is proposed to resume rehearsals of the Rhine Army Mixed Voice Choral Society, which made a successful start in April last. Work was suspended in June for the summer months. Membership is open to all officers, N.C.O's and men, and to all English ladies resident in Cologne, who are interested in unaccompanied choral music. The first rehearsal of the new session takes place, I hear on Wednesday, October 15th, at 5-45 p.m., in the Lecture Room on the first floor of the Church Army Soldiers' Club, Antoniter Strasse.

Archie Mozley Recital.

Friday's pianoforte recital at the Gymnasium, Euskirchen, fully came up to expectations. A large audience in no uncertain manner signified their complete approval of the excellent items submitted. Archie Mozley was the chief artiste and he opened the programme with a capital rendering of the ever popular Rachmaninoffs prelude. His subsequent items included such varied works as Beethoven, Chopin, Mendelssohn and Brahms. His playing throughout was always finished and artistic to a superlative degree. Other artistes who contributed to the programme were Alfred Barker, the well known English violinist; Walter Brickell, tenor; and Will Hardley, accompanist, all of whom were excellent. Edward Brindle was the director.

"The Crumps" at Lindlar.

After their success at the B.E.L.C., the "Crumps" gave another excellent show at Lindlar on Friday, this time producing their sketch "Green-Eyed Lobsters," the comedy part of the man-servant being successfully played by "Tolly de Mache." A burlesque entitled "The Rosebud of Stinging-Nettle Farm," re-written and produced by Harry Harris ("Dora") was a feature of the programme. The characters were ably portrayed by Jack Knight (the Squire) Tom Fenwicks (the Villain), Tich Whetton, as the Rosebud, Ted Moody as the Farmer and "Tolly" as the love sick yokel, while Willy Lamb was the surprising "Climax." A new member of the "Crumps" is Billie Howell who gave some pleasing specialty dances. An excellent coster "rag" concluded the programme.

Programme at the Leave Club.

This afternoon the Rev. C. D. Wheeler will converse with the men in the Writing room from 5—6 p.m. and at 6.30 the band of the 52nd D.L.I. will give a concert assisted by the Pipers of the 51st H.L.I. Miss Marjorie Moore will give an impromptu concert in the Music room to-morrow from 5—6 and there will be a practice dance in the Theatre at 6.30 p.m. On Tuesday, a dancing class for beginners will be held in the Theatre and an impromptu concert will take place at the same time in the Music room.

Fancy Dress Dance.

I hear that on Wednesday, October 15th, there is to be a Fancy Dress Dance at the British Empire Leave Club, and that only those in costume will be allowed in the ball room, also that arrangements have been made for the two dressing rooms near the stage to be kept for the use of men coming from a distance. Those in Cologne are being asked to come as much dressed as possible with overcoats and caps on. The dance begins at 6.30 and finishes at 10 p.m. and the G.H.Q. Jazz Band has kindly consented to play, so that the evening should prove the usual great success.

Indispensables Concert Party.

The Indispensables Concert Party which has won such great success at Duren during the last week has kindly consented to give a performance on Tuesday, October 14th at the British Empire Leave Club and a record house is expected to see this excellent Concert Party of the 5th Tank Bde M.T. Coy.

In Few Words.

On Friday, Oct. 17, the longest run in the history of the London stage will be celebrated at His Majesty's when the 1,497th performance of "Chu Chin Chow" will be given.

Just "Erb."

This is an impression of Erb alias Fred Weedon, otherwise Sgt. Trimm, of "The Pedlars" (Lancashire Division Concert Party) as he appears in the war-time café scene. Weedon is a big favourite with the boys at Bonn and Cologne, and his appearance is invariably greeted with cries of "Erb!" "Erb!" The slogan of "Erb", a name which he calls his fictitious cat, has gone far to make him well known — but, then when you've seen him once you can never forget him. He is one of the funniest, most spontaneous and versatile comedians in Rhineland. In "a Sister to assist'er" Weedon scored one of his biggest successes.

JACQUES.

DEATH OF A CHAMPION BORZOI.

Champion Pavlova the famous borzoi bitch, belonging to Mr. Arthur Ashton, Newcastle, died the other morning. She was champion of England and held the championship of Dublin, Regent's Park, Ranleigh, Croft's, Crystal Palace, and had won over four hundred first prizes, as well as the silver bowl given by M. Bleriot. She was seven years old.

RECORD ENTRIES.

Increasing Popularity Of Our Football Skill Competition.

There will be busy times in this office to-morrow, when the adjudication of our football competition No. 3 will commence.

As announced yesterday, the entries are much more numerous than they were in either of the previous contests, a very substantial sum being available as prize money, in consequence.

The result will be published in "The Cologne Post" of Wednesday next, but in the meantime, don't forget competition No. 4.

Cut out the coupon below, then strike out clearly the name of the team you consider will lose (or if you predict a draw, leave both names standing) add your name and address and send it along to us with one mark for each coupon.

Coupons must be addressed:—

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 4,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S.40 Rhine Army.

List of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

In Motley.

It has been whispered that at the Thursday Officers' Subscription Dance on October 16th at the B.E.L.C., fancy dresses of all kinds will be allowed in the ball room of eastern splendour.

Dazzling Car Lights.

A great many people are complaining to me of the excessive glare of head-lights on motor-cars which are a source of danger to pedestrians by reason of their dazzling effect. Certainly it does not seem quite necessary to have veritable searchlights in front of one's car.

Arrived in Cologne.

I saw a very happy family party yesterday. A Tommy was carrying in his arms, a tiny child, his young wife and two other children were by his side and he looked the picture of joy.

An Argument.

I came across a little party of sergeants in the heat of an argument the other evening. I wondered if they were debating demob problems or the intricacies of the mark. Nothing of the kind. There was a marked difference of opinion on two points, the age of Marie Lloyd and the winner of the Cesarewitch in 1897.

Thousands To Spare.

I am told that after all these months of "Gold Flake" famine there is now a glut of "Yellow devils" at the Clubs and canteens. It never rains but it pours.

Vanity.

I was an amused observer of a little incident at a Cologne Hotel yesterday. A typical German who had obviously taken great care of his toilette escorted the fraulein of his choice into the dining room. The fair one retired where upon my Adonis produced a small hand mirror and carefully examined his features and re-arranged his tie. Diners in the vicinity were obviously amused.

Be Soldierly.

Some soldiers who have been pulled up for walking arm-in-arm with members of the fair sex seem to resent it. Possibly many have not been long enough in the army to know that taking a woman's arm in public "isn't done" when you are in uniform.

Comparisons.

In a certain mess recently might have been seen the unusual spectacle of a German waiter and a Lance Corporal of the Northamptonshire Regiment exchanging experiences of treatment as prisoners of war respectively at Oswestry and Cologne. The Englishman who evidently had made good use of his unwilling sojourn in Germany before the Armistice spoke fluently in German.

Our Contemporaries.

A few days ago I remarked upon the fact that I found this paper frequently quoted by English contemporaries. This is the case, but not to the extent practised by German newspapers, who invariably acknowledge the source and "lift" "Cologne Post" specials from day to day.

At German Banks.

Owing to difficulty experienced in cashing officers cheques at German Banks I am informed that G.R.O. 3478 is cancelled for the present.

Note.

I learn that the Base Cashier in Paris will not in future exchange francs for marks. Other ranks granted leave of absence to France may exchange marks for francs at the Field Cashier's up to the value of £1 per day of leave. Officers will make their own arrangements for exchange.

Identification.

Officers and other ranks who visit hotels in France and Belgium will in future supply to the hotel management not only their names, but the battalion or unit to which they belong. They must also produce for inspection their leave passes or other identity papers when requested to do so.

Getting Things Done.

Not more than a week ago a lady wrote a letter to this paper suggesting a school for the children of soldiers on the Rhine. Already this letter has had its effect. From another letter published to-day you will see that such a school is being started. This is only one instance of the value of ventilating views in our invaluable "Letter Box".

Fewer Bathers.

Have the attraction of the Turkish baths in Cologne paled? Where earlier in the year it was difficult to secure a cubicle, on Wednesday, I found half a dozen available. My favourite attendant tells me that there has been a slump in officer patrons and he bemoans the fact the more because he is reduced to paying three marks fifty for ten of a popular brand of cigarettes. Wednesday is to be set aside for officers in the future.

The Link.

Don't forget that the folks at home are most interested to read of your doings in Rhineland and like to know about all the countless matters of interest out here. You cannot possibly write it all in your letters. The Cologne Post does the whole thing for you and, if you send to-day, it will only cost you 15 marks for a whole month.

Black and White.

At a variety show in Cologne in which the auditorium was as nearly as possible half khaki and half civilian there was a dancing turn, the principals being a coloured male and a white girl. They were rather clever dancers but somehow this black and white turn did not appeal to Tommy and he was not at all lavish in his applause. The Germans however seemed to think it the star turn of the evening and applauded accordingly.

White Bread in Demand.

If you are dining at an Hotel and see a diner at the next table surreptitiously unearth a bulky package, do not get alarmed. In all probability it is only a loaf of white bread. It reminds me of leave in wartime when we carried a tin of sugar from the hotel bedroom and having breakfasted carried it back again. These individuals are invariably of French or British nationality but not all take the trouble to conceal the objection to German bread.

Where do they go?

Take a walk through the streets of Cologne, late in the evening and you will be able to count the Brassards worn by English ladies on the fingers of one hand. This is in striking contrast to the morning when they are to be met with at every corner. Is there a disinclination to walk abroad after dinner or do they regard their armlets as unnecessary when escorted by their men?

The Cheerful Pub.

My friends advise me of increasing signs at home that returned soldiers familiar with the cheerful interior of Continental cafés intend to demand something of the same sort on that side of the channel. There is a real demand for the public house which is a "real refreshment house to which everyone of whatever degree or kind could freely resort without concealment or hesitation" The difficulty, of course, is that the licensing laws as at present administered stand in the way.

RHINELANDER.

OPINIONS OF THE MOMENT.

TRAFFICKING AT THE GATE.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, the war correspondent writing on his pilgrimage to Ypres says:—"There are many people in Ypres, and at the very gate through which our men used to go on their way to Hooge, there are now crowds of women and children selling picture postcards of their own ruins to tourists in motor-cars and pilgrims afoot, outside restaurants and cafés and booths like those in a country fair. There is something that shocks one's mind in this if one knew Ypres in time of war, and the blood that soaked this ground, until reason reasserts itself over weak emotion, and says, 'This is good. This is life. This is revival after death.'

TRIALS OF GETTING DEMOBBED.

A woman writer, on returning to the ways of womanhood says:—"Demobbed and debobbed—the latter usually follows. But the debobbing presents the greater difficulty. The debobbed go through three stages. The first is the worst, when the hair is too short, defies pins and straggles out in wispy ends. The second stage is long and mournful; one looks like a neglected, overgrown schoolgirl and feels equally absurd, wasting anxious moments wondering whether it will ever grow longer. Triumph only comes at the third spasm, when the new locks are actually long enough to twist."

HOW TO SCRAP "BRADBURYS."

Sir John McLaren, a well known commercial man, speaking of finance says: What is wanted is to scrap "John Bradburys" and get back to currency, but we can only do that by the exercise of thrift and industry. High wages I do not object to, but big output we must have. It is no use obtaining orders unless they can be executed. I have £100,000 worth of orders in sight, but cannot touch them because my customers say they cannot afford to pay the price made necessary by the increase of wages, 120 per cent., and of material, 200 to 300 per cent.

THE HUMAN EMPLOYER.

Lord Weir, who was an engineer before he became Director-General of Aircraft Production, appealing for a more human employer, says:—"Let the employer remember the human side, the essential relationship of man to man, the side which calls for tolerance and a universal sympathy. And equally must the trade unions revise their attitude and accept the responsibilities which the progress of economic thought demands from them. They must swing their whole strength round to eliminate the elements in their present policy which obstruct progress."

LITTLE NATIONS.

Mr. Sisley Huddleston, the author, writing on the danger to Europe's peace of little nations says:—I have been touched many times when Ministers from little new nations have come to me, almost with tears in their eyes, demanding my feeble aid for their country, showing a pathetic trust in my power simply because I am an Englishman and belong to that great little nation which dominates the world. They realise that without help they are lost. They belong to pauper States, not strong enough to possess a separate life. To them I have always said: "My nation, too, is comparatively small, but she has become all-powerful because she forms part of a great Confederation!"

MISTAKES OF DESPOTIC PARENTS.

Lady Askwith, writing on the mistakes of parents says:—"No doubt marriage prohibitions are given with the very best intentions, but they are often the cause of much trouble and unhappiness to those must directly concerned. Nobody will deny that all young people need cautioning against the folly of "boy and girl" marriages, but there are cogent reasons why men and women should marry young. Such unions are not invariably attended with disaster, as many would have one believe."

BOMBS BEFORE RIFLES.

Lieut.-Colonel Croft writing on his work with the 9th Division says: "The majority of the British Army in the autumn of 1916, if they met a Boche above ground, would unhesitatingly chuck a bomb at him rather than use the rifle. We always used to tell our people that it was just as dangerous for them to chuck a bomb in the open as it was for the man it was meant for because the radius of explosion was a good 20 yards. Think of it! Chucking a bomb like a blighted anarchist at an enemy instead of shooting him with the most accurate weapon in the world."

SOUND ADVICE.

The Editor of the 3rd M.G.C. Magazine says:—Labour, straining at a gnat, has swallowed a camel, and until we get rid of this agitator pest, labour will remain unsettled. Here in Germany, it is easy to see the gigantic efforts being made by our late enemy to secure again a 'place in the sun' as far as exporting goes. Under the new scale of pay, it is possible to save quite a large sum in three months, whilst advantage could be taken of the time to study one or more subjects that will be of assistance in the future.

COMRADESHIP.

To have a real pal has meant much to men who for years have been cut off from loved ones in the homeland. When the tide of adversity was flowing in full force over the lives of men, the grip of the hand of a friend, the look of sympathy, has often helped a man to bear up under the stress of life and to surmount those difficulties which crowded into that time of action during the long days and nights of untiring watch over the enemy, during the days of anxious waiting, when the fate of Empires hung in the balance, when the powers of evil seemed almost to have snatched the victory from the forces of righteousness.

To fully understand a person one needs to be in sympathy with him; and sympathy is born either of similarity or love. To understand the music of Mozart, one must either have a soul to appreciate music, or love the man. To read aright the paintings of a Turner, one must either be artistic, or love the artist. To understand the longings of a human soul, one must have similar ideals, or love that soul for its own worth.

In the complex lives of men and women of to-day, who can enter into their thoughts, or understand those trials which come to the sons of men? Only a great soul who loves God's highest creation, or one who has had to fight those bitter trials and temptations, and through it all gain that great and glorious victory, when self is eliminated and the welfare of one's fellow men is all that matters.

Comradeship has truly meant much to men, and now when the lives of men are changing, when the friend of years departs, there will be a gap to fill, there will be a longing for a true pal, to share one's joys and sorrows, the true friend to help in the time of adversity and danger, and that gap must be filled.

Standing waiting and ever ready to help is the Great White Comrade, Jesus Christ, who can befriend a man both now and through eternity. No man need be friendless, no man need stand alone, for the Son of God can fill the void that the horrors of war have made. God Incarnate is waiting to be the Comrade of all. He knows, He loves.

Can such a comrade be found? Can it be possible that there is one to whom mankind can go, and however deep that sorrow and however great that trial, there will be found that wonderful sympathy for which a man longs?

Jesus Christ, The Man of Sorrows, One whom we are told was acquainted with grief, can be that true friend. He both understands the human life and can appreciate those times of despair which creep over the soul, for was ever man's sorrow like his sorrow, those awful hours of agony in the Garden, but hours which brought the victory with the words. "Nevertheless not my will but Thine be done", and there is also that Divine love for the world which could give life itself for love of the human race.

OUR DAILY BREAD.

How we get it in Rhineland.

Do we ever ask ourselves the question when eating the excellent white bread provided for us each day in the Rhine Army, how and where it is made?

A visit to our splendid bakeries will open one's eyes to a new world, so full of interest, where hundreds of men toil night and day so that the oft repeated prayer can be answered:

"Give us this day our daily bread."

The Hoffnung Bakery at Kalk, formerly used by a German Co-operative Society, is a busy hive of industry. Its orderliness and spotless cleanliness impress you just as much as the remarkable character of the building.

You mount the stairs to the loft and are lost in wonder as you gaze upon the huge stack of flour. It is conveyed here by a double electric lift at the rate of six tons an hour.

It is pleasant to see the pile increasing and you ask the question, "How much flour can this vast chamber hold?" The reply staggers you:

"One million pounds."

Still pondering this immense total you turn to the mixing department and see the process of dough making.

Here you see two great mixing machines, whirling round at a terrific speed. It is most fascinating to stand there and with an inquisitive turn of mind you ask about the ingredients. There is no secret about it; we have often seen dough made by hands but not machinery or in such huge quantities. We are told that each mixing contains a two-sack dough, that is, five hundred and sixty pounds of flour to which is added half that weight in water and another mixture, made in a separate pail, from three and a half to four pounds of yeast, seven pounds of salt, and water at the same temperature as that already mixed with the flour.

Each machine can turn out five thousand pounds of dough an hour. After being allowed to prove in troughs for eight hours the doughs are cut out and slide through the floors to the dividing and moulding machines beneath. These machines weigh, cut and mould forty portions of dough (sufficient for a two pound loaf) a minute.

The Baking floor is a joy to behold. Here are fourteen huge twin draw-plate ovens which can turn out one hundred thousand loaves a day.

The bakers, when at work drawing bread from those ovens, have to endure the terrific heat of anything between four hundred to four hundred and fifty degrees.

The electric power for the machinery is derived from two generating engines of one hundred, and one hundred and sixty horse power.

At Ehrenfeld there is another bakery run on similar lines but with only six ovens, each one capable of turning out six hundred pounds of bread an hour or about fifty thousand loaves a day.

The genial officer in charge of these bakeries is Captain A.J.R.Parnell a technical bakery expert with very considerable experience. He was formerly in charge of the Bakeries at Dieppe, which during the war, turned out sufficient bread for nearly one million men each day.

Mention should be made of the fact that these bakeries are open to British visitors each Wednesday afternoon.

All ranks are invited to contribute articles etc. to the columns, all contributions are paid for.

GERMAN BALTIC CAMPAIGN.

VON DER GOLTZ'S ARMY CAPTURES RIGA AND IS STILL ADVANCING.

PEACE TREATY TO COME INTO FORCE.

FALL OF RIGA.

GERMAN TROOPS ENTER THE TOWN.

On Friday last after severe fighting in the marshes before Riga, Colonel Bermondt's forces captured the suburbs of Riga. The following day they captured Thornberg by assault and now occupy the Dvina Bridge.

According to the latest telegrams received at the British Foreign Office about the fighting in Lettland and around Riga, General Judenitch has issued a proclamation declaring Colonel Bermondt to be a traitor. He describes the attack on Lettland to be unauthorized and orders all officers and men of the Lettish Army to join the Russian North-West Army which he commands.

According to reliable reports from Königsberg, strong Esthonian columns are marching from Segwald towards Riga and Estonian troop transport is said to be en route for Libau.

The "Local Anzeiger" learns that the British Fleet in the roads at Riga suddenly weighed anchor and put to sea for an unknown destination.

According to the "Vossische Zeitung" a German detachment under Major Bischof will remain with the West Russian Army.

General von der Goltz has addressed an ultimatum to all the German troops asking them to declare their attitude on the question of evacuating the Baltic provinces, otherwise adds the ultimatum "the threats of the Imperial German Government will be carried out." An answer to the ultimatum is expected within the next few days.

FISHER WRITES.

TWELVE YEAR OLD PREDICTIONS.

Publication of selections from Lord Fisher's Book of Memories commenced on Saturday. "The Times," in which the recollections are appearing, justly describes the book as a remarkable and challenging work. The first extract is chiefly concerned with the late King Edward, and includes two interesting letters from Fisher to him.

In the first letter, dated March 1908, Lord Fisher writes, "For a naval war against Germany we want Russia with us and we want the Aland Islands fortified." Further on he says, "Russia and Turkey are the two Powers—and the only two Powers—that matter to us against Germany, and that we shall have to fight Germany is just as sure as anything can be, solely because she cannot expand commercially without it."

Several extremely racy stories diversify the selection, and Lord Fisher has no false shame about telling stories against himself.

GOURAUD FOR SYRIA.

Interviewed by a representative of the Petit Parisien General Gouraud, the new High Commissioner for France in Syria, said he believed he had been chosen for the post because of his colonial career and experience in the Mussulman world, and owing to the excellent relations he had always had with the British, whose troops he was going to relieve. The same paper thinks that Gouraud will be a brilliant and energetic representative of France at Beirut.

SINN FEIN FIGHT.

A Sinn Fein meeting attended by ten thousand people was suppressed at Ballinasloe on Saturday afternoon by a force of four hundred Royal Irish constabulary, including a body of some seventy-five policemen with rifles and grenades in support. Several casualties have been reported at the hospital and elsewhere.

PLAGUE IN TURKEY.

Reuter's Constantinople correspondent states that several cases of plague have been reported there, of which four proved fatal. Some alarm has been caused among the populace, but the authorities are taking prompt measures to stamp out the disease.

CHINESE GOING HOME.

The Leyland Liner Bohemian, which has just sailed from Havre to Canada, has aboard a number of Chinese labourers returning via Canada to China. Some sixty-five thousand Chinese still remain in France.

AERIAL DERBY FATALITIES.

Another competitor in the trans-continental aerial race was killed on Saturday, crashing on a mountain in Wyoming in a blinding snowstorm.

PEACE AT LAST.

TREATY COMES INTO FORCE AT ONCE.

The French Senate yesterday unanimously ratified the Treaty of Versailles. The two Treaties with the United States and Great Britain were also concluded concerning the aid to be given to France in case of unprovoked attacks by Germany.

Consequently the Peace Treaty with Germany becomes fully applicable when the Senate's decision is published in the official gazette.

The acceptance of three great Allied Powers was required. Great Britain and Italy have already ratified the Treaty. The decree announcing the cessation of hostilities will probably be promulgated during the course of this week.

WAR SENSATION.

UNITY OF COMMAND IN 1917.

Saturday's debate in the French Chamber led to sensational revelations regarding the failure of the French Army in Champagne in April 1917. Painlevé the then Minister of War, was called before the Chamber and stated the Germans discovered the plans of operations, with the result that the French offensive was smashed before reaching the German second line. In ten days the French lost 34,000 killed and 30,000 wounded.

Ex-Premier Briand dramatically intervened in the debate, declaring that it was on the authority of the British and French Governments that General Nivelle took command of the French-British Armies in January 1917 and was entitled to give instructions to the British Commander in Chief.

OPENINGS IN SIGNAL SERVICE.

The War Office announces that it has decided to open the Signal Service of the Royal Engineers to strong, healthy men, not over twenty-one years of age, who possess more than average ability, but who are not qualified tradesmen. Preference will be given to those with some electrical knowledge, or who understand the morse code, or telephones, or motor-cycling, but this is not essential. Those accepted for service will be specially trained. Steps are also being taken to train promising men as signalmen, field linesmen, switchboard or wireless operators. Men over twenty-one and not exceeding thirty-five, having special knowledge of any of these trades, will be accepted and should have excellent prospects of advancement.

R. E. WAR HONOURS.

Adressing a meeting of the Royal Engineers Old Comrades Association General Sir George Scott Moncrieff spoke in glowing terms of the part taken by the sappers in the war.

He suggested that the reason so little had been said in the press about the work of the Royal Engineers was that it was above the comprehension of those who would otherwise have written about it. Despite this omission honours had come where honours were due. Fifteen thousand honours had been gained by the R.E., including sixteen Victoria Crosses. As regards casualties 839 officers and 10,970 men were killed or had died of wounds.

HANDS OFF TOBACCO.

The American Tobacco League was organized at Cincinnati yesterday to prevent the prohibition movement extending its scope to tobacco. Headquarters will be opened at New York, San Francisco, Detroit, New Orleans and other cities to direct a counter-campaign against the anti-tobacco agitators, which formally began with a manifesto issued by the Women's Christian Temperance Association.

FIRE BRIGADE'S REFUSAL.

Called to a farm fire at Orton, the Carlisle Fire Brigade went to the scene but finding that the farm was 30 yards beyond the parish of Cummersdale (which pays a retaining fee for the services of brigade to the Carlisle Corporation) the brigade returned home without doing anything, Orton parish not being on their list.

HONOURS FOR NANCY.

To-day President Poincaré decorates the town of Nancy with the Croix de Guerre and Legion of Honour. He will pin the insignia on a white satin cushion embroidered with the arms of Lorraine. The day will be observed as a fete throughout the district.

STOLEN VOUCHERS.

TRAFFIC WITH WOULD-BE DESERTERS.

At Tower Bridge Police Court on Saturday four men were charged with being in possession of various army forms, passes and rubber stamps. A detective said there was a gang of men engaged in circulating and distributing these forms, chiefly in the neighbourhood of Waterloo Station amongst would-be deserters. For this purpose they frequented Y.M.C.A. Huts where they also made a practice of stealing soldiers' overcoats, for which by using some of the stolen voucher forms, they could get twenty shillings each. The men were remanded for further inquiries.

"HIS UNOFFICIAL WIFE."

CURIOUS COURT MARTIAL STORY.

False representations for the purpose of obtaining leave and demobilization were the allegations at a Dover court-martial. It was alleged that accused, while stationed in Germany, applied for special leave, stating that his wife was seriously ill. While in hospital in England, it was stated, he applied to be demobilized, making the same statement. In defence accused said he was serving in South Africa in the mounted police when the war broke out and came to England to enlist in 1914. He was eventually promoted to captain. He married shortly after coming to England, and left his wife as he found she was about to become a mother by another man.

He then became attached to another girl. While stationed in Germany he received information that his wife was taking divorce proceedings, and also that the other girl, whom he called his "unofficial wife" and intended to marry, was seriously ill. It was his "unofficial wife" to whom he referred when he made the application for leave and demobilization. He thought he was entitled to be demobilized as his father was lonely and greatly depressed on account of his mother having been drowned while crossing from Ireland to England. He had 5 other brothers serving.—Sentence will be promulgated in due course.

EARL BEATTY AS FIRST SEA LORD.

It has been definitely decided that Admiral Sir Rosslyn Wemyss will leave the Admiralty shortly, and that Admiral of the Fleet Earl Beatty will succeed him.

It is understood that Admiral Wemyss is badly in need of a rest, and that it is solely on these grounds that he asked to be relieved of his duties.

"SAM BROWNE" CIRCLE.

NEW ORGANISATION FOR HELPING EX-OFFICERS.

The "Sam Browne" Circle is the latest organisation for helping officers who have served and are serving in the forces. Offices have recently been opened at 32, Victoria-street. Among the objects of the circle are:

Provision of a permanent central ex-officers' association, and a building for the housing of all existing Battalion Associations.

Provision of means for the intercommunication of members.

Classification of members in their respective civil occupations, and a scheme of mutual co-operation in finding employment.

Financial help where needed.

Rendezvous in London and big provincial towns.

The dissemination of information regarding local trade conditions and conditions affecting emigration.

The fundamental idea underlying the scheme is to provide, without in any way conflicting with existing organisations, a definite self-help circle for the fit amongst ex-officers. Hitherto all such societies have catered for the disabled men.

MAN-DRIVEN AEROPLANE.

In connection with the recent efforts of the Frenchman, M. Poulain, to fly on an "aviette", a British mercantile captain named Callaway has put forward a claim as the inventor of the first man-driven aeroplane.

Captain Callaway believed in the "ornithopter" or wing-flapping method of flight and his machine is the outcome of his watching the albatross rising from the water. He dispenses with a bicycle and obtains the motive power from hand levers which work the wings while the flier stands in a little cage to which the wings are attached.

HIS FAVOURITE JUDGE.

"I dearly want to see Justice Darling for the last time. He is an old friend of mine," said John William McCarthy, a grey-haired man, who was charged with burglary at Darwen yesterday.

He was committed to the Preston Sessions, and he appealed piteously to be sent to the Assizes in order to see his "old friend," but the magistrates did not accede.

FORTUNE TELLING.

MAGISTRATE'S UNORTHODOX DECISION.

Mr. Banks, the magistrate at the South Western Police Court, gave a decision on Saturday in a fortune telling case which will give great satisfaction to adherents of the spiritualist movement. Hitherto the Courts of Justice have declined to recognise such things as mediums or spirit control and anyone professing to hold converse with the spirit world was in law an impostor.

In the case under notice the accused gave evidence that she had studied spiritualism for twenty-two years and honestly believed that she was able to get in touch with spirit people and to foretell the future.

In giving judgment Mr. Banks said he was satisfied that accused believed she had power of foretelling the future and, startling though it might be in the opinion of some, he would dismiss the case.

It is probable that the decision may be challenged, and the Appeal Court may be asked to decide whether spiritualism is a good defence against a charge of fortune telling.

PENSIONS FOR WOMEN.

INGENIOUS COMBINED SCHEME.

An original scheme, which he described as "combined income tax and national insurance," was suggested yesterday by Mr. A.E. Beck, of the Charity Organisation Society, to the Royal Commission on the Income Tax.

This scheme involves the graduated taxation of all incomes, commencing with a rate of a schilling in the pound for those under £100 a year, the present abatements disappearing. On the death of any married male taxpayer his widow would receive a pension of one-half the amount of the average earned income, on which he had paid tax, provided that she had children under 16, or one-third if she had no such children.

"BIG FOUR" FURNITURE AT AUCTION.

There was an interesting sale in the Paris Public Sale Rooms when the contents of Mr. Balfour's flat were sold at public auction. Mr. Balfour's study table fetched 2,350 francs, and his bedroom furniture 6,650 francs. A number of armchairs used by the "Big Four" were knocked down for well over 1,000 francs each. There was keen competition for the articles to which historical interest attached, many English people being among the purchasers.

NEW A.S.E. SECRETARY.

At the age of sixty-three, Mr. Tom Mann has accepted the responsible office of general secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, and will take up his official quarters at Peckham.

A great orator and a wonderful personality, his life has been crowded with incident. Always to the fore in strike movements, Tom Mann has fallen foul of the police in both England and Australia.

With the workers Tom Mann has always been popular, and his return to the secretarial chair of his old Union will be welcomed by many.

The position became vacant owing to the election to Parliament of the former secretary, Mr. Robert Young.

RUSSIANS CONFIDENT.

It is only a fortnight since the departure of British troops from North Russia but that time has been sufficient to prove that the Russians are able to take the initiative. The morale of the population is improving. It is anticipated that with the arrival of Serbian and Czecho-Slovakian troops, the Northern region can not only be defended but material assistance given on other fronts in Russia.

RED FLAGS WANTED.

A Bolshevik wireless message from Petrograd acclaims the British Railway strike and urges the Railwaymen to pass from a general strike to an armed rising, to institute a Government of workers and peasants. The message concludes "We will fight until the whole world is covered with red flags. Down with the League of Nations. Long live British Soviet Power."

SERIOUS NEWS FROM FIUME.

News from Fiume is very grave. General Ceccherini, commanding an army corps at Florence, has renounced his loyalty and joined D'Annunzio, who has conferred on him the military commandership of Fiume. Government negotiations with D'Annunzio have failed.

GLASGOW UNIVERSITY RECTOR.

Mr. Bonar Law has accepted an invitation to become the Coalition Unionist Candidate for the Rectorship of Glasgow University. The Socialists have adopted Mr. Bertrand Russell. The election takes place on the 25th October.

RACE SUICIDE.

WESTERN NATIONS' DOOM FORETOLD.

Sir Rider Haggard, giving evidence before the National Birth Rate Commission on Saturday, dwelt on the dangers of artificially limiting the birth of children, a practice which is now wide spread in every western nation except perhaps Russia and Germany.

He expressed the opinion that unless a startling change happened, the Western races, within the next two centuries, would be submerged beneath a great new influx from the teeming myriads in the East.

He doubted the effectiveness of appealing to the conscience of the Empire to stop this race suicide, but thought the State might stamp out the diseases which are tending to sterilise the race. The State might also subsidise motherhood and as a desperate and ultimate resort, it could either directly or indirectly bring up all children, even those not born in wedlock.

AN UNTIMELY END.

SENTRY SHOT WHILE ON GUARD.

We regret to announce the death of Private Benyon, 51st Batt. Northumberland Fusiliers, which occurred at No. 44 C.C.S. as the result of a gunshot wound received whilst on guard. The funeral, which was very largely attended, took place at the British Military Cemetery, Südfriedhof, on Friday last the cortege being met at the gates by the band of the 52nd Northumberland Fusiliers. The burial service was conducted by the Rev. D. Conway, M.C., C.F.

The deceased, who was only in his twentieth year, was very popular with all ranks and would have been demobilised but for the railway strike.

Wreaths were sent by the officers 51st North. Fus. W.O.'s and Sergeants, N.C.O's and men, signal section, and the N.C.O's and men of "A" Coy, the Coy to which deceased belonged.

NO BLOCKADE.

EXPLANATION OF ALLIED NOTE.

It is authoritatively announced that some misunderstanding has been occasioned concerning the new note to Germany. There has been no decision on the part of the Supreme Council to reimpose the blockade as a result of the aggression of Von der Goltz, but it may be necessary on the part of the Supreme Economic Council to refuse consideration to Germany's request for the supply of foodstuffs and raw material which are now the subject of negotiations between the German Government and the Supreme Economic Council.

EXTRADITION DEMANDED.

The Court-martial, which is sitting at Lille is continuing its demands for the extradition of German officers in accordance with the terms of the Peace Treaty. Among those included is Captain-Major Evers, who at Le Catelet is alleged to have condemned five British soldiers to be shot without any justification, making them carry their own coffins to the place of execution.

LEAPT FROM HOSPITAL TRAIN.

An officer, who is a mental case, leapt from a hospital train which was travelling at 45 miles an hour between Faversham and Sittingbourne on Thursday night.

He sustained only a cut on the forehead, and, after walking to the neighbouring village of Ospringe, was attended by a nurse. The train stopped at Sittingbourne, and the officer was fetched back to it in a motor-car.

M.P. CHASED BY POLICE.

Mr. McCabe, the Sinn Fein Member of Parliament for South Sligo, was arrested at Sligo yesterday by a large force of police after an exciting chase of several hundred yards. The Mayor subsequently called at the police barracks to see him but was refused admission. His arrest is believed to be connected with a speech delivered on the 5th October at Ballinacarrow.

SOLDIER ATTACKS MR. SNOWDEN.

Mr. Philip Snowden is suffering from injuries inflicted by a crippled soldier. As he was alighting from a motor-car to address a meeting in Yorkshire the soldier struck him a violent blow in the face. He fell, and was so badly injured that he was unable to address the meeting. He has forgiven the man, and will take no proceedings against him.

WANTED: A MAYOR.

The Lancashire cotton spinning town of Middleton, Lancashire, is in a dilemma. The retiring mayor has declined re-election and four other members of the council have refused the invitation to occupy the civic chair.

Despite the alleged shortage of factory operatives, many cotton firms in Lancashire are enlarging their mills or building new ones.

IRISH CRIME.

APPALLING TOTAL FOR FIVE MONTHS.

A return of Sinn Fein outrages in Ireland from the 1st May to the 30th September includes sixteen murders, sixty-six persons fired at, sixty assaults, 478 cases of raids, highway robbery or larceny to secure arms, ammunition and explosives, 55 incendiary fires, 261 cases of damage to property, thirty cases dwellings, 141 threatening letters, and 186 miscellaneous offences, a grand total of 1,293.

LABOUR TACTICS.

KEEPING PACE WITH NEW METHODS.

Mr. Cramp, President of the National Union of Railwaymen, speaking in the East end of London, foreshadowed possible new developments in the constitution of the National Union of Railwaymen and other transport organizations. He said the lessons of the great struggle have not fully manifested themselves, but one of them was that there must be closer unity between the Unions of various industries. Just as fast as new methods of transit were brought into operation, just as rapidly as science made new strides, so it ought to be their task to organise men and women in their industry on the most scientific basis in order to prepare for the new needs which some day might arise. The outlines of industrial organisations of the working classes must be so modelled as to keep pace with the developments of industry.

SHIPWRECKED.

SIX DAYS IN AN OPEN BOAT.

Eleven survivors of the British steamer Bayrout, which foundered off Havana, have reached Southampton after a terrible ordeal. They spent six days in an open boat. All they had in the way of stores was about one hundred biscuits and a small quantity of water. The men were constantly baling out water and all were broken with despair and hunger when they saw a sail on the horizon. They were eventually rescued and landed on the coast of Florida.

WORK OF WOMEN POLICE.

Interesting details are supplied by Scotland Yard relating to the work of the women police. The number of persons cautioned by them for various offences towards women, and offences by women and girls for the month of September were well over 1,800.

The cases of 46 girls were taken during the month to the Welfare Assistant to be looked after, and in 15 cases women police were summoned to give evidence in police court cases. Women police have also given valuable assistance in directing people, and first aid was rendered by them in 7,000 cases during September.

FIERCE WOMEN BURGLARS.

Eight women burglars, wearing men's clothes and disguised with false beards and black masks, have been captured in Vienna after a fierce encounter with the police, one of whom was shot dead by the leader of the band, Appolonia Schiftner.

In one house entered by the gang the occupants were discovered bound with ropes, guarded by one of the women bandits with a revolver, while the work of plundering lasted six hours.

"GIVE US EVERYTHING."

A mass meeting to demand nationalisation of land, mines and minerals, and peace with Russia was held on Saturday night at the Albert Hall. Mr. George Lansbury presided. Mr. Frank Hodges, Secretary of the Miners Federation, in moving the resolution demanding that the Government adopt the Sankey Report, said the miners had a strategic policy which they might put to the test during the next three months. The resolution was carried. Mrs. Philip Snowden proposed and Mr. Ramsay Macdonald seconded another resolution demanding the withdrawal of British troops from Russia. This was also carried.

PRINCESS MARY CHEERED.

Following the example of her brothers, Princes Albert and Henry, Princess Mary travelled from Scotland to London by sea. The Princess landed at Woolwich, where the Arsenal workers gathered in thousands on the wharves and along the main streets and cheered her loudly as she passed.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S CONDITION.

After consultation the physicians in attendance on President Wilson, including the noted neurologist Professor Dercum, issued the following bulletin on Saturday: "The President, shows signs of continued improvement but his condition is such that it necessitates his remaining in bed for an extended period."

INDUSTRIAL ARBITRATION.

The narrow escape of Great Britain from industrial disaster through the "lightning strike" of the railwaymen is prompting all manner of suggestions for the creation of machinery to prevent or at least to lessen the probability of recurrences of such troubles.

One proposal now often mooted in the Press is for legislation to provide for compulsory industrial arbitration, the view being that experimental Acts like the Barton Act and the Wise Act in Australia do at least provide some guarantee that strikes will not be fought out on a false issue and that even if litigious references are multiplied the chance of strikes is considerably lessened,

The nearest approach to this machinery in England was the Conciliation Boards formed by Mr. Lloyd George, then President of the Board of Trade in 1907 whereby indeed a serious railway strike was averted, though it eventually broke out in 1911.

In 1912 as a consequence Compulsory Conciliation Boards were set up and these helped to end the coal strike of that year Bnt these various devices lacked one essential in that they made no provision for arbitration in the event of the failure of conciliation.

No doubt the idea of compulsory judicial settlement of Labour disputes involves an interference with pre-conceived notions of the liberty of the subject which is repugnant to British traditions, besides inviting the objection that legal codes do not altogether prevent the evils against which they are aimed.

But it must be clear to everyone that paralysing strikes mean a far greater deprivation of liberty all round than that involved in a compulsory reference, while even if enforced arbitration would not infallibly stop all strikes, experience shows that it goes a long way in the desired direction.

No doubt these two Australian Acts we have referred to, have not proved an unqualified success, but at least they enable the Australian people to take the measure of a dispute and prepare for any emergency. We live in an age when arbitration is on all hands the admitted antidote to crude force.

Such an admission must pave the way for industrial arbitration. Time alone can effect improvements in the machinery. The primary desideratum is to set up the machinery in some form or other.

"PROSIT!"

We had loafed most of the morning on a beach of shining sand on the Rhine shore, bathed at intervals and dried in the sun and wind.

A little way up stream stood the Pfalz, like a high-built galleon moored mid-way in the river, and a castle perched on the opposite bank exactly where it should have been.

The benignant sunshine brimmed to overflowing all the hollows of the hills; the woods that feathered the slopes behind us sang in the light wind.

Meanwhile we sprawled idly in the hot sand and were chiefly conscious of a sense of physical cleanliness and fitness.

The steamers went up and down the river on their own business or with long strings of barges in tow. A great raft passed with a singing crew, and to us idle watchers it seemed beyond all things desirable that we should live in the little white wooden house, gay with flags, that stood at one end of the raft and float peacefully down the Rhine through the fastnesses of the hills and on to Holland.

One looked and felt the love of the noble river strong within one. For next after the sea a man can come to love the Rhine, though it be a German river, and though a stranger he can come to know what the Rhine means to a German soul. The Rhine legends and poetry and song swam about one in a haze as golden as the day.

The morning drifted on, and at length we dressed reluctantly and took the road to Bacharach. It was not long before we got a lift in a long clumsy waggon, where we sat insecurely on narrow barge boards and were shaken mercilessly.

Three jolly small boys, of real German type, with rosy faces and flaxen polls, sprang up from nowhere with cans of blackberries and ran valiantly behind the waggon when we started to rattle down the slope. We dropped two, but one held on manfully till we came beneath the climbing vineyards into Bacharach, where the waggon turned into a yard and we got down and looked about us.

I believe that all sorts of legends hang about Bacharach and that pedants have sought fantastic origins for its name. It is enough that it is a home of the grape and that the genial spirit of the vine breathes about it and its kindly folk.

Big-bellied casks stood in the coopers' yards and up all the hillsides above the little town rose the terraced vineyards that bear famous names and that now had their grapes ripening for harvest.

It is ordained that no man shall pass through Bacharach without drinking wine, and we turned accordingly into an ancient inn with a vine wreathed about the door and sat down in an old room full of beams and rafters.

The mädchen, appealed to, parleyed with someone invisible, and reappeared, walking delicately, with a precious bottle. She uncorked it, and as the wine streamed brightly gold into the glasses and we caught its aroma, we knew that here was nothing but wine, none of the compounds that masquerade as wine in Cologne.

For this bottle held nothing but the grape and the sun that had fed and ripened it — a noble wine with a great race behind it. It was a wine of which the first drops should have been poured in libation; instead, we raised our glasses and solemnly said "Prosit."

We sat and drank and felt content all about us. It became an insoluble mystery why Pussyfoot should hate this source of human joy. We tasted lingeringly, talked of nothing in particular, and were at peace with all men. Time drifted on, but we had nothing to do but take our ease in our inn.

"Another bottle, please." You see, it was still a long way to Bingen.

LOOKER ON.

TEMPUS FUGIT.

For a half hour my breakfast trembled in the balance. On Sunday mornings the rule of the mess is in no way relaxed. At 9.15 one is entitled to breakfast but at 9.16 one is not. When I set out from my billet I had five valuable minutes to spare and twenty odd public clocks en route to regulate my pace. I passed the Hohenstaufen Baths at 8.50.

The next hundred metres I covered in minus 57 minutes and it took me 58 minutes to reach the Opera house. My five minutes went out of hand waiting for a tram which did not materialise. Plunging down Mittel Strasse and striking a debit and credit balance on the erratic hours and minutes, it took me plus 5 hours 45 minutes to reach Im Laach, where I nearly collapsed.

There is a clock shop in the Im Laach. Porcelain clocks, cuckoo clocks, grandfathers, oeux des boeufs, bracket, wall, alarm, carriage—in fact every conceivable kind of clock except church clocks and recording clocks. Had I gone by these clocks I could have reached the far-off mess in time for last night's supper or any one of the current day's meals But to my horror I spied in a corner a malevolent eight day clock without a pendulum and the hands were moving.

Round and round they went thirty seconds to the hour. Fascinated—and hungry—I watched it until for one fleeting instant it indicated 9.5. Then I jumped a tram.

At the far end of the Neumarkt stands a three faced clock. Two dials I could see and they were not in accord; so acting on impulse I dismounted. As I feared, the third dial gave me a third choice!

Sadly I walked to the mess, only raising my eyes from the pavement once—against my will—to notice a Schildergasse clock—10 15!

When I reached the mess at 9.15 (new style) I found that breakfast had been served according to old style, and a start was being made on the tea ration in lieu.

Now I am wondering how much time I actually did lose. The Dienstmädchen brought me my coffee at 7,15 (old style) and—'. There is no need to recall that hideous state of anxiety. Thank goodness it only occurs once a year. There is one other thing to be grateful for—that the 7.30 train starts at 7.30 instead of a camouflaged 8.30.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

We Hear all Sides and Accept no Responsibility for our Readers' Views.

OUR MUSICAL TASTE.

Sir,—I regret I did not see "B Flat's" letter in your paper, but "C Sharp" is much too modest and is evidently putting Opera before everything else as regards music; but even so, he must realise that Covent Garden is run on the lines of every other theatre in London i.e. as a money making concern, also the salaries paid to the artistes, conductor, orchestra etc. are far greater than those paid to any artiste in Germany.

But looking at music from a broader point of view, where in Cologne can you near an orchestral concert that can compare with (to take two places in England far apart) Bournemouth Winter Gardens or Harrogate Kursaal? Also how many inhabitants of Cologne know anything really about music, including their own country's?

Have they got glee clubs, as hundreds of places in England have, and village choral societies and orchestras? Do they have musical festivals, choral and instrumental competitions all over Germany as we have them all over England? Can their folk songs compare with ours?

I think that when it comes down to which nation has the real musical feeling (not temperament, because temperament is an excuse for being neurotic or adopted as a pose) you will find that England more than holds her own, which explains the reason why every foreign artiste of note used to come to England in pre-war days; for a good "critique" from London, Manchester or Birmingham, meant all the difference in the world to them as regards future engagements on the continent or in America.

I should like to write a great deal more on this subject, but have already taken up too much of your valuable space.

ROBERT CHIGNELL, Capt. R.A.S.C.

THE DISPLAY OF DECORATIONS.

Sir,—There seems no limit to the display of decorations by civilians.

We see ribands on coat lapels, on the breasts of waistcoats, regimental badges, prominently displayed, chevrons and wound stripes until one wonders where it is all going to end.

Ex-service men are not the only offenders. Two cases come to mind—a woman wearing a wound stripe on the right arm of a great coat and another, this time in Cologne, with the riband of the British War Medal pinned to the lapel of her costume.

At home waiters sport their war medal and Victory ribands. The 'bus conductor has them, every Tom, Dick and Harry has them as part of his stock-in-trade. These distinguishing marks should finish with demob.

JUMBO.

CROSS COUNTRY RUNNING.

Sir,— I have seen recently a plea for the encouragement of Rugby footer. As an old member of the Finchley Harriers I wish to say a word in favour of the energetic fostering of cross country running in the coming winter months among the troops in the Rhine Area.

I am aware that plenty of units go in for it, some enthusiastically, others only half-heartedly, but it is one of the most health-giving of sports, provided due care is taken that only those physically fit take part in it, and I hope to see more and more of our young troops participating now that the proper season has arrived.

What I would like to see would be plenty of inter-unit competitions and if possible in the early spring of next year a properly organised Cross Country championship for the whole of the Rhine Army.

It would be interesting to hear the views of others who love the sport.

OLD HARRIER.

YOUR TEA WILL COST YOU MORE.

Sir,—With reference to "Tock's" letter might I draw attention to the fact that the "women's philanthrophic institution" mentioned although providing tea at 25 pfgs is not run at "a great loss", enough profit being made to cover all running expenses—this being essential as the club has no voluntary contributions whatever to back it. May I be allowed on behalf of the institution to thank "Tock" for his recommendations.

EMMA.

SHIVERING PLAYGOERS.

Sir,—Surely something can be done in these cold days in regard to the heating of the Deutsches Theatre.

One does not expect to be made a fuss of for four marks, but again one does not expect to be almost blown out of one's seat with the intensely cold draught.

I was seated in the Parkett and the draught from the radiators (which were not in use) was to say the least atrocious, as was evidenced by the number of overcoats in use.

If it is not found practicable to provide coal for this theatre surely some arrangement could be made to cover up the radiators. I am sure that such a step would be greatly appreciated.

COLD CORPORAL.

A PLEA FOR GAY UNIFORM.

Sir,—Our glorious old army of pre-war days has almost disappeared and but fragments—strong, sturdy, heroic fragments—remain.

But in making our new Army let us try to equal the old both with its faults and its good points! Let us have again the red-coats and the 'blancoed' trappings and the glittering metal and the glossy busbies and bear-skins and the tin-weskits as of old!

Let us see the old uniforms with their bright colours and sparkling brass as we knew them but a few years since. They impress the people and ensure confidence—and both these things are necessary.

We always were wont to experience a thrill and a sense of pride as our gay and well disciplined troops swung past whilst we watched them from the pavement, and we ought, on no account, to allow this righteous pride to slacken.

It is essential that our children should see bright uniforms and sturdy men and polished guns and prancing horses, for war will never cease whilst men live upon the earth.

W.R.P.

MORE RINKS WANTED.

Sir,—I am pleased to notice that another form of amusement has been opened for the troops, viz, roller skating. Judging from the enthusiasm shown by those indulging in this art last evening at the Stadt Hall, Mulheim, it bids well for success.

"No more skates for hire" was the order of the evening. I heartily congratulate the management on their new enterprise; they have certainly scored one on Cologne. A better floor and hall for this purpose would be hard to find.

It is now up to Cologne to open one or more rinks; then perhaps rink hockey clubs would be forthcoming. As an evening pastime this sport is hard to beat. My only regret is that I being in Cologne, I shall have to wend my way to Mülheim of an evening when it might be much nearer.

"RINKER."

APPLAUSE AT THE THEATRE.

Sir,—May I call attention to a difference in the manner of showing approval which might lead to some misunderstanding?

On Sunday night, at the excellent concert given at the Deutsches Theatre, the majority of our troops signified their approval in the usual way, but a fair number, being very enthusiastic, let themselves go to the extent of long and strident whistles.

There was not the slightest doubt that they meant to display unbounded enthusiasm, but to German artistes and audiences, whistling is not understood. It is the recognised method so giving the artist "the bird."

Under these circumstances might we not restrict ourselves to the international forms, entirely unambiguous, of signifying our approval?

ENTHUSIASTIC.

PAYING TRAM FARES.

Sir,—Reference the recent statement to the effect that in the near future Tommy is to pay for his tram journeys, I would like to make a suggestion which might simplify matters for him.

Would it not be much easier if the British authorities issued a monthly ticket for a specified amount that would cover any tram rides taken. They could then in turn hand the amount received (after deducting necessary expenses) over to the German authorities.

Without doubt this would obviate any undue arguments that are bound to arise between Tommy and the conductor, as to the correct charge for the journey to be taken. Seeing that a large percentage of the troops are not too well versed in the German language, it would be exceedingly difficult for Tommy to give the necessary details in order to purchase the ticket required.

SIMPLEX.

UNSEEMLY.

Sir,—I most certainly agree with the views of "X" and "Terpsichore" if the parties mentioned were behaving in the way he writes about.

However I don't think it fair that other female impersonators should be included in his scathing remarks. I am sure there any many more like myself who are only doing female impersonation so that a more varied and original programme may be offered to the boys.

With a concert party devoid of "girls" you are obliged to stick to the ordinary straight numbers, but if you happen to have one or two good female impersonators you can then produce the latest sketches and burlesques.

DORA.

MEYERBEER MISSING.

Sir,—I should be very grateful if you or one of your readers could explain to me why no works by Meyerbeer are ever given at the Cologne Opera, and indeed, in Germany.

Is it because they are not thought to be of sufficient merit?

I remember reading somewhere or other Wagner's opinion of Meyerbeer—"a Jewish Banker to whom it occurred to write operas"—which was base ingratitude in the light of what Meyerbeer did for him.

I wonder if Germany endorses Wagner's opinion.

T.F.H.

LOST MINIATURES.

Sir,—At the recent art exhibition at Lindenthal amongst many other exhibits a lady kindly lent two miniature portraits of some friends, which she valued very highly.

These I am sorry to say were taken away and I therefore appeal to anyone who may have seen them and know where they are now, if they would do their utmost to have them returned. Needless to add, a suitable reward will be given to anyone who may be able to return them to me as they are of great value to the owner and of little value to others.

RHINELAND FOOTBALL.

SOCCER AT BONN.

Xth Corps Senior Tournament Semi-Final.

5th BORDERS v. 52nd "KING'S.

This match was played on Saturday last before 4,000 and proved one of the fastest games seen on the Hofgarten this season. The Borders broke away and Fletcher cleared in the nick of time. A few minutes later found the "King's" pressing but nothing came of the resultant corner, and clever footwork by Jebb transferred the play rapidly to the other end where Ellis lost a good opportunity by shooting high.

Hereabouts the Borders halves were responsible for some fine tackling which led up to the "King's" having to concede two corners in quick succession. Faulty passing by the "King's," let in Green but Macey was equal to the occasion. An excellent chance to the "Borders" forwards was muffed at close quarters and time after time, Macey saved the situation in work-man-like fashion. Play continued to rule very fast and from a melee close in, Carrol put the "King's" one up.

On resuming, the "King's" had the misfortune to lose Fletcher for a few minutes, he being knocked out in a collision, and soon after Green made the scores level for the "Borders" with a rasping shot. The "Kings" however took up the running and Lieut. Edey was prominent with some good tackling. Baxter for the "Borders" with a clever first timer missed by inches, the ball continuing to travel from end to end amidst tremendous excitement but time sounded with the honours even.

EXTRA TIME.

In the first half of the extra time, the Borders continued to press and good work on the left wing resulted in two further corners in quick succession but nothing further was added to the score.

After the interval Baxter increased the score for the Borders after Macey had dealt with a difficult cross shot from the right wing. Exciting play in which Jebb was conspicuous, for the Borders, brought the side a further corner and eventually Green scored another goal after Macey had fisted away. The Borders ran out winners, by three goals to one, thereby qualifying for the final next Saturday.

The teams were as follows;—52nd. "Kings", Macey; Fletcher and Mansfield; Lt. Howard; Lt. Edey and Hornby; Lutas, Carrol; Capt. Fosse; Barron and Redhead.

5th Borders:—Irving; Dixon and Baker; Stones, Capt. Rosser and Astin; Lt. Dodd, Ellis, Baxter, Green and Jebb.

JUNIOR TOURNAMENT.

Semi-final: Xth Corps School v. Xth Corps H.Q.

This match took place on the Hofgarten Bonn, on Saturday and resulted in an easy win for Corps H.Q. 10-0.

In the final, Corps H.Q. meet the winners of 121st Heavy Battery and Xth Corps Cyclist Bn. on Wednesday October 22nd.

No. 11 STATIONARY HOSPITAL v. 36 C.C.S.

These teams met on the former's ground at Düren on Friday and a rather scrappy game ended in a win for the home team by 2 goals to 1. The game opened in promising fashion. The ball was quickly rushed from end to end, and in the course of a determined attack by No. 11 forwards, the visiting defence broke down and the ball was bundled into the net. The play that followed was very moderate and no further scoring took place before half time.

The second half had only lasted about five minutes when Smith scored a second goal for the homesters, after two good saves by Ayres. No. 11 continued to attack, corner kicks were forced, but to no purpose, the 36 full backs being equal to every emergency. During the closing stages of the game, the visitors improved considerably and a smart run by the right wing, which had played rather poorly up to now, ended in Harrison scoring a splendid goal from a difficult angle. In the last minute the "36" forwards made a combined rush, Thompson, with the goal at his mercy, hitting the post as the final whistle blew.

Sergt.-Major F. Shepley was a capable referee.

5th R.T.C. v "A" BRANCH, G.H.Q.

Played at Volksgarten, on Saturday afternoon, this match afforded keen interest to supporters of both parties. For the first 15 minutes the game was evenly contested, then "A" commenced to show their superiority. Although the condition of the ground was much against good play, half-time saw "A" with a lead of three goals, all being scored by their centre Pte. Watty, which by the way, constitutes his third hat-trick in five matches. The game was resumed in rather a tame manner but soon quickened, Watty putting on another goal. After several game attempts on the part of the 5th to decrease the lead, the centre-half specially distinguishing himself by his clean and clever play, a tussle in the goal-mouth resulted in a well-deserved goal. For "A", Idle and Ridings were most prominent. The right wing of the 5th distinguished itself on more than one occasion. The game ended with "A" Branch leading 4—1.

20th D.L.I. WIN AGAINST THE 9th.

On Saturday the 9th D.L.I. were the guests of the 20th, and were defeated by 4 goals to 2. The game opened in very tame fashion mostly in favour of the visitors, who after neat combination practically walked the ball through for the opening goal. Then the 20th began to find their feet and very soon drew level, and by excellent shooting on the part of their centre forward put on two more goals before half time.

In the second half, Hunter, the visitors outside right, scored with a hard drive and the 9th made determined efforts to draw level, but found the 20th too strong. The 20th put on another goal and won deservedly. Without in any way wishing to belittle the performance of the 20th it is only fair to state that the 9th had to find substitutes for five of their regular players, three of whom are still suffering from injuries received in the semi-final of the Y.M.C.A. (Kalk) Shield, played last Wednesday.

KALK SHIELD.

Lieut. Rumney's fine display in final tie.

1/6th WEST YORKS EASY WIN.

The above final was played on Sunday on the ground of the 93rd R.G.A. at Kalk, in splendid weather before a large crowd. Clever mid-field play took the game to the Yorks goal mouth, where Pte. Jones miskicked, nearly letting in the Fusiliers centre forward. His shot went wide however. From the goal kick, the Yorks attacked and clever play by the forwards produced a score. Pte. Wormersley the Yorks centre-half gave the ball to Cpl. Butterill. Beating several opponents, he passed to Lieut. Rumney who was well placed and beat the goalie with a splendid shot. The Fusiliers warmed now to their work and some exciting play was seen in the Yorks goal-mouth. Relief came from a huge kick by Capt. Rees who was playing splendidly at back. The Yorks now got going again, the ball being sent out to R.Q.M.S. Franks who, after beating the wing half, gave it to C.Q.M.S. Thane Taking the ball on the run, he beat the back and scored from close range. The Fusiliers now attacked in force and after exciting play in the Yorks goal, Capt. Rees put through his own goal. Heartened by this success, the Fusiliers had the Yorks defence in a tangle but the goalie saved them in fine style.

4 UP AT HALF TIME.

Play was now transferred to the other end, where a pretty pass from Pte. Wormerley put R.Q.M.S. Franks in possession. After beating several opponents by tricky play, he forced a corner, the same player sending over a perfect flag-kick for Lieut. Rumney to score with a header. The Yorks by now were all over their opponents with the result that Cpl. Butterill with a brilliant solo effort scored a well deserved goal. Half time arrived with the score:—1/6th West Yorks Regt., 4; 23rd Royal Fusiliers, 1.

Play opened very fast after the interval. The Fusiliers having a equal share of the play, attacked the Yorks goal in determined fashion but were well held by the defence. Hereabouts Lieut. Rumney shot over with only the goal-keeper to beat. A splendid pass by Pte. Philipps set Lieut. Rumney going at top speed and after passing the ball out to Pte. Bennett, the latter player returned a centre for Lieut. Rumney to score again. Their opponents, not being able to withstand the attacks, fell to pieces with the result that Lieut. Rumney and Cpl. Butterill, each added goals. The Yorks captain had to leave the field owing to an injury but soon returned after receiving attention. A fine pass by Pte. Redhead put Cpl. Butterill in possession who raced through the defence to beat the goalie with ease. Result:—1/6 West Yorks 8; 23rd Royal Fusiliers 1.

PRESENTATION OF THE SHIELD.

In a few well-chosen words, Brig-General Howard, D.S.O., congratulated the Yorks team on their splendid display and said he was very pleased to hand over the shield to them as he was a Yorkshireman himself. He also congratulated the losing team for their clean display and the sporting spirit in which they had taken their defeat.

Lieut.-Col. Barwell, M.C., replied on behalf of the West Yorks. In doing so he thanked Brig-General Howard, D.S.O., for so kindly consenting to present the Shield in the absence of the Corps Commander. Three cheers were given for Brig-General Howard, bringing to a close the last phase of a successful competition.

The competition was run entirely by Lieut. J. Woods, 93rd Bde. R.G.A. and proved that competitions are certainly needed in the Rhine Army.

20th v. 9th DURHAM L.I.

Saturday last saw the 5th successive win for the 20th Bn. The Durham Light Infantry. The 9th kicked off and immediately began to press the 20th goal, with the result that their Centre Forward scored before the game had been running 5 minutes. This immediately had the desired effect, causing the 20th to break away and a lapse of 5 minutes saw three goals standing to their credit. The game now became fairly even, and fast play ensued, with the result that the ball went from one goal mouth to the other, but nothing further was scored in the first half. Two corners occurred in the latter portion of the first half and it looked as though the 9th must score, but two brilliant punches by the 20th goal keeper saved the situation and the ball got into safer regions.

After half time, the game again started fast and even, the 9th scoring after about 10 minutes play. This again spurred the 20th on with the result that another goal stood to their credit. In the latter portion, the 8th pressed heavily, but without avail. Several corners occurred on either side, but although the result was nil, both goals had very narrow escapes. Altogether a very clean game was played, enjoyed by both players and spectators.

The final score was four goals to two, the majority being with the 20th.

FIELD AMBULANCE v. BRIGADE H.Q.

The above met at Riehl Barracks on Saturday afternoon, and the match terminated in a win for the Field Ambulance. After the start, the 7th began to press, finding plenty of trouble for the opponents' backs. The 7th were awarded a penalty but Jones failed to score, shooting wide. The visitors backs lacked speed, thus allowing Walker to centre the ball for Coldwell to open the scoring with a fine header. Sgt.-Major Stanley, playing a fine game, scored the second four minutes before half time.

In the second half pressure was still maintained by the home team. They were awarded another penalty, which Teasdale gave the visitor's keeper no chance of saving.

Result:—7th Field Ambulance 6; Bde. H.Q. 0.

WALES VICTORIOUS.

Unexpected Result Of Football International.

SATURDAY'S MATCHES.

In the victory international, Wales were unexpectedly victorious and the result is all the more pleasing because the Welsh eleven had to be re-arranged at the eleventh hour. Meredith who was on the top of his form scored the winning goal.

Newcastle did well at Bradford as also did the Arsenal at Goodison Park. The Manchester Derby ended in a fitting draw, while the defeat of the Villa by their lowly opponents, Preston, was a bitter pill to those who thought they had turned the corner.

Five away winners in Division 2, upset all calculations, Hull's victory at Nottingham deserving special note. Tottenham continued to gather points, Clapton being their latest victims.

In the Southern League Exeter have struck a bad patch, Queen's Park in defeating the City, providing the only away victory of the competition.

In Scotland Celtic provided the sensation of the day, putting on seven to the Hibernians three. Morton did well at Kilmarnock and Boghead folks got a nasty surprise, Dundee winning by three clear goals.

Appended are the results:—

LONDON v. PARIS.

The London Football League has arranged to visit Paris to play against the Paris League on Nov. 1st.

RECORDS BROKEN.

C.V. Wheeler's Brilliant Right Hand Swing Performance.

At a sports meeting held at Brockley, C.V. Wheeler made a successful attack on the British Amateurs right hand swing record of 148 pounds held by himself which is two pounds more than his own weight. He thus broke the British amateur records of the 11 stone 12 lbs. and heavy weight classes, and elevated the status of his list in the 11 stone class into the world's amateur record.

GOOD HOCKEY AT REIHL.

On Saturday last, the 52nd. D.L.I, played the 3rd. Bn M.G.C. on the formers ground. Major Bennett scored for the Gunners in fifteen minutes. The 52nd. tried hard to equalise, but at half-time, the "Emma Gees" were leading one—nil. The second half was fought at a great pace, both sides attacking in turn. Midway through Lt. Roberts (Gunners) scored again, and although the D.L.I. made great efforts, they had to submit to defeat, the final scores being two—nil. It was a splendid game, and the Durhams were rather unfortunate to be beaten.

WITH THE HOUNDS.

Capital Sport With Northern Divisional Pack.

A STIFF HUNT.

A meet of the Northern Divisional Pack took place at Lindenthal on Thursday last, when a large field met the Master on what promised to be an excellent hunting day. The Master decided to draw the home coverts and in an incredibly short space of time hounds got away on a really hot scent. Reynard headed straight for Deckstein and good open grass country.

Leaving Deckstein to the right he turned left until reaching the Military Ring along which, again left handed, he proceeded for some distance until headed by an approaching motor car. At the junction of the ring and the Berrenrather Strasse, he swung right and crossed the Duffesbach. The latter, a running stream, proved somewhat too formidable an obstacle to many horses thus early in the season and in consequence the field became very strung out. Those fortunate ones, who still remained on terms with the hounds, now enjoyed an exceptionally fine burst over an excellent galloping country.

The line now travelled over the Luxembourg Strasse passed East of Efferen and when approaching the Pottery Works, the hounds experienced their first check. After several casts, which enabled many stragglers to regain touch with the hounds, the huntsman once more got on the line, which now turned right and joined the Luxembourg Strasse South of Efferen.

A GOOD CHASE.

Thence the hounds travelled along the road heading for Hermülheim and when close to that place, swung at right angles northwestwards and once more crossed the Duffesbach. This stream again proved a serious obstacle to many, who from this point had no further interest in the hunt. The pace had now become much slower, owing to what appeared to be a very catchy scent, and hounds experienced no small difficulty in retaining the line. With several checks, the hounds worked well over a difficult country in a northerly direction, and it became obvious that the fox was now heading for his starting point.

A blind brook here proved the cause of yet further grief which once more depleted the field. Heading straight for the Military Ring the hounds ran into view of a bedraggled fox and in a good fast five minutes over timber, bank and ditch finally pulled him down near Deckstein, within a few hundred yards of his original starting point.

CURRAN OUTCLASSED.

Easy Victory for Fred Fulton at Plymouth.

Fred Fulton, the American heavyweight, who recently beat Townley in a round, had another easy task at Plymouth against Petty Officer Curran, who was beaten in four rounds. Curran rushed at Fulton directly the gong sounded, and clinched. Twice the referee parted them. Curran made another rush, but Fulton beat down his lead, and Curran fell on his face. In the second round, Fulton sent Curran down twice with lefts. Fulton feinted with the left, and Curran shot home a left to the jaw, which did not hurt Fulton. In the third round Curran was felled twice in succession for eight seconds. Curran got in a hard rigat to the jaw, but Fulton retaliated with the left, and Curran dropped. The latter was sent down with rights following light left leads, and just as the round closed Curran's knee sagged after a hard right. The fourth round saw the finish. Curran covered up, and Fulton shot his left to the face, apparently lightly. But every blow staggered Curran, who was on the floor most of time. Fulton was too clever, and in the middle of the fourth round Curran retired.

BECKETT TO MEET SMITH.

Whatever the result of his match with Carpentier, Joe Beckett is to meet Dick Smith. We gather that the match will in all likelihood take place at the Albert Hall on Boxing Night. In February, 1918, Smith defeated Beckett on points for the Lonsdale light-heavy-weight belt.

BRITISH v. AMERICANS.

Fine Display By Corbett At Coblentz.

Several lively encounters between British and "Dough Boys" fistists were witnessed at the weekly Y.M.C.A. Meeting at Coblentz on Saturday evening. One of the finest displays ever seen there was given by L/Cpl. Corbett, of the Lancashire Div. Train, and though defeated, a tremendous reception was accorded to him for his bull-dog tenacity and sterling pluck.

Murphy, Coblentz v. Whittaker (Lancs. Divn. Train) was a slogging affair, Whittaker retired after the fourth round, owing to the punishment he received.

In the international wrestling bout, Lawrens (champion heavy weight of Belgium) was thrown in 9 mins 20 secs by Anderson, of the Engineers.

BOXING IN ENGLAND.

At the Holborn Stadium on Saturday, in a 20-round welter-weight contest, Joe Attwood beat Willie Farrell on points after a fairly good struggle. The winner was much the fresher of the pair at the finish.

In a 15-round middle-weight contest between Jack Blumenfield, Islington, and Charles Woodman, the former was declared winner, Woodman retiring after the fourth round.

Young Tib. Watson knocked out Billy Affleck, of Shepherds Bush, in the 10th of a 15-rounds bout.

A MATCH ARRANGED.

S. Sergt. Blake, S 4 Coy, Northern Divl. Train, will meet S. Sergt. Short, 1 Coy, Northern Divl. Train in a six three-minutes rounds contest at Bocklemont on the 31st inst.

AMUSEMENTS AND RECREATIONS.

Sunday Concerts at the Deutsches.

There is no doubt that the Achsel-Menzinsky-Barker concert at the Deutsches Theatre on Sunday night was an unqualified success. It was venturesome pernaps to try a German concert on a British audience but the experiment was eminently justified by the result. To music lovers the words matter but little so long as the singing is good, and it was so.

* * *

The singing of songs in English by the two famous operatic stars was undoubtedly to the liking of the audience and evoked enormous enthusiasm, the artistes being recalled again and again and having to repeat at least portions of the songs. Many floral tokens were handed across the footlights, Sunday rather appropriately being Fraulein Achsel's birthday. Wanda Achsel gave us a number of excerpts from operas, a long aria from "Faust", and the British songs, "An Old Fashioned Town" and "Bonnie Mary of Argyle".

* * *

Modest Menzinsky sang songs about love and devotion finishing with a masterful interpretation of a wonderful German song on the theme of the blacksmith. His song in English was "For You Alone", the only song ever sung in English by Caruso. One can imagine Menzinsky's passionate rendering of this delightful song in spite of his uneasiness in enunciating some of the words. In view of the fact that neither of the artistes speak more than half a dozen words of English they are to be highly complimented on their initial efforts at singing in this language and the almost perfect enunciation of the words.

* * *

Alfred Barker seems to play better every time I hear him. Whether this is the natural impression one receives from a great artiste or whether it is that he is really making great strides in his art I hesitate to say.

* * *

It is sufficient to remark that he played with more than his usual brilliancy on Sunday and received a bigger reception than ever from an audience composed of those who must be quite familiar with his playing. Barker is standing the acid test of appearing continually before a familiar audience and standing it well. Congratulations are also due to that brilliant accompanist, Professor Krogel.

* * *

I am pleased to learn from the Amusements supplement that this Sunday concert is to become a weekly feature at the Deutsches Theatre. The programme will be varied to include vocal, orchestral, and instrumental performances and already many excellent features have been booked for the near future. Among these we are glad to see the names of the Inniskilling Dragoons band, Gerta Bender, Backhaus, possibly Schroeder, and a repetition of Achsel, Menzinsky and Barker. Such features cannot fail to attract and I look forward to seeing the Deutsches packed with an enthusiastic audience each Sunday evening during the coming winter.

Boom in Roller Skating.

In search of amusement I hied away in the direction of Mülheim, last evening intent upon testing my skill on the rollers. I found the brilliantly illuminated Stadt Hall in Frankfurter Strasse, but much to my regret had to postpone my venture on wheels. You see this admirable adjunct to our Army amusements is in its infancy and for the present at any rate as far as the skates are concerned it is a case of first come first served and for other folk a long wait until skates are available.

Small Beginnings.

This admirable project for which we have to thank the Rhine Army Signal Company (R.E.) had small beginnings. It was a Company show pure and simple urn through the co-operation of the Church Army, who loan the hall. The Engineers with commendable consideration decided to permit admission for all and sundry with the result that last evening I found ranks from many battalions disporting themselves while a party of patient Tommies were awaiting their turn. As in the old days of the craze at home the eye-witness finds plenty of entertainment in the antics of the skaters.

Good Prospects.

To my mind there are good prospects in view for the enterprise during the dark evenings ahead. The promotors are I believe prepared to consider the provision of an afternoon session for both sexes so all who feel they would like to renew acquaintance with the art should make their desires known through the medium say of the Amusements Officer, who with Officers of the Company is interested in the venture. Once the preliminary expenses has been paid off, can we hope for carnivals, etc.

Sunday Concert at the Leave Club.

The band of the 52nd D.L.I. gave a splendid concert at the B.E.L.C. on Sunday evening under the able conductorship of Bandmaster Etherington. Their delightful programme included "The Great Little Army," "Tonight's the Night" and the "Tales of Hoffman" and other selections played with excellent rhythm and good tone. Bandboy Etherington, aged 13, made a great success by his singing of "Give me a Cosy Corner" in which his words were most distinctly heard in all parts of the hall and the audience joined in the chorus. Variety was also added by the playing of the pipers of the 51st Bn. H.L.I.

Empire Leave Club.

The programme for the next few days includes many interesting items. To-morrow (Wednesday), there will be an impromptu concert from 5 to 6 in the Music Room followed by a fancy dress dance at 6.30. Only those in fancy dress allowed on the floor. The G.H.Q. Jazz Band have kindly consented to play for the Dance. On Thursday, there will be an Impromptu concert from 5 to 6 p.m. followed by a waist Drive at 6.30 p.m. There will be a dancing class from 5 to 6 p.m. on Friday, and the cinema will be continuous througnout the afternoon and evening. On Saturday, there will be an Impromptu Concert from 5 to 6 followed by a Dance in the Theatre at 6.30 p.m

10th Queen's R. W. S. Dance.

A fancy dress ball was held on Thursday at Forest Camp' Lomar by the officers, N.C.O's and men of the 10th Bn. Queen's R.W.S. Regt. The duties of M.C. were ably carried out by R.Q.M.S. Pratt. Not many turned out in fancy dress but those who did so, gave a pleasing effect to the dancing. An interval was called at 8.30 for refreshments. Then dancing was resumed until 10.15 and after a very pleasant evening had past away all retired in the best of spirits. The popular orchestra of the 10th Queen's played throughout for the dancing.

"The Braganza's."

A very successful concert was given last week at the Y.M.C.A. Hall at Siegburg by the "Braganzas", 11th Bn. Queen's Concert Party, to the 10th Bn. The excellence of the show threw very great credit on the personnel of the party.

In few Words.

There will be an orchestral concert given in the VI Corps Club on Wednesday 22nd October from 3.30 to 5.30.

The dress worn by Miss Shirley King in the B.R.A.D.C.'s production of "You Never Can Tell" at the Deutsches Theatre was designed by Lieut. Jammet of the Rhine Army Art School.

MONEY FOR SKILL.

Result of Contest No. 3 to be Published To-morrow.

In our contest No. 3., Leeds City v. South Shields, was not played and this left only eleven matches to be forecasted.

Numerous competitors were surprised by Hull's victory over Notts Forest and Barnsley's defeat of Lincoln also tripped many. Newcastle's winning at Bradford was not unexpected but St. Mirren drawing with Clyde, upset a number of forecasts.

The names of the successful winner or winners in the competition will be published to-morrow.

Contest No. 4 like its predecessors is booming and every post brings us a spate of football coupons.

Competitors are sending in all kinds of local bank notes for their entrance fees. This practice must cease forthwith. As all the money we receive is paid out in prizes to the lucky winners, we cannot afford to go down to Duren to change five one mark notes, to Siegburg to change another lot, and so on. It cannot be done. We have neither the time nor the money, maybe not even the desire.

So in future send "Reichsbank" notes with your coupons, otherwise your attempt will be disqualified and your local notes will remain in this office until you collect them.

Coupons must be addressed:—

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 4,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S.40 Rhine Army.

List of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

FOOTBALL COMPETITION No. 4.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

All British.

Those who like a real English tea-room will be glad to hear that one is to be opened shortly by the N.A.C.B. It should meet the taste of British residents in Cologne—military and civil, and I hope to be able to say more about it soon.

Are you a Speechmaker?

I hear that a debating society is to be started at Düren. The idea should be emulated by units in other places, for properly organised, there is no more pleasant and instructive way of spending a winter's evening.

For kissing at a distance.

A Teaser.

"Achthundertachtundachtzig" (eight hundred and eighty eight) is for many Englishmen the most difficult German word that I know. Attempt to articulate it and then ask a German to give the correct pronunciation.

Always Bright.

A remarkably clever drawing of its acting Editor by "A.G.S." forms the frontispiece to the last number of "The 3rd Bn. Machine Gun Corps Magazine." The production sparkles as brightly as ever and there is not a page that can fail to interest every member of the Battalion on whose behalf the magazine is produced.

Lieutenants Lose.

If you want to make a "loot" really cross ask him about his "increased pay." It would appear that Lieutenants actually receive a smaller amount as pay under the new schedule than their combined pay and bonus before it came into force.

The Sands Running Down.

The period for free rides on the trams is growing woefully short, if, as I learn, the ratification of peace is imminent.

Busy Checkers.

To-morrow the result of our third Football skill contest will appear. So many entries were received tnat extra help had to be commandeered for checking the coupons. At the time of going to press the result was in doubt.

Officers' Clothing.

It is not surprising to learn that the Officers' clothing depots at Etaples, Rouen, Abbeville and Havre have been closed. It is to be hoped, however, that the authorities will hesitate before they close those at Boulogne and Calais for with indifferent supplies up here the only way one can renovate one's kit is on the return from leave.

"Wandtafel".

I heard of a lance-corporal in Rhineland who invested in a box of coloured crayons. It was inscribed "Wandtafel Krude". "What a damnable way to spell wonderful'" said he.

The Mammoth "Sweep".

At first I believe tickets for the big "Victory" Cambridgeshire Sweep were not selling too fast in Rhineland although going well in France and Flanders and England. Now I hear they are going much better. They can be bought at most of the clubs and canteens or direct from Major Denison, 33 Rue de Loos, Lille at 10s each.

Who is He?

In the building now used as a Y.M.C.A. Theatre at Porz may be seen on either side of the stage a painting of a Royal personage in full regalia. The figure on the left is the Kaiser Frederich der Grosse, but his companion on the right has during the war evidently, suffered wilful facial disfigurement.

A "Moke" Found.

The news has come at last. A real live donkey has been discovered in Cologne. It belongs to an old villager who brings the moke into market daily with garden produce.

Cool.

One evening last week, an officer of the German Police force walked into the Earwig Lamp, cooly seated himself and removing his hat, summoned the waiter, and demanded a drink. The "ober" promptly told the German official that the club was only for the use of Allied officers. The offending gentleman then removed himself.

The Other Way.

I hear of more than one ex-soldier who has come over to Rhineland to sell goods on the German market who is returning to London to start an agency for selling German goods in England.

Pleasing.

Not the least pleasing side of life in Cologne at weekends is the number of officers and men escorting wives and children round the shops. Some bachelors confess to a certain amount of envy when they see these little family parties.

Starvation v. Rheumatism.

The other day I asked for an infallible cure for rheumatism, which is prevalent in Rhineland. Somebody advises never taking bread, sweet biscuits and cakes, beef, veal, pork, bacon, sausages, liver, game of all kinds, potatoes and all root vegetables, puddings and pastries, sauces, higly flavoured soups, beer, wine and spirits tea, coffee and chocolate. This regime may be all very well, but it doesn't leave much to live on but water and cabbages.

An Immense Queue.

The longest queue I have ever seen in Rhineland was one in Hohestrasse yesterday. I couldn't ascertain exactly what the crowd was waiting for. Somebody said opera tickets. Or was it chocolate?

Took the Hint.

A braw wee laddie in a Highland Battalion was "doing" fourteen days "C.B.", and for the third time in one evening had been detected attempting to pass the sentry. "Noo, look ye here, I'm tellin' ye" said the sentry. "Gin I find ye at this game again I'll put a hole through your carcase. D'ye understan?" "Ay, I understan," was the reply, "but look ye here. I've a mither in heaven, and a faither in the ither place, and I've a wee girlie in this toon, and I'm set on seein' ane or the ither o'them this night. An 'noo, maybe, ye understan."

Russians.

There seem to be a fair number of Russian officers and men in Cologne again. They are generally of very fine physique and all anti-Bolshevik.

A Tramp Abroad.

There is at present a great demand for Mark Twain's delightful book "A Tramp Abroad." This is not surprising in view of the fact that the greater part of the experiences related concern places in Germany which are now thoroughly familiar to thousands of soldiers.

Like a Snowball.

Every day the number of subscriptions received from all ranks on the Rhine wishing to send the "Post" to Blighty increase. Yesterday's receipts were a record. Have you sent 15 marks for this service, yet?

Taking Chances.

What a number of shops there are in Cologne that sell nothing but state and municipal lottery tickets. There seems to be a perfect shoal of such affairs of chance taking place and the number of tickets sold, is, I am told, enormous.

Careful Buying.

You will often find in Cologne—as in London and other places—that if you patronise the smaller shops away from the fashionable thoroughfares you will get identical articles at a considerable saving.

RHINELANDER.

NOTES FROM LONDON TOWN.

THE PROFITEERS SQUIRM.

Mr. Justice Astbury's letter to the "Times" advocating an emergency tax on capital preceded by the restoration to the State of all unearned war increment has sent cold shivers down the spines of the nouveaux riches. They or their champions will no doubt cry out on the impossibility of the whole thing, the outrageousness of unsettling the very pillars of Society. But Chancery judges and quondam patent lawyers of the standing of Mr. Justice Astbury are not in the habit of making impossible or impracticable suggestions. It is one of the peculiarities of a British judge, that when he speaks out, peer and commoner, rich and poor alike, listen with intuitive respect, for the British judge's position above the rancour of politics or sectional interests is as unassailable as it was in the days of Coke and Ellesmere.

SHY OF MR. WHITLEY.

I really fail to appreciate why the railwaymen's leaders should "shy" at Mr. Whitley, Deputy Chairman of the House of Commons. Some of them seem to object to the use of the words "arbitrator" and "umpire"; and while quite agreeable to conciliation are against arbitration. I believe, however, others are by no means averse from arbitration in some shape or form, and the confidence that all alike repose in Mr. Whitley would seem to mark him out as exactly the man best fitted for the work. In any case the Conciliation scheme is still in existence though this seems to have been overlooked in the heat of the Nine Days Battle; and one of the fundamental provisions of that scheme is that in the event of the Board's failing to agree the Independent Chairman decides.

CHU CHIN CHOW'S RECORD RUN.

It is curious that a farce like "Charley's Aunt" which like Tennyson's book has become proverbial, should now have yielded pride of place to "Chu Chin Chow" in the matter of record runs. There always seemed a chance that the 1466 nights of "Charley's Aunt" at the "Royalty" and "Globe" would be beaten by various musical comedies at Daly's; but that a musical pageant with a rather nebulous story should have ousted the trousered Brazilian Aunt is symptomatic of the decay of public taste. A musical pageant or comedy can be metamorphosed from time to time in all but name and so prolong its run like an outworn patent; but the plot of a play in legitimate drama cannot be so altered and therein lies its disadvantago, apart from the fact that in this particular case the musical farrage "Chu Chin Chow" happens to be well above the average. Other long runs that will occur to theatregoers like those of "Caste" and "The Private Secretary," were not in it with more modern pieces; while in former days plays of the standing of Congreve's "Plain Dealer" or Farquhar's "Beaux' Stratagem" were considered lucky to run for a hundred nights or so.

A GREAT PREMIERE DANSEUSE.

There is no question of the popularity of the dancing of Ettorina Mazuchelli in "Joy-Bells." I believe it is not generally known that Mr. Albert de Courville happened to see this clever Italian Première danseuse at Monte Carlo a short time ago, and was so delighted with her performance that he promptly engaged her services for "Joy Bells." She was dancing at the leading Italian theatre in Milan at the early age of 16.

THE BEACH OF DREAMS.

Readers of fiction will always welcome a new novel by H. de Vere Stacpoole. The success of this writer's "Blue Lagoon," where two tiny castaway children, a boy and a girl, grow up together in happiness and tragedy and the tutelage of a rough but kindly sailor, may well be repeated in this striking story of two lovers thrown together by circumstances on bleak Kerguelen, on whose coast the sea-waves thunder and riot like Stevenson's "Merry Men." It is the elemental most of us like, and Mr. Stacpoole's "Beach of Dreams," with its juxtaposition of the refined, and of course, beautiful Cléo de Bronsart, and the bluff Raft a sailor of the Enoch Arden school, fulfils all that the most ardent lover of the 'human document' may wish. The theme, it is true, is as old in its way as the story of Miranda and Ferdinand in the "Tempest" and finds a more modern expression in that brilliant short story by Gouverneur Morris in which a shipwrecked man, freed at last from social conventions, reasserts his prehistoric right of capture against a woman who slays him for his pains.

REGENT.

FOR BUSINESS MEN IN RHINELAND.

TRADE WITH GERMANY.

The Board of Trade have issued as a Parliamentary paper [Cmd. 350, price 1d.] for the guidance of British traders, some notes on the conditions under which trading is now permissible with Germany and certain other countries. The notes supersede those published last July in the Parliamentary return Cmd. 274.

It is pointed out that a considerable demand for all kinds of goods in the late enemy countries may be expected. As this market is now open to all the world, it is no part of the policy of the Government to discourage British traders from competing therein, and it is desirable that British traders should make every effort to secure a proper footing in Central Europe.

The conditions set out for trading with various countries are given and the following are those relating to GERMANY.

Exports.—Any goods may be sent to Germany without licence, except goods on Lists "A" and "B" of prohibited exports. Applications for export licenses in respect of goods included in those lists should be addressed to the Export Licence Department, I, Queen Anne's Gate-buildings, Westminster, S.W.I. It is understood that at present the import of all goods into unoccupied Germany is subject to import licence, for which the German consignee has to make application to the competent authority in Berlin.

Imports.—Any goods may be imported from Germany, and paid for, without licence, except goods whose importation from all foreign countries is prohibited. Import prohibitions now apply only to a small number of goods, a list of which will be found in the "Board of Trade Journal" of August 28, 1919.

Other Transactions.—Other transactions of a commercial or financial nature with firms in Germany are permissible without further licence, provided they do not involve any of the following matters—namely:—

(a) the payment of money arising out of pre-war transactions;

(b) the delivery of or dealing with property held in this country for persons in Germany since before the outbreak of war;

(c) the transfer of securities by or on behalf of a person in Germany;

(d) the allotment or transfer of securities issued by a company to or for the benefit of a German subject;

(e) the transfer of any debt or other obligation due to a person in Germany.

It should, of course, be understood that, as regards the financing of transactions, traders must make the best arrangements they can, and, in case of uncertainty as to the best mode of procedure, they should consult their bankers.

Further information regarding the export of goods to Germany and other countries will be found in the "List of Export Prohibited Goods," which is published fortnightly by the Export Licence Department of the Board of Trade, 1, Queen Anne's-gate-buildings, Westminster, S.W. 1.

Consular Certificates of Origin and Interest.—These certificates are no longer required for goods imported into the United Kingdom.

Declarations of Ultimate Destination and Disclosure of Names of Consignees.—These declarations will no longer be required to be made in respect of exports from the United Kingdom, and disclosure of the name of the consignee on bills of lading or shipping manifests is unnecessary, except in a limited number of cases where the Export Licence Department may continue to specify on an export licence the name of the consignee.

ITEMS FROM ALL SOURCES.

There is a great demand for rice and sugar in Cologne.

Up to the end of July, cigarettes to the value of four milliard marks were imported into the Rhineland.

The first shipment of goods has arrived in America from Germany. It carried seed of sugar beet, toys and glassware.

The price of zinc is to be increased in Germany.

General Vanderbilt is arranging to establish a new banking firm, by the express Co., for the American Occupation Troops and civilian authorities at Coblenz.

The output of cellulose in Germany will be very greatly increased.

Foreign countries are again buying big quantities of German securities on the Berlin Stock Exchange.

The clerks at the Berlin Stock Exchange are working day and night in order to cope with the enormous influx of business consequent upon a sensational rise in prices.

The Frankfurt Fair is to be an annual affair and already over one thousand firms have applied for allotments for next year.

America is losing Germany's coffee orders to Dutch firms whose prices are now lower.

A British Commercial Commissioner has been appointed for Germany in the person of Colonel J.W.F. Shelwell, M.C. who may be addressed at the British Military Mission, Berlin.

Paris Honours.—As well as the French Croix de Guerre, Paris is to receive the Belgian War Cross.

New Experience.—Agassiz, a village in British Columbia was excited when aeroplanes passed over for the first time.

Cat's Warning.—Aroused by the screaming of a cat, occupants of a Gosport Hotel found the house on fire.

Prince's Choice.—The Prince of Wales, will hunt with Lord Willoughby de Broke's hounds this season.

Demand!—Conscientious objectors suspended from the Civil Service demand unconditional reinstatement.

By Aerobus.—An aerobus, completed the trip between Berlin and Stockholm and back in 17 hours.

A good Effort.—A Leghorn pullet at Abingdon, Berks, has laid an egg nearly nine inches in circumference.

At Harrow.—The son of the Persian Foreign Minister is being educated at Harrow School.

Unwanted.—The War Office has cancelled contracts at Northampton for Army huts.

Still Closed.—In a London suburban shop still appears the notice "Closed for the Duration of the war."

Too much Expense.—The War Office decline to grant free visits to graves in France and Flanders.

Prince in Blizzard.—Duck shooting in Saskatchewan the Prince was caught in a blizzard.

The Sequel.—Strikes for the first eight months of the year caused an aggregate loss of £65,000,000.

Peace Souvenirs.—Armchairs in which the "Big Four" sat at Paris have been sold at £3 each.

Fair Price.—The Holborn Profiteering Committee held that 11 gs. is a reasonable price for a suit of clothes.

Too Much.—It is reported that the Dublin dock sheds are congested with consignments of whisky and wine.

Then.—Not until the Rhine Army demobilization is complete can the Dover-Calais passenger service be resumed.

Prevalent.—A severe form of cold which demands the greatest care is now prevalent.

Lost for a Coin.—A London boy in endeavouring to recover a coin from a lift was killed.

Four Million Deal.—Lever Bros. have taken over two more soap firms, the price being four millions.

Polish.—A Newcastle woman refused to sell milk to an inspector and poured it down a sink.

At Eighty.—An old man of 80 won the third prize at the Coreley ploughing competition.

Women Brave the Gale.—In all 85 women took part in the angling competition at Deal.

Ford Liners.—Ford Atlantic liners from U.S. to Ireland are under consideration by Mr. Ford.

"Fishers."—Treasury notes bearing the signature of Sir Warren Fisher have just been issued.

The Highest.—Merthyr Tydvil's rates 17/5 in the pouud, are the highest in Britain.

A Gift.—An African lion and lioness have just arrived at the Zoo, the gift of the Rajah of Piazore Ouah.

Plumber de Luxe.—A London surburban plumber uses a motor-bicycle and sidecar to get round to his job.

Genteel Broadstairs.—Broadstairs Council is out to stop the nuisance of dust created by carpet beating.

War Inspiration.—War inspiration has played its part in the invention of French Christmas toys.

Paper Sir!—Baron von Dankelmann who held a high position in the German Army is now selling newspapers in Hamburg.

Convincing.—An Australian teacher addressed tattered lingerie to the authorities as proof that she needed more pay.

Haig as Author.—Earl Haig will contribute to the Royal Artillery War Commemoration Book, which it is hoped to publish before Christmas.

Ex-Service Men's Generosity.—Wigan soldiers have given to the infirmary £500, the amount of the refreshment allowance made to them by the peace celebrations committee.

MAGISTRATE'S ECZEMA BANISHED

Mr. H. JARVIS, J.P.

For years the civic duties of ex-Alderman H. Jarvis, J.P., were undertaken with the greatest difficulty consequent on an obstinate and painful attack of Eczema. To the "Western Independent" Mr. Jarvis, who lives at "Hill Crest," Bickham Park Road, Plymouth, said:

"I had eczema of such distressing and persistent character I thought I should never get rid of it. It extended over my shins and the fleshy part of my legs. Then in places the skin broke, leaving unpleasant burning sores. I tried lotions and ointments, but the disease seemed to have taken a firm hold on my skin.

"A relative then suggested Zam-Buk, so every night I smeared a quantity of Zam-Buk over the affected parts. Each morning my skin did not seem quite so red or angry, and I endured less discomfort in the course of my day's duties. I persevered with Zam-Buk and by degrees new healthy skin appeared where the rashes had been. There is now not a mark of any kind on my chest or limbs."

Five years have passed since Mr. Jarvis made the above statements. He now writes to say that he has had no return of the eczema since his remarkable cure—convincing evidence of Zam-Buk's outstanding merit.

Of Chemists & Canteens, or the Zam-Buk Laboratories, Leeds.

WILSON'S MYSTERY ILLNESS.

SERIOUS REVELATIONS CONCERNING THE PRESIDENT'S CONDITION.

KING AND NORTH RUSSIA TROOPS.

PRESIDENT WILSON.

MYSTERY SURROUNDING HIS ILLNESS.

The latest medical bulletin reports that President Wilson is in good spirits. While the physicians believe that he is on the road to recovery, they say the process will be slow and tedious and the President must be resigned to strict observance of their orders. He must put aside all thoughts of office and remain in bed until the danger of a relapse is passed.

His condition dispels the hope of an early resumption of his presidential duties and revives the discussion of possible procedure should the press of public affairs make executive action imperative.

The difficulty of the situation is emphasised by the publication in several New York newspapers of a letter written by Senator Moses declaring that the President is suffering from a cerebral lesion, one of the results of which is a slight facial paralysis. The letter states that President Wilson's condition is such that "while the lesion is healing he is absolutely unable to undergo any experience requiring concentration of mind and consequent suffusion of blood to the brain, the pressure of which would be likely to reopen the lesion or cause new ones with a probable fatal result." Senator Moses adds that the President may recover but he is unlikely to be any material force or factor in anything.

While the American Constitution provides that the vice-President shall act as Chief of the Executive in the event of the President's disability, there is no precedent for such transfer of authority and opinion is divided as to how it should be effected. In some quarters it is held that decisions could properly be made by the Cabinet; others urge by Congress; while certain legal authorities think the matter is one for determination by the Supreme Court.

The Vice-President declines to make any comment on this letter, regarding it as unprofessional to go outside the bulletins.

GERMAN TRADERS.

ABOLITION OF THE BLACK LIST.

The Foreign Office announced last night that the Black Lists have been definitely abolished, according to a decree of the Supreme Economic Council.

The Black List was established early in the war by the War Trade Intelligence Department, and contained the names of "firms of enemy nationality or enemy association with whom persons in the United Kingdom were forbidden to trade."

It was the first real attempt to carry the economic war into the enemy's territory, and the Germans at once realised its power. Wolff's Bureau was soon busy on propaganda insinuating that Great Britain meant to make herself commercial mistress of the world. America was worked for all it was worth, but the economic screw kept turning.

Firms were blacklisted every day, from China to Peru—indirect supplies to Germany grew fewer and fewer, ships were stopped from carrying goods to Germany from blacklisted firms, and a real stranglehold on German trade was begun. Valuable information of the nature of the goods which the enemy most needed was obtained, and economic pressure applied accordingly. The blockade completed the work of starving Germany into submission.

The black lists were withdrawn, with certain qualifications, six months ago, and now the German agent is free again to trade with the world.

M. POINCARE'S VISIT.

It is proposed by the London County Council General Purposes Committee that the Council should present an address to President Poincaré on the occasion of his forthcoming visit to London.

They further recommend that the Council should accept the invitation of the Paris Municipal Council to send representatives to attend the celebrations which will take place towards the end of October, in honour of the award to the city of Paris of the Croix-de-guerre. They suggest that the chairman, the vice-chairman, the deputy-chairman, and the clerk should represent the Council on that occasion.

NEW YORK'S PLIGHT.

The carmen and vandrivers of New York have struck work. This strike involves 10,000 men. It will tie up virtually every railway terminus in great New York and prevent delivery of milk and other perishable foods.

HUNGER STRIKERS.

All the Sinn Fein prisoners at Mountjoy prison, Dublin, have declared a hunger strike to enforce their demand for treatment as political prisoners.

NORTH RUSSIA.

KING'S CONGRATULATIONS TO ALL RANKS.

The evacuation of North Russia is now completed. The last transport sailed from Murmansk on Sunday afternoon. Field Marshal Sir Henry Rawlinson and his staff were expected to reach Glasgow on the transport "Toloa" yesterday.

The King has sent the following telegram to the Field Marshal: "On completion of the evacuation of the Allied Troops from North Russia I desire to congratulate you and all ranks under your command on the successful manner in which this difficult operation has been accomplished. I wish to express my appreciation of the skill displayed by the commanders, and the courage, discipline and power of endurance of all ranks. These qualities have enabled the forces both at Archangel and Murmansk to be withdrawn from their advanced positions in contact with the enemy, transported over great distances to their bases and embarked with practically no loss of life. It is especially gratifying to me to note that the withdrawal has been carried out in such manner as to leave the loyal Russian forces in a favourable position for continuing an active and resolute defence. G. R. I."

ALLENBY AND WELSH TROOPS.

THEIR VALOUR IN PALESTINE.

Field-Marshal Viscount Allenby, having had his attention drawn to the fact that there exists in Wales a feeling that Welsh troops who served in Palestine have not received the praise in official despatches which they deserve, has addressed the following letter to the "Western Mail":

"I am sorry that Welsh troops who served with me should think their deeds were overlooked or their merits insufficiently appreciated. I can assure you that their work was admirable, and that I can speak of it in the warmest terms of praise. In the fighting at Tel-el-Khuweilfeh, near Beersheba, they covered themselves with glory. They fought their way to Jerusalem, via Hebron; they fought round the Holy City in the winter and in the early spring of 1918, and they took a prominent part in the attack on the Turkish positions in the mountains of Samaria in the autumn of that year. In this, the decisive battle of the campaign, they displayed splendid valour and endurance, driving the enemy from positions of great natural strength and capturing every objective. They may well be proud of their achievements."

THE THREE SERVICES.

CUTTING DOWN THE EXPENSES.

Vigorous reductions in the three fighting forces have been decided upon by the Cabinet Retrenchment Committee. Seventy-five millions for the air force are the latest maximum figures allowed from now onwards. There must be an immediate further reduction in the number of ships in commission.

A Treasury circular calling for estimates from various Government departments also emphasises the necessity for economy, and says, "provision to be made for years 1920/21 must be restricted within the narrowest limits consistent with carrying out essential public services."

ALLIED JOURNALISTS IN LONDON

Thirty-two Allied journalists met in London yesterday as guests of the British Government. The programme arranged for them includes a luncheon given by Viscount Northcliffe at "the Times" office and a visit to the Fleet to-day, followed by a Government dinner in the evening at the Carlton Hotel and a visit to Manchester on Thursday.

PRINCE'S VISIT TO U. S. A. DOUBTFUL.

It appears increasingly probable that President Wilson will not have recovered sufficiently to receive and entertain the Prince of Wales before the latter is due to return to England. The "New York Herald" anticipates that the Prince will abandon his visit to the United States and return direct from Canada. It is expected also that the King and Queen of the Belgians will also cancel their visit to Washington.

CHARWOMAN'S FATAL FALL.

A charwoman employed at the Exchange Station Hotel, Liverpool, was killed by falling from an upper window through the glass roof of the station on to a platform where a number of people were assembled.

NEW MOTOR FUEL.

IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENT OF CHEAP POWER.

Great interest has been aroused by tests made at Nottingham in the grounds of Alderman Ball, (father of the celebrated airman, the late Captain Albert Ball) with a new motor fuel invented by a South American named Asdrade. The fuel is produced by mixing water with a powdered composition, the secret of the inventor.

On some of this liquid being poured on the ground it burnt steadily without smoke. Half a bucketful was then poured into the petrol tanks of Alderman Ball's car, which travelled swiftly and smoothly over thirty miles on one gallon. According to the inventor one gallon of mixture costs fivepence.

Engineers and other experts are decidedly sceptical as to the practicability of the new idea, especially in view of the assertion that in Saturday's trials the new substance cleaned the cylinders and pipes of the engine. They assert that this is only possible by corrosive action or great heat, either of which would soon ruin an engine.

PIER MYSTERY.

MYSTERIOUS FATE OF GIRL CYCLIST.

Fishing on the pier at Walton-on-the-Naze, a man named John Hipkin was surprised to find that a girl who had been looking into the water a moment before had disappeared. He heard no splash and saw no girl in the water.

Against the railings of the pier was a woman's bicycle with a handbag containing money and trinkets. As no one returned for the bicycle he reported the matter to the pier-keeper.

In the evening a man named Gould, who had not heard of the disappearance, while walking on the beach near the coastguard station, saw a girl near the water's edge. He thought she was asleep, but when he went to rouse her he found she was dead and had been washed up by the tide.

The girl was afterwards identified as Miss Lillian Parry, employed as clerk at Frinton-on-Sea Post Office.

RATION CARDS.

TROUBLE WITH CONTROLLED ARTICLES.

After to-day the public will only be able to buy sugar, butter and meat from the retailers to whom they have given the counterfoils from their new ration cards. These counterfoils the retailer has to forward to the local office for his allocation of supplies. They are already a source of anxiety. For example, there are 16,000 defaulters at Southport alone. Their cards, which were sent out in August and September, were apparently delivered too long in advance and many people have put them aside and forgotten or lost them.

PRACTICAL HARVEST GIFTS.

The Rev. B.G. Bourchier, vicar of Hampstead Garden Suburb, in an appeal that gifts for his harvest festival shall be serviceable, says, "You can't do Monday's washing with the aid of a turnip, or nail down the carpet with a ripe banana." In the past, he reminds his congregation, gifts of innumerable vegetable marrows, green apples, bullet-like plums, and colossal pumpkins have only added to the work of the local doctors and given pain instead of pleasure. Faded flowers or overripe bananas do not increase happiness, and while tomatoes and cabbages are all very well in their way, eggs, soap, and tintacks are better. Under the term "useful" he asks for such things as tobacco, cigarettes, scrubbing-brushes, blacking, firewood, candles, bootlaces, pictures, drugs, and even a year's subscription for a daily or Sunday newspaper.

GOVERNMENT RETAINERS FOR ATHLETES.

The French War Ministry has informed the National Committee of Sports that the French Parliament has voted a credit of 200,000 francs to be devoted to the training of the French athletes selected to take part in the Olympic games in 1920, and for their journey to and stay in Antwerp.

PRISONER ESCAPES FROM CUSTODY.

After the East Ham magistrates had committed him for trial on Thursday, on the charge of being concerned in a burglary, Hugh Leonard Caldcott, formerly secretary of the East Ham branch of the Comrades of the Great War, escaped from custody and has not yet been found.

ROYAL LIFE BOAT INSTITUTION.

Since January 1st the Committee of Management of the Royal National Life Boat Institution has voted rewards for the saving of 390 lives. The total number of lives for which rewards have been granted since 1824 is 37,840.

IRISH TRAIN ROBBERY.

Fourteen men attacked a train between Cork and Queenstown and after disarming three soldiers disappeared with their booty. There is no clue to the miscreants.

ARMY DRESS.

BLUE AND KHAKI TO DISPLACE RED.

The Committee on Army Dress, under the chairmanship of Sir Archibald Murray, has completed its report, which is now ready for the consideration of the Army Council. The recommendations are not unanimous and there is a possibility of a minority report.

The general tenor of the recommendations is to maintain in ceremonial dress, so far as economy permits, all those features which have a bearing on regimental traditions. There is a marked tendency, however, to replace the old red tunic by blue.

Khaki is recommended on all occasions when full dress is not essential. Until approved by the Army Council these recommendations, including the putting of the Highland Light Infantry into kilts, will not be carried out.

22/8 IN THE £1.

RUINOUS LOCAL RATES.

The enormous and ever-increasing rises in the rates, due to increased wages of police and municipal employees, the raising of teachers' salaries and the higher cost of all materials, are causing general concern.

West Ham heads the London Boroughs with a rate of 15s 7d in the pound, Kensington being lowest with 8s 10d. In the provinces Merthyr Tydvil's 17s 5d has been completely eclipsed by Duffryn Clydach, near Neath, where it was announced yesterday that the rate for next year will be 22s 8d in the pound!

VINDICTIVE ABANDONED.

Attempts to raise the Vindictive, sunk at Ostend to block the harbour in the immortal raid of May 10, 1918, have been given up.

After a full year's work on the Belgian coast the British naval salvage men under Commodore Young and Captain Evans are leaving Ostend. The Anglo-Belgian Club yesterday gave a dance in their honour at the town hall, when all the local authorities attended.

C.O.'s THREE YEARS IN GAOL.

Mr. J. Scott-Duckers. who served three years in military and civil prisons as a conscientious objector, attended the Brotherhood Church, Southgate-road, yesterday, and gave his experiences of "Three Years Behind Prison Bars." He paid a tribute to the warders of British prisons, and said that prisoners, both military and criminal, owed a great deal to the warders for the humane consideration they displayed towards those in their charge—always, of course, paying due regard to the strict discipline which they have to observe.

INTERNATIONAL M.P.'s.

The first meeting of the Inter-Parliamentary Union since 1914 was held at Geneva under the presidency of Lord Weardale. Ten countries, including Germany, were represented.

Resolutions were passed expressing profound satisfaction at the foundation of the League of Nations—"the only hope of humanity."

MOVEMENTS OF ROYALTY.

The King and Queen and Princess Mary went to Sandringham yesterday, but out of consideration for the transport needs of the public the King declined a special train, the royal saloon being attached to the ordinary train.

The King and Queen of Spain are due in London on the 23rd on an informal visit. The King will only stay a week or ten days but the Queen will remain longer, staying with her mother at Kensington Palace.

LING SING LOCK v. AH POW.

At the Thames Police Court a Chinaman named Ling Sing Lock was remanded on the charge of murdering Ah Pow, another Chinaman, in West India Dock-road. Detective Inspector Smith said that Lock, when arrested, said:—"When I stopped at Salter-street Ah Pow came and asked me for £5. I gave him £5. To-night he see me and asked me £10. I say 'No money.' He got chopper from inside pocket. I caught his hand and took chopper from him. I hit him on head. He fell down. I hit him again. I run away and throw chopper near bridge."

ALIEN RELIEF TO CEASE.

A limit has been fixed for the future payment of relief to aliens.

The Minister of Health announces that allowances to British-born wives of interned or repatriated aliens and to the dependants of Russians and other destitute aliens are to be continued till December 31.

PREMATURE REJOICING.

A statement has been issued by the ironfounders strike committee denying that the strike is ended and adding that it cannot be terminated before a ballot is taken on the proposed terms of settlement. The earliest possible date for the resumption of work is the 20th October.

SUMMARY COURT.

A TWO-HUNDRED-MARK SALUTE.

An ex-Prussian officer named Harry Schoene was charged with failing to salute a British officer. He is now under-stationmaster at Cologne Eifel-Tor station and had been previously warned for a similar offence.

Schoene denied having seen the officer, but admitted that he had been given an opportunity of apologising for his conduct and had not done so. He further admitted having stated that, as an ex-Prussian officer, the humiliation involved would be too great and that he would prefer to go before a Court.

The Presiding Officer said that the saluting of officers in the British Army by German officials was absolutely essential. The Germans required the civilians in the occupied territory in France and Belgium to salute their officers and were very severe in enforcing it. It did not matter whether Schoene had been a Prussian officer or not, he would have to obey the order, and if he did not he would have an opportunity of saluting the prison governor. He warned Schoene that if he appeared before him again he would send him to prison. As it was he would be fined 200 marks or go to prison for ten days.

CARBONIZED CRANKS.

LORD FISHER'S ADJECTIVES.

The second instalment of Lord Fisher's memories now appearing in the Times contains the usual very mixed assortment of material, enlivened with a few good stories and a great deal of very forcible language. The writer says that two great personalities came across his path during the three years he commanded in the Mediterranean:—Sultan Abdul Hamid and Pope Leo the Thirteenth. Each of these greatly admired the astuteness of the other, but, wily as was Abdul, the Pope was subtler.

The Boer war was then being waged, and curiously enough both Sultan and Pope descanted on the great risk of a big coalition against England. Lord Fisher says he was so impressed by their words that he set to work on his own account and got a central forwarding station for news fitted up in Switzerland and was thus able to get all cipher messages passing from various foreign embassies, consulates and legations and also the key to the respective ciphers. Then he diverges, via the Dardanelles, to the "hush-hush" ships and his hatred of the brainy men, who insisted on handicapping these monsters of speed with armour, thereby knocking knots off their pace. The concluding words of the article are perhaps worth quoting. "So it is with these carbonized cranks who wield the pen, actuated by the wrong kind of grey matter of their brain, and their tongues acidulated with lies, sway listening Senates and control our wars. It requires a Mr. Disraeli to deal with these victims of their own verbosity, who are the facile dupes of their vacuous imaginations and the servile copyists of the Billingsgatean line of argument."

CHANGES AT OXFORD.

The Oxford University Colleges have reassembled for the Michaelmas term. Freshmen number nearly 1500, which is 500 more than in pre-war days. The total number of undergraduates still numbers about 4,000. Several important appointments are vacant, including three heads of colleges. Jesus and Lincoln lost Sir John Rays and Dr. Merry respectively during the war, and the vacanies are not yet filled, while recently Worcester has lost the Rev. C. H. O. Daniel.

RECORD COTTON CONGRESS.

Between 5,000 and 6,000 delegates meet to-day for the opening of the World's Cotton Conference at New Orleans. It is the greatest assembly of delegates of the industry on record. The British delegates number about 100, led by Sir Herbert Dixon, and represent every branch of the home cotton trade, chambers of commerce, banks, and other commercial bodies.

THE WAR'S OLDEST SOLDIER.

The oldest soldier who served in the war is said to be William Clarke, who is now living at Shamley Green, near Guildford. When in his 73rd year, 60 years after he enlisted in the Royal Welsh Regiment, he joined the Royal Defence Corps, and served at Felixstowe until invalided. He is in his 76th year.

PROFLIGATE BERLIN.

According to a writer in the "Neue Berliner Zeitung", 80,000 persons spend their evenings in the 400 dancing saloons at present open in Berlin. He calculates that Berlin people spend six million marks (nominally £300,000) monthly on this form of amusement.

HONOUR FOR WEMYSS.

On the occasion of Admiral Wemyss' resignation of the post of First Sea Lord. the King has promoted him to be an additional Admiral of the Fleet, in recognition of his eminent services on the Board of Admiralty.

HOUSES TO LET.

ONLY THOSE WITH "ENCUMBRANCES" NEED APPLY.

For eighty-two houses, comprising the first instalment of Guildford's housing scheme, no fewer than 350 local applications were received.

The Town Council has adopted the following rules for allocation. Only local applications will be entertained. Discharged soldiers and sailors with wives and children will be given priority. Married couples without children will be excluded, and non-serving men must have a minimum of two children.

EYE STRAIN.

ILL EFFECTS OF CINEMA FILMS.

The Theatres Committee of the London County Council, in a report to the Council, state that they are cosidering the question of eye strain in cinematograph halls, and the possibility of preventing or lessening its ill-effects. The Illuminating Engineering Society, it is stated, have given some attention to the matter, and they were asked if they could assist the Council with any observations or advice. The society propose, with a view to a thorough investigation of the whole question, to appoint a committee consisting of the members of the British Ophthalmologists' Society, and the Physiological Society, representatives of the cinematograph industry and of the Cinema Commission, and also, if possible, of representatives of the London County Council.

STRIKERS USE REVOLVERS.

The strike which broke out recently at Brest among dockers and transport workers at the Arsenal has led to disorders, compelling the authorities to act with energy to restore quiet. On Saturday some shops were damaged by rioters and on Sunday troops had to intervene during demonstrations by the strikers. Some revolver shots were fired by workmen of whom several were wounded. The strikers' leaders have requested the authorities to close the cafés in order to avoid regrettable incidents.

THE GLOBE'S NEW EDITOR.

On Monday the "Globe," the oldest London evening newspaper, appeared in a new form under the editorship of Mr. Robert Donald, formerly Editor of the "Daily Chronicle." A feature of the change is a series of articles by Lord Robert Cecil on the outlook in politics, the first of which advocates international co-operation as a cure for what he calls the "lawless exuberance of international competition."

ANTI-MORMONISM CRUSADE.

Miss Winifred Graham, the novelist, who for several years has played a prominent part in the anti-Mormon crusade in Great Britain, is shortly leaving London for Pittsburg, U.S.A., to preside at a world commission on Mormonism. Widespread interest is being taken in the commission, the first meeting of which is announced for October 25.

FIVE YEARS' ADJOURNMENT.

Among the many French trials deferred by the war is that of engineer Louis Pierre, who is charged with the murder of his employer, the owner of a powder factory in Brittany early in 1914.

Investigations were not concluded when war broke out, whereupon Pierre was released on bail and mobilized as an officer of the reserve. The case comes before the Quimper Assizes on the 27th October.

D.S.O. FOR AIRMAN.

Lieut.-Colonel Robin Grey, Grenadier Guards and R.A.F., who was invested by the King on Saturday as a Companion of the D.S.O., was one of the first British airmen to be taken prisoner by the Germans. He came down over the enemy lines in the autumn of 1914.

DUTCH QUEEN'S TITLE.

Queen Wilhelmina will shortly proceed on a state visit to the Dutch East Indies. She will travel under the Japanese title of "Sri Baginda Rajah Putri" meaning "illustrious and gracious Empress."

FIRST BELGIAN AMBASSADOR.

The King at Buckingham Palace on Saturday received Baron Meneheur, Belgium's first Ambassador to Great Britain.

It may be recalled that prior to the war the Belgian diplomatic representative in London and the British diplomatic representative at Brussels held the rank of Ministers, but now their status has been raised, and each is an Ambassador.

MUSIC—A HEALER.

A notable XVIIth century Scot, Andrew Fletcher of Saltoun, once wrote as follows to the Marquis of Montrose:—"I know a very wise man that believed that if a man were permitted to make all the ballads, he need not care who should make the laws of a nation."

The dictum occured very forcibly to us on Sunday evening as we went out into the night from the Deutsches Theatre. For two delightful hours we sat enthralled under the bewitching spell of music.

Not once or twice have we felt the same blissful exhilaration when under the potent sway of a master-singer or instrumentalist, but on this occasion we experienced "a sense sublime of something far more deeply interfused."

There was the planting of a seed, albeit unconsciously, which at least to men of hospitable reflection gives promise of a flower of radiant hue. The concert was good but the train of thought to which it gave birth was better.

Two bright stars of the German operatic world shone in a British firmament which for the moment contained one orb in solitary grandeur. Not only did the gifted vocalists appear, however; they also sang in English songs with which we are familiar and which are among the glories of popular English melody.

With her amazingly accurate rendering of those charming lyrics "Bonny Mary o' Argyle" and "There's an old-fashioned house in an old-fashioned street" Wanda Achsel completely captivated her audience.

Is it too much to expect of human nature that the singing of each other's songs and ballads on the part of British and Germans will eventually soften bitter memories of a tragic past?

Scotsmen have every reason to be proud of the exalted position to which the Germans raised them in their "Newgate Calendar" and possibly ample reason to revile them. But after hearing a German operatic star singing "Bonnie Mary o' Argyle" their asperity is mollified, deny it as they may.

Slowly but surely' grim-visaged war will smooth his wrinkled front, and in the process music will unquestionably play a fundamental part. The concert of Sunday evening was doubtless only intended as a musical treat for musical people and the remainder of the series will have an identical object.

But they cannot be other than healers of grievous wounds,—"parmaceti" as Shakespeare calls it, "for an inward bruise." As to when the ointment should be applied or whether it should be applied at all, that is precisely where men and peoples differ.

WHAT TO SEE IN THE RHINELAND.

NIDEGGEN.

About eight miles south of Düren there lies a romantic spot called Nideggen, where a light railway climbs the romantic valley of the Ruh. Here we enter the Eifel, that volcanic district in which rugged piles and columns, gorges and defiles of sandstone conglomerate meet the eye on every side. We get out at the Station and our attention is at once attracted by the massy ruins of the castle of Nideggen. It towers over 600 feet above the village nestling at its base.

This ruin, once the seat of the Counts of Jülich, has played its part in the past history of the Rhineland.

We wonder whether those who visited it last August, when IV Corps gave their marvellous torchlight display, ever realise that this haughty ruin has seen English soldiery there three hundred years ago and more.

Germany at the commencement of the 17th century was torn by dissension and strife.

At that time religion was the great source of discord. The lands of the Archbishop of Cologne were surrounded by three little states — Jülich — Cleves — Beng and Mark. In 1610 Germany was on the eve of the terrible 30 years War. Her lands formed part of the Holy Roman Empire and were ruled over by a Hapsburg Rudolf, successor to the great Charles V.

In 1609 a dispute arose as to the succession to the Duchies of Jülich Cleve. John William, Duke of Cleves, Jülich and Beng died without children.

There were two claimants — John Sigismund, Elector of Brandenburg, and the son of the Duke of Neuberg.

One day young Neuberg hit upon an excellent idea as it seemed to him of solving the difficulty. He was ready, he said, to marry the Elector's daughter, if only he might have the territory. The enraged John Sigismund boxed the would-be suitor's ear and thereby precipitated the crisis.

England and France were both interested in this dispute and became involved. The Emperor Rudolf claimed the right to settle the point and a Catholic Army advanced to take possession of the country.

This at once brought in France, ever jealous of the power of the Hapsburgs.

Led by Henry IV the French an allied force consisting of French, Dutch and English contingents stormed the castle of Jülich at Nideggen.

The defence was conducted by Maurice of Nassau, who put up a stout fight. We can picture the scene. The pikemen with their steel helmets, forerunners of the tin hat of to-day, repelling onrushes at close quarters: the musketeers with their flintlocks laboriously loading and reloading their cumbrous weapons, an earlier edition of the "Brown Bess" used by Wellington's soldiers during the Peninsular War. Artillery, including cannonades and mortars was then in its infancy. Their range hardly reached a couple of hundred yards at most. There were also bomb-throwers who used a primitive weapon, the ancestor of the Mills grenade.

At the critical moment, however, an assassin put an end to this Alliance. As Henry IV passed through the streets of Paris a fanatic named Ravillac plunged a dagger into his heart.

With his death the combination of which he was the heart and soul died, and the English contingent returned home to give an account of what fighting in Germany was like in 1610.

ON PACKS.

It is not everyone that can speak tenderly of a pack. But there are packs and packs. Some cling to us like Sinbad's "Old Man of the Sea," others like ivy, lovingly, or as brothers.

My first pack! With what anxious glee I laced my moccasins that morning, strapped a pair of snowshoes to my brand-new pack—yclept a "turkey" in those parts—and set out through the bush silences of Northern Ontario, to my first mining camp. It was a day that began many a strange adventure, and associated with it all was my pack. It was like burying a pal when I had to dump it just this side the Tête de Jaune Pass, and beat the freights south for the warm weather.

I had many another between that and the old black bag, now shelved in an ancient lumber-room at home, dusty, I expect, and as broody as can be. Its broodiness is a constant reproach. I cannot make it understand that the wanderlust is not strong these days, and that we can never overtake the skyline, anyhow. But we'll have many a quiet yarn together before one of us shall scan the Final Horizon.

We have seen the Pacific of nameless blue, curl and flash against the corals that enring the golden-green lagoons, down Hawaii way; and felt that dead, awful silence that comes before the hurricane. Many a day have we tramped the tortured out-back roads and the glorious rainbow tinted beaches of Maoriland, or slept the heavy heat away in the shelter of the crimson rata.

Flying fish, albatross, strange constellations; black tropic night, or sea a-glare with the moon swinging at the masthead; phosphor-lights, fireflies, temple bells, the dull-thump of elephant feet on the road to Candy; palm and magnolia bloom—ye gods! and that morning when the camel-bells sounded through the lifting mist and we watched the caravanserai mingle with the dust of the Arabian Desert. And hundreds of other things that we shall recall to one another in the old lumber-room at home when feeling disgruntled and grown old too soon.

So, there are packs and packs. Or we'll say there are packs and "turkeys" and "bags" and "swags" and "gunny-sacks" and "blueys" and all the other one-and-the-same-things that wanderers cherish in lieu of goodwife and hearthstone.

It is to be regretted that the Khaki-Blanco variety does not come within the scope of the affections. I dread what the old black bag would say to me should I, in some weak moment armed with polish and brush, set about his dust and scratches. It would be a sure sign of imminent disintegration. Then would be epitaph time, but oh! I would that my dust could mingle for ever with that on the old black bag.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

We Hear all Sides and Accept no Responsibility for our Readers' Views.

THE DISPLAY OF DECORATIONS.

Sir,—I resent "Jumbo's" sentiments in regard to wearing decorations.

Because a man has to leave the Army is that any reason why he should not still be proud of the part he has taken in the greatest war in history?

Surely when one knows of the thousands who evaded military service and got cushy jobs at home, often making fortunes while their brothers were going through hell in France, Flanders, Gallipoli or Mesopotamia, it is only right that those who served should have some mark of distinction, even if they are no longer able to wear the King's uniform.

When I go home and see a railway porter or bus conductor or any one else wearing his ribbons I am not like "Jumbo" whodescribes sueh heroes as "offenders", but I feel inclined to give them a grip of the hand.

These are the men who saved England in her time of peril. Honour them, I say, and let us have no more cheap sneers because they wear the decorations a grateful King and country have bestowed on them.

BE-RIBBONED.

RUGBY FOOTBALL.

Sir,—Reference your article entitled "Rugby wanted" published on 11th instant I suggest that some keen Rugby footballer should volunteer to organise a club for players in their own particular unit or village, and act as secretary for them that also their names and addresses might be published in the "Cologne Post" so that they could get into communication with one another, and arrange matches. Captain W. C. Grant. M. C., of 145 Heavy Battery R.G.A. has volunteered to be Rugby Football Secretary for the 35th Brigade R.G.A. at Frechen.

I hope you will be kind enough to consider this suggestion.

C. S. DODWELL, Major.

SHIVERING PLAYGOERS.

Sir,—It seems to me that those who run the theatrical amusements for the troops at the Deutsches Theatre will soon have their hands full if they take seriously all the complaints that I see frequenters are making in your columns.

First it was admitting Germans, and the arrangements for booking seats, then the unhappy orchestra was attacked. There have been carping criticisms at the acting by people who expect to find the characters enacted by prototypes of Garrick, Edmund Kean, Henry Irving, Charles Wyndham or Forbes Robertson, Mrs. Siddons, Sarah Bernhardt, or Ellen Terry.

There have been other minor complaints, and now the latest from "Cold Corporal" whose fragile frame is shaken with shivering as he watches the drama on the stage. Poor fellow!

One wonders if he was ever in the real war. Then he would have been only too glad to get some form of entertainment anywhere and anyhow.

These people who are having the time of their lives and want to be coddled and nursed at every turn make me tired.

HOT STUFF.

OUR MUSICAL TASTE.

Sir,—"C Sharp" is apparently very eager to pick a quarrel with "B Flat" but I would recommend him to study "B Flat's" letter a little closer before he rushes into print.

"B Flat" states "It is to some extent true perhaps that we English are not a musical people." "C Sharp" practically makes the same assertion but at the same time tells "B Flat" that he is hopelessly wrong.

I feel quite sure that visits to the Opera have been an education to a great number of our men, and I notice with pleasure the interest with which some of them follow the music. This too, while it is being sung in German.

How much more would they enjoy it if it were sung in their native tongue? Give them the same opportunities at home that they have here and I think that they will follow it up with increasing interest and pleasure.

No one would claim that we as a nation, are as musical as the Germans but that, to a great extent, is the fault of our system.

The Germans are educated to appreciate and understand opera from their youth to which fact the large number of young people who are generally present at Cologne Opera is witness.

To the vast majority of Englishmen this education is impossible, since for those who live away from London, the only opportunity they have of hearing Opera is when a Touring Company pays a visit of a week or a fortnight once a year to their native town, and this only to towns of decent size. Then the repertoire is very limited, the staging crude and the performance often only medium. Frequently the leading vocalists are indifferent actors which in a good many instances mars the performance.

I feel quite sure that if facilities were given to the British public to hear Opera well performed and staged, at a moderate cost, they would take the opportunity. The cost of visiting Covent Garden is prohibitive to a large number of people.

Give the average Englishmen good music, well performed, and he will give it the appreciation that it merits.

I quite agree with "B Flat" that the average person's intelligence is very frequently underrated by performers.

HARMONY.

Sir,—I would like to remind W.W. that a nation gets just the music it deserves. If we in England don't have the opportunity of hearing grand Opera oftener it is just because we have not sufficient musical taste to demand it.

The State in Germany fosters music because of the pressure of public opinon.

I will just give an instance of our national apathy to Operatic Music. A few years ago a German-American, one Hammerstein, built at enormous expense the magnificent London Opera House. How long was it possible to maintain it as such? Perhaps a month or two—not more. To-day what should have been one of the finest musical resorts in the world is nothing better than an ordinary cinema.

It is notorious that the short opera season at Covent Garden is mainly a social affair providing a rendezvous with a musical setting for the world of wealth and fashion.

One has not far to look in Rhineland to see how musical the ordinary people are. Do you ever see in England parties going out in the country singing beautiful glees and folk songs in perfect harmony as the working-class Germans of both sexes do, to the well played accompaniment of a guitar.

To compare our musical taste with that of Germany requires clever special pleading. Some of us are musical of course, but that doesn't prove that as a nation we are.

ARPEGGIO.

Sir,—If "Popular" and "M.P.W." are typical Britons, they seem to me to uphold the contention that we are not a musical nation. But, I believe, the appreciation of good music is growing, even in England.

Real music has an uplifting effect on the mind. It can inspire, sadden, cheer, and control the emotions to a wonderful extent.

I doubt whether "M.P.W." is well acquainted with operatic music, or he would know that there also he can find "lilting airs" and "with a lot of go in it." I would recommend "Rigoletto" "Faust" and "Aida" in particular.

I can quite understand "M.P.W." objecting to hearing "Lohengrin" and "Tosca" on the gramophone. It must be awful.

FIDELIO.

GLANDS TO PROLONG LIFE.

Sir,—Just imagine taking advantage of the new discovery of perpetual youth and living say three hundred years always eligible for military service and always A 1.

The prospect would be unthinkable.

JOCKO.

GAY UNIFORMS.

Sir,—To a great extent I am at one with W.R.P. in his appeal for gay uniforms and all the gorgeous trappings of the past.

And if we are to have a small army in future and it is a volunteer force, let us make it as attractive in this way as possible.

But if, as I think, war is just as possible in the future, as it always was, in spite of idealist leagues of nations, then Britain can't afford to have an insignificant force.

Our greatest soldiers have warned us of the danger of cutting down our Army to a mere shadow and if their wise counsels prevail we should have a large body of men always ready to bear arms.

With an adequate national army and universal training on the lines advocated by Lord Roberts it would not be possible on the score of expense to indulge again in all the costly showy uniforms that W.R.P. delights in. That seems to be the whole point.

A. J.

BOOKING SEATS.

Sir,—Can anyone explain what is wrong with the booking system at the Deutches Theatre?

On the last two occasions I have arrived to find the seats which I had booked already occupied and by people holding to same tickets as myself.

On Saturday evening I applied at the theatre for seats in the first three rows, but was informed that none were vacant in the first five rows.

This morning I accompanied a friend to the Amusements Office and was surprised to find he was able to book seats in the first three rows.

I can't understand why I was informed in the first case that all the seats were taken and yet find that seats are still being booked two days later.

ANNOYED.

WALK A LITTLE WAY.

There's a crowd upon Life's Highway,—
It's a crowd of lonely folk:
Some are grimly hustling others,
Some will meet you with a joke:
But you catch a glance entreating
From an eye with sorrow aim;
Greet the griever with a smile,
Turn your footsteps for a while,
And walk a little way with him.

Or maybe you're limping, lonely,
Bowed beneath some secret care
You would fain unburden, only
'Tis a thing you cannot share.
Here comes one who's stepping bravely,
— Cheery heart and sturdy limb, —
Whose glad sympathy with you
Will your failing heart renew;
So walk a little way with him.

There are children on the Highway,
Smiling lips and sunny eyes;
What to you is dull and common
Brims for them with bright surprise.
You see only Life's sad garment;
They, its iridescent hem:
They are full of joy and truth,
They will bring you back your youth;
So walk a little way with them.

Here's a greybeard, moving slowly,
With a face on which there shows
All the knowledge Time has taught him
Of the Thorn and of the Rose.
Neither sad nor merry, knowing
Life is not all glad nor grim,
On his staff, Experience leaning
He will teach you Life's true meaning;
So walk a little way with him.

And I doubt not he will tell you
That the Master-key on earth
Is the sympathy of brothers
Proving out each other's worth:
So, along our common pathway
When a seeking glance you see,
— Be it joy or be it pain, —
Let it never ask in vain
"Come I walk a little way with me."

BATTLE OF THE "B's."

Record Breakers Come To Grips At Benrath.

TWO PLAYERS INJURED.

The publication of claims by certain Rhineland football teams to have established records in various phases of the game has created a mild sensation, and challenges are now the order of the day. As a result, "B" 51st Bde. and "B" 243th Bde. R.F.A. (both of which teams have splendid records) met at Benrath last week-end.

The visitors immediately made tracks for the home goal. A spirited run down the right wing by Smith ended in that player getting across a centre, but Cruickshanks cleared. After about 15 minutes play a free kick was awarded the visitors from near the half way line. This was the signal for a great outburst of excitement among the spectators who had journeyed so far to support their team. After this, the home team worked hard to equalise. Their right wing, which consisted of Moore, Sunderland and Stephenson (Aston Villa), were responsible for some really clever passing at this point, but the visitors' full backs, Piper and Clarridge, were more than equal to these onslaughts.

GOALKEEPER INJURED.

The second goal of the match again fell to the visitors, Hopkins scoring from a scrimmage. Later the home team's left wing, securing the ball, swung it across to Moore, who, hanging on, worked his way to goal and scored. Broome, the visitors' goalie, rushing out to clear, received a kick in the ribs and was carried off the field, remaining off for ten minutes.

Again misfortune overtook the visitors, Parkes, their left half, who had played a good game, fell in tackling and was unfortunate in having his shoulder put out. With only nine men, for a few minutes the visitors more than held their own, and just before time the issue was placed beyond doubt, when the visitors' outside right secured the ball. Heading it past the full back, he took steady aim and with a left foot drive, sent the ball well out of the goalkeeper's reach into the corner of the net. An exciting game ended:—"B" 51, 3; "B" 246, 1.

12th L.N. LANCS v. D.A.C.

Played on Saturday on the Sportsplatz Rhinsdorf. The Lancs had a very good defence but their forwards were lacking in combination and though they had many openings they found the net only once. For the D.A.C. the forwards were much better than the defence, which was certainly weak at times. However their forwards by vigorous work managed to equalise the score. Up to half time the game was the Lancs, but in the second half the D.A.C. were dangerously near the goal more than once. Results:— 1—1.

SCOTTISH GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

The feature of the play in the penultimate round of the Scottish Professional Championship, which, with the concluding round, was carried through on the Monifieth course, Forfarshire, was the creation of a new record of 70 strokes for the green by A. Buchart, Kilmarnock.

At the end of the third round, Laurence Auchterlonie, a former American open champion, Tom Fernie, who had twice previously won the Scottish Championship, and Peter Robertson, Edinburgh, tied for leading position with 224 each, Laurence Ayton, the internationalist and old Bishop Stortford and Rye professional being three strokes behind.

The result was a win for Tom Fernie, with an aggregate of 296. His rounds were: 75, 75, 74, 72. L. Auchterlonie was second with a total of 299 (76, 74, 74, 75).

Charity Match.

The London Professional Charity Fund match, West Ham v. Millwall, will be played at Upton Park on Monday, Oct. 20.

LENGTH OF GOLF DRIVES.

Braid Averages 232 and 237 Yds. —Herd Outdistanced.

TEST AT EPSOM.

The length of the drives of the leading golf professionals has been a subject of frequent discussion, so the visit of Braid, Herd and Duncan to the R.A.C. course, at Woodcote Park, Epsom, was seized upon in order to settle the question as to their respective length from the tee.

The first nine holes of this course measure 3,452 yards, while the length of the homeward nine is 2,881 yards. This gives a fair test of the driving powers of players, and at the 1st, 4th, 8th, 14th, 15th, and 16th holes the drive of each player was measured, with the following results:—

Braid: 196 yds., 222, 236, 201, 271, and 265—average 232 yds.

Herd: 180 yds., 228, 230, 204, 239 and 266—average 224½ yds.

Duncan: 252 yds., 236, 202, 219, 260, and 265—average 231 yds.

Watt: 194 yds., —, 214, 222, 261 and 243—average 227 yds.

In the afternoon the drives were again measured, and Braid had an average length from the tee of 237 yds., Herd of 230 yds., Duncan 228 yds., and Watt 224 yds.; while their separate drives at the respective holes were as follows:—

Braid: 210, 253, 232, 235, 244 and 247.
Herd: 200, 224, 231, 215, 232 and 250.
Duncan: 198, 235, 220, 220, 235 and 241.
Watt: 204, 232, 243, 205, 239 and 223.

The medal competition resulted in a tie for leading place between Braid and Duncan with 79 each Watt totalling 81 and Herd 83. In a four-ball match Braid and Herd halved with Duncan and Watt.

"IFS" and "BUTS."

52nd King's Liverpool Supporter's Weird Epistle.

Several correspondents have kindly sent in reports of the match played at Bonn on Saturday between the 5th Border's and the 52nd King's, in the semi-final of the 10th Corps Senior Tournament. We thank these scribes for their kindness and feel sure they will realise that all the reports could not be published in the limited space available. The description we gave in yesterday's issue appears to be representative of the majority of the onlookers views. All the writers agree that the match was one of the best played in Rhineland.

However, a letter received at this office yesterday evening may interest the players and supporters of both sides. Here it is:

"Although the 52nd King's lost on Saturday by 4—2, it was generally known by the spectators that if Sgt. Gidey and Pte. Haslam had replaced Lieut. Howarth and Pte. Hornby in the half back line, the King's would surely have held their own against the Border's. Also, in my opinion, if Pte. Fletcher had not gone off hurt the Border's would not have equalised and if the referee had controlled the game better the spectators would not have grumbled so much. I am sending this for publication."

The epistle is just about as extraordinary a one as we have received for some time. There are no "ifs" and "buts" in football any more than there are in horse racing or tennis or golf or ping-pong. A result is arrived at, and there it is. Our correspondent might have added that if Sam Hardy had only been in the team and the referee had stooped down to pick up a ten-pfennig note when the King's forwards happened to be offside and, in short, if a few more goals had been scored by the losing side, it is quite within the bounds of possibility that the result would have been reversed. Quite. But these things didn't happen, so there you are!

Semi-Finals Draw.

The draw for the semi-finals of the London Charity Cup Competition is as follows: Leytonstone v. Nunhead, at Leytonstone; Dulwich Hamlet or Casuals v. Tufnell Park.

ENGLAND v. WALES.

Return International to be Played on Saturday.

The Football Association agreed with the Welsh F.A. at Cardiff on Saturday, that the "Victory" international, postponed from October 4 because of the railway strike, should be played next Saturday at Stoke.

The team originally selected for the Stoke match will be called on, except that Grimsdell and Kitchen, who were not able to turn out on Saturday, will be at left half and centre forward respectively, for Grenyer and Puddefoot.

It is likely that the team to meet Ireland, at Belfast, on October 25, will not be selected until after the game at Stoke.

LADY'S SWIMMING RECORD.

Miss Jeans, of Nottingham, Wins 220 Yards Championship.

A wonderful swimming feat, twice beating her own record (3 min. 7 3-5 sec.), was accomplished at Nottingham by Miss Constance Jeans in the ladies' swimming 220 yds. A.S.A. championship, last held in 1913 by Miss Daisy Curwen, Liverpool.

In the final heat Miss Jean's time was 3 min. 4 sec. Miss Jean holds the five miles Thames and the 100 yds. of England. The second in the race was Miss McKenzie, Garston (3 min. 20 sec.), and the third Miss Billson, Leicester (3 min. 22 sec.).

INMAN v. REECE.

Continuing on Saturday, Inman could only add five points to his unfinished break, making it 729, but once again he monopolised the play, and ran to his points in just over an hour. His efforts included a 280, 195, and 99 (unfinished). Reece could never get going, scoring only 30 points during the session. Interval scores: Inman 7,333, Reeec 6,058.

McGOORTY DISQUALIFIED.

American Slow From Start In Fight With Balzac.

WELL-TIMED LEFT HOOKS.

Eddie McGoorty looked in poor condition when he met Balzac, the French middleweight, in Paris on Saturday night, and during the eighth round the American was disqualified because one of his knees was said to have come in contact with the lower part of Balzac's body.

The decision was given after Balzac had been examined medically, so that there was really nothing to prove that McGoorty fouled intentionally. It is probable that the affair was accidental, inasmuch as the incident occurred during some in-fighting.

When the finish arrived McGoorty was in such condition that no one could have expected him to last out to the end of 20 rounds. There was an obvious lack of condition about his middle, although his weight was but 12st. 2lb. to the Frenchman's 11st. 2lb.

McGoorty was slow from the start, and seemed to have entered the ring content to rely upon his skill to get him through. Balzac, however, scored very frequently with well-timed left hooks.

Prior to this contest Joe Beckett gave exhibitions with Jack Harrison and his brother, and the prospective opponent of Carpentier had a tremendous reception.

MANCHESTER TO BLACKPOOL.

Tom Payne Winner of Open Amateur Walk.

Tom Payne, who recently won the Surrey Club's London to Brighton walking race, followed up that success by gaining his fifth victory in the open amateur walk from Manchester to Blackpool, a distance of 51½ miles.

The first six to finish were as follows:—T. Payne, Yorkshire, time 8hrs. 18mins. 7 1-5secs., 1; F. E. Roberts (holder), Essex, 8hrs. 49mins. 5secs., 2; T. P. Fox, Lancashire, 8hrs. 54mins. 23secs., 3; J. B. Kershaw, Yorkshire, 9hrs. 2mins. 26secs., 4; R. Wallwork, Lancashire, 9hrs. 18mins. 3 2-5secs., 5; E. Thomas, Lancashire (first veteran, age 50), 9hrs 9mins. 30secs.

NO. 37 v. NO. 44 C.C.S.

The above teams met at Deutz on Friday on the former's ground. The Home team had the advantage of the wind in the first half, but in spite of countless attacks on the opposing goal, were unable to score. Several good shots went wide owing to the slippery nature of the ground, which was naturally a great disadvantage. Great credit is due to Pte. Bettan, "44" Centre Forward who showed great individual form throughout the match. At half time neither side had managed to score.

The second half opened with some pretty combination by the forwards of the home team, Sgt. Hill being particularly conspicuous by his clever foot work on the right wing. It was here that Pte. Cocker of "44" showed brilliant form in frustrating the repeated attacks made upon the goal by "37" forwards. He was admirably aided by Pte. Hudson, the visiting team's right back. Ten minutes after the opening of the second half Pte. Birkenshaw scored by a splendid long shot completely beating the goal keeper, only to be followed by another scored by Pte. Cusworth. Five minutes before the closing of the game, Pte. Hopper secured two more goals for the home team in quick time, which made them winners by 4 goals to Nil. Great credit is due to the losers who showed much perseverance and keenness, this being their first appearance on the football field in Rhineland.

Rhine Army Troops M.T. Coy. v. D. of S. and T., G.H.Q.

The return match between these two teams took place on Saturday at Poll. The G.H.Q. turned out a much stronger team than the previous week, having a 5—2 defeat to wipe out and consequently being out for revenge. They were, however, unfortunate enough to find the M.T. Coy. team at the top of their form and suffered defeat by 5—0. During the first half the G.H.Q. defence had a very busy time but they put up a good display and the Coy. had to be satisfied with being one goal up at half time. There was one exciting incident during this half, the G.H.Q. inside right getting away, but being handicapped with an injured ankle, was not able to take full advantage of his breakaway, his final shot hitting the crossbar and being eventually cleared. The only goal during this half came from a surprise shot from Lieut. Hodgson, the ball travelling at a fast pace just inside the upright. With the wind behind them during the second half, the Rhine Army Troops had matters much their own way and succeeded in notching four more points through Hamilton, Eatch (2) and Cpl. Widdowson. Result: Rhine Army Troops M.T. Coy., 5; D. of S. and T., G.H.Q., 0.

TROTTING RECORDS.

Mr. Walter Winans, at Parsloes Park drove his double-gaited mare, The Elf, half a mile trotting and half a mile pacing the waggon and established an amateur record, his time being 2min. 57 2-5sec. With his three-year-old, Henriette Guy, he equalled the mile record in 2min. 34sec.

THE CESAREWITCH.

What the Racing Scribes Say On Eve of Race.

KING JOHN THE FAVOURITE.

There was no betting worthy of the name on the Cesarewitch on Saturday, but the favourite, King John, I notice did what would be his winding-up gallop, over a mile and three-quarters, with his usual companions, Fitz Clarence and London Pride, assisting him at different stages. Martin rode him, as he will, of course, do in Wednesday's race, and there can be no question that all concerned are very sanguine indeed regarding the colt's chance. Another of the Newmarket candidates, Bridgend, galloped 1½ miles, and though this horse has hitherto figured in a much humbler sphere, he is certainly not without a chance for Wednesday's big contest.—"Augur" in "Sporting Life."

* * *

No important changes have occurred in the Cesarewitch betting. King John maintains his favouritism, and is not likely to be ousted from that position.

Little that is fresh can be written regarding Cesarewitch prospects excepting that Langdon Hills, said to be an improbable starter a week ago, is likely to be ridden by Donoghue, and may be expected to return to his former position in the market. — "Watchman" in the "Morning Post."

* * *

At the moment King John and Golden Melody are favourites. The former must improve on his Doncaster running if he is to stay the course, and it is difficult to see how he is to give 29lb. to Golden Melody, about whose stamina there is no doubt. If Speck, the midget jockey, is equal to the occasion, Golden Melody will win. — "Captain Heath" in the "Daily Chronicle."

* * *

The latest gossip on the Cesarewitch reveals confidence in more stables than usual. The connections of King John and Unitoi do not anticipate defeat; they are just speculating what distances their respective hopes will win by. No secret is made of this, for the commissions have been worked. All Newmarket echoes the praise for King John. Those behind Langdon Hills (who is himself again) are also talking of the length of the judge's verdict.—"The Scout" in the "Daily Express."

LATEST PROBABLES.

HOCKEY.

51st v. 52nd Northumberland Fusiliers.

Played on Marienburg Hockey Ground on Saturday in fine weather. During the first few minutes the play was fast and even, and through some fine combination on the part of the 51st Forwards and from a good centre from Capt. G. H. Parry, the right wing, Lieut. W. E. Richardson made no mistake in finding the goal. The 51st continued to press and had hard luck from a shot by Lieut. Ruddock which just grazed the goal-post.

The 52nd then recovered and after cleverly drawing the 51st defence scored a fine goal. The 51st not being quite satisfied with this, again visited their opponents' goal. A pass by Lieut. Thomas, the centre half, was given to Capt. G. H. Parry, who took the ball up the right wing, and just as he was attacked centred hard at the correct moment. Lieut. Greaves was successful in gliding the ball between the posts, in spite of having his legs taken from under him by the 52nd's left back.

On the resumption of the game, the 52nd did their best to break through the defence of the 51st, both on the left and right wings, but the backs, Maj. C. Arkwright and Lieut. G. A. Oswald, proved to be too much for them. The 51st again determined to break through, which they did, scoring three goals in quick succession through Lieuts. Ruddock, Richardson, and Greaves. Lieut. G. Thomas and Capt. Pigg both played an outstanding game as halves. Lieuts. Fentum and Connolly kindly lent their services as umpires. Result: 51st Northumberland Fusiliers, 5; 52nd Northumberland Fusiliers, 1.

KEEN FOOTBALL.

41st M.G.C. v. 17th Middlesex Regt. at Wahn.

This match played at Wahn between the two above teams on Saturday saw the M.G.C. win by 3-1. They won the toss and played with a slight breeze. Some clever footwork by McCoy and Purvis led to an attack on the "Middies" goal which ended with the first named missing by inches. Midfield play followed, after which the "Middies" left wing broke away and the winger, putting in a lovely square centre, enabled the inside right to open the score after twenty minutes play. Their success was short lived, however, the M.G.C. equalising after 25 minutes play. The M.G.C. still kept up the pressure and just before half time they took the lead through McCoy shooting.

A lot was expected from the "Middies" after half time but the M.G.C. still had the lead and were playing much the better football. Towards the closing stages of the game the Machine Gunners were awarded a free kick. McCoy taking the kick notched the M.G.C.'s third goal with a fine drive. There was no further scoring. Lieut. Kinnimont at centre half for the M.G.C. was the outstanding player of the game.

R.S.M. WINS 2833 MARKS.

Our No. 3 Football Competition Won Outright.

Despite the topsy-turvy results of the Notts Forest, Lincoln, Bradford and St. Mirren matches last Saturday, one competitor was successful in entering an all-correct coupon, this being

R.S.M. W. Hayward,
8th Veterinary Hospital,
Fort. 8,
Cologne.

He is the recipient of 2,833 Marks.

Many entrants were successful in forecasting ten correct results out of the eleven required, and scores of coupons with nine correct were handled by our competition staff.

By the time this is read, the fortunate winner will be in possession of a cheque for the amount subscribed. To-morrow we hope to publish an interview with this lucky "Regimental."

Coupons for this week's competition are showering upon us daily and another substantial prize is assured.

Coupons must be addressed:—

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 4,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S./40 Rhine Army.

List of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Frank Fisher.

Wherever soldiers meet just now the racy memoirs of Admiral Lord Fisher appearing daily in the "Times" are discussed. For breezy outspoken views nothing so refreshing has appeared for ages.

If he had Sung.

The Adjutant was away on leave and his servant was consequently back with the Company at duty. One night he got a little merry and was reported for singing after lights-out. In due course he came before the C.O. who got annoyed with him and deprived him of ten days' pay. On the Adjutant's return the aggrieved servant complained. "I got ten days' pay, sir, just for humming, sir. If I had been singing I suppose I should have lost all my gratuity".

Say it Quickly.

Here's a nice mouthful. Altewipperfürtherstrasse is the simple little title of a street in Cologne where a certain reception camp is located.

Housewifery.

With us the making at home of preserves and pickles is becoming a lost art. Not so in Rhineland. At my billet I notice the mother, her daughters and the domestics are extremely busy just now preparing all sorts of wonderful preserves and confections of fruit and vegetables.

Play Chess?

Any officers interested in forming a Chess Club for the winter months are asked to communicate with Major Elliott Bell, VI Corps School, Rhine Army.

Washing—a Luxury.

Soldiers who have been sending home to England for toilet soap thinking to save thereby have been disillusioned lately. I hear prices are soaring up in the old country. It seems that some philanthropist has been cornering the oils and fats of which soap is composed and a shilling a cake is expected to be the normal price soon.

In Mufti.

I am told that quite a number of soldiers go out in Cologne at night in "civvies." Is this wearing of mufti always authorised, is what several readers want to know.

Army Mules.

I was amused at an incident which happened in a Cologne thoroughfare. A party of British Army mules were being shepherded through the streets when they came to a pompous German policeman doing point duty in his magnificent uniform. The first party seemed immensely tickled at something and the "neigh" was taken up down the column. The grooms in charge and passers-by were obviously amused. The mule has a keen sense of humour.

Glut of Apples.

There is a glut of apples in the country districts around Cologne. The size of the fruit is in many cases exceptional.

Why?

I notice that many who frequent Cologne dining resorts have fallen into the Russian habit of smoking between courses at dinner. I noticed three Englishmen drink soup and immediately light cigarettes. A few minutes with my Lady Nicotine and they turned their attention to the next course.

Italy's Sons.

Besides the Russian officers and men now in Cologne I see there are several Italians in Rhineland. A little group, of Italian officers were seen dining together in a Cologne restaurant the other evening.

Where Germans Score.

I know a certain number of briquettes are made in England but they are very inferior to those used as fuel in Rhineland. The housekeeper at my billet was telling me that before the war they could be bought for as little as 80 pfg. a hundred.

Murdered English.

The other day an instructor at the Light Divisional College gave me some amusing variations of the word "proximo" from recent exam papers. He has now told me of some curious ways in which "facilities" is interpreted—Some examples are—"vacillities" "vissillities" "villectis" "passivities" "pascilateis" "picevities" and "fercillitis."

A Concession.

When troops are going to and from a properly organised dance, they may in future wear slacks.

C. B.

An O.C. tells me he had this letter from the mother of one of the young soldiers in his Battalion; "My son tells me he has been awarded the C.B. I believe this is a coveted honour and as he is of a modest nature he will only say he did not do much to get it. Could you favour me with full details please?"

The Big Sweep.

Readers will be glad to hear that the Editor has made arrangements for the winning numbers in The "Victory" Cambridgeshire Sweep about which I have written once or twice to be published in this paper as soon as they are drawn.

Will They?

I see that a German newspaper referring to the present low value of the mark states, "We have only ourselves to blame. Since the Armistice chocolate to the value of 200 million marks and cigarettes costing 4000 million marks have been imported into Germany. Eat less chocolate and smoke less cigarettes!

Snowy White.

Some officers' collars I have seen lately must have been born khaki-coloured and washed white but others obviously were born white, in spite of all dress regulations.

Exportations of Motor Cars.

Owners of motor cars should take note of the fact that no private owned motor car or motor bicycle is to be shipped to the United Kingdom before the owner has satisfied a representative of the Base Commandant at the port of embarkation that the car or cycle is the personal property of the officer concerned. The D.A. and Q.M.G.'s authority to import a privately-owned vehicle will in all cases be produced.

No Matches.

At home the tobacconist always supplies you with matches. Not so in Cologne. If you want a light you must seek elsewhere for it, at a grocer's or oilman's shop. All smokers have noticed this, of course.

The Arms of Mayence.

Apropos the arms of Mayence to which I referred the other day, a reader gives me a very interesting legend concerning their origin. He tells me that the Bishop named Willigis, who was the son of a wheelwright, once reproved the citizens for thinking too much of mere descent. This vexed the supercilious citizens, and one night, as a revenge, they drew enormous wheels in chalk on all the doors of his house. The Bishop noticed these as he was going to Mass the following morning. The Chaplain who accompanied him, expected that he would burst forth with a torrent of rage, but instead of that, he smiled and ordered the drawing to be painted in white with a scarlet background with the words underneath "Willigis, Willigis, just think what you have risen from." This, according to the legend, silenced the scoffers, and the present arms of the city came into being.

Cologne's Populace.

They tell me that the population of Cologne as taken at the census on September 1st is 640,509.

RHINELANDER.

A DANGEROUS SHEET.

Reminiscences of "The Gazette des Ardennes."

The trial at Paris of French subjects alleged to have assisted in the production of "The Gazette des Ardennes" reminds me that just twelve months ago in the village of Cattenieres off the Cambrai-Le Cateau road, I came across complete files of that notorious propaganda organ. They had evidently belonged to some German official, probably the Orts Commandantur, who was unable at the last moment to find the necessary transport for them when our push made it necessary for him to evacuate.

It was an exceedingly well printed journal and seemed to have a very thorough news service from the various communes. Of course its great feature was to print the names of French prisoners in German hands, and in the case of air raids by the Allies, when French and Begian civilians became casualties, their names were always given with the gratuitous addition that the injured person had a brother or father (as the case might be) fighting with the Allied Armies.

As a soldier who was in Marcoing and Graincourt in November 1917 during the first Cambrai battle, I read with interest news from these places of happenings in October of that year when life there was comparitively normal. But it did require more than an ordinary effort of the imagination to appreciate the local value of the district news given under the captions, Bapaume and Achiet.

The paper seemed to be in some demand as an advertising medium, and each number boasted quite a respectable number of "smalls".

One hoped, however, that its Douai, Cambrai, and Lille effusions were not penned by a son or daughter of France, the Douai contributor being particularly bitter in his references to the "seemingly everlasting and senseless bombardment of our dear old town."

What the people of the occupied region thought of the "Gazette" may be summed up in the words of an English Lady at Gommegnies on the edge of the forest of Mormal.

We were the first British troops to enter the little town, — it wanted but a few days to the Armistice — and the writer happened to have a London Daily only two days old.

Madame was delighted

"It's the first English newspaper I've seen since 1914" she said. "We could get nothing to read but the lying 'Gazette des Ardennes' and I would not have it in my house."

PELICAN.

FOR OUR BENEFIT.

N.A.C.B. DEVELOPMENT IN COLOGNE.

We are pleased to learn that several striking developments in the activities of the N.A.C.B. are shortly to take place in Cologne. The chief event promised is the opening of a large general stores in a handsome emporium situated in 27, Obermarspfortplatz, just off the Hohestrasse. The shop is now being prepared with numerous counters where Officers and their wives will be able to purchase anything from boots to hats. Eatables and drinkables, clothing and ornaments, souvenirs and sports goods will all be on sale; nor will the would-be purchaser be asked to wait in a queue for bootlaces while the people in front of him, or her, buy scent or sausages. The island counters will each be labelled plainly, so that the buyer may proceed at once to the department where he may expect to find the articles he seeks.

In the rear of the selling departments there will be a handsomely decorated refreshment room where British ladies and gentlemen may take coffee in the mornings and tea in the afternoons For afternoon teas, fancy cakes and pastries all home-made by the N.A.C.B. will be on sale.

The idea is in no way to compete with ordnance. Thus khaki handkerchief and "ordnance boots" will not be offered by the N.A.C.B. stores but one will be able to purchase silk handkerchiefs and the lighter types of footwear.

The present Officers' Stores in the Brückenstrasse will be retained for the exclusive use of W.O.'s and N.C.O.'s and there they will be able to purchase for themselves and their families all kinds of goods and comestibles. Important modifications are planned for the men's stores, also in Brückenstrasse, which will make the matter of purchasing necessities and luxuries a simple one.

There are many minor ventures or improvements about to be inaugurated by the N.A.C.B. which will tend to brighten the existence of such of us as are forced to sojourn in this strange land. We briefly outline some of them.

Saturday evening family dances are being held at the Marricer Hotel, where everyone knows everyone else, and a very comfortable and enjoyable evening may be spent by lovers of dancing and sociability. An invitation from a resident is all that is necessary to gain admittance.

VANITY FAIR.

A Feature for the British Woman in Rhineland.

The Concertina Muff.

This is one of the newest fads of the fashionable. One of soutache braid was banded with skunk and had the owner's initials worked in bright colours on the front. Made long, the muff could be crushed into the desired size.

How to Clean Ermine.

A soiled ermine fur can easily be cleaned. Buy a fair quantity of fine magnesia or corn starch and rub the fur well with the powder on a piece of clean white muslin. Repeat the process several times and the fur will soon become quite clean and will not have the faintest trace of that yellow tinge which is so often the result of shop cleaning.

Patent Leather Boom?

The boot trade is anticipating a big boom in patent leather wear, which was practically unobtainable during the war, as no patent leather is made in this country. Supplies mostly came from Germany and America, and the latter is now sending over considerable quantities. As a result, some expectionally smart patent leather footwear is being exhibited.

The Latest Craze.

We are threatened with coloured lingerie, but—coloured! I do not mean delicate under-garments made of palest pink or mauve muslin or crêpe, but similar garments made in such colours as emerald green, japonica, pink, bright purple, and cobalt blue! It sounds like a nightmare, but in reality such vivid colours as these are already appearing in the showrooms of very famous lingeres.

Women's Feet Bigger.

Women's feet have become bigger! Such is the cold, brutal truth which anyone can see for herself if she visits the Shoe and Leather Fair at the Agricultural Hall. Blame the war. For five years women "footslogged" in a noble cause, and they found out that in boots and shoes comfort comes before appearance. "I should say that, on an average, women are wearing shoes two or three sizes larger than formerly," said a saleswoman. "Recently I was actually asked for a size nine in women's shoes!"

Dearer Dancing.

Your dance shoes will cost you more this season. Labour troubles have affected this as well as other industries. The long, slim heel, beloved of ardent dancers, is especially hard to get. If people will have them they must be prepared to pay for them. Brocade slippers are undoubtedly the most popular for evening wear. They are more durable. One reason for their increasing evidence on the market is the fact that these shoes are made inside out, and consequently have to be turned. A satin pair would not stand this treatment.

A Dwindling Commodity.

Money is a dwindling commodity in England, and for the time the utmost economy is desirable. It is up to us to cultivate the art of cutting our coats according to our cloth. I am a firm believer in the little things of dress arranged and bought with brains and discretion. Desultory, haphazard shopping is fatal, a silly game only indulged in by the very young, who are incapable of learning the value of money. The smart American woman can teach us a great deal in the wise administration of a dress allowance. Even the moneyed ones decline to be "done"; they are, somehow or other, trained to understand values.

Fashion Foibles.

High neck black velvet gowns, topped with fur, make an ideal background to a string of pearls.

The newest striped woollen skirts have narrow box-pleated fronts and flat sides adorned with large pockets.

The rumour grows that quite long skirts will come in with a rush very soon.

Tulle dance dresses in delicate shades of champagne, ecru and biscuit are worn with black velvet sashes, finishing at one side with a loop and end.

AGNES.

Hitherto W O's and N.C.O's who have brought their wives to Germany have lacked a place where they could all meet for social intercourse and refreshment. In a few days the Dutch bar next to the Ewige Lampe will be opened to fulfil this function.

Thé dansantes at the Ewige Lampe will commence on Thursday Oct. 16 and will probably appeal to many who have the tea hour to fill in.

The "Cologne Post" Correspondence columns have frequently aired the writing-room grievance at "The Earwig". Under the old arrangement the allotted room faithfully answered the query "When is a writing room not a writing room?" But all this is altered.

One of the narrow bays on the ground floor, always an awkward shape for a dining room, has been curtained off and furnished with comfortable little writing and card tables. There the scribe and bridge-player should find much comfort.

Such developments as these will do much to relieve the monotony of our "watch" while the profits, instead of going to German pockets, will enrich the various institutions of the Navy and Army.

Pensioners Angry.—Ealing Town Council has asked the Ministry of Pensions to inquire into the grievances of Ealing ex-service men.

One Penny.—At Liverpool the compensation to a workman who refused to undergo a slight operation was reduced to a penny a week.

Generous.—A walking stick, a cigarette case, and a purse containing 24s. have been given to each discharged soldier at the Leeswood collieries.

The Professional.—It is expected that the British Ambassador to Berlin will be selected from the ranks of professional diplomats.

Unwanted.—A firm of Australian manufacturers replying to a German inquiry after trade said the vile treatment of prisoners alone would damn Germany for generations.

DOUGLAS PENNANT CASE.

HOUSE OF LORDS INQUIRY INTO W.R.A.F. ADMINISTRATION.

GERMAN OPERATIONS AGAINST RIGA.

MISS DOUGLAS PENNANT.

HOUSE OF LORDS INQUIRY BEGINS.

The Committee of Inquiry, presided over by Lord Wrenbury, better known as Lord Justice Buckley, into the dismissal of Miss Violet Douglas Pennant from the Women's Royal Air Force began its proceedings in the House of Lords on Tuesday.

Lord Wrenbury intimated that he would treat the case similarly to an action for wrongful dismissal.

Mr. Hawke, K.C., opening for Miss Pennant, said she was invited to become Commandant of the W.R.A.F. on April 22nd 1918. She was so dissatisfied with the conditions that she asked leave to resign on July 7th but leave was refused. On the 17th August Lieut.-Colonel Bersey who was one of the difficulties in the position was superseded, while on the 23rd August Sir Godfrey Paine, Master General of Personnel, who had asked in the first place for the appointment of Miss Pennant, was promoted and went to France.

Miss Pennant was summarily dismissed on the 28th August.

A few days before that Major-General Brancker had succeeded Sir Godfrey Paine and it was alleged that Miss Pennant's dismissal took place without any recommendation from Major-General Brancker. There were apparently two grounds for her dismissal—her alleged gross unpopularity and her failure to obtain co-operation between certain women's organisations.

Was Hercules Unpopular?

One point which Miss Pennant wished to emphasise was that the proposition that unpopularity would justify summary dismissal was as dangerous a proposal as could be introduced into public life. He (Counsel) did not suppose that Hercules was very popular with the anthorities when he turned the waters into the Augean stables.

Continuing, counsel said that Miss Pennant found throughout the W.R.A.F. a general state of disorganisation. There were no medical arrangements for treating the sick and there was a serious shortage of officers, of which there were only seventy-three for 500 camps, containing 14,000 to 15,000 women.

Miss Pennant's enthusiasm as a reformer was not popular with those who were leaving things in this state and this might account for a good deal of the lack of co-operation which ensued. Discussing the dealings between Miss Pennant and Lieut.-Colonel Bersey, counsel described the latter as "an agreeable gentleman who said 'right oh!' to her proposals and then did nothing." Counsel stated that one day General Livingstone told Miss Pennant that unless she was prepared to work under Colonel Bersey and himself the whole W.R.A.F. scheme would break down. That was beyond General Livingstone's authority and directly contrary to the orders of the Master General of Personnel. The fact was that Miss Pennant's desire for independence was interfering with the authority and conduct of these gentlemen and did not meet with their approval.

The inquiry was adjourned.

NEW LABOUR COUNCIL.

TO CO-ORDINATE WORK OF THE MINISTRY.

The Minister of Labour has appointed a Departmental Council with a view to ensuring the effective co-ordination of the work of the several Departments.

The Council will consist of:

Sir Robert Horne (Labour Minister), President.

Sir D. Shackieton (Permanent Secretary), Vice-President and Chief Labour Adviser.

Mr. G. J. Wardle, M.P. (Parliamentary Secretary).

Mr. E. C. Cunningham (Second Secretary), Secretary of the Council.

Mr. F. G. Bowers (Accountant-General).

The following will be the principal assistant secretaries: Mr. H. B. Butler, Mr. T. W. Phillips, and Mr. H. J. Wilson.

NO BUYERS FOR GERMAN BAGS.

A considerable consignment of German handbags for ladies has arrived in England. The value of the consignment, it is stated, is about £13,000. It is said that a purchaser has not been forthcoming. The goods are described as below the corresponding British articles in style and also when the value is compared.

SHIPPING STRIKE.

The Marseilles shipping strike is extending. No vessels left yesterday and the number of passengers now waiting exceeds nine thousand.

RIGA FRONT.

GERMAN GENERAL ASSUMES TITLE OF PRINCE.

The War Office has issued the official report from the British Mission at Helsingfors dated 10th October. It states that at that time all the Lettish troops were being withdrawn to the East bank of the Dvina and the bridges over the river broken. Letts and Germans were exchanging rifle shots across the river. Riga was therefore still in the hands of the Letts and was being bombarded by German artillery, firing gas shells, and also bombed from aeroplanes.

Esthonian armoured trains on the Riga-Pskoff railway had come up in support of the Letts and were replying to the German fire. The Government of Latvia had retired to Segewald, but a later report dated the 12th states that they have now returned to Riga.

General Bermondt, who now calls himself Prince Avalor, has proclaimed himself Governor-General of Courland (or Latvia). He has addressed a Note to the Allied Missions in the Baltic States, stating that the Letts and Esthonians were the first to commence hostilities against his troops and that the operations were being caused by the necessity of restoring international order and for the prosecution of further hostilities against the Bolshevists. There is no foundation in fact for these statements.

The British Mission was still at Riga on the 10th and reported that all was well with them.

It now appears that Colonel Bermondt and his Russo-German Army never took the whole of Riga but only the suburbs south of the river. Yesterday's message states that he is being driven out of the town altogether. According to the Lettish communiqué Allied warships participated in the defence.

AN INSIDE VIEW.

BOLSHEVISM AS IT IS IN RUSSIA.

The first of a series of articles entitled "Bolshevism at Close Quarters" appeared in yesterday's "Times." It records the experiences of an Englishman named Paul Dukes, who was a professional musician before the war at the Mannisk Theatre, Petrograd. Recently he returned to Russia and for nearly ten months lived as a Russian among Russians under the Bolshevist regime. Thus he is able to set forth a viewpoint different from that of all other writers on the subject, who have seen Russia only under official Bolshevist auspices.

The writer says he has not met a single man or woman in Russia—commissaries, communists or otherwise—who really believes that the Bolshevist regime will last in Russia. If the death-blow is not dealt from the outside it will eventually be dealt from the inside as the ever-increasing number of strikes, peasant risings, and movements of Green Guards show. If dealt from inside, however, it will be unorganised and consequently violent and brutal, leading not only to massacres of the commissaries and Communists but probably to fearful pogroms of Jews. There are no leaders of the people in Russia to organise this movement and lead it into proper channels.

One of the cleverest things the Bolshevists have done is to pick out the leaders of the workmen and remove them. At the first suggestion or sign of agitation or opposition to the existing rule these leaders are arrested and simply disappear.

Mr. Dukes emphasises the extraordinary darkness in which Russia lives as regards the outside world, darkness equalled, however, by ours in England as to the happenings in Russia. He describes the sensation caused shortly before his departure by the arrival of a six-weeks-old copy of the "Times" of early July. This changed hands first for one thousand, then two thousand, then three thousand roubles. The last owner refused to sell it but lent it out at prices ranging from 100 to 300 roubles per day.

FISHER AND THE DARDANELLES.

Lord Fisher's memories to-day deal chiefly with the Dardanelles and contain a full narrative of his own part in the operations conducted there.

The writer lays great stress on the fact that he only withdrew his resignation of January 27th, 1915, because he was convinced of the vital importance to the nation of the building programme initiated by him, which his resignation would have imperilled or delayed.

WORCESTER COLLEGE HEAD.

The vacancy in the Headship of Worcester College, Oxford, caused by the death of Dr. Daniel, has been filled by the appointment of the Rev. F. J. Lys, Chaplain and Bursar of the College.

WAR HONOURS.

FAMOUS SOLDIERS IN MANY CAMPAIGNS.

A supplement to the London Gazette issued yesterday gives the following promotions and honours:—

For services in France and Flanders:—G.C.M.G., General Sir Henry Horne; K.C.M.G., Colonel H.J. Elles; K.C.B.E., Colonel H.W. Wilberforce. Promoted Major-General, Lieut.-Colonel A.W. Peck. Promoted Brevet Colonel, Lieut.-Colonel R A. Gillam, Major A.C. Gridwood, Major R.J. Kentish, Major C.L. Porter and Major M.G. Taylor.

For services in Egypt:—K.C.M.G., Major-General P.C. Pallin, Lieut.-Colonel H.A.D Simpson Baikil, Colonel Granville Delauney.

For services in Syria:—K.C.B.E., Major Sir G. Bohun Macaulay. Promoted Major-General, Col. F.R.C. Butler.

For services in the Balkans:—K.C.M.G., Colonel A.W. Gay; K.C.B.E., Major-General E.C.W. Mackenzie Kennedy, Colonel W.C. Ross.

For services in Mesopotamia:—G.C.M.G., General Sir John Nixon; K.C.M.G., Major W.M. Thomson. Promoted Major-General, Colonel T. Fraser.

For valuable war services.—G.C.M.G., Field Marshal Lord Methuen, General Sir P. W. Ian Hamilton. K.C.M.G., Lieutenant-General C. Woollcombe, Colonel R.S.F. Henderson, Major-General Sir Bertrand E. Dawson. K.C.B.E., Colonel W.C. Hedley, Colonel T. Herom, Captain Sir H. Galland Stiles, Lieut.-Colonel W. Thorbron, Colonel H. Yarde-Buller and Lieut.-Colonel E.N. Thornton.

PARIS BY NIGHT.

NO RETURN TO PRE-WAR HABITS.

With the termination of the State of Siege and the abolition of the censorship, France does not go back entirely to the régime that existed before the war. It is true that the civil authorities regain their powers hitherto exercised by the military, who could search the dwellings of citizens day and night, remove suspected persons, seize arms and munitions, and forbid publications and meetings.

But the raising of the state of siege does not mean an immediate return to old customs. For the moment there are economic difficulties to be considered. With coal scarce and dear, higher wages for waiters, and an eight-hour day, many café proprietors will be satisfied if midnight is the closing hour. Besides, war-time measures have changed the habits of the people, who are now going earlier to bed.

RHEIMS CATHEDRAL.

WHAT GERMAN SHELLS REVEALED.

The German shells which crashed through the vaults of the cathedral of Rheims and pitted the ancient dust beneath the pavement have brought to light remains which archaeologists are now studying with the greatest interest. The present Gothic building was erected during the thirteenth century, probably on the foundations of the old Frankish basilic, enclosing the tomb of Saint Remi, who died in the sixth century. It is the foundations and crypt of this building that have been unearthed by the German shells; as far as can be judged, they date from the ninth century.

UNITY IN TURKEY.

The negotiations between the new Cabinet and the Nationalist leader, Mustapha Cemal Pasha, has led to an agreement whereby the Cabinet has adopted the views of the Nationalist leaders. On their side the Nationalists undertake to support the present Government. The Turkish press is jubilant, while the Nationalist and Government leaders have exchanged telegrams of rejoicing at the restoration of National unity.

TROOPS FROM INDIA.

Nearly 200 officers and over 2,000 men from India were landed at Plymouth on Tuesday. Many of them were red chevron men, and among over 100 representatives of the Devon Battalion there were several who had been overseas since October, 1914. Most of the men went to India from Mesopotamia. They were sent to the frontier, and took part in the Afghanistan campaign.

FALSE WEMYSS RUMOURS.

The Board of Admiralty states that Admiral Wemyss resigned his post as First Lord simply because that now the Navy is returning to peace conditions and the various tasks which he undertook in war time are finished, he feels at liberty to resign. The report that he has been offered any other post is incorrect.

AMERICAN COAL STRIKE.

Negotiations between the American coal miners and mine owners have practically broken down. The country is thus faced with a strike throughout the bituminous coal mines. It has been fixed for the 1st November. Over 225,000 miners will be affected.

TO THE ANTIPODES.

ENTRANTS FOR THE GREAT AERIAL CONTEST.

The entrants for the flight to Australia include, in addition to Mr. Matthews, the Australian aviator Captain Howell, who will fly a Martynside machine capable of a speed of one hundred miles an hour. The third contestant will be an Alliance aeroplane piloted by Lieutenant Douglas, who is expected to leave Hounslow on the 27th October. This machine is capable of a 3,000 miles flight and is equipped with a powerful wireless installation. The fourth and largest machine to attempt the flight will be a Blackburn aeroplane which will carry a crew of four under Captain Wilkins, who is the well-known Polar explorer. He was second in command to the Stefansson expedition. Their machine is also equipped with wireless.

The Australian Government has arranged to send out a cable steamer fitted with wireless to patrol the long stretch of sea between Timor and Port Darwin in order to pick up wireless calls from the aviators.

All four competitors declare that if they succeed in reaching Port Darwin they will continue the journey across Australia to Melbourne.

Matthews was due to start from Hounslow yesterday on the Sopwith biplane with which he will try to win the Australian Government's prize of £10,000. His route is being kept secret, but he will possibly touch Athens or Constantinople, thence via Egypt, the Persian Gulf and India. The other Australian aviators will probably fly via Otranto, Malta, Egypt, Constantinople, Bagndad, Bashire, Calcutta, Rangoon and Singapore. The flight is exciting the greatest interest.

Meanwhile the French aviator Poulet left Issy-Les-Moulineaux, near Paris, at 7 a.m. on Tuesday for Melbourne.

RAILWAYMEN.

HARMONIOUS MEETING WITH PREMIER.

The Executive of the National Union of Railwaymen had an interview with Mr. Lloyd George yesterday regarding the resumption of negotiations. The interview lasted ninety minutes and at the conclusion Mr. J. H. Thomas said:—

"We have had a full and frank discussion on every aspect of the case. The Premier has promised to go into the whole case submitted by us and at the meeting arranged for next week will further discuss matters with us. I am well pleased with the spirit and atmosphere of the meeting. There was no recrimination on either side but a genuine desire was shown to effect a settlement."

ANGRY RAMSGATE.

WANTS A BIG GUN AS WAR TROPHY.

The Ramsgate Borough Council have ordered the return with thanks of a German field gun sent to the town to be exhibited as a war trophy.

As the most bombed town in the country, the local authority felt that some evidence should be available to mark its part in the struggle. At first a damaged German machine-gun was sent, but this was merely acknowledged with disgust. Then came a small aeroplane, which, although received six months ago, has never been shown to the public. The latest representations have resulted in the arrival, not of a captured gun of large calibre, as expected, but a much damaged field-piece, declared to be scarcely recognisable as a weapon of war and suitable only as scrap iron.

When this gun reached the railway station the local authorities were so angry that they decided not to accept delivery.

BOLSHEVISTS FUTILE ATTACK

Denikin reported yesterday by wireless that he had been violently attacked near Orel by eighteen Bolshevist regiments. All attacks were repulsed and severe losses inflicted on the enemy, who lost 3,500 prisoners, four guns and over thirty machine guns. The result of the battle was an advance by Denikin's forces to within twelve miles of Orel.

LORD ALLENBY'S MOVEMENTS.

No explanation is available of the announcement made yesterday that Field Marshal Lord Allenby was returning to Egypt to-day, nor of to-day's announcement that his departure has been postponed for a week. Reuter learns, however, that before returning to Cairo Lord Allenby will make a tour of the battlefields in France.

PARIS ITSELF AGAIN.

President Poincaré has signed a decree abolishing the state of siege at Paris and allowing the cafés to remain open till 1 a.m.

Field Marshal Allenby started on his return journey to Egypt has.

The Shah of Persia will be the guest of the King from the 31st October to the 4th November.

PURE CHIVALRY.

MARRIAGES IN NORTH RUSSIA.

In the course of a statement to Reuter's Agency describing the evacuation of North Russia, an Englishman just returned from there says that the British Government agreed to evacuate a large number of persons compromised by our occupation.

There were, however, many who could not be included in this invitation. The most pathetic cases were those of unmarried women, some of them perhaps of not untarnished reputation—who greatly dreaded the miseries and perils likely to follow our departure, as far as they were concerned. One of the things to be counted to the eternal honour of the forces was the number of cases of marriage, for indisputable motives of purest chivalry, by British and Allied soldiers with these lonely and unfortunate beings.

WOODEN HOUSES.

VERY LITTLE CHEAPER THAN BRICK.

The Ministry of Health has issued a long statement with reference to the proposals to relieve the housing crisis in part by the erection of wooden houses. Although the statement says that regulations are being issued sanctioning the erection of such houses, it strongly deprecates their adoption and says that the cost of wooden houses such as to meet ordinary British requirements, would be not more than 6% below the cost of brick houses.

CATTLE SALES.

RECORD PRICES FOR PEDIGREE CALVES.

At Aberdeen shorthorn sales yesterday, which were attended by buyers from all over Great Britain, the United States, and South America, sensational prices were obtained.

Mr. Duthie, the "shorthorn King," and two neighbouring breeders sold sixty-nine head, realizing a total of £53,151. Five thousand three hundred guineas were paid for a bull calf, and two thousand for a heifer calf. Both were easily record prices.

LET THE WOMEN PAY.

According to an announcement in the "Schweriner Zeitung," the young bloods of that region of Germany are tired of paying for the entertainment of their womenfolk, and have put their foot down.

"We, the young men of Schwerin," runs this ungallant announcement, "are tired of paying for women. Why should we who work hard for our money spend it on Sundays on dance tickets, wine and other refreshments for the benefit of women? Let them pay for their own pleasures.

"We notify all our female friends to bring their own purses, well filled—otherwise they had better stay at home on Sundays."

This cold-blooded announcement bears 260 signatures.

TOO OLD AT FORTY-SIX?

The executive of the National Union of Railwaymen, are credited with the intention of recommending to the general meeting which is to be held in November that in future no parliamentary candidate on behalf of the railwaymen shall be older than forty-five.

It is also suggested that adopted candidates who do not secure election within three years should retire.

MINERS' STRATEGIC POLICY.

Mr. Hodges, the Secretary of the Miners' Federation, in the course of a speech on nationalisation of the mines, said that the miners have a strategic policy and within the next three months the loyalty of the men may be put to the test.

DEVIL'S DYKE FOR SALE.

That noted beauty spot the "Devil's Dyke," near Brighton, is about to be put up for sale. Fears are expressed lest, if it is bought by a private purchaser, it may be closed to the public. Suggestions are being made that the Brighton Corporation or the Brighton Railway Company should buy it with a view to preserving it for public use.

NEW OXFORD COLLEGE HALL.

The Minister of Education, Mr. H. A. L. Fisher, yesterday opened the new Hall at Mancher College, Oxford. The building will be known as Arlosh Hall, having been erected through part of the bequest of the late James and Isabella Arlosh of Cumberiand, amounting to nearly £40,000.

GOLD RUSH IN AUSTRALIA.

Reuter's correspondent at Perth (Western Australia) telegraphs that another gold rush has followed a rich discovery near Feysville on the Hampton Plains.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

OPENING OF NATIONAL CAMPAIGN.

The great national campaign in support of the League of Nations was inaugurated at a Mansion House meeting yesterday afternoon, Mr. Asquith being the principal speaker.

The King wrote emphasising his belief that a strong and enduring League of Nations is essential in order to secure a lasting peace, and commanding the cause to all citizens of the Empire.

The Premier also wrote appealing to his fellow countrymen to participate in the great crusade in support of the international order and goodwill.

Mr. Asquith moved a resolution approving the aims of the League and endorsing the proposal that November 11th be celebrated throughout the country as the "League of Nations Day." He emphasised the point that the success of this great experiment lies not so much with the Governments as the peoples of the world. There were a multitude of disquieting factors in the international atmosphere, and outspoken and resolute support of the people is necessary to carry the League of Nations through its present difficultes. Urging the importance of Articles 12 and 16, he said that if these were properly recognised and carried out the crime of 1914 could never be repeated. One of the first steps towards realization of the benefits of the League must be a drastic reduction of armaments by all powers which still immeasurably exceed the maximum necessary for national safety.

CROWDED VARSITIES.

QUEUES OF STUDENTS AT EDINBURCH.

Remarkable scenes occurred at the opening of Edinburgh University yesterday. New students arrived in such great numbers that they had to be lined up in a queue before the matriculation office. Included among them were many demobilized soldiers. There will be great difficulty in accomodating everybody.

The authorities at Manchester University were faced with the same difficulty, over 2,000 new students having already completed their entry. The medical students number 633, including 373 women.

KILLED BY GRIEF.

An old man named Parker, 80 years of age, has died at Shaldon (Devonshire) from grief following the disappearance of his adopted child, aged two and a half years. The little boy left home with a small rake made for him by his foster parent to look for cockles, and as he failed to return a search was made for him without success. The rake, however, was found in a pool left at low water. So stricken with grief was the old man that he died 48 hours before the boy's body was washed ashore.

MINEFIELD SWEPT CLEAR.

The American ships which have been helping to clear up the vast minefields between the Orkneys and Norway have completed their task. They have accounted for twenty-one thousand mines. Only four sweepers of the thirty-six engaged escaped unscathed.

GERMAN SEA LEAGUE.

The German Navy League is to be rechristened "The German Sea League," and is to work for the development of the German Mercantile Marine and the resumption of German maritime trade and shipping.

GERMANY'S ILLEGAL SALES.

The Supreme Council has directed Marshal Foch to warn Germany that sales of aeronautical material in Sweden are considered null and void by the Allies, being contrary to the stipulations of the Peace Treaty.

MANCHESTER TRAMWAY PROFITS.

Since the electrification of the Manchester tramways in 1901 £1,326 891 has been devoted from the net profits to the relief of the local rates. The largest amount contributed in any one year was £111,891 in the year ended March last.

IN THE TWILIGHT.

By a new order, the Berlin restaurants are only to be allowed to use for lighting purposes 35 per cent. of the amount of gas and electricity consumed by them per month in the year 1916.

BELATED GOOD NEWS.

It was not until July that the inhabitants of Easter Island, in the Pacific, learned that the Armistice had been signed, no correspondence having reached them for eighteen months.

INDIAN CADETS.

The India Office announces that five Indian gentlemen will be nominated for cadetships at Sandhurst with a view to obtaining permanent commissions in the Army.

THINK FOR YOURSELVES.

Everybody in Rhineland has noticed the eagerness with which the average German picks up English. He seems to be continually on the look-out for something to add to his "havings," as Emerson calls one stock of ideas. What is the reason of this strange phenomenon?

The argument that the German is out to learn all he can of our language and business ways has been put forward many times. But this does not explain matters. It takes us no farther. Why is he more eager to learn than the average Englishman?

The reason lies in his early education. He leaves school eager to learn. If this is the case, then, and the average Englishman does not learn, there must be something very much the matter with our system of education. What can be the matter with it? Our range of subjects is extensive enough. Our years of schooling from five years to fourteen years are long enough and are to be extended. What more can be done?

If we examine all the facts and look back on our own particular schooldays we shall find that they used to bore us to death. Yet many of us are studying now the same subjects we used to hate at school. Why then did we not take an interest in them at school?

The answer to this is not difficult to find. Those things which we do best are those which we find most interesting. If a man plays football better than he casts up figures it is only because he is more interested in football. The boy who gets most marks for history and the least for English grammar or French takes more interest in history than in the other subjects. The good actor, scientist, goalkeeper, linguist, merchant, horseman, is interested in his occupation and therefore learns quicker than another man not so intensely interested. Interest, then, is of primary importance.

Secondly, desire to learn. We seldom have this desire at school, mostly because our lessons are not made sufficiently interesting. But when we do want to know something we are too often told we "are not old enough to understand." In the junior classes we are informed that the sun is a ball of fire, but we will be told later what it is. I remember being told in the seventh standard that there was a fortune waiting for the man who discovered its composites. That was in 1912. In 1914 I read a book which told all about it and said that we now knew nearly everything of which the sun was composed. The date of the book's publication was 1903! Why don't our schools foster a child's intelligent curiosity instead of "choking" the child off?

In the third place a good memory and a reasoning mind are of great importance. In the case of the people of Germany who allowed themselves to be rushed into a war of aggression by a few military heads, and in the case of the railway strikers who came out for they knew not what reason, we see the absence of intelligent thought. Led by newspapers and public men armed with all the trickery of false logic, the masses of the world are swayed to and fro in answer to the whims of the minority.

"Think for yourselves!" should be placarded on every wall in England. "Think for yourself!" should be the advice of our teachers to every boy and girl. For, until we turn out of our schools and colleges, boys and girls with trained and reasoning minds with an interest in life, with eagerness to learn and with ambition, that vital force which elevates its possessors to the highest places among men, the new world we are promised, will remain the myth it is to-day.

COLLABORATION.

George and I have hit on a great scheme. The idea really originated with me. Ideas always do—great ones, that is. We are going to collaborate and write a serial for the "Cologne Post." With this great object in view we shall collaborate thus: I shall do the Hero and George will create the Heroine. He is great on heroines having spent much of his leisure in studying the subject at first hand. What he does not know about Heroines is not worth knowing.

Last night, we had a sort of council of two for the purpose of discussing our plot. Of course, in a serial, a plot is not necessary so long as you leave your readers (if any) in a worried state of mind as to what will happen after the interval of twenty-four hours covered by the words, "Another instalment of this powerful human story will appear in tomorrow's issue of this paper."

Nearly all successful serial writers have been briefless barristers. This is a great point in favour of our success, because in civil life, George is a solicitor's clerk which is almost the same thing. The legal profession seems to be a regular school for story-tellers—in the best sense of the word, of course.

I am a great student of literature, having read the Hundred Best Books and "Deadwood Dick," and after much deep research I have discovered that great men of letters such as Dr. Johnson, consumed a large amount of Port. Therefore, the best thing to do, we decided, was to repair to some "Hof" and discuss the great subject. Some day that place will be pointed out to tourists on our account.

After a little argument with "Herr Ober," we persuaded him that we wanted "Portweine" not "Halb-und-halb"—and settled ourselves to our task.

First of all the Hero. Now, my unlimited persual of Magazine literature has given me a rooted conviction that he must be:—(1.) A Major. (Army pattern.) N.B. Subalterns are only used in "flapper" stories—two pips are always ignored—and Captains are always villains. (2) A D.S.O. (3) Have killed 50 Germans single-handed to gain it. Another N.B. Is a Major allowed to kill? (4) Be painfully modest about ditto. (5) Very much afraid of the fair sex, with a deep rooted objection to noisy flappers.

The last item brings us to the Heroine. Anyone with a knowledge of modern literature will arrive at the logical conclusion that she must be: (1) A Flapper (2) Noisy, and must (3) Call Subalterns boys. (4) Adore Captains. (5) Hate the Hero.

There will be twenty-four chapters of hate, in each of which the Hero systematically rescues her from one scrape or more, ad lib. In Chapter 25 (the last) she will discover that for hate the word love must be substituted. Of course she marries the poor dev—man I mean.

We had got to this point (and the second bottle of Port) when Alfred Barker (the violinist of Deutsches Theatre fame) joined us. He very kindly introduced us to a new kind of drink which is served in half-gallon jugs with lemon.

The result is that we cannot continue until pay day, with Port Wine at Mks. 27.60 a bottle. But perhaps the "Cologne Post" will advance some money on an article we are writing entitled "Celebrities we have met."

GEMS FROM LORD FISHER'S MEMORIES.

Brains never yet moved the masses—but emotion and earnestness will not only move the masses, they will remove mountains.

I humbly confess I am neither a diplomat or a politician. I thank God I am neither. The former are servile and the latter are liars.

The only thing in the world that England has to fear is Germany and none else. (Written in 1907.)

King Edward was not in any way a clever man. I'm not sure that he could do the rule of three; but he had the heavenly gift of proportion and perspective.

What annointed cads are those who sell Nelson's letters to Lady Hamilton, letters written out of the abundance of his heart and the thankfulness of an emotional nature.

Imagine! nearly a year after the Armistice and yet we are spending two millions a day beyond any income ever yet produced by any empire or any nation.

To be a good admiral a man does not need to be a good sailor. That is a common mistake. He wants good sailors under him. He is the conceptionist.

Myself, I hate a brainy man. All the brainy men said it was impossible to have aeroplanes.... We still have ancient admirals who believe in bows and arrows.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

We Hear all Sides and Accept no Responsibility for our Readers' Views.

THE WAILS OF MESS ORDERLY.

Sir,—I can imagine readers saying "Poor old P.M.C." His waits at the Canteen evidently trouble him, but to my mind these are but a detail compared with the daily duties of a poor old mess orderly.

So he dismissed the box car. How I wonder would he enjoy the task of shouldering in a sack a miscellaneous collection of eatables and drinkables fearing a breakage at every step. Apart from the calamity of a bottle of the best going West what of the wrath of the powers that be!

Then there is the perpetual watch in a kitchen where whisky, butter and the like disappear as if by magic if one's back is turned, the daily fraternising tour of fishmongers' establishments and the like, the daily search for something to augment the rations apart from the daily collection thereof, and explanation of why the bacon or the cheese has not come up. As if I know why these things do not come up.

P.M.C. has four days' respite. I should be glad of one day or failing that four hours.

Why, the wait at the canteen of which he complains I regard as my half holiday.

MESS ORDERLY.

N.A.C.B. ENTERPRISE.

Sir,—My thanks and best wishes to the authorities of the Navy and Army Canteen Board.

Too much money has already found its way into German pockets. We have been fleeced right and left. Give us a good article and a fair price and we shall be happy. WIGGY.

REVIVING CHESS.

Sir,—I was glad to see in "Echoes from Rhineland" that the good old game of chess is going to be revived in the Y.M.C.A. and that a club is in process of formation.

Chess seems to have been forgotten during the war with no doubt good reasons, but there are no doubt many officers now who would be glad to take up again this interesting and fascinating game. UN QUI AIME LE JEU.

GAY UNIFORM.

Sir,—Your correspondent, W.R.P., is I suppose an old soldier, who even now has not got properly reconciled to the serviceable, yet I think very smart khaki uniform we all wear to-day.

I suppose he is one of the old "spit and polish" Brigade. I know the type.

Now, while admitting the glamour of the scarlet and blue and knowing its glorious traditions, is it not the fact that khaki has a record of heroism that puts everything else in the shade?

There has never been such a war. Its extent was almost greater than we realise. It involved millions of lives whereas other wars have only meant thousands. The whole nation has been in arms and in khaki, and that I think is the outstanding reason apart from all questions of economy, why the colour should be retained.

It is appropriate in hue, can be made to look very smart indeed and does not need to be discarded in time of war.

Perhaps one exception might be made—the Guards, foot and mounted. Otherwise let us keep to the khaki in which we fought as a nation in arms. H.W.C.

Sir,—Why appeal for gay uniforms? Are they not gay? Take a walk and see for yourself.

White leggings, silk puttees, all shades of khaki, vari-coloured socks, white collars and fawn ties, white and yellow gloves, dink swagger canes, breeches strappings of all colourings, tabs and brassards of many hues.

And when it comes to the blue uniform of our airmen—oh my! REGULAR.

OUR MUSICAL TASTE.

Sir,—The person who wrote to you saying that the British are a musical nation is altogether wrong. From all I have seen and heard I am quite sure we are not.

Here is one example: On Sunday night at the British Empire Leave Club there was the band of the Durham Light Infantry which during the programme played "Poet and Peasant," well known as a wonderful piece of music and it hardly got any applause.

But when a popular comic song was sung I thought the roof was coming off, owing to the tremendous applause given to it.

The audience was representative of the average Briton. What does your correspondent say to this?

REALLY MUSICAL.

Sir,—No one will deny for a moment that it is melody we Britishers want and I would put it to your correspondent "M.P.W."—can he not get it even at the Opera house.

What is wrong with—to mention the Opera he names—"Elsa's dream" "Lohengrin's Narration" "The procession to the Minster" "The Bridal Chorus" and last but not least the beautiful prelude to the third act.

These and scores of other melodies will live as long as there is a singer to sing them or an instrument to play them.

We know that the gramophone is not one of the best instruments for interpreting "Wagner" but it is a means of calling to mind the real thing.

We "musical cranks" have already met the listeners who "listen" with the tapping of feet on the floor to the strains of "Mendelsshon's Spring Song" and who afterwards thought we were rendering "Put me on an Island." N.C.O.

Sir,—M.P.W. talks about "folks who go to the opera because they think it is the correct thing to do."

He sneers at them without thought. Surely taste for music is cultivated just as is one's taste for other delicacies. It is impossible to understand and appreciate music except by frequent attendance at Opera and high class concerts, so that instead of sneering at the man who wishes to educate himself, I say "More power to him."

M.P.W. is evidently a lover of hackneyed music, because he talks of the "good old gramaphone" which sets one's feet tapping by playing cheerful music. He is evidently quite unable to appreciate good music and I cannot see that he is qualified to express an opinion at all.

Shakespeare says:—

"The man that hath no music in himself
Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds
Is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils."

I quite agree that ragtime may be cheerful, but such tunes are seldom fit to be classified as music.

Training is necessary to appreciate Science or Art, and there is no doubt that the cultivated ear will more and more appreciate the beauties of Music. While we are in Germany let us study music even though we only "think it is the correct thing to do." H.C.W.

GLANDS TO PROLONG LIFE.

Sir,—Assuming monkey glands afford perpetual youth I have no objection to military service, but what fills me with horror is the prospect of pork and beans in each successive war. But perhaps three hundred years hence the rations will come up in tabloid fashion—perhaps by wireless.

ANTI-MACONOCHIE.

THE DISPLAY OF DECORATIONS.

Sir,—"Be-ribboned" is, I imagine, one of those who would wear his war ribbons on all civilian attire.

Has he forgotten his pyjamas? A string above the breast pocket would look very imposing and serve to remind him of the fact that he merely did his duty.

I imagined that my letter would arouse the ire of at least one correspondent but "Be-ribboned" falls into the usual error of writing about pride in the part one has taken in the war. That in part explains my objection to the display of ribands and war decorations.

Putting on one side self-advertisement of one's deeds, is "Be-ribboned" unable to appreciate the fact that many of the wearers of these ribands have no moral right to them? That being the case I say, away with them. JUMBO.

TRIVIALITIES.

Sir,—In reply to "Verax" I would like to say that in life it is a recognised thing that it is the smaller things that matter. If it were not for the "commonplace and sometime trifling topics" written in letters to "The Cologne Post," perchance the Field Cashier would still be closed to officers, and perhaps the beautiful wives of officers would not visit "Verax" if he happened to find himself sick in a C.C.S., "craving for sympathy and consideration from woman in his agony." Again if "Verax" went to a dance he now would no doubt easily be able to find a partner. "Agnes" and her like have been killed.

All this is owing to the publicity afforded these matters.

No—I am afraid I shall have to look farther afield for his reason and I come to the conclusion that he is one of those unfortunate people possessing only leathered tunics whose life has been made miserable by having to scrape and khaki-blanco the leather in order to escape notice. "VERACISSIMUS."

A SENSE OF HUMOUR.

Sir,—A sense of humour is a difficult thing to define, but most people will agree that it depends largely on an appreciation of the incongruous in the affairs of life.

We laugh at a person dressed absurdly, because we instinctively measure their appearance by a standard against which they appear incongruous or out of place. We laugh at a large man riding a small donkey because our instinctive sense of proportion feels it to be incongruous. In the same way, we sometimes save ourselves from making ourselves ridiculous realising how incongruous and disproportionate is the amount of dignity we are trying to adopt, compared with the importance we really possess.

But the German people appear totally to lack this saving grace. At any rate they seem to find nothing incongruous and absurd in their change from the "Gott strafe England" point of view to their present flattery of the British. This was illustrated very forcibly in a cabaret entertainment at which I was present a few nights ago. A German ventriloquist making his puppet sing, burst into "Britannia rules the waves" as a suitable ditty, singing with great feeling, "Britons, never, never shall be slaves" to an apparently entirely apathetic audience.

One wonders what would happen, say in a Dublin Music hall, under similar conditions, if an Irish artist ventured such a thing; his compatriots would certainly signify their feeling by some necessary action, but the Boche, be it understood, betrayed no patriotic spirit which translated itself into comment, wordy or practical! The turn, which was an extremely clever one, was loudly applauded by Germans and British alike, and a friendly waiter, seeing the enthusiasm at our table, leant over and whispered confidentially "He wears always in his cravat a needle from King Chorch." When, after this had been repeated, we realised that he was boasting proudly that the performer had been presented with a tie-pin by a British sovereign, the problem of the German character became more insoluble than ever. E.A.D.

TO OUR HERO.

Money buys rifles, cannon and shell,
And all the weapons of War,
But who gave his life at the mouth of Hell
Manning the rifles and cannon as well?
Tommy.

Shilling a day — that's all — was his pay,
But he never struck for more.
To stand at his post, rain, shine, Night and Day
With a cheery smile was ever the way,
Of Tommy.

Victory at last, and the end of Strife,
And Tommy lays down his Gun.
Goes back to his sweetheart, Mother or Wife,
Here's to the health and a long happy life
Of Tommy.

OUT OF THE LEAGUE.

Leeds F.C. Officials Suspended By F.A.

PORT VALE CHOSEN.

Drastic action has been taken by the football authorities as the outcome of an inquiry into the way the Leeds City F.C. was conducted during war time.

The F.A. has suspended the club, and a number of officials, whilst the club has been expelled from the Football League, of which body it was elected a member in 1905.

Official Report.

The Commission of the F.A. and the Football League which have been inquiring into the allegations held a final meeting on Monday at the F.A. offices, London, and after again meeting the Lord Mayor of Leeds (Mr. Joseph Henry), Mr. Platts, and Mr. W. H. Clarke they announced their decision as follows:

"That the Leeds City F.C. suspension be continued until the books and papers required are produced, and that Messrs, J. Connor, J. C. Whiteman, F Glover, and J. Sykes, members of tho syndicate, and H. C. Chapman and G. H. Cripps, late officials of the club, be suspended sine die. and not allowed to attend any football matches or to take any part in football management. Mr. Platts, the other member of the syndicate, is absolved from all responsibilities for the irregularities."

"The Commission are of the opinion that there are other persons involved, but the evidence did not justify the Commission in imposing any penalty."

Port Vale in the League.

After the decision of suspension by the F.A. had been announced, the Football League authorised the statement that "Leeds City have been expelled from the Football League."

Port Vale, who have been chosen to fill the vacancy, will take over the Leeds City fixtures, the first of which will be at South Shields next Saturday.

Mr. J. Lewis, one of the vice-presidents of the League, stated that the League would look after the Leeds City players and pay them their wages until they obtained suitable employment.

Apropos the taking over by Port Vale of Leeds City's fixtures, games will be so arranged that there is no clashing with Stocke.

NEXT SATURDAY'S MATCHES.

The League Matches to be played next Saturday are as follows:—

The League.—Division I.

Arsenal v. Everton.
Aston Villa v. Preston North End.
Blackburn Rovers v. Sheffield Wednesday.
Bolton Wanderers v. West Bromwich Albion.
Bradford City v. Sunderland.
Liverpool v. Chelsea.
Manchester United v. Manchester City.
Newcastle United v. Bradford.
Notts County v. Derby County.
Oldham Athletic v. Middlesbrough.
Sheffield United v. Burnley.

The League.—Division II.

Fulham v. Coventry City.
Huddersfield Town v. Leicester City.
Hull City v. Nottingham Forest.
Stockport County v. Stoke.
West Ham United v. Grimsby Town.
Wolverhampton Wanderers v. Bury.
South Shields v. Port Vale.

Southern League.

Brighton and Hove Albion v. Gillingham.
Crystal Palace v. Bristol Rovers.
Millwall Athletic v. Swansea Town.
Northampton v. Reading.
Norwich City v. Merthyr Town.
Newport County v. Luton Town.
Portsmouth v. Southampton.
Queen's Park Rangers v. Cardiff City.
Swindon Town v. Exeter City.
Southend United v. Plymouth Argyle.
Watford v. Brentford.

Scottish League.

Aberdeen v. St. Mirren.

Clydebank v. Third Lanark.
Greenock Morton v. Dumbarton.
Hamilton Academicals v. Dundee.
Kilmarnock v. Falkirk.
Hibernians v. Partick Thistle.

FULHAM CLUB FINED £200.

At a meeting of the Management Committee of the Football League, held in London, Fulham were fined £200 as the result of their failure to carry out the Second League fixture at Bristol against Bristol City, on Sept. 27, during the height of the railway strike. The additional expenditure incurred by Bristol City on that date will be paid out of the fine.

NO FINAL AT THE PALACE.

The Football Association announce that as the trustees of the Crystal Palace have not replied accepting the F. A. proposals, it has been decided to make inquiries elsewhere for a ground for their final Cup-tie.

ENGLAND'S LEFT HALF-BACK.

Owing to the fact that Grimsdell (Tottenham Hotspur) is still suffering from the effects of an injury, the F. A. Selection Committee have chosen Watson (Burnley) to play left half-back for England next Saturday, at Stoke, upon the occasion of the second Victory International against Wales.

BILLIARDS.

Closing scores:—
Inman 9929; Reece 7903.
Breaks during day:—
Inman 121, 103, 390, 103 and 233;
Reece 470, 157.

W. SMITH IN FORM.

Willie Smith, the Darlington player, bids fair to be a thorn in the side of the best this season, for he is in capital form. At Thurston's he defeated Lawrence by 3,021 points.

Final score:— Smith 18,000; Lawrence (reed 4,500), 14,979.

N.S.C. BOXING.

Exciting Affair between Young Chips and Hussen Abbas.

VERDICT ON POINTS.

There was another very excellent attendance at the National Sporting Club when the second of the series of feather-weight contests set down in the programme for the present month at headquarters was down for decision. The contestants were the young Canning Town "feather," Mike Honeyman, and Billy Marchant, of Salford. Honeyman gained the verdict on points.

Worrying and Tearing.

Another bout, that between Young Chips, of Tylorstown, and the Arab protege of Victor McLaglen, Hussen Abbas, was an exciting affair. Abbas, inches the shorter, proved very strong and aggressive, and made matters most uncomfortable for the Welshman. The brown-skinned Arab kept worrying and tearing into his opponent, who had to take many hard digs on the body, as well as some well-delivered blows from both hands on the head and jaw. The foreigner was, however, a bit erratic with his punches, several of which went suspiciously low, one in particular bringing Chips to the boards for a count of seven. Chips won on points in the end, but he had to fight very hard indeed to earn the decision.

BASHAM v. MATT WELLS.

The postponed match between Johnny Basham and Bermondsey Billy Wells having been abandoned, it has been arranged for Basham to meet Matt Wells, the ex-light-weight champion, at the Holborn Stadium, on Nov. 11 next. In April, 1915, Basham beat Wells, at the London Opera House, on points, in a 15-rounds contest.

"BRAWN" v. "BRAINS."

51st Devons Basket-Ball Match at Burg.

The Padre with the utmost recklessness recently challenged the members of the Educational Staff to a game of basket ball, he wisely deciding at the last minute to referee. The game was played before a distinguished crowd with a sprinkling of the fair sex; the medical staff were in attendance. The result 36 points to nil, which was foregone conclusion, shows that brains must inevitably triumph over brawn.

After the first ten minutes the "Brawn" were completely run off their legs and in spite of as much assistance as possible from the referee were quite outclassed. One fair spectator was continually imploring the victorious team to slacken their speed in order to allow her to follow the game.

DIVISIONAL COMPETITION.

51st Manchester v. 84th Brigade R.G.A.

The above teams met on the Hofgarten, Bonn, on Monday last, in the Divisional knock-out competition. The Manchesters got away strongly at the start and scored in the first ten minutes through Lieut. Lenswick with a lovely shot. But they were unlucky soon afterwards, as this player crocked his knee badly, and although he played on through the rest of the game, he was unable to do himself justice. From the first goal until nearly half time, neither team could score, but with a few minutes to go Lieut. Hamilton got the ball, and cleverly beating the opposing backs, scored with a great shot from 20 yards range.

Upon resumption the R.G.A. seemed to take a new lease of life and in about ten minutes had piled on three goals. From then onwards, the Manchesters had very little chance, although they played very pluckily against a stronger notwithstanding that they had another of their best men hurt 15 minutes from the end, Lieut. Hamilton getting a nasty kick which caused him to retire for a time.

The R.G.A. put on another couple of goals before the whistle blew and ran out winners by five goals to two.

RUGBY.

Army Trial Match.

For their final trial match at Queen's Club, West Kensington, next Saturday, prior to their meeting with Cambridge University at Cambridge on the following Wednesday, the Army Rugby Union have selected the following powerful fifteens:—

Whites.—Lt. R. M. A. Welchman (R.E.); Maj. O. E. W. W. Harrison (R.G.A.), Capt. H. L. Bor (Connaught R.), Sgt. L. N. Lewis (R.E.), Capt. O. T. Frith (R.F.A.); Capt. C. H. Hedley (R.F.A.), Lt. Gethin (Warwick Regt.); Capt. A. H. MacIlwaine, D.S.O. (R.A.), Maj. P. H. Lawless, M.C. (G.S.), C.S.M. C. W. Jones (Welsh Regt.), Capt. A. P. B. Roberts (Tanks), Cpl. Hyland (2nd Life Guards), Cpl. DEAUVILLE RACES.

The Stewards of Deauville Races are so pleased with the success of their first peace gathering that they intend increasing the value of the stakes next year. They propose devoting £40,000 to the meeting, leaving the Grand Prix at £4,000 and creating several new prizes of the value of £2,000.

THE CLOSE SEASON.

F.A. Council Discuss Lancashire's Position.

At a meeting of the F.A. Council yesterday, an application was received from the Lancashire F.A. for permission to play the semi-final ties of the Lancashire Cup on May 8 and 15 next.

In connection with this application Mr. Sutcliffe, on behalf of the Lancashire F.A., moved:—

That, in view of the increased expenditure which County Associations will in future be called upon to bear, and the difficulty of arranging dates for the semi-final and final ties in their County Cup competitions through the increased list of League fixtures, and with a view to encouraging the County Associations to do all in their power to foster and develop the growth of juvenile football and also to prevent mid-week matches, permission is hereby given to the various County Associations to play the semi-final and final ties during the month of May so that such competitions shall be completed not later than the third Saturday in May in each year.

That the clubs shall be allowed to pay to the players taking part in such matches and the reserve players in attendance not exceeding thirteen players £3 each.

The County Association shall pay all the expenses, including the railway fares of the visiting team reserves, and officials actually paid not exceeding sixteen in number, and shall retain the net proceeds for the purpose of the county funds.

After considerable discussion the Council agreed to the following amendment:—"That county associations may arrange to play the semi-final and final ties of their county cup competitions on the second and third Saturdays in May."

RHINELAND ANGLING.

Pollution of the Waters Responsible for Lack of Fish.

SUGGESTED IMPROVEMENTS.

Angling enthusiasts in Germany are fairly unanimous in opining that the excellence of Rhineland fishing waters is not fully appreciated, chiefly by reason of a lack of interest on behalf of the Press. With very few exceptions the German newspapers fail utterly to support the fishing fraternity and those exceptions do not excite sufficient interest to make the sport a live one.

Compared with the considerable interest displayed in angling in England, it is surprising that the splendid waters in Germany are not more carefully preserved. To a great extent this may be accounted for by the unsympathetic eye directed by the general public towards the follower of "Isaak". He is regarded with a certain degree of ridicule and consequently pursues his hobby with extreme shyness.

NOXIOUS PRODUCTS.

Angling gets but little consideration from the builders of industry who do not hesitate to divert noxious waste products into fishing waters if such action means the saving of a little time or trouble.

During the war, the destruction of fish was even more extensive than previously, especially in view of the considerable amount of hand grenade fishing that was carried on in all parts. Necessity knew no law in those days, so that consideration of the future was ignored in the anxiety of both soldiers and civilians to procure material to satisfy the inner man. No protection was offered by the authorities so that all means possible for securing fish were resorted to.

All things considered, it is surprising that there should be any fish left at all, but that there is still some excellent sport here and there has been proved during the past summer by members of the Rhine Army. Trout, grayling, salmon, pike, perch, eels, roach and other fresh water fish have been caught in fairly large quantities, but the steady deterioration of angling in Rhineland is fairly obvious to all who have followed it closely during the past nine months.

An authority tells us that there is still time to restore the profuse habitation of the waters. A thorough cleaning of the rivers and restrictions on works preventing them from diverting noxious by-products into the fishing waters would undoubtedly restore the former abundance of fish. This, says our informant, would be an important factor in solving the shortage of food problem.

A. Coy. v. H.Q. 51st Royal Warwick Regt.

This match took place at Kurten on Sunday. Even play marked the opening exchanges, but it was soon evident "A" Coy. were out to avenge their former defeat. Fine work by "A" Coy.'s right wing ended in H.Q.'s defence giving a corner. From the goal kick Sgt. Reynolds secured, and catching "A"'s defence napping opened the scoring. Even play followed, H.Q.'s making good efforts to increase their lead. Fine work by Shepperd ended in a scramble in H.Q.'s goal, and Cpl. Harrison, securing, equalised the score. Half time arrived with the score 1-1.

The second half opened with a good effort from A's right wing, Lieut. Lycett forcing a corner. Smart play by H.Q.'s ended fruitless, and both sides strove to gain the lead. However, this was not long in coming. From a throw in near H.Q.'s goal Cpl. Kemster secured, and evading the defence scored with a beautiful drive. An unfortunate accident occurred here, Lieut. Jack and Cpl. Kempster heavily colliding, the latter being carried off the field with a broken nose. A Coy. struggled gamely with 10 men and H.Q. made vain efforts to get on equal terms. Play of a bustling nature ensued, but neither side could bring their efforts to success. The final whistle blew with "A" Coy. winners of a strenuous game by 2-1.

G.H.Q. SERGEANTS RIFLE CLUB.

The weekly shoot of the above club took place on Saturday last on the Merheim Ranges. Staff Sergeant Kelsall, R.A.S.C. won the spoon with a score of 82 and Sergeant Dunn, Royal Engineers won the prize in "B" Section, his score being 69.

SPORT NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

Bridgend.

Bridgend who was brought by Griggs for £100 has been backed by some knowing people for the Cesarewitch.

Football-Cricketer.

A. E. Knight, who captained England's team against Wales, in the well-known Hampshire cricketer.

Standard Weight.

The Golfing Association has reduced the ball to a standard weight, but not to a standard size.

First Win in France.

Lord Derby won his first race in France last week at the little meeting at Compiegne with Senechal.

Ladies' Sea Angling Competition.

The ladies' sea angling competition at Deal attracted 85 competitors, whose ages ranged from 10 to 70 years.

Dropped.

George Hunter and George Arnold are out of the Portsmouth team. The reason they have been dropped is likely to cause much talk in football circles.

To Resume Shortly.

Charles Hawkins, the well-known steeplechase jockey, who was badly injured by the falling of his mount, Bayshore, at Manchester, is now under the care of Dr. Frank Romer, and is going on so satisfactorily that he confidently expects to resume riding shortly.

Lord Dewar's New Trainers.

Lord Dewar has terminated his arrangement with Sherwood, the St. Gatien House trainer, and in future his horses will be under the care of S. Pickering, with the exception of one or two which have been placed in the hands of T. Cannon.

Distemper in Hunt Pack.

The ancient and famous Bilsdale Hunt has been reduced to two and a half couples owing to the ravages of distemper

Scottish v. Irish League.

At a meeting of the Scottish League it was intimated that the game against the Irish League would be played on Wednesday, Nov. 5, instead of Monday, Nov. 3. There will be no match with the Southern League this season.

All-the-year-round.

The lawn tennis season is far from being over, and the game is rapidly becoming an all-the-year-round sport, the covered courts supplying the medium for play when the season on grass closes down.

Fortunate Owner.

It is seldom a week goes by without Lord Glanely winning a race. So far this season 15 of his horses have between them carried off 34 prizes, worth just over twenty five thousand pounds.

Golf Swing.

While it is probable that the maxim "Follow through" has done more good to golfers than any other piece of instruction, except "Keep your eye on the ball," it is a remarkable fact that a shortened swing has been adopted by most of the first-class professionals.

Dan Jenkins.

Halifax were expecting to again have the services of Dan Jenkins, the Welsh three-quarter back, who played for them before the war. Jenkins, however, who is a miner, has notified the club that he is suffering from eye trouble, and will therefore be unable to assist them.

AMUSEMENTS AND RECREATIONS.

"You Never can Tell."

Described as "a pleasant play in four acts," Mr. G. Bernard Shaw's "You Never can Tell" was produced by the Rhine Army Dramatic Company at the Deutsches Theatre, Cologne, on Tuesday evening, before a crowded audience.

As the title implies, the story emphasises the fact that truth is, indeed, stranger than fiction. It concerns the reunion of a father with his family after eighteen years, and the love affairs of one of the daughters of the said family with an impecunious but thoroughly sentimental dentist. To give more of the plot would be to run the risk of spoiling the performance for intending visitors. Suffice it to say that the dialogue and the situations are perfectly typical of "G.B.'s." work and full advantage was taken on Tuesday of the scope provided for really clever acting.

* * *

Act two, for instance, depends almost entirely for its success upon the ability of the two chief members of the caste, who are called upon to reveal the emotions of completely different personalities. Lieut. S.E. Percy, D.L.I., and Miss Shirley King are the two concerned in this week's production, and that they thoroughly succeeded in the initial performance will be admitted by all who witnessed it. Miss King presented the unsophisticated but soulful Gloria Clandon to perfection. The gradual awaking of the instinct of affection, as a result of the passionate love-making of Valentine (Mr. Percy) was indicative of a true sense of the dramatic. Mr. Percy, — but I am getting along a little quickly!

* * *

We are first introduced, when the curtain rises, to Dolly Clandon, a sparkling vivacious young lady, who immediately wins the affection of her audience. Those who know the members of the Rhine Army Dramatic Company will readily conceive that no more suitable member for such a part could be selected than Miss Gabrielle Paul. She has, as a matter of fact, been allotted the character of Dolly, and the sparkling irresponsibility of the girl, maintained throughout the play, is an extraordinary clever piece of acting. She has an inseparable companion in her brother, Philip. He is a young man of much the same temperament, and Lieut. D. A. Onions (2nd Monmouth) is more successful in this part than in any he has played in the previous efforts of the Dramatic Company, unless, perhaps, "The Younger Generation" may be excepted. These two career right through the play with a cheeriness that eventually becomes infectious, even to the extent of including the perfectly proper William, the waiter.

* * *

William, by the way, is undoubtedly an extremely difficult part, although some of the cleverest lines of the dialogue fall to his lot for utterance. He is presented by Capt. C. F. Ball, (Border Regt.) who may be heartily congratulated upon an excellent performance. In the role of Fergus Crampton, we see Lieut. J. Humphrey Hope in yet another mood. Mr. Hope has the rare faculty of being able to adapt himself to practically any type of character, with equal success. As Fergus, the flint-hearted father, he has a part vastly different from any in which he has previously appeared, but this fact seems to trouble him not in the least. He presents the crusty old father to perfection. Then there is the versatile Miss Inez Bensusan who, as Mrs. Clandon, submits a wonderful impersonation of the neglected mother, and Capt. C. Spiegelhalter, (Lancs. Fus.) who makes an extraordinarily good Finch M'Comas, a pompous solicitor.

Particularly striking is the vigour with which Major H. Bowen, M.C. (R.O.Y.L.I.) plays the part of Mr. Bohun, K.C., whose commanding presence reduces everybody to immediate submission.

* * *

Space is now getting scarce, and I can only add that Pte. J. Terry, (R.A.S.C.) as the servant; R.Q.M.S. C.E. Lowder (R.A.O.C.) as a chef, and sub-conductor Ailwood, (R.A.O.C.) as Jo, all maintain the high standard of the company.

The production of the play is admirably carried out by Mr. Percy. Mr. Hope is the stage director, and the stage management is in the capable hands of Cpl. Mossey (Lancs. Fus.) and Pte. W. Plump (Area Emp. Coy.)

Lt. Jemmett, of the Rhine Army Art School, by the way, is henceforth likely to be inundated with requests for dress designs. His conception of the gown worn by Miss King in the last act was particularly happy, and his creation was commented upon very favourably by many of the lady members of the audience on Tuesday.

"Indispensables" at Leave Club.

The Indispensables Concert Party (5th Tank Bde. M.T. Coy.) gave a splendid performance at the B.E.L.C. on Tuesday evening. They have quite the professional touch, and their costumes and staging were the most effective I have seen for some time. Among many enjoyable items on the programme was an exciting spy play entitled "A Collection will be Made" in which George Ellis plays the part of the Rev. Cuthbert Cheese and provokes roars of laughter, while Harry Kaye as the German Secret Service Agent, S. Lamb, Capt. D. K. Patterson and Jim Cahill as Lt. Roget. Col. Watkins and Capt. Anstruther kept us thrilled. The Indispensables Orchestra was also very good, and a violin solo by Pte. Voorsanger was much appreciated.

Departure of "Erb."

I have received a letter from Sgt. E. L. Trim, better known as "Erb" of "The Pedlars Concert Party," who left Rhineland yesterday to be demobilized. He sends his best wishes to the many friends he leaves behind and expresses the hope that at some future date in England he may drop across some of them. "Erb" has done wonders in the entertainment line during his army career, not merely when taking part in properly organised concert parties but in many impromptu entertainments in less congenial circumstances. His numerous friends will, I am sure, reciprocate his farewell wishes.

WINNER OF 2833 MARKS.

Interviewed By Representative Of "The Cologne Post."

It was a smiling sunny morning, albeit cold, when I wended my way towards Marienburg to convey to R.S.M. Hayward the cheque for 2833 marks, which he had been successful in winning in our Football contest No 3. I entered No 8 Veterinary Hospital there and after inquiries elicited the fact that the R.S.M. was then "in the lines" but would be down any minute.

After a short wait I met the winner and handed to him the envelope containing the all important slip of paper. The "Post" had not then reached the Veterinary Hospital and I was able to judge of the "Major's" surprise and delight at receiving our award.

In a conversation I had with him he stated that while he was aware he had forecasted a correct coupon, he was surprised that he was the only winner, and that the prize money had jumped up to nearly the three thousand level. Asked how he accounted for his all correct coupon, the R.S.M. smilingly answered in one word "Luck."

A FOOTBALL PLAYER.

He is a native of Hayes End, Hayes, Middlesex, and is well known in football circles there. Incidently I may add he is a left-half and regularly assists the "Vets" team.

When I inquired what he was likely to do with the prize, I received the laughing answer "Oh lots; and War Savings certificates and I are not strangers."

Our prize winner entered only five coupons, each of which I may add where neatly and clearly filled in, a point which I would impress upon all competitors.

I bade this popular Regimental "Good-bye," with the thought in my mind that the award could not have fallen into better hands.

Football coupons are reaching us in shoals for No 4 competition and we are sanguine that No 3's total will be exceeded. Don't delay, fill up your coupon, cut it out, and send it in. You may be the lucky one. Why not?

Coupons must be addressed:—
FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 4,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S.40 Rhine Army.

List of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.
2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.
3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.
4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.
5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.
6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.
7. Any entries received after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.
8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.
9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

FOOTBALL COMPETITION No. 4.

Date of matches, Saturday, Oct. 18th.
Closing date, Friday, Oct. 17th.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Delicious Bivalves.

Oysters have become a popular snack in the N.A.C.B. Officers' Club, Cologne, and although these tasty morsels have only been available for a couple of days several thousands have been sold.

Why not?

Cannot the average soldier be induced to wear gloves now that an autumnal nip is making itself felt? One cannot fail to notice the number of men who walk about with their hands in their pockets. Inside five minutes I noticed two military policemen speak to half a dozen men on the subject. This can be avoided.

In Civil Hands Soon.

The days of the Summary Court in Cologne as at present constituted are numbered. Very soon it will be a civil court administered by the Germans with their own magistrates.

An Unfortunate Word.

Apropos those shops where lottery tickets are sold in Cologne to which I referred the other day I noticed a bill in one yesterday. It said, in German, of course, "Lose 3 marks." Perhaps one would.

Peeping Tom.

The other night at a Camp in Rhineland the Adjutant was working on some returns in the Orderly Room at about 1 a.m. The R.S.M. who was out on a late pass happening to return, was suspicious about the light he saw burning, so crept up to investigate. Suddenly challenged by the alert sentry as he was peering through the window he answered with an angry whisper of "Fiddlesticks" but the sentry not to be bluffed replied "Advance, Fiddlesticks, and be recognised".

The Wraf Bookshop.

I see that the old Wraf bookshop in Hohestrasse is in new hands and notices convey the impression that an Army bookshop will very soon be found there. Its convenience should appeal to all ranks.

Evening Walks.

The crisp cool evenings at present prevailing are tempting men to take long walks into the country. The other night, cycling from Siegburg to Cologne I overtook two parties of ramblers as well as several individual soldiers walking in the bright moonlight.

Any More Racing?

Disappointed because there is to be no October race meeting, many people are inquiring if there will be any more this year.

A Good Leave.

I met a cavalry officer going off on Paris leave yesterday. He looked so supremely happy that I enquired why. "Combining a honeymoon with leave, old bird," he replied with his face wreathed in smiles. "Sweetest little girl in all France," he added with conviction.

Due Respect.

Two repatriated German prisoners gravely saluted two British N.C.O's in Dom square last evening.

A Keen Buyer.

The young son of a Staff officer now in Cologne, is, I hear, a terror to the various stamp-dealers. He seems to be a walking encyclopedia of stamp values. He must have memorised all the standard philatelic catalogues and refuses to pay a pfennig more than the true market price for the stamps they offer for sale.

Lottery Fascination.

Apropos my note about queues a correspondent suggests that as likely as not it was a queue for the purchase of lottery tickets. Such queues are quite common in Cologne, and last May when according to the British papers every German was weighted down with sorrow on account of the peace terms, our correspondent noticed a queue of men women and children fully three hundred strong outside a lottery establishment in the Hohestrasse.

Mystery of a Hansom Cab.

A hansom cab was seen in Bonn a few days ago. I hear also that this almost obsolete type of vehicle round which have been written countless sensational novels was much in evidence in London during the strike.

Baked and Suffocated.

Now the chilly weather has set in, we are all beginning to experience the horrors of central heating. Resorts ordinarily none too well ventilated, are becoming as intolerable as ovens to lovers of fresh air. It's the Continental way, but we English don't take kindly to this suffocating "hot air."

A Book of Honour.

I see that the Tank Corps is issuing a "Book of Honour" as a permanent record of the honours won in the war and a fitting memorial of the work done by the corps in France, Egypt, Palestine and at home. It can be had for 6d post free from the Editor, "Tank Corps Journal," Wareham.

A Predicament.

I know an officer whose batman went on leave about the time of the railway strike and before going was told to take his British Warm, a tunic and two pairs of boots to be repaired. Now the batman has got his leave extended and is not expected back for at least a further week. The officer badly wants his things—especially his British Warm—but hasn't the slightest notion where his man took them for repair.

For Widows and Orphans.

In a Cologne cabaret the other evening I was surprised to find a German woman collecting from the British officers present on behalf of the Cologne Widows and Orphans fund. It seemed to me that she reaped a more generous harvest from the British Military than from the German civilians present.

Plenty of Chances.

All the world loves a flutter of some sort. Even in dear respectable old Blighty lotteries seem to be openly advertised to-day. There is one I notice called the "Golden Ballot" with 5s. tickets, the prizes including £2,500, £1,000, £500, a motor car, a pearl necklace, a lunch for two at the Savoy every day for a month, and hundreds of other things worth having. It is to benefit the Settlements for Disabled Sailors and Soldiers and Mrs. G. F. Leyal, 8, Marble Arch, London, W. sells the tickets.

Not Alfonso.

A rumour got round Cologne yesterday that King Alfonso of Spain had been seen in the Hohestrasse. Two officers pointed out the individual to me with the remark, "We're positive about his identity". The suspected royalty was certainly like the King and seemed keenly interested in some Spanish licorice in a shop window. But for all that he was not Alfonso.

Soap Supplies.

Although the windows of German shops seem to be full of soap it will be noticed that much of it is French. British bath soap is very much in demand.

Preferred his Own.

It was on parade the other morning not a thousand miles from Kalk. A wild looking private was unshaven. The Sergeant snapped, "Haven't you got a razor?" "Lost it" "Well couldn't you borrow another?" "No! Nobody's razor will cut as deep as my own."

Dance Classes for Children.

I am interested to learn that to-day, at 11 o'clock, at the Cologne Central Y.M.C.A., 44 Friesenstrasse, a class will be opened for teaching dancing to British children. Certificated and experienced lady teachers of the Y.M.C.A. Headquarters have kindly offered their services, and this is the beginning of the school for British children—an enterprise which is receiving the invaluable support of the Army Educational authorities.

Cologne Dearer.

According to soldier visitors, prices in Cologne shops are nearly fifty per cent more than in places like Duren and Solingen.

Popular.

The proposal to make better use of the organisation of the N.A.C.B. is, I hear, very popular with lady visitors to Cologne. Particularly do the womenfolk of our W.O.'s and N.C.O.'s welcome the idea of a gathering place, a proposal which was by the way first mooted in our "Letter Box."

Extensions.

Those who had the misfortune — or is it luck? — to go home on leave during the recent railway strike are getting liberal extensions of leave in compensation for being held up on the outward journey.

Snowed Under.

I hear that the Registrar General at Somerset House is being inundated with requests from officers for copies of their marriage "lines", so that they may claim the new allowances. It is surprising how few married officers possess the necessary document.

Smart at Repairs.

Anyone who has had to get his uniform repaired in Cologne—and most of us have to resort to patches to make old kit last out till demobilization—must admit that generally the work is done with surprising neatness and much ingenuity. One must give the German his due; he is a topping tailor.

Chess Club.

The Cologne Central Y.M.C.A. Chess Club has re-opened for the winter and a tournament will be held every Monday commencing at 6. p.m. Last Monday's tournament was hotly contested, and finally the first prize was won by Sergt. Major. Yates, R.A.M.C., 92 Field Ambulance. Both officers and other ranks and also members of the Y.M.C.A. Staff were amongst the competitors.

Canteen Surprises.

I hear there is an excellent brand of whisky being sold at the wholesale canteen to messes this week. After a long run of varied seals and labels it is good to see a well-known brand on the table.

RHINELANDER.

EAU DE COLOGNE.

THE LIGHT SIDE OF RHINELAND.

Dear Folks at home:

I have tried—but in vain—to write to each and all of you but have miserably failed in my good resolutions. Last night a brilliant inspiration flashed across my mind as to how this awful difficulty could be solved. I hear that the "Cologne Post" is becoming almost as popular in England as it is on the Rhine, and I feel that it would be an excellent medium through which you can all get news of me and of our gay doings out here.

You will shortly hear why my good resolutions have so utterly failed. You see Cologne is a gay place and combining both work and play takes up most of the 24 hours—we do work you know, but we do get a few hour's relaxation when we can get away to watch cricket or polo, play tennis or go to the races or sports—all these delightful pastimes are waning and giving place to football and golf, and I hear from good authority that the enterprising Rhine Sports Club are shortly to introduce a Badminton branch to their club.

I might tell you that most of our nights are spent in dancing—the fever is raging. Since my arrival the outstanding dance was one given by Lady Robertson; people of note—and others—came from miles around. The floor, dancing and band were excellent and I should love to tell you of all the beautifull dresses especially of one lovely gown which became its tall wearer so admirably but there are so many things to tell you about that time and space forbid. Good dancers abound on the Rhine and it is a rare occurrence for one to be "bobbed" round the room like a cork though it is rumoured that the dancing of a luckily limited few ever causes a celebrated dancing mistress to gasp with surprise at their fantastic evolutions.

Now that the cavalry has nearly disappeared we miss our periodical race-meetings—though some of us are feeling a little richer on its account. However, they were great fun, and for the sum of twenty marks one stood to win 500 times that amount in the sweepstakes—I might tell you that the winners were usually Germans but just think of the delightful things one could buy by merely investing a weekly washing allowance!

Of course you will all recognise us when we come home by the amber necklaces and bed bags and—did you say furs? One is told that they are cheap—but, my dears I think I must persuade some of my friends to shoot rabbits for me to get furs to keep me warm this winter—which reminds me of a story I overheard a few days ago. A little shooting party—and one of the sportsmen, having loosed off at a hare, thought he had accidentally maimed the animal. Thereupon, delighted at the idea of having at last bagged a hare, gave chase—but she turned round, smiled, and away she gaily went.

By the way to return to the subject of dancing I hear that a club has recently been opened in Cologne called the "Lions Club". It is run on the Ciro-Murrays style where supper tables surround the dancing hall, and to the strains of a lively jazz band you sup and dance alternately. Once a week the "Lions" meet and I hope some day to tell you more about it, that is, if I am ever fortunate enough to be included in the favoured few who enter its sacred portals. I regret to have generalised so much in all our doings but I hope to give you more detailed accounts in my next letter.

Love to all.

JOAN.

HAVE YOU MET HIM?

We find him everywhere. He was more in the limelight during those days of food shortage than ever before—to-day we have him with us in Germany, just the same as ever.

I refer to the man that can get you anything. No matter what it is, he can get it when you can't and he can let you have it cheaper than you can get it for at the shop!

It is always the same old story that he tells—"Why did you pay that price when I can get it for you at wholesale value?"

And if it happened to be something in the way of domestic wants it was a similar yarn—"My old pal at the factory can get you dozens of them at next to nothing—you see he makes hundreds of them every day."

And that man will also urge you to come to him when you are in trouble; he will put you right and only too glad to do it.

In those days when sugar was so scarce and everything else was rationed and limited supplies could only be obtained, he was always able to be independent of the shopkeeper—food tickets had no worries for him, he could always manage to get plenty of everything at a reduced price.

Some people believed in him. I did myself—once, but not now! Someone remarked at some time or other "experience is the best lesson"—it certainly is, as I have found out many a time, and this occasion was no exception It was only a short while ago, that I was waiting patiently at the end of a long line the beginning of which I could hardly see, but I could faintly discern the words "Canteen—open at 7 o'clock" and it did not take the brains of a Sherlook Holmes to discover that those elusive cigarettes were obtainable within.

If it were not so, why that long line of khaki?

And the legend "Open at 7 o'clock" surely that must most certainly point to a Divisional Canteen!

After waiting for about half an hour, and having moved forward what seemed to be a few inches I met him!

And then I believed myself to be in luck! "What the deuce are you waiting here for?" he said after a few casual words. "Cigarettes, I suppose?" Well, I can get you hundreds of 'em at our Canteen, many as you want—come on, let's have a drink,—suppose you've got enough to last you another day?" I admitted that I had enough for at least one day, and when he had "talked me round" I went with him to our favourite cage, and later arranged to see him—and incidentally receive quite a large number of cigarettes—at seven o'clock the following night.

I was there quite early you can be sure, and waited as patiently as I could for him to arrive.

He came at last—late—but minus the much longed-for cigarettes. And the excuses he made were of the most profuse description. I had to be content with his promises of absolute certainty for them to arrive on the morrow.

Of course, I was at the same place again the next evening, after a smokeless day—save what few I could "scrounge"—and once again waited patiently for his arrival.

He came—yes!—but where were those promised smokes?

"Here you are" he blurted out, as he neared me, "don't say I never do anything for you."

"But where are——" I was a little bewidered.

Hel extracted a couple of decidedly grubby packets of what appeared to be cigarettes, and extended them to me—which I took with an almost mechanical motion.

"That will be two marks"—— And I paid up with mingled feelings! I am not so sure that those two packets weren't "issue" now I come to think of it!

And as I fully expected, but nevertheless hoped not, I found the time-honoured inscription "No Cigarettes" staring mockingly at me on my next visit to the Canteen!

When, oh when? shall we be rid of that individual?

FIERCE HOSTILITIES AT RIGA.

BURNING TOWN BOMBARDED BY ALLIES' FLEET AND GERMAN ARTILLERY.

PIQUANT REVELATIONS IN PENNANT CASE.

RIGA ON FIRE.

NAVAL ULTIMATUM TO BERMONDT.

The British Commander of the Naval forces in the Baltic sent Colonel Bermondt and the troops occupying the surburbs of Riga an ultimatum to evacuate the place under threat of bombardment if it were not accomplished by midday on Wednesday.

An earlier report says that one part of Riga was burning as the result of the German bombardment.

NELSONIAN FOUR.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR THE NAVY.

Admiral Fisher, in to-day's batch of memo rs in the "Times" has something to say about our magnificent merchant navy. Seven million tons were sunk under these men, many of whom were torpedoed at least three times. They did not even get paid for the clothes they lost and in most cases their pay was stopped from the day their ship was sunk.

With Mr. Havelock Wilson, Lord Fisher hopes to see all this changed. The Merchant Navy should be incorporated in the Navy and have the sa ne rights as regards money, rank, uniform and widows pensions etc. All this has to come, says Lord Fisher, who declares himself as Mr. Havelock W n's colleague in these matters.

He has some pertinent remarks on education, for which his practical method is "Explanation followed by execution", a lecture on optics in the morning and the making of a telescope in the afternoon.

Regarding the selection of boys for the Navy he advocates the abolition of examinations, except that the boy and his parents should have been "vetted." An interview with the boy would reveal his personal likes. The great thing to be aimed at would be to furnish the boy with Nelson's four attributes, namely:—self-reliance, fearlessness of responsibility, fertility of resource and power of initiative.

In conclusion Lord Fisher says that the most sickening of all the events of the war was the neglect of the Humber as a jumping-off place for our light cruisers, etc. After enormous cost the Humber had been made submarine proof and batteries laid down for its protection.

GERMAN S.W.-AFRICA.

BENEFICENT EFFECT OF BRITISH RULE.

Lord Buxton has just completed his tour of the protectorate of S.W. Africa. He has had numerous private interviews with deputations representing various German interests. The Germans clearly recognised the advantages of the territory becoming part of the Union of South Africa, and were relieved to find that after the German military and official classes have gone there will be no further repatriations except for misconduct.

Lord Buxton attended many meetings of natives all of whom expressed appreciation of their better treatment since the British have administered the country. They were assured that they will always be treated justly, and their persons and property protected.

IRISH HOME RULE.

COMMITTEE WISH TO WORK IN SECRET.

Mr. Walter Long presided on Tuesday at the first meeting of the Cabinet Committee which has been appointed to consider the Home Rule question, and, if possible, to frame a Bill for the consideration of the Cabinet.

All the Committee members were present, as well as Professor T. Jones and Mr. G.N. Evans (of the War Cabinet Secretariat), who are acting as Secretaries of the Committee.

It is understood that the main business of the meeting was to consider the course of procedure. The Committee, which has full discretion as to its methods of investigation, may decide to call evidence; but its desire is to work in secret, and no official statements as to its doings are to be issued, at all events for the present.

RELIGIOUS ORDERS BARRED.

Mr. Charles William Walker, of Burwash, Sussex, who left £64,630, stipulated in his will that if any child of his became a member of any religious order or a secular or regular priest, the interest of such child should cease but that if he ceased to be a member of such order or priesthood he should receive £2 a week for life.

PENNANT ENQUIRY.

ABOUT REPUTATIONS AND RESIGNATIONS.

When the House of Lords Committee of Inquiry into the dismissal of Miss Violet Douglas Pennant from the W.R.A.F. was resumed yesterday, Counsel continued his opening speech on behalf of Miss Pennant. He suggested that the resignations of other women holding important positions in the W.R.A.F. were concerted, the action being designed to show disapproval of Miss Pennant. Her dismissal was also partly brought about by the influence exercised by Dame Katherine Furse, (who was then head of the W.R.N.S.) upon Lord Weir.

On the 28th August Miss Pennant was called to see General Brancker, who said "I am sorry to tell you that you are to go. It is not because you are inefficient—I understand you are very efficient—but because you are so unpopular with everyone with whom you come in contact. No one will work with you. You have been the cause of the resignations of a very efficient staff."

General Brancker's account of the matter was that he merely acted in accordance with the instructions of the Air Council but, said Counsel, we don't accept that he had nothing to do with the matter.

Subsequently Miss Pennant saw Lord Weir and was told that her dismissal was due to lack of co-operation with other women's organisations.

Giving evidence, Miss Pennant stated that while she was looking round before actually taking up the Commandantship, Sir William Robinson, of the Air Ministry, said to her, "I know all about you, you quarrel with everybody."

She replied "What a dreadful reputation seems to have preceded me" and he said he had means of knowing what went on in the Welsh Insurance Commission, upon which body Miss Pennant has been serving. "As a matter of fact" added Miss Pennant, "I cannot describe the kindness I have received from my colleagues on the Insurance Commission in England, Scotland and Wales."

She described the bad conditions existent in W.R.A.F. camps and the inadequate provision for the training of officers. She made preparations for opening a training centre at West Hampstead but there was delay in completing the scheme owing to want of co-operation on the part of Colonel Bersey.

HEADING FOR RUIN.

PRIME MINISTER'S GREAT TASK.

Official figures published last night give a disquieting view of the financial position of the country, though it is probable that the economies ordered by the Cabinet Committee will have their effect on subsequent returns.

Last week's expenditure exceeded the revenue by nearly £12,000,000, the figures being, Expenditure, £26,967,313 and Revenue, £15,196,179. This huge difference is probably partly accounted for by emergency expenditure arising from the railway strike.

At the same time the figures for the last six months indicate the most urgent need for ruthless handling by the Premier.

WOMEN MOTOR DRIVERS TO GO.

The War Office announces that demobilization has reached a point which now enables the military authorities to dispense with the services of members of the women's Legion of Motor Drivers.

These drivers, says the order, are deserving of the highest praise. For every one fortunate enough to have comparatively easy work there were a score working throughout the long winter nights in the evacuation of wounded and other important military work. The gratitude of the country is due to these women for their devotion to duty and self-sacrifice.

FOX ARRESTED AND SHOT.

A fox, which had played havoc recently in local poultry yards, was yesterday first "arrested" by the wife of a Boston (Lincs) detective inspector and then shot by a police sergeant. The animal was seen by the lady to enter her washhouse, and "acting on instructions" she made him a prisoner and sent for help to the police station. A sergeant armed with a revolver was sent, and shot the fox, which was taking cover behind a wringer.

HOUSES IN GLASGOW.

The Housing Committee of the Glasgow Town Council has approved a draft scheme for the erection of 57,000 houses including 500 temporary wooden houses

NORTH RUSSIA.

HOW THE EVACUATION WAS EFFECTED.

The evacuation of the Allied troops from North Russia, which has been carried out under the command of General Lord Rawlinson, has now been completed.

At Archangel the positions held by the British troops on the River Dwina were 200 miles from the Base and at Murman k the front line West of Lake Onega was 500 miles from the port of embarkation. In each case a successful local operation was carried out to strike a blow at the enemy in order to facilitate the disengaging of our troops. The withdrawal was then carried out and the troops transported by river to Archangel, and by railway to Murmansk, the bases, where they embarked for the United Kingdom. The Royal Naval flotilla ably cooperated with the rearguard of the land forces on the Dwina, and the Royal Navy were responsible for the success of the river transport and the embarkation of the troops in their transports at the bases.

The operation was carried out with scarcely any loss to ourselves, the enemy having been severely punished. At the same time the local Russian forces have been left in an excellent position to defend themselves, and at Archangel have been able to undertake offensive operations since our withdrawal.

Official Sarcasm.

It should be added that the Military Authoritices are much indebted to a certain section of the Press, who by their repeated asseverations as to the doubtful sincerity of the Government in their policy of evacuation and suggestions of intended offensive operations far into the interior of Russia, succeeded in mystifying the Bolsheviks as to our real intentions even more than the British public. This atmosphere of uncertainty, which could never have been created so effectively by any censorship, was exactly what was required to cover an operation of this kind.

GERMAN MURDER GANG.

CRIMES IN OCCUPIED ZONE.

The German police have at last succeeded in arresting a German named Hahn who has been wanted for several murders, followed by thefts, committed during the past four months.

On Sept. 10 he invited a German merchant to walk with him out in the country on the pretence of having important business affairs to discuss. He suddenly shot the merchant and robbed him.

On Sept. 23 he attacked a merchant from Ehrenbreitstein and robbed him. On Oct. 2 he murdered an American soldier in the Army of Occupation at Coblenz. Hahn stole all the money and watch and chain of the soldier.

Three of his accomplices have since been arrested. They have confessed to other crimes as well.

"FLOATING SIXPENCE."

CHANGE IN SYSTEM FOR PANEL DOCTORS.

The "Floating Sixpence," which came into being with the Insurance Act, is in process of abolition. The circumstances in which it was introduced have changed, and but for the war it would already have been abolished.

Under the present system the "floating sixpence" goes to the panel doctors if the cost of their prescriptions in a given area falls below 6d. per annum per insured person. If it is above this sum it is payable to the chemists.

CAPTURE OF OREL.

IMPORTANT STEP ON ROAD TO MOSCOW.

The War Office announced yesterday that Denikin has captured the city of Orel. This is the capital town of a Government, a Cathedral City and an important railway junction, where the main line from Moscow to Kharkov and the Crimea crosses that from Riga by Smolensk to Tsaritsin and Astrakhan. Its capture marks an important step in the advance on Moscow.

THE SPORTSMEN'S BATTALION.

The officers, non-commissioned officers, and men of the 23rd Royal Fusiliers, 1st Sportsman's Battalion, have arranged a reunion dinner, which is to be an annual affair. It will be held at the Great Eastern Hotel, Liverpool-street, on Saturday, Nov. 15, at 7.0 p.m. Col. E. A. Winter, D.S.O., M.C., the officer commanding the battalion, will preside, and the guest of the evening will be Brigadier-General Kellett, commanding 99th Brigade, 2nd Division. As it is obviously impossible to communicate with all the men they should apply to P. C. Essex, Stock Exchange, for tickets, 8s. each, and further particulars. The function is limited to members of the battalion who have served overseas or original members who served overseas with other units.

DEATH OF AN M.P.

Lieut.-Com. Norman Craig, K.C., M.P. for the Isle of Thanet, died in a nursing home last evening after an operation.

BABIES WANTED.

OUTSPOKEN CRITICS OF FALLEN BIRTH RATE.

Outspoken views on the birth-rate problem were voiced at the Church Congress at Leicester. The Bishop of Birmingham, who opened the debate, emphasised the enormous increase in the cost of living and deprecated the idea that birth restriction was a purely selfish action on the part of parents. He thought there was greater selfishness in uncontrolled indulgence. Parents desired to do more for their children and wanted their children to do better than themselves. The clergy and professional classes were finding the difficulties of the problem were very grave indeed. He also mentioned as a fact that infantile mortality rose in proportion to the size of the family.

What is wanted, he said, is more children but of better quality and surrounded by better conditions. The State should therefore undertake the care of the prospective mother and see that throughout a child's early life, both mother and babe were assured healthy surroundings. "As regards birth control, what need we say more than this—that we condemn every control which is purely selfish, and leave the decision to the conscience of each individual."

Dr. Armand Routh insisted that the usual motive for voluntary restriction was a selfish one. He deprecated any extension of knowledge as regards birth control and asked what would happen if, as the result of incautious advice, the masses limited their families to one or two? In this connection the housing problem was of the first importance. The nation must see to it that children are enabled to live in hygienic houses and breath fresh air.

The main factor in the birthrate question, however, was ante-natal mortality due to parents being tainted with venereal disease or alcoholism. About twenty per cent of ante-natal and neo-natal deaths (27,000 yearly in England and Wales) were due to the former cause, while chronic alcoholism could seriously affect the hereditary elements in the germ plasm for several generations, leading to prematurity and the mental and physical degeneracy of the race.

RASPUTIN'S SLAYER.

ROBBED OF CROWN JEWELS IN LONDON.

It has just transpired that Prince Felix Joussoupoff, the Russian noble who slew the notorious charlatan Rasputin, has been robbed in his London flat of royal jewels to the value of £7,000 sterling.

Among the gems were one hundred Cape diamonds, which the Prince had during the past week removed to his flat in Knightsbridge from a West-end jeweller's establishment.

On Monday night the Prince had entertained a number of friends in his rooms and early in the morning, after all had departed, he missed the packet of diamonds. So far detectives have failed to discover any clue to the perpetrators.

SHIPPING STRIKE BROKEN.

The harbour strike in New York is practically broken. Tugmen and bargemen have accepted the railroad company's terms and the ferrymen have accepted a nine per cent. increase of wages. Six Unions of Longshoremen, aggregating 15,000 workers, have voted in favour of returning to work but the carters are still out.

MONS MEMORIAL TO BRITISH TROOPS.

An interesting ceremony took place at the cemetery at Herchies, near Mons, where the fighting ceased on November 11 last, on the occasion of the unveiling of a monument erected by the inhabitants of the district in memory of the British Army.

COLONEL ARRESTED.

It is understood that Lieut.-Colonel Sherwood Kelly, who created such a sensation on returning from Russia by his allegations that the Relief Force was being used for offensive operations, will appear in due course before a Court-martial. He was yesterday placed under arrest for contravening the King's regulations by writing a certain letter for publication criticising the object and conduct of the campaign in North Russia.

PRISONER WITH BOMB.

As a man named Mitchell was being taken into Leicester Police Station after arrest, he dropped a bomb, apparently home-made and filled with small pieces of iron. There was a great noise, but no personal injuries were caused except that a man named Earl was cut just under the eye and lost a good deal of blood.

SOUND LUNGS ONLY.

In future no man who has ever suffered from tubercle of the lung will be enlisted for any category of military service.

An engine driver on the Somerset-Dorset Railway has been appointed a Justice of the Peace for Somerset.

SUMMARY COURT.

AN IRISHWOMAN WHO LOST HER PASS.

Katherina Kaldenbach of 34 Schnurgasse is an Irishwoman married to a German. She spoke with a real Irish brogue when defending herself against the charge of not being in possession of an identity card, and "circulating without a night pass" at 1 o'clock in the morning.

"Can you speak English" asked the Presiding Officer.

"Yes sir" was the reply, "I am an Irishwoman and am married to a German."

"Well, then you are a German," the Presiding officer retorted.

She went on to state that she had been in Germany nine years but had in the meantime been to Ireland to see her friends. She had lost her original identity card and when she applied for another it was refused because she had not a photograph. She was fined thirty marks.

Harbouring Deserters.

For harbouring two deserters an old woman, Elisabeth Docker, aged seventy seven and her daughter Franziska Vierions, both residing at 6 Marienagartengasse, were fined 300 marks each.

TAILORS' PROFITS.

PLEA OF JUSTIFICATION FAILS.

At the first sitting of the Manchester Profiteering Committee, each of the three defending firms brought before the Court was ordered to refund the amount ruled as having been overcharged, and prosecutions were ordered in two cases.

The most remarkable case was that brought forward by Professor Tout, of the Manchester University. A firm of tailors had charged him eleven guineas for each of two suits for youths, and £3 15s. for each of five extra pairs of trousers. The firm was ordered to refund £4 12s. 4d. on the two suits, and £4 13s. 8d. on the trousers.

The firm justified the prices, and when it was pointed out that they had made from 14s. to 15s. per yard net profit from the cloth, which was bought in 1916, they claimed the right to take full advantage of the rise in the market.

WHEATSHIP FOUNDERS.

NARROW ESCAPE IN THE ATLANTIC.

Thirty-five officers and men, comprising the crew of the steamship Sizergh Castle, 2,400 tons, of Cardiff, were landed at Portland, their vessel having foundered in the North Atlantic on the 7th inst. The Sizergh Castle was bound from Galveston to Antwerp with a cargo of wheat. In the Atlantic she encountered a gale, which lasted three days, during which time the steamer sprang a leak. All efforts to cope with the inrush of water having been unsuccessful, an S.O.S. was sent out.

The message was picked up by the American cargo boat Afel (Philadelphia to Rotterdam), and the officers and crew of the Sizergh Castle were taken off with great difficulty owing to the heavy seas. Half an hour later the vessel foundered.

MEDALS FOR SINKING A U-BOAT.

Captain David Simpson was at Liverpool yesterday presented with Lloyd's silver medal in recognition of the sinking of a German submarine by the steamer Wandby on April 2, 1917, on a voyage from Bilbao to La Rochelle. The submarine fired 36 shells with her two 4-inch guns at the Wandby, which replied, sending the submarine to the bottom with the 15th shot.

MARRIED OFFICERS' ALLOWANCES.

It is provided by an Army Council Instruction just issued that married officers in all stations abroad other than India who, owing to the exigencies of the Service or the absence of suitable accommodation, are unable to have their families with them, will be eligible to draw furniture, lodging, fuel and light allowances up to 31st March 1920.

BELFAST SLIGHTED.

There was mingled surprise and resentment in Belfast when it was learned that the Lord Mayor of the city had not been invited to attend the League of Nations meeting in London. The Lord Mayor, voicing the opinion of the citizens, has addressed a strong protest to Sir Horace Marshall, Lord Mayor of London.

GENERAL'S WIFE DIVORCED.

Brigadier-General Albemarle Bertie Cator, of the Scots Guards, was yesterday granted a decree nisi on the ground of his wife's misconduct with Major Esme Arkwright. The suit was undefended.

Petitioner was Commander of the 58th Division in France, with the rank of Major-General.

Major-General Sir Edward Northey, Commander-in-Chief in East Africa, has met with an accident at polo, necessitating the removal of his right eye. He is on his way to England to consult an oculist.

WILSON'S HEALTH.

FALSE REPORTS WITH POLITICAL MOTIVES.

Last night's bulletin says that President Wilson had passed a restless and uncomfortable day but was better.

Further telegrams from Washington say that searching investigations have been made by journalists regarding the various rumours afloat.

They disclose the following: firstly, responsible officials declare their belief that the President will resume work in a month or six weeks time, secondly, that no matter what caused his illness, the President is now getting well; thirdly, Democratic members of the Senate say that the President is even now handling some executive affairs; fourthly, that the reports about the President never recovering completely and the suggestions that he will retire in favour of the vice-President are declared by the Democrats to be designed to snake faith in President Wilson and the League of Nations scheme.

SPIRITUALISM.

DIVERGENT VIEWS AT CHURCH CONGRESS.

Spiritualism was one of the subjects dealt with at yesterday's session of the Church Congress at Leicester.

Canon MacCluere stated that the cult of Swedenborgianism first took shape in America, in spiritualistic systems, through the activities of a certain neurotic named Andrew Jackson Davis. The wave did not reach England from the United States till about 1850.

One would naturally think, said the Canon, that the exposure of medium after medium would have brought superstition to an end before now, but in spite of everything there are still some who believe there is something in it after all. Whatever this might be, he asserted that it constitutes a danger to the mental sanity of the nation, that neurotic persons should be accepted as channels between the living and the dead.

The Dean of Manchester was more tolerant and thought it altogether too late to dismiss the whole subject as a fraud. There are no really good grounds, he said for the infliction of the capital penalty on Sir Oliver Lodge.

Dean Inge said he felt sure he need not warn his hearers against a pitiable revival of necromancy, in which many desolate and bleeding hearts have sought a spurious satisfaction.

PREMISES, PROMISES AND PRIMUSES.

At Brixton a Jew offered a landlady 30s, a week for four unfurnished rooms, a premium, a handsome present and "friendship for life". The offer was immediately accepted.

Now that the above is taken, what is probably the only other available flat in London is advertised exclusively in today's Cologne Post (page 4). Our advertiser desires no premium but wants a motor trip from Ohligs to Ostend! The advertisement savours of romance.

What frame of mind has induced one officer to spend twenty marks in an appeal to a tail "officer" and "gentleman"?

Dip further into the Exchange. Have you a Primus for sale? Or do you buy money? Or would you like to buy a Roman Pitcher 2000 years old?

You will always find room for speculation, food for the mind and money for the pocket in the Rhineland Exchange.

READING GAOL TO BE CLOSED.

Reading Gaol is to be closed in about a month's time and the staff will be transferred to Chelmsford. At present only five prisoners—aliens—are interned in the building, which has accommodation for 224. No criminals have been housed there since the war; they have been sent to Oxford Gaol instead.

The present building is about 70 years old. It was here that Oscar Wilde wrote the "Ballad of Reading Gaol" and part of "De Profundis." Mrs. Dyer, the notorious baby farmer, was another prisoner. During the war four dangerous aliens escaped from the gaol and one of them took refuge in the Spanish Embassy in London. Other occupants have been well-known Sinn Fein leaders.

SHIPBUILDING RECORD.

The tonnage of ships building in the United Kingdom on the 30th September aggregated 2,816,773, an increase of 293,000 tons as compared with June and 1,670,000 more than was in hand a year ago. The output of the past quarter however, shows a decrease of 112,000 tons as compared with the previous quarter.

Shipbuilding abroad aggregates 5,231,809 tons, about 262,000 tons lower than June. This is due to the considerable decrease of tonnage building in the United States. The total figures actually form a record of 130 per cent. over the highest total ever reached in pre-war times.

LAND FOR EX-SERVICE MEN.

The Hampshire County Council, at a special meeting under the chairmanship of Lord Northbrook, authorised the raising of £90,800 for the purchase and equipment of land for the settlement of ex-service men. The Small Holdings and Allotments Committee of the Council have already acquired 1,334 acres by purchase, for the sum of £42,387, and have 91 acres on lease.

YOUR TRIPS WILL COST YOU MORE.

Like the cuckoo many of us have no sorrow in our song, no winter in our year. And like the cuckoo and the birds of the air generally we travel free from place to place. But "to everything there is a season and a time to every purpose under the sun." We are on the eve of disgorging our wealth to the purveyor of tickets.

From the commencement of our occupation of German territory it has been our good fortune to travel by tramcar and train free gratis and for nothing. To the parsimonious Scot to whom frugality is a religion and the spending of "bawbees" a necessary (if not an unnecessary) evil, the privilege was a boon and a blessing of substantial worth. To the brassarded female and the average male it was none the less satisfying as it obviated searching one's pocket for the wherewithal with which to pay the fare.

It is one of the commonest of platitudes that we do not value a good thing until we lose it. It is safe to prophesy that ere the last Michaelmas daisy has faded and died we shall miss the inestimable boon of mounting a car without as much as the thought of an elusive "fünfundzwanzig" or expressing our needs in passable German.

Never again will the democratic Tommy visit the castles and the watering places of Father Rhine at so small an outlay.

Time was when the monarchs of the earth visited these resorts with their entourages; darlings of Society, reared on Fortune's lap, travelled leisurely at the close of the season to these favoured haunts where every prospect pleases and Nature is kind.

If only because of the novelty many of us have taken the waters at Wiesbaden or explored old world Bingen, and incidentally these delectable trips have broadened our minds and widened our outlook. For many it was the chance of a life-time, and all thoughtful men who took advantage of their opportunities in this respect will not only recognise but commend the policy of the powers that be which enabled us to travel so easily and so well.

Winter is rapidly approaching and our trips will cost us more, but a curtailment of a healthy "Wanderlust" need not follow.

Travelling in Germany has always been and still is comparatively cheap.

"ABDULLAH!"

No, this is not about cigarettes.

I have not discovered a store of these delectables.

It is about a mule.

"Abdullah" was the name we all knew him by.

Where or how he came by this appellation I know not, but I do know that the names given him by a long line of victims were more high sounding if not so romantic titles.

For a more concentrated conglomeration of mischief even the Argentine would find it difficult to produce his equal.

The Section Sergeant, one of the old Brigade, was almost reduced to tears, before Abdullah finally reduced him to a hospital case.

For a whole week the Corporal Rough Rider wore a black look and black eye after his introduction to the redoubtable Abdullah.

Many were the Army Forms W. 3247 directly traceable to his misdeeds.

But there came a time when one Driver Smith was posted to us and in him Abdullah found his affinity.

At least I can only put it down to that.

A short heavy built chap he was, and it needed no great insight to foretell his civil occupation.

Carman was written all over him.

In his hands Abdullah became as clay to the potter, although he still continued to show a fine discrimination in the selection of his victims.

And so things went on.

Many were the extra journeys Abdullah made up to the line; well, you know, there was just a chance of him stopping one, but no, he came through unscathed.

Right to Rhineland he came with us, till one welcome day he left us "for sale locally."

The whole Sub-Section turned out to see him off.

That we thought was the last of him.

A week passed and we had almost forgotten him.

One day we had just fed the animals at midday when who should make his appearance but the worthy Abdullah.

Like a bolt from the blue he swept into the lines decorated with sundry pieces of leather that had once been harness and with the remains of a pair of shafts trailing behind him.

In the adjacent village a hoarse shouting indicated his victorious and destructive advance.

In the far distance a portly German was extricating himself from a miscellaneous collection of beer bottles and the remains of a dray, whilst nearer at hand a venturesome dog was giving its last yelp with its legs pointing skywards.

It was truly marvellous the amount of damage he had managed to do in his whirlwind advance.

After all how were we to know he had been standing peacefully harnessed to the dray in the village street, when the whistle was blown for "Feed!"

HAWKEYE.

THE OFFICERS' KITCHEN DAY.

It happened in this way, the Mess Staff were given a day's holiday and went off to Coblenz with light hearts and full pockets, and the gallant officers decided to carry on the Mess entirely on their own. What a day! Shall we ever forget it? Never! Six officers readily volunteered for the great task; it meant so much to them and still more to those whom they served. So they donned their white caps and overalls and whilst it was yet dark forsook their cosy beds and made their way to the mess kitchen.

Arriving there our stern-hearted Mess President called the roll and took supreme command. He exhorted his assistants to do their duty and set an example of orderliness, cleanliness and above all thoroughness in all their efforts that day.

A certain company commander, assisted by a stalwart subaltern, were detailed to act as cooks, three subalterns were to do the waiting and washing up, the Mess President himself acting as butler in charge of the wine cupboard. He is a canny Scot and very proficient in serving out drinks.

All other officers were strictly forbidden to enter the kitchen and some who attempted to do so were rudely thrown out, whereat there was much commotion and indignation.

The stove was lighted and things were soon humming. The officers warmed to their work. It was the day of their lives and they were like a lot of schoolboys playing at boy scouts. Some unkind and jealous-minded of their comrades suggested that it was all because they were let off their military duties for the day.

The first to arrive for breakfast had a whole tin of bully beef with a big piece of fat served him. He resented this most keenly; others were treated in a similar way, and it almost looked as if a free fight would be the result until the offending articles of diet were removed and well-cooked bacon and eggs substituted.

At the close of this meal a collection was made in a bully beef tin for the waiters and cooks, and rumour says a huge amount, which will swell the bank balances of these fortunate men, was realised.

The preparations for lunch were on an extensive scale. One of our waiters, on going outside for a breather, was addressed by a German civilian: "Well chef, how are things going; you have a good job here, haven't you?" He replied in his best German: "Top hole". Another camouflaged himself exceedingly well, and by the aid of a cushion, which he inserted under his overall, looked like the fat man of Barnum's Freak show.

The lunch began with a choice cocktail, an unheard-of surprise, and this won universal praise. The steak and onions, apple pie and other dainties revealed the cooking abilities of the two officers engaged in the task.

The tea and supper were not up to par owing no doubt to the staff wangling matters.

At the close of the day they cheekily demanded free drinks for their services, and are presenting a petition to the Commanding Officer to send the usual Mess staff about their business as they want a permanent job of this sort to qualify for the Hotel Cecil staff on demobilization.

G.K.

A SPORTING CONTRAST.

In the history of British sport prospects have never been quite so rosy and the certainty of success in every branch never so clearly promised as in the season which has so auspiciously opened.

For five years the British public have voluntarily sacrificed their love of indulgence in the healthiest of pastimes in the interest of the common cause.

League football for the period of the war was ruled out of our national life, county cricket went by the board, our gr at racing meetings were abandoned or substituted, and, in fact, in every department of sport there was a total abandonment or severe curtailment of activities.

The men whose work it had been to provide pleasure for millions of enthusiastic supporters received a call to a higher game and set out to win honour in other and less congenial fields.

Player and spectator at once realised that while professional sport and peace were inseparable, the former could not with success be linked to war. And as we look back we cannot but be filled with surprise and admiration that such a drastic change in what had become the natural order of things aroused so little animosity and caused such a small amount of dissatisfaction and discontent.

JOY AT SPORT'S RETURN.

The tremendous and unprecedented enthusiasm with which a return to a pre-war sports season is being hailed and acclaimed leaves no doubt as to the reality of the self-denial necessitated in demonstrating their joy at a resuscitation, of the normal state of affairs the public resemble a wild animal set free from enforced captivity. They welcome a return to an unlimited menu of their particular pleasures as rapturously as did many a lad his daddy's return from the war.

And can we wonder at such a demonstration of excitement? Have not sporting instincts and sporting qualities become an inherent part of the constitution of every true Britisher?

For years the inculcation of such attributes has been one of the main items in the agenda of our educational curriculum. In a Britisher a love of sport is regarded as almost as essential as a love of country. With the acquirement of his a b c he also imbibes the essentials of a sportsman.

The hard lesson of give and take is early administered, on the school playing field; he is taught to play cleanly, to refrain from gloating over victory and to be manly in defeat.

BRITAIN'S LOVE FOR SPORT.

This, we suggest, is mainly responsible for the popularity of every kind of game where the British flag flies, and, incidentally, for the hilarity with which this winter's programme is being received. For football, racing, boxing, golf, billiards and all other forms of recreation, both professional and amateur, the signs of the times point to a greatly enhanced popularity and the breaking of many records is plainly predicted.

Such is the state of affairs in the British Isles, and turning to Germany we are at once confronted by a pitiable contrast. Over here we fail to see even the mildest symptoms of sport fever; the German public can welcome the return to full season's programme of sport for the very good reason that such a programme never existed in pre-war days.

The German has managed to exist, how we fail to understand, without sport being a prominent feature of his national life, and as yet we see no signs that this state of things will be changed in the near future.

True, we occasionally see posters advertising boxing matches, football and cycling, but the expositions of the various games are almost invariably of a very poor standard. For a town the size of Cologne outdoor sport must be said to be sadly neglected, and this, we believe, applies to other parts of the country.

THE POSITION IN GERMANY.

Sport and all that the world conveys to us is virtually an unknown quantity, the German appears to have little love for the strenuous athletic game in which a man's physical powers are taxed to their utmost capacity. He apparently prefers to spend his leisure hours in a cabaret consuming the liquid produce of Rhineland and listening to the strains of an orchestra.

We, naturally, fail to fathom the psychology of such a person and are surprised at such forms of amusement finding general favour. The reason is to be discovered as a result of a study of the nation, rather than the individual.

A strong backing of public opinion is essential to the success of any national feature and in Germany the public have been systematically trained to look upon the sport with disfavour as calculated to undermine rather than uplift the national character. Their thoughts and energies have been purposely guided into other channels and the few sporting enthusiasts have received no material support; their efforts consequently have failed miserably. Germany's boys have been trained with a view to their becoming successful as soldiers and not with an eye to their winning fame in the world of sport.

Little wonder, then, that the German has not developed into a sportsman and that there is such a marked disparity between him and the Britisher in this respect.

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

Our Readers' Varied Views.

GAY UNIFORMS.

Sir,—I don't approve of going back to the scarlet tunic, at least not of the old, tight, uncomfortable pattern without pockets or the blue trousers tight at the knees and slightly bell-bottomed, that used to be worn before the Great War. Nor would I favour the pipe-clayed belt.

But what I do think would look very smart and would be appreciated by men who take a just pride in their regiment would be to have the colours of the old facings—blue, yellow, red, buff or green—used as a band round the cap. Guards officers have this band now and it looks very fine, I think.

Khaki uniform is much smarter than it used to be, and little splashes of colour are being introduced on the shoulder straps etc., I see. It is a splendidly serviceable shade of cloth and looks workmanlike and soldierly without being gaudy.

H.W.C's arguments in its favour are irresistible, I consider.

FUZZY.

NOT KING ALFONSO.

Sir,—Reference the paragraph in "Echoes from Rhineland" which appeared in yesterday's issue about King Alfonso, having been seen in the Hohestrasse.

It is now known on the very highest authority that the personage seen was "Alfonso Spagoni the Toreador."

MILLY BERSON.

DISPLAYING DECORATIONS.

Sir,—With reference to the recent letter by "Jumbo," why should not the ex-service man, wear any decorations that he may be entitled to? And why should he be called an offender?

Is it an offence to wear any decorations, that perhaps he may have gone through hell to gain?

As regards these "distinguished marks" as he calls them, if he were in the firing line during the war he only needs to look back to find that many of these men received "distinguished marks" that will have to be worn for the rest of their lives.

However, perhaps an Army of Occupation medal would alter a lot of people's opinions.

WHIZZ-BANG.

IS THIS TRIVIAL?

Sir,—Perhaps somebody will say this is only a trivial matter, but it has worried me a lot lately.

I am not married, but one of these days I might be; I've been thinking that if I were and had my wife over here and happened to be walking in Cologne with one arm linked in hers and carrying a baby in the other while I was suffering from a stiff neck, how would I salute supposing I met an officer?

If I could be certain what to do, for one ought to look ahead and be prepared for everything, it would relieve me of the dread of some day being the accused in a Court Martial; and with my mind at ease I could get my proper night's sleep.

SOME DAY.

WAILS OF A "P.M.C."

Sir,—Agreed "Mess Orderly" has a good case, but what of the P.M.C? I fear the day when an officer rolls up on the appointed day for the collection of subscriptions and, unasked, presses a wad of notes into my hands with the observation that the conduct of the Mess affords satisfaction.

I am sure the shock will kill me.

WHAT HO.

WOULD HE DO IT?

Sir,—Do you know of an English tradesman allowing for the closing of his shop during the luncheon hour who would turn away the few customers in his shop at the time appointed for closing?

This happened at the officers' clothing department yesterday. A staff officer desiring to purchase a pair of gloves was turned down, presumably to return in the afternoon.

SUNSHINE.

MEYERBEER MISSING.

Sir,—"T.F.H's" letter with regard to Meyerbeer's compositions is most opportune. Others have been asking the same questions.

Certainly much antipathy exists among certain sections of the German people with regard to this musician.

Some years ago I was at a London concert when the orchestra played "The Reminiscences of Meyerbeer." The audience heartily applauded but a German next to me gave an exclamation of disgust and said "too much heavy stuff."

Your correspondent is not quite correct however when he suggests that none of Meyerbeer's operas are ever given in Germany.

A friend of mine in London was once a student at Berlin and he tells me that he frequently used to get tickets. Among the most frequently billed operas were those of Wagner and Meyerbeer.

I should heartily welcome such productions as "L'Africane" "Star of the North" and "Les Huguenots" in Cologne. No doubt others would also.

G.W.M.

IN BEETHOVEN'S HOUSE AT BONN.

It was at the close of a wonderful summer's day that I knocked at the door of the humble little house in Bonn that had been the birthplace of Beethoven. For some reason it had been closed to the public that day; but I had travelled far to pay my homage at the shrine, and the old dame who acted as caretaker was kind, and let me in.

I saw a tiny hall, swept and garnished, and beyond it a garden full of old fashioned flowers and creepers. But the light was fading fast, and without delay I climbed the narrow staircase, until I reached the garret, right up in the roof, where the master was born.

In the gloaming I saw a very small, bare room, with low wooden ceiling and floor of rough boards. A single casement window in the eastern wall let in all that there was of light; most appropriately there is no artificial illumination permitted in that intensely touching room. A glimmering white bust on a pedestal, and three great wreaths of bay are all the tangible things that this holy place contains. And it is well. But what thoughts crowd upon one as one gazes. Here, in abject poverty, was born, and, here for a long time in poverty lived the genius who has given peace and happiness to millions, who in unnumbered passages has thrilled man with the conviction of humanity's divinity—solace man, re-nerved him, borne indisputable witness to the eternal.

I thought of the wealthy "composers" of the rag-time horrors of to-day, and, as I did so, through the open window there came the strains of a gramophone playing an up-to-date dance.

But these things cannot harm Beethoven, nor end the magic of his story. They are as thoughts and sounds such as sometimes in a solemn church may come to us from the ugly slums outside.

It was too dark to do more than peer dimly at the objects in the Beethoven museum hard by. Instruments upon which the master had played, pages of his score, letters, portraits, and again more wreaths. Who can look upon these things without a lump in his throat, a clutching at his heart?

THE CESAREWITCH.

Favourite Unplaced In Wednesday's Big Race.

KING AND QUEEN SPECTATORS.

Although we were able to publish the bare result of the Cesarewitch in yesterday's issue, details of the race did not come to hand until after the paper had gone to press, and they could not therefore be included.

The failure of King John, who was regarded by many to be as near a "dead cert" as anything in racing could be, reminds one of the ignominious performance of The Panther and other red-hot favourites that have been beaten this season.

The sudden shortening in price of Ivanhoe during the few days prior to the race indicates that he was not altogether unexpected while Golden Melody was strongly fancied.

The weather was fine and crisp for the meeting and there was a large attendance including the King and Queen. Appended are details of the race:—

1, Ivanhoe (Whalley) 100 to 6,
2, Golden Melody (Speck) 4 to 1,
3, Bridgend (Leach) 20 to 1.

Also ran: Queen's Square (Donoghue), Haki (Childs), St. Eloi (Templeman), King John (Martin), Silver Bridge (Hulme), Golden Rule (Evans), Warwick (Robbins), White Heat (Fox), Unitoi (Lane), Gay Lord (Collin), Matoppo (Hamshaw), Chaltoi (Taylor), Sea Voyage (Robertson), Eton Rambler (Garnett), Sheriff's Officer (Ringstead) and Alasnam (Weston).

The Race.

On settling down Gay Lord led from Silver Bridge, Unitoi, Warwick, Alasnam, Bridgend, King John, Ivanhoe and Golden Melody. After leaving the bushes, Ivanhoe went to the front and, although Golden Melody came along with a great rush, Ivanhoe held his own to the end and won easily by a length and a half. A neck separated the second and third. Alasnam close up was fourth.

Other results on Wednesday were as follows:—

Kennet Plate:—1, Lady Peregrine (100-7); 2, Sundial (15-8); 3, Beresina (5-2). 6 ran.

Autumn handicap:—1, Santa Cruz (100-8); 2, Wilson (100-8); 3, Sangelo (100-8). Ten ran.

Cheveley Park Stakes:—1, Bright Folly (5-4); 2, Plunkette (100-8); 3, Cicerole (100-8). Nine ran.

Two-year Old Plate:—1, Ecila filly (8-1); 2, Prince Herod (5-4 on); 3, Ardvourlie (100-7). 18 ran.

The victory of his Majesty's filly was received with a tremendous outburst of cheering and hat waving.

2nd October Nursery (Division one):—1, Solo Bridge (10-2); 2, Jaunting Car (7-4); 3, Abdicate (5-2). Nine ran.

2nd October Nursery (Division two):—1, Indenture (6-1); 2, Happy (8-1); 3, Aerolite (5-1). Thirteen ran.

Select Stakes:—Irish Elegance walked over.

A "TIP" IN RHYME.

My first is highest in the land,
A proper noun my second,
My whole, I'd have you understand,
A certainty is reckoned!
"Eash" in "Sporting Life."

King John, however, only appeared among the "also rans."

DEATH OF WELL-KNOWN JOCKEY.

The "Echo de Paris" announces that the well-known jockey, William Escott, died on Monday as the result of an accident which he met with at Auteuil on Saturday.—Reuter.

Escott was the son of the well-known Lewes trainer, Harry Escott, and had been riding for some months in France. The accident occurred in the Prix Congress, in which his mount, Le Releve, fell. Escott joined up early in the war, and served for a considerable period on the French front. Though not in the front rank of cross-country riders, he met with a fair amount of success in his profession, and had a good average number of winners.

FRANCE AND OLYMPIC GAMES.

Government Training Grant of 200,000 Francs.

The National Committee of Sports has been informed by the Minister of War that its demand for a credit of 200,000 francs has been voted by Parliament. This sum is to be devoted to the training of French athletes who will take part in the Olympic Games of 1920, and to their journey to, and stay in, Antwerp.

G.H.Q. SERGEANTS' RIFLE CLUB.

Will members kindly note the last shoot of the season will take place on Saturday next? Meet at No. 1 Mess Salomonsgasse, 1.30 p.m. prompt. Three prizes will be competed for.

TWO MATCHES—14 GOALS.

18th G.H.Q. M.T. Coy. defeat Service and Ordnance Corps Men.

TEAM LEAVES THE FIELD.

On Saturday and Sunday, the 18th G.H.Q. M.T. Coy. scored two decisive victories at football. The first match, against "C" Group, R.A.O.C., was very fast and the play on both sides skilful and clever. 18th G.H.Q. were leading by 3 goals to 1 at the interval. On the resumption, play was again very fast, the home forwards combining well, cleverly backed up by the halves. Twenty minutes from the end, when 18th G.H.Q. were leading by 7 goals to 1, they were awarded a penalty, but the captain of the R.A.O.C. team refused to quit the penalty area and allow the kick to be taken. He elected to take his men from the field, thereby leaving the home team victors by 7 goals to 1. The goal scorers for 18th G.H.Q. M.T. Coy. team were as follows:—L/Cpl. McKinnell 4; Cpl. Phillips 2; and Pte. Hulme 1. C.S.M. Tucker refereed.

60th. AUX. STEAM COY. R.A.S.C.

The above team paid a visit on Saturday and their fate was similar. A very pleasant game ended in 18th G.H.Q. M.T. Coy. winning by 7 goals to nil. The scorers were L/Cpl. McKinnell 3; Cpl. Phillips 2; and Pte. Morrison 2. The visitors goalie played extremely well, and saved his side from a much heavier defeat. The play of the 18th G.H.Q., M.T. Coy. reached a very high level, their forwards being particularly good and the goalie, backs and halves firm and strong. The referee was C.S.M. Tucker.

Xth CORPS TOURNAMENT.

84th Brigade, R.G.A. v. 51st Bn.: Manchester Regt.—semi-final.

84th Brigade R.G.A. qualified for the final of the Xth Corps Senior Tournament by defeating the 51st Manchesters by 5—2, after a well contested game. The gunners started with ten men, owing to the late arrival of one player. From the kick-off the 51st went away, and only by fine defensive play by Hennings and the backs was a score averted. After ten minutes, the 51st registered their first goal, the shot giving Joyce no chance. Give-and-take play followed, in which the 51st left back showed splendid form. Higginson for the gunners made many fine runs, but obtained no results. The 51st met with another success, their centre forward after a magnificent run, scoring with a first-class shot. At half time the score stood at 2—0 in favour of the 51st.

EXCITING SECOND HALF.

The opening of the second half provided much excitement for the spectators the 51st raided the gunners' end, and for a period of 10 minutes held them entirely on the defensive. Their goal had several very narrow escapes, but the defence prevailed. The gunners' first goal came as the result of a clever run and shot by Mallock. This success roused the gunners to greater efforts. The forwards, ably led by Denars, attacked vigorously, and despite the splendid defence at the 51st left back, Merwick, with a splendid first timer, equalised. The 51st were now kept entirely on the defensive, the gunners pressing very hard. They took the lead as the result of a very fine run by Lieut. Mermagen, who all along had been playing very hard. This success was followed quickly by another, a splendid shot by Mallock finding the net. Shortly after, as a result of continuous pressure, the score was increased by a great drive from Thornton, which gave the 51st goalie no earthly. Despite the fact of being three goals down, the 51st played hard, and twice almost found the net, their centre forward playing like a Trojan and making very dangerous openings. Full time arrived with the score, 84th Brigade 5, 51st Manchesters 2.

The game was contested in a thoroughly sportsmanlike spirit, and was ably handled by Captain Best as referee.

HOCKEY.

12th L. N. Lancs. Score odd Goal in Nine.

The 12th L. N. Lancs. played the 52nd King's Liverpool Regt. on their ground on Monday. As it had been raining heavily for two hours prior to the game, the ground was none too good for brilliant play. The Lancs. in the first half scorned two clever goals, one from Sgt. Boddy on the left wing and the other from Lieut. Laithwaite. The King's in the second half, after about ten minutes play, equalised, only to find the Lancs. break away once more and score. The King's again equalised, but the Lancs. persisted in getting back the lead. The score ended after an exciting game in the Lancs. favour: L. N. Lancs. 5; 52nd King's, 4.

HIGH CLASS BOXING.

Keen Sport in Inter-Battalion Competition at Duren.

ROYAL SCOTS IN ACTION.

Enthusiasm raged high in a Boxing Competition held at Duren last Monday between the 5/6 Bn. The Royal Scots and the 11th Bn. The Royal Scots. A large crowd assembled in the Gymnasium at the Hindenburg Barracks where the sport provided was of a clean and high standard.

The boxing opened with the first round of the feather-weight to and brought Pte Ellis, 11th R.S., and L/Cpl. Liddle, 11th R.S., together, resulting in a win for the former. At the same weight Pte Berry, 11th R.S., and Pte White, 5/6th R.S., exchanged blows, showing a lot of clever work, proving Berry the better.

An Extra Round.

Some excellent boxing was given between Pte Armstrong, 11th R.S., and Pte Hanlon, 5/6 R.S., in the semi-final of the light-weight. This bout necessitated an extra round being fought to allow the judges to decide, the decision being given to Pte Armstrong.

In the second round of the feather-weight, Pte Renny, 11th R.S., and Pte Darling, 5/6 R.S., came together. The former set off a great pace forcing his opponent to adopt defensive measures. Soon however the tables were turned when Darling got a fine right home to his opponents jaw. Renny who was now standing a lot of hard hitting retired saving himself further punishment.

The bout between Sgt. Wallace, 11th R.S., and Pte Brown, 5/6th R.S., in the welter-weight saw the latter retiring in the first round, Wallace having the advantage of reach and weight. In the same weight Sgt. Hunter, 11th R.S., received the decision over L/Cpl. Jameson, 5/6th R.S. The boxing in this bout was clean but not remarkably clever.

Results.

In the finals of the different weights the following were the results:—

Bantam-weight:—Pte. O'Neill, 5/6th R.S., defeated Pte. Johnston, 5/6th R.S. by a narrow margin.

Feater-weight:—Pte. Darling, 5/6th R.S., gained the verdict over Pte. Berry, 11th R.S., the former showing fine skill and clever footwork.

Light-weight:—Pte. McCudden, 5/6th R.S., beat Pte. Armstrong, 11th R.S. This was one of the best fights witnessed during the afternoon. The first round finished in favour of McCudden, the second showed both men about equal, and in the third McCudden had a slightly better advantage. In an extra one minute round McCudden gained the judges verdict.

Welter-weights:—Sgt. Wallace, 11th R.S., beat Sgt. Hunter, 11th R.S., the latter retiring in the first round to save himself unnecessary punishment. An exhibition spar was given between Lt. Cornford, 11th R.S., and Lt. Kirkwood, 5/6th R.S., which caused great excitement.

WELLS IN FORM.

Wells who is meeting Jack Curphey, the Grenadier Guardsman, at the Holborn Stadium to-night is not only physically fit, but his frame of mind is distinctly reassuring. He seems more assertive, and his chin has a defiant upward thrust it never used to wear. His legs, thanks to rowing exercise, are stronger and better developed, and his two sparring partners, Tom Berry, and Charles Panwell, of the Guards, have felt most emphatically the power of his punches. Wells is still as clever a boxer as ever, and the camp are very hopeful of his chance against Curphey. He weighs half a stone heavier than when he lost to Beckett.

HENNEF HORSE SHOW.

51st Manchesters' Success in 3rd. Infantry Bde. Event.

At the 3rd. (Manchester) Infantry Brigade Horse Show held at Hennef on Saturday, the 51st Bn. Manchester Regiment (Lt. Col. H.F. Watson Commanding) obtained the following results:—

Officers' turnout (open). 1st Lt. F.C. Gower.

Coy. commanders jumping. 1st 2/Lt. Bates.

Relay race. 1st L/Cpl. McEvoy, Pte. Anthony, Pte. Pearson and Pte. Claber.

Loaded pack animals. 1st Pte. Bradley, 3rd. Pte. Dougherty.

Polo on mules. 2nd. Lt. Fox, 2/Lts. Bates, Collens, D.C.M. and Chantler.

V.C. race. 2nd. Pte. Pearson, 3rd. Pte. Claber.

Mule jumping. 2nd. L/Cpl. McEvoy.

Officers' riding class. 2nd. Lt. Galloway.

Ride and drive. 2nd. Pte. Arnold.

Apple and bucket, 3rd. Pte. Kennedy.

KNUR AND SPELL.

Knur and spell is as popular as ever in Yorkshire. There was a big crowd at Parkside, Hunslet, to watch the match between G. Brogden, of Leeds, and T. Stoddart, of Hunslet, with ½oz. put knurs and 3ft. 9in. sticks, for £50. Stoddart, who was conceded three yards, started favourite, but victory rested with Brogden by 3ft. 10½ins

FOOTBALL JOTTINGS.

Newcastle United No Longer Blind to Local Talent.

BY W. LE C.

Three times this season McInally of Celtic has performed the "hat-trick."

F. Bond, a nephew of the famous "Dicky" has joined Preston North End. It will be remembered that the now Bradford City player made his name with "Proud Preston's" team.

Mr. Jack Howcroft, the popular Bolton referee, has been invited to hold the "whistle" in the Association International between Sweden and Denmark, which is down to be played at Stockholm in November.

Philips, Sunderland's Scottish centre forward, has refused to return to the Wearside club.

Great Harwood F.C. are now playing Suttie the old Blackburn left back. His return to football has surprised many followers of the game.

Marr, the old Gillingham centre, who at present places work before football may wear Newcastle's jersey ere long.

Newcastle United in the past paid large sums for players with reputations. To-day they are playing a line of young local discoveries and it is paying. As a correspondent suggests "They have been blind to the talent at their door."

Clapton Orient possess the youngest first-class team in England. But what a change an old "general" might work.

Lyall the old Sheffield goalkeeper, recently demobbed, is very desirous of again figuring in the limelight.

LEEDS CITY'S EXPULSION.

Statement Issued By Lord Mayor For Publication.

The failure of the Lord Mayor of Leeds to save Leeds City is explained in a statement made by his lordship for publication. In the course of this he says:—

After a night of very careful consideration I have come to the conclusion that but for the action of the League the Commission would have let the club off with a fine. But the League committee were very firm for expulsion. I am sure that Port Vale did not act in a sportsmanlike way in pressing their claim before the final decision was arrived at.

I was also very much handicapped by local people sending letters to members of the League, making suggestions of which no copy had been sent to me.

IRELAND'S TEAM.

Players To Meet England On Saturday Week.

The Irish team to meet England at Windsor Park, Belfast, on Saturday week has been selected as follows:

O'Hagen (St. Mirren); McCracken (Newcastle United) and McCandless (Linfield); Lacey (Liverpool), Hamill (Belfast Celtic), and Emerson (Glentoran); Lynes (Glentoran), Gallagher (Glasgow Celtic), Gowdy (Glentoran), Ferris (Belfast), and McCandlish (Bradford).

Reserve—J. Harris (Cliftonville).

CLUBS FINED £50.

At a meeting of the Southern League Management Committee it was decided that, with regard to the two matches not played on September 27—Norwich City v. Southend and Exeter City v. Watford—the Watford team should go to Exeter and the Southend team to Norwich on days chosen by their opponents. The Watford and Southend Clubs to be at home for the other games, which will be played in mid-week. Each club was fined £50.

MID-WEEK FOOTBALL.

Southern League Result:— Crystal Palace 1; Swindon 2.

FOOTBALL CHALLENGE.

A sporting correspondent writes as follows:—

Almost any day one lifts a "Cologne Post" and in the sporting items challenges are to be found in football. The 5/6th Bn. The Royal Scots who have been "lying low" so far think it about time they had a say in all these challenges to determine which is the best football team in the Army of the Rhine. They are willing to play any team. Communications should be sent to the Sports Officer, 5/6th Bn. The Royal Scots, Duren.

AMUSEMENTS AND RECREATIONS.

Fancy Dress Dance.

A most enchanting Fancy Dress Dance was held at the British Empire Leave Club on Wednesday evening. The whole scene was one of great Eastern splendour, Persian rugs and gorgeous coloured draperies hung from the galleries and there were pagodas and golden lamps swinging from Eastern awnings. Gilded railings enclosed many cushioned recesses where reclined such interesting figures as Billy Bunter (in an Eton jacket all correct) and Father Time in long flowing garments with white hair and beard. Other figures who caused great amusement were a melancholy clergyman labelled "the Indispensable," a munition girl with a notice on her back, "Back to the old trade," and two cheery Johnnies in the most surprising check suits ever seen.

* * *

Then there was a gorgeous Crusader in coat of mail with a brother in arms and Beau Brummels in profusion and amongst the many Pierrots, two wonderful visions in mauve and black. The two M.C's, Sergt.-Maj. Felgate as a Hussar, and Bombardier Taylor in powder period costume were splendid to look upon and accomplished their official duties admirably. The success of the evening was largely due to the playing of the G.H.Q. Jazz Band who generously gave their services and played with their usual eclat and rhythm. In the interval the new B.E.L.C. Jazz Band performed and were much encouraged by their reception.

Smoking Concert at Kirchherten.

A pleasant evening was spent on Saturday, when the W. O.'s, Staff Sergeants and Sergeants of the Lowland Divisional Artillery entertained their officers at a Smoking Concert a Kirchherten. About 100 officers and sergeants were present and a jolly atmosphere was created from the beginning. The programme was opened with a pianoforte solo by Dr. Wadsworth, followed by a toast. "The King." Dr. Oates then gave an excellent recitation, after which the Chairman R.S.M. Rose, proposed the toast of "Our Officers." In a short speech the Chairman mentioned that this was the first occasion on which the Officers, W.O.'s and Sergeants of the Lowland Div. Arty. had met together.

* * *

Brig.-Gen. Sandys, C.B., C.M.G., replying, thanked his hosts on behalf of the Officers for entertaining them and said that the occasion brought back to his memory many pleasant evenings spent with the Sergeants, Mess. He mentioned that Major Gen. Tudor much regretted his inability to be present, but he had made certain private arrangements before receiving the invitation and had been unable to alter them. Brig.-Gen. Sandys reviewed in brief the record of the Royal Regiment and the Division, both of which were, in his opinion, second to none. He then proposed the toast "Our Hosts", which was drunk with much enthusiasm. The musical items were then resumed, and included a stirring song by Major Rickeards, a ragtime effort by Campbell and McLennan, and some first-class items by Capt. Cleeve, Cpl. Argent and others.

In Few Words.

Lt. Linford, R.A.F. who leaves Rhineland to-day, prior to being "demob'd," will be greatly missed by the Rhine Army Dramatic Company. His acting has won for him many eulogistic comments.

AFTERNOON JAZZING.

Tea-Time Dances at the Officers' Club, Cologne.

Yesterday afternoon, the clatter of drums, the twang of banjo strings and blasts from a trombone caused me to halt outside the "Earwig" Club. The sounds continued, so I entered to investigate and then remembered that the first of the daily tea dances, announced to take place in the long room, was due. Sure enough, the "light fantastic" was in full swing, with the Headquarters Jazz Band (conducted by the well-known banjo soloist, Lew Hallmark) providing the most irresistible music. The privilege of being the first couple to dance fell to the lot of a Staff Captain and a lady from the Empire Leave Club, and for some time they were the sole occupants of the splendid floor. It was not long, however, before many others caught the spirit and glided round the room.

* * *

The latest innovation of the N.A.C.B. Club authorities is bound to meet with wholehearted approbation and henceforth the period from 4 to 5.30 p.m. should be a particularly gay one each day. The originator of this latest addition to the many recent improvements in the club is to be congratulated upon hitting on a particularly happy idea. There is certainly something rather thrilling about a dance while waiting for one's tea to cool, and the music is much too tempting to resist. I am told that the Jazz band will show up twice a week and the usual excellent orchestra will function for the other days.

"The Crumps."

After having broken all previous records and successes with their new programme, which has been presented at Lindlar, Marialinden, Rösrath, Overath and Siegburg during the week, I hear that "The Crumps" have arranged for a special performance for one night only at the Y.M.C.A. Theatre, Kalk, this evening commencing at 6.30 p.m.

JACQUES.

Y.M.C.A. BILLIARD TOURNEY.

Pte. B. Monbert, 51st King's Regiment, and Pte. H. Robbins, 266 Employment Coy, met in the final game of the Y.M.C.A. Billiard Tournament at Kalk on Tuesday.

Play commenced at 18.10 hours, the game being 250 up, and evenly contested up to 150, when Pte. Monbert drew away and won comfortably by 56 points.

Miss Graham kindly presented the Shield and Cups to the winner and runner-up.

A competitor has to make three successive wins to become the owner of the Shield and it is hoped to get together the best players in the Rhine Army for the next Tournament, which will be the "Rhine Army Championship."

"DON'TS" FOR COMPETITORS.

How to Help Adjudicators In Our Football Contest.

Our competition staff have a busy time every Monday sorting out the entries in our football contest but their task can be greatly assisted by competitors refraining from falling into the errors we mention below. In publishing the following we trust competitors will take note and thereby facilitate the work of our staff.

Many competitors send in coupons but omit to enclose the mark required for each. No less than 45 entrants failed to read our rules regarding this in No. 3 contest. Had one of these submitted a correct coupon he would have been of necessity disqualified. Do not forget to enclose your marks, and therefore avoid disqualification.

Entrants should not enclose local bank notes with their coupons. Many have fallen into this error, and in future such notes will disqualify a competitor. We can only accept "Reichsbank" notes. We would ask all entrants to submit the amount required in one, two, or five mark notes. The sending in of 10 pfennigs, 25 pfennigs, and half mark notes greatly hampers the work of the adjudicators.

No Folding Necessary.

Do not fold your notes or coupons. It is quite easy to slip them into envelopes without the unnecessary folding, so many aspirants for our prize indulge in.

Cut your coupon out of the paper. Do not tear it out. One competitor last week sent in two coupons with the rules attached. This is quite needless, our staff know the rules off by heart.

Pins and paper fasteners should not be used, simply place the mark and coupon into the envelope.

No correspondence must be enclosed with coupons. One entrant in No. 3 enclosed a note which read "Pay up and look pleasant." The humorist as it happened was miles off the mark.

Print your name legibly. The ink will not run if the coupon is slightly heated before being written upon.

Coupons must be addressed:—

FOOTBALL CONTEST No. 4,
"Cologne Post,"
A.P.O. S.40 Rhine Army.

List of Rules.

1. All forecasts must be made on coupons from this journal.

2. Any alteration or mutilation of the coupon will disqualify the effort.

3. If any match or matches on the coupon should be abandoned or full time is not played for any reason, such match or matches will not be taken into consideration in the adjudication.

4. In the event of ties, the prize will be divided.

5. No correspondence may be enclosed with the coupons, and none will be entered into. Neither will interviews be granted.

6. The Editor reserves the right to disqualify any coupon for what, in his opinion, is good and sufficient reason, and it is a distinct condition of entry that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as finally and legally binding in all matters concerning this competition.

7. Any entries received after Friday will be disqualified. No responsibility can be undertaken for any effort, or efforts, lost, mislaid or delayed. Proof of posting will not be accepted as proof of delivery.

8. Competitors may send in any number of coupons but one mark must be sent with each coupon.

9. Members of the staff of the "Cologne Post" are debarred from entering this competition.

C.J. Tindell Green, the well-known lawn tennis player and hockey international, has returned north, and will not be available for the Beckenham Hockey Club this season.

Captain For 21 Years.

To commemorate the twenty-first year of the captaincy of Felix Hotchkiss of the North London Cricket Club, past and present members have formed a committee with a view to according him a tangible recognition of his valuable services.

Football In Shoes.

R.H. Allen, the Corinthian forward, wears shoes when playing.

A Treasure.

Glasgow Celtic have found a treasure in John Gilchrist at right-half.

Football Cricketers.

The Corinthians won their first match against Charterhouse by 6—2. There were three Essex cricketers in the team.

Goal Scorer.

The great part Buchan is playing in the Sunderland forward line this season is reflected in his position among the leading goal scorers.

New Three-Quarter.

Batley N.U. have signed on a new three-quarter in David Evans, a Welshman, who has been transferred from Wigan.

Eye Trouble.

Dan Jenkins the Halifax three-quarter, who played so well for them before the war, has notified the club that he is suffering from eye trouble and will be unable to assist them.

Trainer's Death.

George Cunnington, sen., one of the best-known trainers in France, has just died at the age of 69. He trained Gospodar, who won the French Derby for M. Michel Ephrussi in 1894.

Ex-Newsboy Athlete.

Henri Suit, the former street newsboy, for the sixth time in twelve years won the race round Paris, covering the distance of 26½ miles in 3 hours 56 minutes.

For French Derby.

Lord Derby has entered Malik a bay colt by Macdonald II., in the French Derby for 1921, and Mourmane, a filly by Rabelais, in the Oaks.

Marble Arch To Bristol.

F. Perry, the long-distance runner, will attempt to run from the Marble Arch to Bristol and back, a distance of 236 miles, starting on December 15.

Rugby and Cricket.

Dr. T.P. Whittington, medical officer for Neath, whose sudden death is reported, in his younger days represented Scotland at Rugby and Wales at cricket.

Barson's £430 Benefit.

Footballers entitled to benefits this season are likely to do very well indeed. Barson, the Barnsley skipper, whose benefit match was played just recently, has received £430.

Rhodes Rumours Killed.

There have been rumours recently that Wilfrid Rhodes, the great Yorkshire cricketer, would be seen in a Lancashire League team next season. Fortunately, the rumours turn out to be false.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

In the Way.

"Why don't they clear away the rubbish boxes from the paths earlier?" indignantly asked an officer newly arrived in Cologne. "Why, when I was going along to break — I mean lunch — at the mess yesterday I tumbled over two of the bally things" he added.

Plenty of Paper Money.

What strikes the average British visitor to Cologne is the abundance of paper money, but just how the poor manage to meet the high prices asked for clothes is just what an English housewife cannot understand.

Not Required.

When you see the sign "ohne marken" in a provision shop, don't run away with the idea that the customer gets something for nothing. It's simply the German way of saying that ration tickets are not required for that particular commodity.

Cosmopolitan.

It is doubtful if in this cosmopolitan city there is a more cosmopolitan building than the Dom Hof by Cologne Main Station. In addition to numerous British Establishments, it houses the French, Belgian and Italian Missions, also the "restitution industrielle," and representatives of Poland and other small states born of the war. The stream of visitors of all nationalities is continuous, and within five minutes the other day, a British soldier on duty at the door, was addressed in six different languages.

What is the Reason?

An officer's wife complained to me that she had to pay 1/—3/4d at the N.A.C.B. for evaporated milk she can get at the German shops for 11d., the same price as in England.

The Business Manager's Story.

I was surprised to find this forenoon that our accountant knew nothing of the opening of the Douglas Pennant enquiry. He pleaded guilty, but asked to be excused on the grounds that he has no time to read the "Post" until lunch time. He then usually forgets to take a free copy from the office and has to buy it in the street on his way to the mess.

The old Attendant.

A familiar figure is missing from the Cologne Officers' Club. I mean the venerable attendant who studied one's needs when requiring a "wash and brush up." I don't know why he has gone but his genial wit and quick repartee were priceless assets.

More Art Exhibits.

The recent Amateur Art Exhibition at Lindenthal having proved a success from an art point of view, it is now proposed to hold a further one for Black and White sketches, Designs and Photography. The exhibition will be held early in December and for those who intend to exhibit and who may be meanwhile demobbed, their exhibits will be welcomed and returned to them in England; also the prize should he be successful. Mr. E. F. Carver, Y.M.C.A. VI Corps H.Q. Lindenthal is the Secretary.

Up to Date.

In the opening chapter of a serial now running in a popular German weekly the heroine, a beautiful and lonely fraulein, finds herself stranded on Cologne Main Station in a crowd where "Khaki Englander" and "Tartan Scotlander" bustle to and fro.

Need Instruction.

Walking down the Hohe Strasse yesterday afternoon I met dozens of soldiers who displayed war ribbons, and it struck me that there are still some regimental tailors who need to be reminded of the regulation way of wearing decorations.

Breaking Up.

We shall not have the Scottish Churches Hut much longer in existence in Cologne. Its valued activities close down almost immediately.

The Sandwich Men.

For a moment I imagined myself back in the Strand yesterday when I saw a number of sandwich men advertising a boxing contest. This form of publicity does not seem to be very popular in Rhineland.

Immune.

What a scorn the Dom pigeons have for motor cars, and indeed all forms of traffic! If they are pecking in the roadway, they never attempt to get out of the way; yet despite the continuous rush of traffic one never hears of a casualty.

Spick and Span.

I ran into a valued friend—a N.C.O.—the other morning in the Hohe Strasse and hardly recognised him. His buttons in the past were never famed for their lustre, and a blacking every fourth day sufficed for his boots. But now buttons and boots rivalled the sun at noonday. "Hullo, old man" I remarked, eyeing him up and down, "What's up?" "Being demobbed?" "No" he meekly answered, "wifey's joined me."

Prices still Soaring.

The price of wrist watches is soaring. I was asked a hundred marks yesterday for a watch that a month ago I could have bought for fifty. On remonstrating I was informed that the English soldier had "viel geld." Needless to say I did not become its possessor.

Money Waiting.

The business manager asks me to make an appeal on his behalf. At the present moment there are over a score of cheques which have been sent by the "Cologne Post" to various contributors, prize winners, etc., but which have not yet been presented to the Bank. Much as he regrets having to part with good money, still—owing to lack of staff—he urgently requests that all cheques be paid to bank as quickly as possible. Also please do not remit cheques in marks to England as it takes about three months to clear them.

Paters and Prams.

I am being forced to the conclusion that the German paterfamilias is a very modest individual indeed. In my peregrinations in and around Cologne I have never met him giving his offspring an airing in a perambulator. Is it considered 'infra dig'?

Foodstuffs Pay.

As many Cologne tradesmen as possible seem to be selling foodstuffs and confectionery. Yesterday, when I went to my usual friseur I found he had relinquished barbering and had turned his place into a sweet and chocolate shop. Not far off I saw, what was before exclusively a book store now devoted in part to the sale of comestibles.

Architectural Lectures.

I am informed that a course of six lectures on Architectural History and Ornament will be given at the G.H.Q. Commercial college, (53 Hansa Ring) Cologne, by Mr. G. A. T. Middelton (past Vice-president of the Society of Architects), Instructor in Architecture and Building Construction with the British Army of the Rhine, from 18.00 hours to 19.00 hours on Monday 20th and 27th, Wednesday 22nd and 29th, Friday 24th and 31st Octr. The course, I am told, will deal approximately with the following periods:—1. Egyptian and Greek; 2. Roman and Byzantine; 3. Romanesque and Norman; 4. English Gothic; 5. Continental Gothic. 6. Renaissance. All ranks are invited to attend all or any of these lectures, which are being illustrated by lantern slides.

Rather Stale.

Cabaret artistes seem to have a mania for unearthing ditties popular in England a dozen or more years ago. The other evening I listened to German versions of "In the shade of the old apple tree" and "Won't you come home Bill Bailey?"

RHINELANDER.

OPINIONS OF THE MOMENT.

THE NEW SPIRIT OF MARRIAGE.

Mr. Charles Dawbarn in an article argues that the prospective bride of today is prepared to take risks undreamed of by the girl of yesterday. He says:—"Marriage isn't what it used to be. It has changed tremendously—almost as drastically as the map of Europe. Young people took at things so differently now. There is a feeling that marriage is no longer such a fateful, desperate venture. Parents also have modified their attitude. The old dreadful ordeal of "asking father" has changed into something that is positively kindly."

ENGLISH TYPE ALTERING.

Professor Parsons, the great authority on anatomy says:—"Definite facts that mark real changes affect, so I have found, the colonial settlers chiefly. The passing of time has brought about changes physically in the Colonial type; it has grown a bigger type, with bigger stature than we find among the English. Anyone studying old armour at the Tower realises, however, that the English race has expanded its proportions vastly within recent generations. Modern knights never could get into old armour. Neither has increased development stopped with the male sex; modern women top their grand-parents by several inches."

HOW WE SAVED COLOGNE.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, the War Correspondent writing on the Army of Occupation says:—"The humiliation of the Occupation is hurtful to a proud people, and its memory will always be painful, but it has been wonderfully mitigated in actual experience by the knowledge that the presence of our troops has saved Cologne and the country districts from political and criminal disorder, and that the zone of occupation favours the industrial revival of the Rhinelanders beyond all comparison with other parts of Germany."

THE PUBLIC HOUSE OF TOMORROW

Mr. J. J. Mallon, Joint Secretary of the Labour Campaign for the Public Ownership and Control of the Liquor Trade, writing on the future of the Public House, says:—The universal anger with the Trade is one of the considerations that have determined a host of trade union leaders to try to get rid of the Trade altogether. These men, like the vast majority of trade unionists, are not prohibitionists, and they regard the theatricalisms of Pussyfoot with resentment and dislike. Their programme is not to close the "pub" but to make it something more than the nasty drinking den it so often now is. They desire "pubs" in which men (and their families with them) can obtain not merely alcoholic but any kind of refreshment. They desire "pubs" where the tired man can rest and the studious man read, and the sociable man talk with his cronies.

A DEAL DEMOCRACY.

The Duchess of Westminster writing on "Hard Times for the Rich" says:—Those who are in need should not feel they are dependent on charity, which to natures with any pride must be an unbearable feeling. It is sympathy and understanding that is wanted. It should be for the rich man to see how he can better the conditions of life of his poorer brother. A little more real help on these lines would go a long way towards bringing about a real democracy.

IF I WERE A MILLIONAIRE.

Will Thorne. M.P., writing on this subject says:—"If I were a millionaire I might—I do not say I would—but I might change my views with regard to the question of the distribution of wealth. I am sufficiently a philosopher to know that possession almost invariably brings a different point of view. It is a common experience that once we get anything actually within our grasp—wealth, or the realisation of some cherished ambition—there is usually a change in our sense of values."

A CUSHY JOB.

The Editor of the 3rd Battn. M.G.C. Magazine says:—"For those who have not employment awaiting them just at present, England does not present the opportunities that it did some time ago, or that it will do in the near future, and the Army of Occupation offers an ideal stop-gap. It is possible to volunteer for short periods of three or six months, and it would certainly seem that the spring is a better season to seek employment than winter. Think about it. Under the new scale of pay, it is possible to save quite a large sum in three months, whilst advantage could be taken of the time to study one or more subjects that will be of assistance in the future."

FOR BUSINESS MEN IN RHINELAND.

A TIMELY WARNING.

INFORMATIVE ITEMS FROM ALL SOURCES

It is necessary to impress on British business men operating in occupied Germany the importance of avoiding commercial relations with Germans in this territory who are not in the possession of a trading licence (Handelserlaubnis) authorizing them to trade in the commodity which they are seeking to purchase.

The German authorities have of late confiscated a large amount of merchandise owing to persons resident in this territory traffiking in goods for which they have no licence. These persons in their turn sell them to others, the goods passing from hand to hand, each traffiker gaining a profit thereby out of all proportion to the transaction involved.

The practice results in retail prices being much higher than they otherwise would be, had the allied trader sold direct to legitimate German firms. This licence is issued by the Handelskammer of the town in which the German trader has his business and is more or less a guarantee, on which the British representative can base the integrity of the would-be purchaser.

If British traders would bear this fact in mind, there would be fewer cases of confiscations of allied goods, the settlement of which involves considerable expense and trouble and possible loss to the British trader, besides entailing wearisome enquires as to whether the goods in question have actually passed into the purchaser's hands or not.

The articles for which a traders licence is necessary are Foodstuffs, Fodder, Wine, Alcohol, Tobacco. Trade transactions in other commodities can be undertaken without a special licence.

The M.G.'s Bureau for Commerce and Information is willing to give all information to British business men with regard to the standing of German buyers. This should do much towards helping British trade interests in this territory.

Sir John Ferguson, one of the founders of the Bankers' Battalion, and now general manager of Lloyds Bank, states that the Institute of Bankers are inaugurating a scheme to send men abroad to learn a phase of the business which had not been much understood in this country—namely, the exchange business. In the past it had largely been done by men who were bred in exchange business, but that was no reason why the present staffs should not be just as good as men who were trained in the German banks in London.

BUSINESS NOTES IN BRIEF.

The German press declare that the value of the mark will not change as long as the frontier in the West is open to all luxury articles. When the German frontier is closed by a regular system of customs duties the rates of exchange may assume a more normal aspect.

It is rumoured that some Germans may secure permits to go to Paris in order to reconstitute Franco-German relations.

Eighteen thousand tons of cotton have arrived at Hamburg for Czecho-Slovakia.

A great fair of all the products of the Rhineland is to be held in Cologne at an early date not yet decided. It is open also for foreign firms to exhibit their manufactures and material.

The congestion of traffic in the port of Cologne is now becoming considerably eased owing to an increase in the number of customs officials employed and for various other reasons.

In our last article we quoted from a contemporary the appointment of a British Commercial Commissioner for Germany at Berlin. We regret the name was wrongly given. It should read Lieut.-Col. F. Thelwall, M.C. and he may be addressed at the British Military Mission.

The Frankfurt Fair after all, developed into more of an export than an import fair. Results indicate a greater percentage of export business the principal buyers being Switzerland, Holland and Spain.

According to official statistics the value of British exports to occupied Germany in the first half of 1919 amounts to 200,000,000 marks.

At the Frankfurt Fair articles were exhibited made of a metal called electron. It is very similar to aluminium the price falling somewhere between that of aluminium and copper.

A new light was also demonstrated. This new light is created during the distillation of liquid air and is much more visible than ordinary light through mist.

A new French Chamber of Commerce has been established in London at 153, Queen Victoria Street. A perusal of the clauses in its constitution conveys the impression that it will be a live organisation for all interested in trade between Gt. Britain, France and Germany.

GEMS FROM LORD FISHER'S MEMORIES.

Usually earthly judgments on heavenly subjects are wrong.

A man I heard of—his wife separated from him—died at Florence. They telegraphed "Shall we cremate, embalm or bury?" "Do all three" she replied: "take no risks."

War is the essence of violence. Moderation in war is imbecility.

I am heartfelt in my thankfulness to a benign Providence for being capable in 1919 of enjoying suet pudding and treacle with a pleasure equal to that which I quite well remember, of having suet pudding and treacle in 1854.

I have not had even one single "thank you" for anything that I have done since King Edward died. I have no doubt the slight has done me a lot of good!

Dolts don't realise that the brain improves while the body decays—provided of course that the original brain is not that of a congenital idiot or an effete poltroon who never will run risks.

We really are a very peculiar people. Lions led by asses!

Pathetic was the usual "Gazette" notice of those killed in the war: "Second Lieutenants, unless otherwise mentioned" There was little "otherwise."

Who is going to deny that the merchant navy shall be incorporated in the Navy of the nation and with all the rights and money and rank and uniform and widow's pensions and pensions in old age?

In the world you are a lunatic if you go too fast.

The air commands and dominates both land and sea. We shall witness quite shortly a combination in one structure, of the aeroplane, the airship, the parachute, the common balloon and the aerial torpedo, which will astonish people by its extraordinary possibilities both in war and commerce.

The aeroplane has now to keep moving to live—but why should it? The aerial gyroscope locomotive torpedo suspended by a parachute has a tremendous significance.

Some of our great warriors want the bird so arranged as to be able to put the salt on his tail.

Ceratopogon Pulicaris!

You may not recognise his name—but you know him quite well. He's the little stinging fly which is biting everyone who tries to enjoy the evening outdoors. He will not bite you, however, if you always use. . . .

SAPON RUSSIAN TAR SOAP

PREMIER APPEALS FOR WORK.

STIRRING CALL TO CAPITAL AND LABOUR FOR GOOD WILL AND CONFIDENCE.

SHORT-CIRCUITS IN THE PENNANT CASE.

PRODUCTIVE PEACE.

PREMIER'S STRIKING CALL TO INDUSTRY.

Speaking al Sheffield on Wednesday night, Mr. Lloyd George made an eloquent appeal to the nation to settle down to work in an earnest endeavour to increase production. Our national debt before the war was 645 millions but to-day it is nearly 8,000 millions. The whole nation had to bear heavier burdens than ever before; the labouring classes had higher wages, shorter hours and a better standard of living than ever before and they dreaded a return to pre-war conditions. There was, however, only one mode of escape therefrom. They must increase the national income by increasing national production. That was the urgent need of the day in our country and every other country. The perpetuation of the spirit of war was fatal to industry and fatal to good will among peoples. Now that the worst was over he could see symptoms,—even in the most desperate areas—of the coming peace.

Continuing, the Premier said: "We must also have peace at home. To secure goodwill there must be confidence. Capital must have confidence that its enterprise will be fairly remunerated; Labour must feel confident that it will share the rewards of prosperity and feel that it is a real partner in business."

GERMAN LINERS.

QUESTION REGARDING THE IMPERATOR.

The United States War Department has formally transferred to the Shipping Board eight ex-German steamers, including the Imperator and Zeppelin. The ships will probably remain in the custody of the Shipping Board until their final fate is settled. Discussions are proceeding by cable between the officials at Washington and Paris regarding the disposal of the Imperator and other ships which Great Britain claims under the award of the Reparation Commission and it is regarded as probable that that Commission will finally settle the question. There is some urgency in the matter, since the British steamship companies to which the ships were allotted still maintain in New York crews to man the vessels.

KOLTCHAK'S POLICY.

Colonel J. Ward, speaking in London yesterday on Russia, said it was almost criminal to leave the Russian people to the terrorism by which they are surrounded.

America had the greatest number there of any Allied Power but they are all on the East side of Russia, where America's chief interests lay, rather than in the North. The speaker said that if the facts were known about Admiral Koltchak's policy and influence, the public would not have taken up such an antagonistic attitude towards him. In this matter the public had been grossly misinformed.

CAPITAL AND LABOUR.

The Industrial League has adopted a practical method of bringing masters and men together.

At the annual dinner next week at the Connaught Rooms, the company will include employers, managers, shop stewards and workmen. The Secretary of the League says, "Our object is to improve the relationship between employers and employed, and we have found from past experience that one of the best ways of doing so is for the parties to sit down together at dinner."

OPERATIONS IN RUSSIA.

General Judenitch continues to press forward to Petrograd. Latest reports state that he is less than thirty miles away, steadily advancing on a wide front and capturing men and material.

Denikin's capture of Orel is expected to have most important results. The city is of great strategic and commercial value.

Both Koltchak and the North Russian Army are also active.

AMERICAN LOAN TO BELGIUM.

The Belgian Government has arranged for a loan of fifty million dollars with banking concerns in America. A portion of this will be used in paying off a sum of two and three-quarter million dollars for machine tools sold to Belgium industrial organisations by the United States War Department.

Four hundred Russian officers who have been undergoing a course of training at the camp at Newmarket sailed for Russia yesterday.

PENNANT CASE.

DEAD WEIGHT AND SHORT CIRCUITS.

At the resumption of the Douglas Pennant Inquiry yesterday Counsel for the Air Ministry stated that he had made enquiries and had ascertained that there was no meeting of the Air Council, and it was a mistake on the part of General Brancker when he said it was the decision of the Air Council that Miss Pennant should go.

Miss Pennant, continuing her evidence, spoke of the annoyance which Dame Katherine Furse had shown towards her on one occasion, and declared that at the beginning of August last year she was convinced that if she only had fair play she could make the organization a success. She was equally convinced, however, that if they could prevent her there were certain people who would do so. "I was working single-handed against the dead weight of Colonel Bersey and other departments," she said. "I was short circuited at every turn."

CHURCH ARMY.

KING'S APPRECIATION OF HOSTEL WORK.

The King has caused the following letter to be sent to Prebendary Carlile, Chief Secretary of the Church Army, in reply to a letter of thanks to His Majesty for lending a portion of the riding school at the Royal mews for service men on leave in connection with the Church Army Hostel at Buckingham Palace Hotel.

"Dear Prebendary Carlile,—The King has read with much appreciation the letter you addressed to His Majesty on September 30th conveying the gratitude of the Board of the Church Army for the facilities granted by His Majesty for Hostel work among sailors and soldiers in the riding school at the mews at Buckingham Palace during the war.

"The King is gratified to learn that 27,500 men were given sleeping accommodation on their way to and from the various battle fronts, and I am to assure you of His Majesty's warm appreciation of the welfare and supervisionary work so ably carried out under the auspices of the Church Army.

"Believe me, Yours faithfully, Cromer."

WHY THE TURKEY WINKS.

CURIOSITIES OF MEN AND MONKEYS.

At the opening of the 85th Winter Session of the Middlesex Hospital Medical School Sir John Bland-Sutton, senior surgeon to the hospital, delivered the introductory address.

Sir J. Bland-Sutton's subject was muscles, with particular reference to the muscles of the eye. He said that all animals, except men and monkeys, possessed a third eyelid. Many people would have noticed how birds, notably the turkey, operated this third lid by means of special muscles. The turkey was constantly winking without knowing that it did so. The third lid in this case was an opaque white curtain, but in certain birds and animals, and in some fishes, the third lid was a transparent covering. The lizard of trans-Caspian deserts used its transparent lid as a protection against sand, while the American fish known as the star-gazer used it effectively for watching its prey. It was interesting to note that the prey was secured through the operation of powerful electrical muscles, and considerably over 50 small swimming fish so caught had been found in the interior of a star-gazer.

INSULT TO A GREAT UNIVERSITY.

Sir Robert Horne, Labour Minister, spoke at Glasgow University in support of Mr. Bonar Law's candidature for the Lord Rectorship. Referring to the Socialists' selection of the Hon. Bertrand Russell as candidate, the Minister declared it was an intolerable insult to a great university that a man should be nominated who took part in active pacifist propaganda, which, had it succeeded, would have put Great Britain in the same position as Russia.

CHURCHMEN TALK.

Many subjects were handled yesterday at the Church Congress at Leicester, ranging from the attitude of the State regarding the place of religion, to spiritualism, citizenship and the birth rate.

The Clearing Office for dealing with R.H. and R.F.A. sick and wounded soldiers from Expeditionary Forces, which was established at Woolwich in 1917, will be closed, with effect from the 31st instant.

ESCORT BOUND.

DARING ESCAPE FROM CUSTODY.

daring escape from a train after the overpowering of their armed escort by six Australian military prisoners occurred near Basingstoke on Tuesday evening. The Australians were being taken to Winchester prison from France by a guard of three men. When Basingstoke was reached the prisoners suddenly attacked and overpowered their guard, handcuffing them, taking off their puttees, and winding the cloth round the heads of their escort.

As the train slowed down at Micheldever the prisoners jumped from the train and disappeared into the darkness.

Not until Winchester was reached were the escort relieved from their bonds, and they were then hardly able to speak or move. There being no key available, the handcuffs had to be forced.

At four o'clock yesterday morning si bloodhounds were put on the search for the escaped men. Hitherto only one has been caught and detained, near Andover.

THE "BARNSTORMERS."

OFFICERS WHO LOST THEIR INVESTMENTS.

At London Sessions on Wednesday, Basil Reginald Jarvis, 32, an entertainer, gave evidence at his trial for obtaining money by false pretences with intent to defraud. It was alleged by the prosecution that the defendant, claiming to be the originator of the "Barnstormers," an Army concert party, induced demobilized Army officers to invest money in his enterprise for running seaside concert parties. The ex-officers were appointed managers, went to the seaside, found no concert party there, and lost their money.

The defendant denied that he told anyone that he founded the original "Barnstormers." He might have said that he ran a company called "The Barnstormers" in Egypt and France, because he had done so. "My whole object was entirely sincere," he said. "I took the thing up on a big scale entirely for Tommy's benefit. I put in advertisements for officers because I wanted them to be managers, and invest in the show to give comradeship and a helping hand to the boys."

The trial was adjourned.

INDUSTRIAL COUNCIL.

HITCH IN THE PROCEEDINGS.

A difficulty has arisen in connection with the establishment of the National Industrial Council which was decided upon by the great National Industrial Conference last March. The Trades Union side of the provisional Industrial Committee refuses to take part in the establishment of the council owing to the proposed exclusion of agricultural labourers, seamen and supervisory workers from the Government's forty-eight-hour a week Bill. The Trade Union side now announces that it has arranged to discuss the whole position with the Government on Tuesday next. In the event of the Government reply being still unsatisfactory it will demand a reasonable industrial conference to enable it to report upon the situation.

THE MAN FRA' SHEFFIELD.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Lloyd George received the freedom of Sheffield. In the course of his reply to the address he reviewed Sheffield's services during the war and urged her to do as well in the arts of peace.

He referred incidentally to President Wilson's illness as a serious blow to the peace of the world and the cause of humanity.

LUNAR INFLUENCE.

At the Berkshire Assizes yesterday John Hibberd, landlord of a Reading publichouse, was charged with attempting to murder his wife, whom he attacked with a razor.

It was stated that Hibberd usually had fits of depression at the times of the moon's changes, and that he made the attack upon his wife while suffering in this way.

Mr. Justice Rowlatt said he was convinced that the prisoner was not responsible for his action at the time, and bound him over.

HUNGER STRIKE & HANDCUFFS.

Orders were given yesterday to remove the handcuffs from Sinn Fein prisoners in Mountjoy Gaol, Dublin. The men had been under this form of restraint since the disturbance last Sunday week, created as a protest against not being treated as political prisoners. The hunger strike still continues, and John Kenny, one of the prisoners, has been removed to the hospital outside the prison.

A REAL SHERLOCK HOLMES.

An ex-police constable, Arthur Page, known in the force as "Sherlock Holmes" because of his detective ability, has been presented with a gold watch and a gold-mounted walking stick on his retiring after 29 years' service. He was a man with little ambition and repeatedly declined promotion.

HOUSING SCHEMES.

COUNCILS UNABLE TO RAISE MONEY.

A new check to housing schemes was revealed yesterday at Acton, when the treasurer informed the District Council that he could obtain only one hundred thousand pounds at 5½ to 6 per cent of the quarter million required by the Council for Housing and Sewerage Schemes.

The Insurance Companies he stated, refused to advance money on housing schemes, doubting their economic soundness, nor could any money be got from Trades Unions. Municipalities throughout the Kingdom are competing against each other in the money market for one thousand million pounds.

Meanwhile the prices demanded by contracting firms are rising to appaling heights. Chepstow Corporation has actually accepted a tender to build a hundred houses at one thousand pounds each, exclusive of the cost of the land, roads and sewers.

Southgate Council rejected all tenders, the lowest being between nine-hundred and one thousand pounds per house, which would mean the imposition of an economic rent of fifty shillings per week.

TREATY DELAY.

RATIFICATION WILL TAKE PLACE NEXT WEEK.

The exchange of the ratifications of the Treaty of Versailles is not likely to take place this week, as had been expected. Hence the Treaty will not come into force, nor will the League of Nations be created, until next week, when the last legal act of the conclusion of peace with Germany by Britain, France, and Italy will take place.

It is curious to note that while we shall be at peace with Germany, a state of war will still exist between that country and America. The Supreme Council decided this morning that the military and diplomatic representatives of the principal Allies should at once consider the measures to be taken for the occupation of the territories, such as Upper Silesia, where a plebiscite of the inhabitants is to be taken.

The Supreme Council has dealt with the German Note, which asked that the members of the Inter-Allied Commissions of Control in Germany should not wear uniform after the ratification of the Treaty in order to avoid unpleasant incidents. The request was refused.

WEDDED AT SUPPER.

SENSATIONAL APPEAL PENDING.

An early hearing is to take place of an appeal in the sensational "Lady Dolly" marriage case. The appeal is by Margaret Tannahille McArthur, or Blackwood, who declares that at a supper party at Leithplace. Edinburgh, she was married to John Lionel Blackwood, formerly a captain in the Field Artillery, but now an inmate of a mental hospital.

Her case was that at the supper party Captain Blackwood took her as his wife and put on her finger a wedding ring inscribed with the words. "Because of man-made laws." The defence was that the marriage never took place, and in dismissing the original case Lord Blackburn said he believed the story of the marriage was concocted.

Mr. Gentle, who to-day asked for an early hearing of the appeal, said that, following Lord Blackburn's judgment, plaintiff and three of her witnesses were arrested and indicted on a charge of perjury. A question of status and a good many interests were involved.

FEDERAL DEVOLUTION.

COMPOSITION OF COMMISSION.

The composition of the Federal Devolution Commission was officially announced last night. It consists of sixteen members of the House of Lords, including Lords Emmott, Farringdon, Harcourt, Gladstone and Inchape, and sixteen members of the House of Commons, including Sir Ryland Adkins, Mr. Hogge and Capt. Charles Craig.

BOLSHEVISTS EVACUATING PETROGRAD.

A telegram from Reval to a Copenhagen newspaper states that General Judenitch's forces have taken Gatchina and continued their advance to Krasneoselo and Zarckoyeselo. A Helsingfors telegram states that the Bolshevists have begun to evacute Petrograd, the army having refused to fight.

GENERAL JACOB'S PROMOTION

Lieutenant General Sir C. W. Jacob has been appointed Chief of the General Staff in India in succession to Lieutenant-General Sir G. M. Kirkpatrick, who vacates the appointment in January.

VERY FEW LEFT.

Two more aviators, Lieutenants Kirby and Miller, have been killed in the transcontinental air Derby in America. Their machine crashed in Utah.

SUMMARY COURT.

"IT'S THE SAME THE WHOLE WORLD OVER".

A British officer entered a taxi in the Dom Square and requested the driver to take him to Schnurgasse and thence to Marienburg. A boy in uniform jumped on the box and although the officer said he had been in the cab first the driver refused to accept him as a fare and was most insolent in his manner.

The officer demanded to be taken to the office of the A.P.M. and after some altercation he was taken there, and eventually was driven to his destination.

Josef Mandt, of 86 Lindenstrasse, the driver of the cab, denied that he was insolent, and said that the boy in uniform was first in the cab. He could not understand, he said, where the officer wanted to go.

He was sent to prison for fourteen days without the option of a fine.

Attempted Bribery.

Carl Blumenhoven, of 41 Agrippastrasse, was found with a parcel of 3,000 Gold Flake cigarettes by a military policeman. He offered the policeman 100 marks to hush the matter up, but from the fact that a sentence of ten days' prisonment was imposed, the policeman's line of action is obvious.

NO ENCORE.

GIRL WHO WHISTLED IN COURT.

A chorus-girl, whose shrill whistles at night outside her house annoyed the neighbours, gave an exhibition of her talent at the request of the judge at Edmonton County Court. An action had been brought by Thomas Robinson, of Finsbury Park, to recover possession of four rooms occupied by Mrs. Rollasin, the mother of the chorus-girl.

Counsel said it was complained that the chorus-girl, when she came home, whistled half-way down the street and outside the house for a long time. It woke the neighbours. Several of the latter gave evidence that they were roused from their slumbers at midnight.

"Who is the whistler?" asked the judge.

"I am," said the chorus-girl, standing up.

"Please step this way," said the judge. "Let me hear you whistle."

The girl gave a rather subdued example of her art, and the judge remarked: "Come, you can do it louder than that; try again." Then came a number of loud, clear notes that caused the judge to look at the girl in astonishment.

It was decided to adjourn the case for further witnesses. As the chorus girl made her way out of court, the crowd cried for more whistles. But there was no encore.

"IN THE GUTTER."

DUCAL CRITICISM OF TORY PARTY

Very outspoken was the Duke of Marlborough last evening when he opened the new University Carlton Club, Oxford.

It was possible, the Duke said, to draw a dismal picture of what Toryism was at the present time. In his judgment it had got no real leaders. The leadership of the Tory Party, he considered — if he might paraphrase an historic remark of Napoleon's — was "in the gutter." The members of the club ought to frame their judgment as to who they thought was the right man to lead the party.

FISHER'S MEMORIES.

The current instalment of Lord Fisher's memories in "The Times" is called "Some personalities," and deals among other things with some of the thirteen First Lords of the Admiralty with whom he had to deal. In his opinion Lord George Hamilton and Lord Spencer were both men to whom he owed a great deal. They had very tough jobs and neither received the credit he deserved. Lord Northbrook and Lord Selborne also come in for warm praise as well as Admiral Sir Francis Bridgeman and Sir Arthur Wilson.

Lord Fisher remarks that the very first thing he did on becoming First Lord in the first year of the war was to get Admiral Percy Scott back into the fighting line. He had but one answer to all detractors—"He hits the target."

SINN FEIN SUPPRESSED.

A Supplement to the "Dublin Gazette" contains a proclamation prohibiting and suppressing Sinn Fein organisations, Sinn Fein clubs, the Irish Volunteers, Cuman Na Mban, and the Gaelic League within the County of Dublin and the County Borough of Dublin.

The annual Convention of the Sinn Fein Organisation was to have been held at the Mansion House. Dublin, yesterday, but at 8 a.m. police surrounded the building and prevented any assembly. Delegates from all parts of Ireland gathered outside but there was no disorder.

END OF GLADSTONE LEAGUE.

The Gladstone League is to be dissolved at the end of the year, the step having been decided upon at a general meeting of the league at Westminster, when it was pointed out that the league's original aims have been achieved.

TELEPHONES.

LONDON SERVICE TO BE THE BEST IN THE WORLD.

The Postmaster General, replying to a deputation of manufacturers who waited on him with reference to the telephone service, said it was proposed to spend three millions on improvements during the coming year. Traffic was increasing to an enormous extent. Since the armistice 14,000 new lines have been laid in London alone. Before the armistice calls in London averaged under one million a day, but they now average over one million and a-quarter. A number of new exchanges are being erected in London and he believed that before long Great Britain's telephone service, like the postal system, would be the best in the world.

A LA SUFFRAGETTE.

MAN BOUND IN CHAINS PETITIONS THE PREMIER.

There was a remarkable incident in Downing-street on Wednesday morning. A man bound in chains from head to foot had marched from Sherwood-street. Piccadilly, and arrived at No. 10 shortly after 11 o'clock to present a petition to the Prime Minister.

The man was a discharged soldier named Arthur Harry Wagstaff, of Hamstead-road, Handsworth, Birmingham, and his object was to call attention to the grievances of his fellows.

In the course of his petition to the Premier he wrote: "I approach you bondaged and chained as you see me, as a lover of liberty. What do you personally think of the picture? I have adopted this scheme to attract public attention to the ill-treatment and the brutality which is administered to the men of my class who made such great sacrifices in the interests of the country. They thought it was for democracy, instead of which they now find they have been shedding their blood in the interests of the most scandalous and greedy profiteers the world has ever known. We approach you, sir, as the Goliath of the capitalists . . . seeing as we do now the country in a state of chaos and the men who made this great sacrifice in a state of starvation and want, with no houses to occupy, no work, and their wives and families dependant."

After waiting for a few minutes on the doorstep of No. 10, Wagstaff, who is ex. R.G.A., was told that an answer to the petition would he sent him in due course.

OH DEAR! OH DOCTOR!

FLAT-FOOT FLAPPERS AND SHORT SKIRTS.

A dreadful charge is brought by Dr. Walter Kidd, of Cheltenham, against the women of England.

Dr. Kidd, in his walks abroad, has been observing the feet—and ankles—of the ladies he meets or overtakes. He has noted carefully 2,000 examples in our large towns, and has taken a casual glance at a large number more. For three years he has been engaged upon what he calls "this miserable subject," and he now reports that:

Many women walk like dachshunds.

Some afford hideous instances of splay-foot.

Ninety per cent. suffer from flat-foot, incipient or pronounced.

Most Englishwomen have deplorable ankles and feet.

The majority display their deformities with charming levity and audacity.

Attention to general health and systematic foot and leg drill in the very young are the remedies that Dr. Kidd suggests.

Short skirts are the cause of these revelations. By abbreviating their petticoats the ladies have revealed their shortcomings to the eye of science.

FAMOUS NOVELIST DEAD.

HEROES' VAIN SACRIFICE.

The Welsh soldier-novelist, Colonel A.O. Vaughan, D.S.O., died on Thursday at a nursing home in London.

Recently an appeal was made on his behalf for volunteers who would give blood for transfusion. Dozens came forward, but unfortunately the sacrifice was in vain.

A SAD HOMECOMING.

The son of a Mecklenburg peasant had just been repatriated from England, arriving home at night. Entering his father's farm he noticed in the stables two men busy skinning a stolen cow and a fight ensued. The next morning, when the father entered the stables, he found the body of his dead son wrapped in the skin of the cow. The murderers had disappeared.

PUSSYFOOT DISGUISED.

The "Strength of Britain" movement has adopted a new policy, advocating the immediate abolition of spirits and limitation of the output of beer and wine to half the pre-war quantity, followed by a further gradual reduction. The movement contemplates a five-years educational programme, to be launched at the Albert Hall in January.

WHERE TRUTH WASN'T WANTED.

One of the reasons given by the German Government for the declaration of War and the launching of the German forces upon France and Belgium was the allegation that French aviators had flown over the Eifel district near Karlsruhe, and over Nuremberg where bombs had been dropped. This statement was embodied in the letter of recall handed by Baron von Schoen, the German ambassador at Paris to M. Viviani, Minister for Foreign Affairs on August 3rd. 1914.

It now appears beyond a shadow of doubt that this was another instance of how the German public as well as the outside world was befooled by the Berlin Government.

A certain M. Unné an engineer of the Salmson Motor Company who has recently been tried on a charge of bribery, has made the following statement at his trial.

Towards the end of July 1914 a Salmson aeroplane piloted by M. Laporte set out on a trial flight to Constantinople. While flying over Bavaria, the motor broke down, and M. Unné was sent from Paris to mend it.

The German authorities however put obstacles in the way of a fresh start. It was not till August 1st that they were granted the necessary permission to continue the flight, on condition that M. Laporta should follow a fixed itinerary leading him over Nuremberg. As the aeroplane passed over the town it was fired at. Whereupon a Wolff telegram was sent out from Berlin on August 2nd to the effect that French aviators had dropped bombs in the neighbourhood of Nuremberg, and that, as a declaration of war had not yet taken place between Germany and France, this was a violation of international law and a casus belli.

This story is not only to be found in the German declaration of war, but also in Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg's great speech in the Reichstag giving the story of the rupture from the Berlin point of view. On the same day, however, an official contradiction of this tale was issued by the highest local military authority before Baron von Schoen had given in his declaration, or the Chancellor had made his speech. In the "Kölnische Zeitung" morning edition of August 3, as well as in other German papers, there appeared the following telegram from Munich: "The Bavarian Minister of War doubts the exactness of the report which announces that aviators have been seen above the Nurnberg-Kisringen and Nurnberg-Anspach railway lines dropping bombs."

This official contradiction of the story must have been sent by the Bavarian military authorities to Berlin at the same time that they communicated it to the newspapers. Therefore on the 4th August, the Chancellor was knowingly making use of a rumour which had been officially contradicted 36 hours before.

If further confirmation of this false statement were needed we can turn up the file of the "Deutsche Medizinische Wochenschrift" of April 1915.

In it Dr. Schebalbe states as follows:—

"The Nurnberg magistracy writes on the 3rd April of that year:—"To the Commanding Officer of the 3rd Bavarian Army Corps. Nothing is known of the fact that either before or after the outbreak of war the railway line between Nurnberg and Kissingen, and Nurnberg and Anspach was bombed by enemy aviators. All such reports are proved to be false. I consider my proper duty to notify this fact, which removes from the French a load of serious accusation."

Further comment is superfluous.

OUR DANCE NIGHT.

It was not held in any club decorated with fairy lights and flowers, but in the magnificent concert room which forms part of the school where our men are billeted.

The room itself is a wonder to behold. It is lofty, with a splendidly decorated ceiling and walls. All around to the height of five feet is a panel painted in dark green. The floor is of wood block covered with cork linoleum. In one corner is a pipe organ and there is also a large platform faced by a decorated archway draped with rich red velvet hangings. It is lighted with electricity, the lamps being of various tinted shades.

At the given hour the Battalion band ascends the platform, and the men assemble in large numbers. The officers also are present, for they too are sharing with the men the joys of the evening.

What a scene it is. One hardly notices the absence of the fairer sex. The band strikes up and partners are taken and soon the floor is like glass. How gracefully some of the men waltz! They are born dancers, and it is both fascinating and contagious to watch them. There are also a few who are learners and it is amusing to see their antics. They are always getting into the way of the practised dancers and so there is a lot of good-humoured chaff.

The lancers as usual cause a lot of merriment. Here is the Padre being swung round at a violent speed and a look of agony is seen upon his face. He is let down gently and staggers to the side like a drunken man, for a time his mind and body are in a whirl.

Here are two officers doing the foxtrot, cake walk and other figures; their weird contortions cause roars of laughter and others try their hand at the game.

A change is introduced in the programme and the men crowd around the platform to watch their officers take charge of the band. The gallant subalterns blow the trombones, cornets, bassoons and big bass instruments.

The Padre plays the kettledrum; another officer is beating the big drum with great vigour. It is a fearful noise, and the men are convulsed with laughter. Some one drops a cap, a brush, and a book down the bell end of the big bass, and the unconscious player blows away and wonders what is the matter.

So the evening passes away and the spirit of good fellowship is increased, and the men appreciate their officers who thus join them in their play and fun.

At the close a hot potato pie supper is given to the men, the officers acting as waiters.

It is just such an unconventional evening like this which cheers our boys in Rhineland. G. K.

SQUARING ACCOUNTS.

"Talkin' about the war," remarked the old soldier, "reminds me of a little 'appening in '14."

We were sitting round the barrack-room fire.

The discussion had gone from women to mules, from cards to quartermasters, a diversity of subjects that can only be heard properly sifted in a barrack room.

The ancient warrior was in a reminiscent mood.

We settled down to hear another of those stirring tales of the days of that fateful year, 1914, when there was a real war on, before the horrible messy business that it finally developed into, where Mill's "lemons" and "fairy" lights loomed largely.

"We 'ad been on the 'op for three days and nights and were in the Marne country.

The weather was somethin' cruel. It was enough to make a billiard ball perspire. Nearly as bad as Africa.

We 'ad just got across the river and 'ad 'alted in a village for a spell.

I can tell yer I could 'ave slept on the point of me baynit, I was that knocked, and it did'nt take long for me to get down to it in a barn that was 'andy.

I must 'ave slept a good time 'cos when I woke up everythin' was that quiet it put the wind up me.

The battalion 'ad gone on and left me on me "Jack Jones" Well, I can tell yer that just about caused it.

'Ere was I with a empty village all to meself.

Well, I 'as a scrounge round and finds a bit of grub and then 'as I didn't know 'ow long ago the battalion 'ad gone I gets down to it again in one of the 'ouses.

This time I must 'ave only slept for a few hours for I woke up to feel someone goin' through me pockets, and who should it be but a "Jerry?"

Well, I ups and gives 'im one to go on with, before he made a line for the door, but 'e was a quicker runner than me for the last I saw of 'im 'e was makin' good time for Berlin."

The ancient warrior paused triumphantly to light his pipe.

Silence reigned supreme.

"Well, and what then?" enquired the latest recruit, with that sweet innocence that goes hand in hand with early youth.

The veteran fixed him with an icy stare.

"What then?" he said "why, I was in a cafe in Cologne the other night, when who should I see but that same "Jerry?"

He tried to sell me me old baccy box for "funf" mark.

I never could make out where that old box went."

THE EDITOR'S LETTER-BOX.

We Hear all Sides and Accept no Responsibility for our Readers' Views.

GAY UNIFORMS.

Sir,—It was with feelings of regret that I read and re-read the letter headed "A plea for gay uniforms."

I, like many more, bear in mind the appeal of August 1914 which induced the flower of our British manhood to leave their loved ones and don khaki.

It was because the Central Powers had impressed and obsessed the mind of their people with the glorification of militarist ideas, that they were enabled to make a bid for world domination.

It was a menace that threatened civilization, and the lads were told that it was to end all the horrors and misery that war entails.

After more than four years' sacrifice of life and treasure, peace is now being ratified.

Surely W.R.P. realises that there is now a pressing need for economy without spending the public money upon needless and expensive trappings just for ornamental purposes. Or is he pleading for the gratification of his own personal vanity?

The last words of his letter emphasise his own personal opinion, which, if his prognostications are correct, creates the impression that our boys have died in vain.

I find some consolation in the fact that the vast majority think otherwise including R.J.P.

AFTERNOON AMUSEMENTS.

Sir,—A large number of soldiers are now free during the afternoons, and in that state generally described as "all dressed up and nowhere to go". What few Army Cinemas that do have an afternoon session, choose the hours of 3 to 6, which is entirely useless.

Would it be possible for these hours to be altered to 2 to 4 and thus enable a man to appreciate a holiday which so far is not an unmixed blessing? G.H.E.

LIGHT AND DARKNESS.

Sir,—As I was travelling from Bruhl to Cologne by the last train I noticed the military part of the train was in complete darkness, and remained so to the end of the journey, whilst the civilian carriages were brilliantly lighted.

Surely our own boys deserve to be comfortable whilst travelling. NACEB.

A SALUTING PROBLEM.

Sir,—Thank goodness "Some day's" problem is only in his imagination and has not come within the range of reality.

For, if it had, I can point out more than one way in which he oversteps the regulations.

In the first place if he had a stiff neck he ought not to be out promenading at all; he should have reported sick.

Then its all against Army Orders to walk arm-in-arm with any female, wife or no wife. Whether a uniformed soldier may act as a nurse is perhaps uncertain. I give him the benefit of the doubt.

Altogether I think "Some day" would be "for it" quite apart from saluting. D.D.H.

Sir,— "Some day" has my sympathy yet I venture to think that I can help him in his dilemma.

I suggest, from long experience, as a married Sergeant, that when two paces from the approaching officer he should raise the baby in his arms until its left toe is level with the peak of his cap and then cut it away sharply.

If "Some day" acted on this hint I don't think he would stand much risk of Court Martial. At any rate I could promise there would be no death penalty. V. S. M.

WHY NOT DRAUGHTS?

Sir, — I have seen several references lately to efforts that are being made to run chess clubs and tournaments in Rhineland.

As an enthusiastic draughts player I put in a plea for this fine indoor game to be considered as well.

Many unthinking people decry draughts as a "kids" game. Well, let me tell them that it is nothing of the kind, and though perhaps not as intricate as chess yet it is full of science and skill and ought to be played much more than it is.

What about a Draughts Club? BLACK KING.

OUR MUSICAL TASTE.

Sir,—It would appear that your correspondent M.P.W. does not know what music really is—one of the greatest and noblest of arts, perhaps most eloquently expressing the highest and best things in life, things beyond expression in mere language.

Surely he does not imagine that the crowds who throng to the Opera-house after a great deal of trouble to get seats—I frequently commit all sorts of crimes to get them—merely do so because they think it "the correct thing" and not because they are going to enjoy and appreciate something really worth the discomfort of being seated in an uncomfortable "tip-up" for three or four hours?

I do not wish to write a dissertation on music, but M.P.W. does not seem to be able to distinguish between "cheerful tunes" whose attraction lies in catchy rhythm, and music which really expresses some great emotion—or to put it differently says something worth saying.

They have no more claim to be called music than the average limerick has to be called poetry.

Personally, I derive a great deal of enjoyment from dancing to ragtime or other lively tunes, but it is a totally different form of enjoyment from my appreciation of what I would call real music, which appeals very strongly to both one's emotions, and (to a certain extent) one's intellect, and not merely to one's "muscular senses", though of course it does make some appeal through that also.

My advice to M.P.W. is to read some decent text-book on the appreciation of music, and then perhaps he will see why people go to the opera or listen to decent music, and what they find in it.

Furthermore it is the greatest injustice in the world to perpetrate Wagner on a gramophone. It isn't fair to him, even to give good selections from him with a good orchestra, because he intended the music to be a part of a composite whole, the music drama, and something is always lost when it is performed away from the stage; and it is to his great glory that so much of his music will stand the test of separation so splendidly as it does. It is the highest form of "programme music" only that can pass the standard of judgment of "absolute music". M.K.

Sir,—There is one aspect that I have not seen mentioned in the interesting correspondence you have published under this head, viz, the relation of musical talent to other national qualities of character, or shall I say its influence on national character.

Without a doubt Germany is, not streets, but worlds ahead of Britain in musical culture. I am not competent to speak of the rival merits of the schools of music in the two countries but no one can be blind to the fact that the Germans as a race are musical and we are not. Latent potentialities do not affect the matter of present fact.

The question that puzzles me is: to what extent does musical culture affect the morale of a nation?

In his memoirs Ludendorff deplores the lack of spirit which his countrymen, military and civil, displayed during the crucial periods of the war. He attributes the loss of the war to this fact. We always thought so too, but we are surprised to find this recognised not only by the chief of the General staff but also by the civilians here.

Is it possible that music, by reason of its appeal to the emotional faculties, tends to unbalance character? My experience may have been unfortunate but I have long suspected special devotion to music to be responsible for vagaries and deficiencies of personal character. Perhaps it was Plato's strictures on Lydian airs that first suggested the horrible thought to me.

Anyhow it removes the sting of any reproach against British musical inferiority. British character braced by British sport needs no apology in its contest with musical Germany. SORRY BUT FRANK.

SOARING PRICES.

Sir,—I think there is only one answer for impudent observations on the part of German shopkeepers as to the depth of a Tommy's exchequer.

"Rhinelander's" experience is that of many hundreds, but it can be overcome by purchasing from British institutions.

In comparison German goods are very inferior to British and why anyone should want to buy a German watch passes my comprehension. TOCK EMMA.

SURELY NOT TRIVIAL.

Sir, I don't consider any grievance is too trivial to be ventilated in your columns, because it is so wonderful how publicity gets things put right, and quickly too.

Now, Sir, here is my trouble. My billet in Cologne is about a hundred yards off the route of No. 18 tram service. Nearly every morning on the way to my job I find the tram has just passed the end of my street. This means a considerable wait for the next one and this often makes me late for my work.

I might catch it perhaps if I ran, but then I've just finished my breakfast, and why should I have to?

Immediate action by the authorities is called for so that an intolerable state of things can be remedied. MARTYR.

DANGEROUS BARRIERS.

Sir,—Who is responsible for leaving village barriers unlighted and unattended at night? You will find the barriers to which I refer mounted at two ends of many Rhineland villages.

Doubtless they are very necessary but are they not a source of considerable danger to motorists? An experience the other night makes me think they are. JUDGE.

SHAKESPEARE ASKED FOR.

Sir, — Might it be suggested that the most, excellent R.A.D.C. might sometime in the near future present us with a Shakespearean drama?

Greatly as we enjoy the present productions we should read with delight, and are sure every player would, the announcement that "Othello", "Hamlet" or "Romeo and Juliet" or any of Shakespeare's dramas was to be presented at the "Deutsches". P. B.

Can Foul Play Be Stopped?

(By A. DONALDSON, THE SCOTTISH INTERNATIONAL.)

Bolton Wanderers' Popular Outside Right.

I am not sure that a direct and unqualified answer can be given to the question which appears at the head of this article, because I am not quite certain what is meant by the words "foul play." If they mean, for instance, that we might be able to adopt some means by which football would be made a game absolutely free from fouls, then the answer is certainly "No." So long as football is played as it is played to-day then we shall always require the services of a referee on the field who will from time to time be compelled to pull the players up for a foul.

Let me explain my point. Football is a game full of life and energy, and I don't know of anyone who would make it into a contest which might be played in a drawing-room without the risk of breaking some of the glass. That being so, then fouls of a sort you will always have, for the best-intentioned player in the world will sometimes be guilty of unfair play.

An actual incident occurred in a game I played this season which may serve to show better than anything what I mean. I was racing full tilt after a full-back with the ball, and getting quite near to him I thought I spotted a chance to snatch it from his possession. I swung out my right leg with the object of doing so, but at that self-same second the full back swerved unexpectedly, and instead of my getting the ball, I simply swept his legs from under him.

INADVERTENT FOULS.

I expect to the man in the crowd that looked like a bit of very doubtful play, and the people certainly expressed their disapproval of it in no uncertain manner. And of course the referee blew his whistle, as he was in duty bound to do, yet my intention was perfectly fair, even though the quick change on the part of the full-back made me foul him quite badly.

Such instances are bound to occur in every match. You go to charge a man fair and square on the shoulder. Just as you get there he turns, and what should have been a shoulder charge catches your opponent right in the middle of his back. These things can't be helped, and that is why I say that so long as we have football we shall have foul play in a greater or lesser degree, or perhaps it would be better expressed if I said that we shall have play which breaks the rules of fair tackling.

It is none the less a fact, however, that one takes part in a game now and then in which there are quite a lot of fouls which certainly do not come under the head of accidents. Thank goodness these are not very frequent, and taken all round I think our football matches are amazingly clean when you consider the enormous pressure at which they are played, and the big issues which are often at stake.

The habitual foul player is very scarce, but in regard to games in which he appears, and also those games which develop into a rough and tumble exhibition, I think quite a lot might be done in the way of stopping foul play.

Already certain movements in the right direction are being made. At the very last meeting of the Football Players' Union, for instance, it was unanimously agreed that every possible step should be taken to keep the game clean and worthy of its rightful place as Britain's national game.

THE UNION'S DUTY.

Obviously a Players' Union which has the interests of its members at heart cannot possibly do other than be quite energetic on the matter of stopping foul play. The professional footballer loves the game, of course, but it must also be remembered that to him professional football is the means by which he gets bread and butter for himself and the people dependent upon him. Foul play results in accidents, and accidents clearly imperil the ability of a player to earn his living by the game. Therefore, if the Union efforts to keep our contests clean meet with success, I think everybody connected with football, either from a playing or a watching point of view, will consider that the Union has done something really worth doing.

I sometimes wonder if the man in the crowd realises the power which he possesses for stopping foul play, and whether it occurs to him sometimes that he is more or less responsible when a game develops into a contest which tends to spoil the fair name of the best sport we have?

In the first place, the man in the crowd has such an influence over the player that if he decided that foul play should be stopped—deliberate foul play that is—he could quickly achieve that end. I know the average spectator will "boo" hard enough when the member of a visiting team is guilty of unfair tactics. But that doesn't do much good. I should like to see the football spectator equally severe on a member of the home side who stoops to foul play. That would be about as effective a check as anything I can think of at the moment.

SPECTATORS RESPONSIBLE.

It is a regrettable fact, however, that the spectator himself is often responsible when a game becomes unnecessarily rough. Everybody who has attended a number of football matches will be able to recall at least one incident which has run on the following lines. A member of the visiting team has been guilty of a foul on one of the home team. It may have been accidental or it may have been deliberate—the point doesn't matter. The crowd has hooted the guilty one and in loud tones has advised the sufferer to "get his own back." If the player, a bit ruffled in temper, perhaps, carries out the advice, you have all the essentials for a really rough game. Out of one foul spring other fouls, and perhaps out of one "get your own back" incident, a really dirty game materialises. In order that foul play may be stopped, players must keep themselves under restraint, and nothing helps the players to attain that end so much as restraint on the part of spectators.

Some referees, too, rather contribute to doubtful tactics by a too frequent use of the whistle for trivial and harmless offences. The shoulder charge is fine for letting off steam, and moreover, a good square shoulder charge never hurt anyone. Yet some referees seem to consider it a breach of the rules, and when a player is denied this method of stopping his opponents, it is the most natural thing in the world for him to yield to the temptation to stop the other fellows by less innocent and more harmful tactics.

Summed up then, it amounts to this. Fouls of a sort there always will be, but deliberate foul play can be largely checked by a strong pull altogether, and the hands on the rope must be in the following order: first, the players, then the spectators, and lastly the referee.

PERFECT BILLIARDS.

Reece v. Inman Match at New Burroughes Hall.

Reece in play 12627; Inman 12397.

Reece went to the table five times in succession without scoring. Inman, on the other hand, made progress with 97. Reece now seemed to recover form, and played perfect billiards while subscribing 298, when he had the bad luck to miscue in attempting a long red loser. Inman retaliated in great style, a sound break coming from his cue immediately afterwards. He missed a white loser, but Reece could make no progress, and the champion added 65, 31, and 48 in successive hands. Reece meanwhile put on 94 and 32. Inman aggregated 860 at an average rate of 78, against Reece's figures of 492 and 40½.

HOCKEY AND BASKET BALL.

Latest Enterprise of Y.M.C.A. Athletics Director.

The Y.M.C.A. propose to organise a Hockey League for all ladies with the Army of the Rhine providing sufficient entries are sent in.

Teams desiring to enter should communicate with W. F. Cutbush Esq., Athletic Director, Y.M.C.A. Hotel Continental, Cologne, not later than Saturday, Oct. 25th, 1919.

Equipment may be had at the Y.M.C.A. Headquarters, Cologne.

Basket Ball.

It is also proposed by the same institution to organise a Basket Ball League, and units desirous of entering should communicate with the Y.M.C.A. Athletics Director. For this League the Y.M.C.A. propose to offer a cup and medals to the winners and medals to the runners-up.

WORLD MOTOR CYCLE RECORD.

At Acheres (France) on Wednesday morning the motor-cyclist Penan established a world's record by covering the kilometre in 32 1-20sec—a speed of seventy miles per hour.

FAREWELL TO ESTEEMED C.O.

Presentation of Silver Rose Bowl to Lt.-Col. Riddell, 52nd R.B.

Many changes are being brought through demobilization and the necessary re-construction of units; happy associations which have existed for the past few years of warfare between officers, N.C.O's and men are almost daily being severed, with the regrettable yet inevitable farewell. But few if any adieux could have been more reluctantly expressed than those of the leave-taking of Lieut.-Col. E. P. A. Riddell, C.M.G., D.S.O., on his relinquishing command of the 52nd Bn. the Rifle Bde.

Since Col. Riddell came with the Battalion to Germany in February efficiency has been marked in every direction, whilst good feeling has amounted throughout the battalion almost to personal friendship, keen attention having been always paid to the welfare of everyone under his command.

Tribute of Esteem.

When, therefore, the members of the Sergeants' Mess of the 52nd Bn. met this week to ask their Colonel's acceptance of their best wishes and a tribute of the esteem in which he has been held by them the little function had its pleasing as well as its pathetic side.

R.S.M. A. Goode well voiced the feelings of the members in a neat speech in making the presentation of a silver rose bowl as a souvenir of the pleasant time spent under col. Riddell's command.

In acknowledging the gift Col. Riddell expressed his keen appreciation of the N.C.O's, which had resulted, he said, very considerably in the present efficiency of the Battalion. He was assured that the same loyalty and devotion to duty would be accorded his successor, and that so far as they were concerned everything would work smoothly in future. He looked forward to the time when they might meet and have a chat over the happy times of the past.

Healths were then honoured and the pleasing function terminated with the usual leave-taking.

AUSTRALIANS' TOUR.

A Capetown telegram, dated Monday, states that the Australian Imperial Forces Cricket Team arrived on that day for a six weeks tour. The team was accorded a hearty reception.

GERMAN BOXERS.

"Grosser Box-Match" Provides Excellent Sport.

FORMER LONDONER'S SUCCESS.

Many British troops—sufficient to comprise half the audience, in fact—assembled at the Munchner Bierhalle, Lunapark, near the Zoo, Cologne, on Thursday evening, to witness the first of a series of boxing meetings organised by a German Sports Committee. The rules were identical with those of the National Sporting Club.

It was fairly evident that the majority of the Britishers attended with the idea of witnessing some comedy boxing. Never was disillusionment more complete.

The staging and accommodation of the bouts left little to be desired; the lighting was excellent, and the fighting much above the novices' class.

Dutch Feather-weight Champion.

The first match was between Fritz Rohloff, feather-weight champion of Holland, and Willy Wieprecht, of Berlin. Rohloff displayed considerable technique before knocking his opponent out in the fourth round. Immediately after this fight, Young Cohen, a well-known British Rhineland boxer who recently won a Brigade championship, challenged the winner and was accepted, the German stipulating that the referee should be an Englishman. The match has been arranged for to-morrow night.

Then followed an interesting bout between Willy Muller, introduced as an Australian, and Walter Buckszun, a hefty Berliner.

Muller boxed with extraordinary care and succeeded in avoiding his opponent's strong rights. He fought with remarkable tenacity and gradually wore Buckszun down, until he took the opportunity of landing an upper-cut which effectively disposed of his man.

In the third, and probably the chief fight of the evening, Willy Sporl, light, weight champion of Bavaria, opposed Hans Kabelitz, of Berlin. The latter had an advantage in height, weight and reach, but from the commencement it was obvious that Sporl was a boxer of class and when the Berliner stopped one of his terrific crosses, in the second round, the fight ended.

British Methods.

From the spectators point of view, the last bout of the evening was the most interesting, providing, as it did, considerable excitement. The contestants were Curt Sasse, Berlin, and Willi Luhr, Hamburg. The latter was introduced as being formerly of London, and that this was so was fairly apparent when the fight started, from his typical English methods.

After a little while, it was feared that Luhr would tire himself out as a result of the considerable amount of energy he put into his work. This was emphasised by the fact that the other man boxed particularly carefully, rarely exposing himself, and never wasting a scrap of energy. Luhr undoubtedly fought very cleverly, for he contrived to dodge his opponent's numerous and often unexpected right hand swings altogether or allow them merely to graze his chin.

In the sixth round, Luhr rushed his man persistently, and, getting him into a corner, battered him with left and right, subsequently knocking him out. The verdict was extremely popular, probably because of Luhr's English associations.

There is to be another meeting to-night at 7-30 p.m.

BOXERS SUSPENDED.

Echo of the Rossi-Conn "No Contest."

Much interest has been taken in the events which have occurred since the "no contest" verdict was given in the match between Francis Rossi and Joe Conn last week. The British Boxing Board of Control have been deliberating over the matter, and as a result, have addressed the following pronouncement to the National Sporting Club, Ltd.

"Having heard all these boxers had to say and having taken into consideration anything which could be urged in their favour, the Board does not accept the explanation offered by them. They therefore stand convicted of one of the worst offences a boxer can commit—that of deliberately not trying in the ring—and they will both be suspended for three months.

"The Board consider this a lenient sentence and their object in this leniency is to enable them to rehabilitate themselves comparatively soon, and earnestly hope they will avail themselves of that opportunity when the time comes."

FINE CONTEST AT BRADFORD.

The boxing season at Bradford was opened most auspiciously this week, when a great contest resulted from the meeting over 20 rounds of Fred Delaney, the rising young local boxer, and the seasoned veteran Jim Harris. Delaney opened in splendid style, using his superior strength to advantage, but Harris sent him down twice. Delaney recovered and did well up to the fifteenth round, but then fell away, and was knocked out in the twentieth round.

Nipper Fox (Leeds) beat Harry Chester (Bingley) and Sgt. Hewitt (Hull) beat Jock McLay (Queensbury).

RUGBY REFEREES "CONFAB."

Mr. G. Rowland Hill presided at the first general meeting of the London Society of Rugby Union Referees held for five years.

In future the Navy and Army, as well as Oxford University and Cambridge University and the four Home Counties, will be represented on the committee, to which Dr. Burrell, Mr. Calver, Mr. Cotter, Mr. Devonshire, Mr. Parkinson, and Dr. Cargill were elected. Mr. E. Andrews was elected a vice-president, in the place of Mr. Harry Taylor, who fell in the war. Mr. Rowland Hill, as president, and Mr. A. J. Trollope, as hon. secretary and treasurer, were re-elected, with votes of thanks for their services.

At the commencement the company stood in silence in memory of those members who had fallen in the war.

ENGLAND v. WALES.

Some Random Notes on the Football Internationals.

By W. Le C.

To-day will be played the return victory International between England and Wales. It is to be decided at Stoke and as we have previously mentioned in these columns the rival centre-halves, Parker and Jones, are each Stoke players and will be playing before their own supporters. This is a unique occurrence. While there is little hope of Bolton releasing Jennings and Vizard, Wales will need them and I think Bolton are rather selfish in this. They have a duty to the game as well as to the club.

The teams have been previously given, and it is little use looking beyond the English team for the winners. Last Saturday the English eleven were decidedly unlucky and a draw would have been a fitting end to the game, it being unfortunate that Williamson should have been at fault when each goal was scored. It is interesting to note that "Billy" Meredith realised the hope of his career when he captained the victorious Welsh team. He has had 19 caps against England since 1895, and for the first time appeared on the winning side.

First Victory Since 1882.

This was Wales's first victory since 1882. He was given a "lucky penny" by a member of the Welsh Council with which he won the toss and secured the initial advantage. He captained his side and scored the first goal, and no man was more prouder than the popular winger when he left the field with the ball as his prize. After the match finished Meredith laughing grimly, was heard to say "I can play for my country but not for my club. It's a mad world".

The Irish team against England appeared in our columns yesterdsy. It contains the great offside exponent "Billy' McCracken and if England rely again on Hudspeth in their defence, it will be a unique experience for both. Club-mates forming part of the finest defence in First Division football, they are both deserving of their place, but what will Newcastle do without them? Suffice it that the "Magpies" will not follow Bolton's lead and prevent these players appearing for their respective countries.

Wales are awarding caps and medals to their players but the Football Association are only giving medals to their representatives. The games played this season will not figure in "Official" — blessed word — records of the countries concerned.

LEEDS CITY GROUND.

Proposed Conversion to a Brick-Works.

The future of Leeds City's Football Ground is forming a prolific topic of conversation among football enthusiasts in the Yorkshire town, but the fate of the enclosure has not yet been settled.

The presence of rich clay under the turf has resulted in an offer being made to purchase the ground for conversion into a brickworks. Another suggestion is that the Yorkshire Amateur Association Club shall be allowed to rent the ground, while others consider that a new club should be inaugurated called Leeds United to replace the Leeds City Club and take over their fixtures in the Central League.

Regarding the disposal of players, of whom there are 30 on the books, the Football League Management Committee have issued a notice calling the attention of clubs to the fact that all Leeds City players may only be signed on through the Committee.

SPURS v. ORIENT GATE.

The official figures of the attendance at last Saturday's game between the Spurs and Clapton Orient is given as 44,458. This does not constitute a record for the Tottenham enclosure, 47,109 spectators having passed through the turnstiles when the Arsenal visited the Spurs on Christmas morning, 1911.

ANGLO-FRENCH FOOTBALL.

Team to Visit Paris to Compete for the Dewar Cup.

As briefly reported in our issue of Wednesday the London League has accepted the invitation of the French football authorities to resume the annual contest for the Dewar Cup, and in visiting Paris will be the first British team to test the strength of the now united French associations.

The party, consisting of twelve players, together with officials and friends, will leave London on the morning of October 31, play the Paris League for the cup on November 1, meet the Paris League in a friendly on November 2, and arrive in London on the evening of the 3rd. The winners will receive gold medals, these having been given by Mr. A. W. Holmes, vice-president of the London League.

Islington Town have taken the place of Fulham Invicta in the London League Premier Division, and the vacancy caused by the withdrawal of the Royal Army Service Corps has been filled, in the First Division, by L.G.O.C. (Acton).

HARES AND HOUNDS.

51st Northumberland Fusiliers' Paper Chase.

AN EXCITING EVENT.

An interesting paper-chase took place on Tuesday in which over a hundred participated. The hares consisted of Lieuts. Fentum, Mason, and Pte. Norcliffe. The course was a good five miles over fine rough country, several natural obstacles having to be negotiated. The hares (heavily laden) left Battalion Headquarters five minutes before the pack and commenced to lay the trail one mile S.W. of Sülz. The hares, making for the Militar Ring, lay two false trails which held up the pack for about a minute. Then Pte. Norcliffe struck off to the left for half a mile, the other two hares running parallel to the Militar Ring under cover of a good high hedge.

After travelling about half a mile the hares came to a large gap in the hedge, and while crossing this were sighted by some of the leaders of the pack, who immediately left the scent and gave chase in the direction in which the hares had been located, thus gaining over half a mile on them. Three or four of the pack followed hot on the false trail laid by Pte. Norcliffe, who, endeavouring to make a wide detour to enter the Stadtwald under cover, was strategically run to ground by Pte. Brydon of "D" Coy. However, this did not prevent Pte. Brydon from continuing in the chase and following close on the heels of the other two hares, who, having been spotted, discontinued to lay the trail, and, panic-striken, dashed into cover of the trees of the Stadtwald.

HARES BECOME FATIGUED.

This considerably out-manoeuvered the pack (under Lieuts. Loadman and Dick) with the exception of one exceedingly plucky youth, Pte. Robson of "D" Coy. The remaining two hares, under the impression that they had shaken off the pack, restarted to lay the trail and slowed down to a very quiet pace for the next mile. They were, however, quite disillusioned, Pte. Robson having picked up the trail soon after the hares had entered the Stadtwald and very much surprised the two hares when they again came into the open. Then followed the fastest pace of the chase for the next three-quarters of a mile. The hares put up a plucky fight, but were fatigued with their heavy load. Pte. Robson was much too good for them and gained yard by yard, finally running them to ground just as they were leaving the Stadtwald, about half a mile from home.

Meanwhile, the remainder of the pack wasted a few minutes casting for the trail at the entrance of the Stadtwald. Eventually it was picked up and some twenty hounds followed a few minutes behind the leader of the pack. Much credit was due to Lieuts. Loadman and Dick, the "pack-masters," in the way false trails were overcome, and the handling of the pack generally. Of the starters, about sixty finished the complete course.

All who participated in the chase expressed their entire satisfaction with the afternoons sport. It is proposed to raise a similar chase weekly, and the 51st Northumberland Fusiliers would welcome any other pack to join them.

THE CAMBRIDGESHIRE.

Alasnam Becomes one of More Prominent Candidates.

The first result of the race for the Cesarewitch as far as the London Turf market is concerned was that Alasnam became one of the more prominent candidates for the Cambridgeshire.

Arabian Nights Ball.

The fancy dress ball for officers and ladies, held at the B.E.L.C., on Thursday evening, was indeed a gorgeous affair. The hall was beautifully decorated, and lighted to produce the most wonderful oriental effects. In ten short minutes one was transported, as by the magic carpet, from the cold miserable atmosphere of the Dom Square to the glorious light and colour of East of Suez. Arriving there, one found the orchestra of the 51st D.L.I. discoursing the sweetest of music, while during the interval the ladies of the B.E.L.C. Jazz Band energetically and artistically produced the "jazziest" of jazz music.

* * *

Would not a superannuated German gas alarm siren add to the effect? Prizes were given for the best two dresses of either sex, and we do not envy the judges their task. Where so much was super-beautiful it must have been Solomonian business. "Aladdin" and "Egypt" were loudly applauded on receiving their prizes, and one really felt awestruck by the stately appearance of the winning Rajahs. Never has the Leave Club looked gayer and prettier, and we are sure that the reality of all the sham was frequently beyond question. Some of the "Eastern" potentates were "it" exactly, and we are convinced that if British ladies habitually dressed in Eastern fashion, our character for sedateness would stand in constant peril.

Britsh Empire Leave Club.

The weekly whist drive was held at the B.E.L.C. on Thursday evening and the number of players was as large as ever. Captain Rouch again presided and L/Cpl. Foote was M.C. The ladies 1st prize was won by Pte. G. Andrews with a score of 153, the second prize by Pte. A. Hatherley with 150 and the third by Pte. J. Threeves with score of 145. The first gentlemen's prize was won with a score of 149, while Bombardier Ratcliff carried off second prize with a score of 147 and Pte. L.G. Bisgrove third with a score of 146.

ECHOES FROM RHINELAND.

Oyster Mania.

A friend of mine has virtually lived on oysters ever since they were introduced into the "Earwig" Lamp a few days ago, and has never been near his mess for meals. What his score is up to date I dread to divulge.

Who was He?

Some people I hear, are still unsatisfied as to the identity of the person in Cologne at first supposed to be King Alfonso, and refuse to credit the assertion so confidently made that it was Alfonso the Toreador. I am told that the Intelligence Corps have been requested to solve the mystery. Hush!

The Originals.

Anyone who is interested can see at the Leave Club the original coupon sent in by R.S.M. Hayward who won our last football competition and the actual cheque cashed by him for 2833 marks.

Odd Badges.

Everyone knows that the collar badges of the Artillery and Engineers are almost alike, but not quite. In a Cologne cafe yesterday I saw an officer seemingly in blissful ignorance of the fact, wearing the gunner's badge on the right and the sapper's on the left. Which did he belong to?

A Good Idea.

I learn that the American authorities at Coblenz have started an employment bureau as a means of assisting families of the American forces to procure competent and experienced household help.

Lady Singers Wanted.

I hear that the Rhine Army Vocal Society is particularly desirous of obtaining recruits from the fair sex. I dropped in to hear the Society's first rehearsals at the Church Army Hall, Antoniter Strasse on Wednesday evening. The singing was really delightful.

A Sad Case.

A private complains that his best girl —a charming V.A.D. in Rhineland—is not allowed to be seen in his company in public because he is not commissioned. The path of true love never did run smooth.

Stupendous.

It was in the VI Corps Club and we were drinking tea — yes tea! He said "You know I was late coming out for the last war, old egg, and hadn't really time to get my brain going, but if the War Office takes up my big notion the next one will be a pinch for us." "What is it?" I asked breathlessly. "Well, a sort of subterranean aeroplane, if you get me," he replied in a whisper. Then louder "I say the next bottle's with me, you know!"

Hadn't Melon Flavour.

In view of the fact that a party of Tommies invested in pumpkins the other day at a Rhine village believing them to be melons somebody suggests that botany might be more generally taught in the Army Schools.

Tinfoil.

The tinfoil in which certain brands of English cigarettes are wrapped seems to be something unknown in Germany. Of course it is quite common in England and is used for wrapping various commodities, but a German who has been all his life in the paper trade confessed the other day that it was something new to him—in fact he regarded the "silver paper" as a sort of souvenir.

Good Technical Reading.

I am told that there are hundreds of technical and trade journals at the Army Book Shop merely waiting for any applicant who would care to have copies to take away to read, free, gratis and for nothing, and "for keeps."

Coal Cellars.

Where the housewives in some of the flats in Cologne have their coal-cellars is a question which puzzles many visitors from Britiain. In quite a number of houses containing flats there is only one aperture on the level of the street into which coal could be tipped and therefore only one coal cellar for all the householders. The explanation is that in such cases the central heating system has been installed.

Queer Headgear.

I saw a student at Bonn the other day with a curious college cap. It reminded me of a concertina more than anything else and was bright yellow in hue.

Sand on the Rails.

One may notice these "slippery days" sand along the car lines, sand released by the driver to prevent skidding and make the wheels grip. I was interested to learn that in England the sand was released by the foot and on one rail only. Out here the driver turns a lever with his hand and sand is released on both rails, thus making a prevention of accidents doubly sure.

Prolific Writing.

A soldier with literary ambitions writes telling me that as he has written three letters each of about 3.500 words to his lady love this week, no doubt he could manage something to suit the literary requirements of the "Cologne Post."

Not Real Jazz.

Yesterday at tea in a well-known resort in Cologne there was a fearful clatter at the end of the room. At first everyone thought the management were emulating the "Earwig" Club and had introduced a Jazz band at tea-time. But it transpired that a waiter had smashed a trayful of crockery.

Not Ours after All.

A good many of the songs one hears in Rhineland sung to what were supposed to be English tunes some years old, turn out to be pukka German airs which have been sung at home to English words.

Good-bye W.R.A.F's

With the approaching complete departure of the W.R.A.F's from Rhineland their excellent little magazine has come to an untimely end. The final number lacks all the sparkle of the previous issues. It is a very serious production indeed, and is devoted to a detailed history of the sojourn and work of the W.R.A.F. in occupied Germany, illustrated with many interesting photoes.

Method in it.

Have you noticed that a waiter always puts a little wine in the gentleman's glass, fills the lady's and then completes the filling of the former's? Apart from the question of politeness this is due to the fact that the wine at the top of the bottle may contain foreign bodies through contact with the cork. Hence the custom.

Rendezvous for W.O's and N.C.O's.

The Dutch Bar next door to the Ewige Lamp is now open as a British restaurant for W.O's, N.C.O's, and their wives. Thus when the lady has to meet her husband in town after his duty is finished she can pop in there and be sure of civil treatment and comfort.

A Dainty Bar.

The place is quaintly fitted in Dutch fashion and the shining table tops are left uncovered in their pristine freshness It is all very comfortable. As it is exclusively for the British, brassards must invariably be worn.

What can be Had.

Not only can the usual refreshments be obtained such as minerals, beer, wine and spirits etc. but the place is stocked with the better canteen supplies. We expect that the present quarters will soon be found to be too small and we hope to see, before long, the neighbouring room thrown open to N.C.O's and their wives.

Welsh Service.

Now that the Scottish Churches Hut is not available, I understand that the Welsh Service will now be held at 2.30. p.m. every Sunday at the Y.M.C.A. Central, Friesen Str. in a class room next door to the Library Hall.

The Gunners' Own.

I would strongly urge every one in the Royal Artillery to subscribe to "The Gunner," the Royal Regiment's own particular magazine and record. It is issued free to all members of the R.A. Institution, Woolwich, but I believe anyone may buy it for 2d. a month. Those gunners I know who have once had it, say they wouldn't care to miss a single copy now.

AROUND AND ABOUT.

WHENCE COME DREAMS?

Manifestly there is a part of your brain that goes on thinking while you are asleep. Were this not the case you would have no dreams. What part? Nobody knows with certainty, but there is good reason for believing that it is the untutored half of the brain—the right half. Each one of us has really two brains, right and left, just as we have a right leg and a left leg. The left brain does our thinking for us, while the right if we are "right handed" is uneducated and does almost no thinking at all. Having almost no work to do, the right brain needs no rest. It does not get tired, and so stays awake, or at least partly so, while we sleep. Its thoughts are what we call dreams.

THOSE RED TROUSERS.

The originator of the red trousers of the French soldiers was Napoleon, who was prompted in his "reform" by a desire to help the native cultivation of madder root—at that time and for many centuries previously the chief source of red colour throughout the world against the Dutch and Italian rivals. As a result the industry expanded considerably, and some fifty years ago was worth nearly £2,000,000 per annum.

THE ORIGIN OF "BOLSHEVIK".

What does "Bolsheviki" mean? The answer is that during the revolution of 1905 in Russia, anarchists met together at Kuakolla in Finland. A majority advocated an Anarchistic programme, which is being carried on to-day, while a small minority favoured a milder programme. The word majority in Russian is "Bolchenstwo"; the word minority is "Mienchestwo". Both expressions were corrupted into the two party designations of "Bolchewiki" and "Mienchewiki". The corruptions stuck. The term "Mienchewiki" has been lost because its representatives were swamped by the overgrowing clamour of their opponents.

THE DEMOBBED TUNIC.

Mixed.

One of the most amusing features of Thursday night's "Arabian Nights" ball occured during the departure of the dancers. I spotted the lower extremities of an Indian Rajah, a Chinese mandarin or a Turkish Pasha sticking out from a conventional British Warm, and the number of pips on the latter was not always commensurate with the glory indicated by the nether garments.

Dancing Shoes.

A correspondent complains that, having come from a distance and having only walking boots with him, he was not allowed to join in the dancing at the B.E.L.C. He says that his boots would not harm the floor. One pair might not do irreparable damage, but everyone must realise that one evening's general dancing in boots would irrevocably ruin the floor for all. One must be guided by commonsense and respect for general convenience in such matters.

Another Children's School.

At Coblenz I hear that the American Y.M.C.A. has started a school for the purpose of educating American children, just as our Y.M.C.A. in Cologne has.

Between Courses.

I drew attention recently to the custom of smoking cigarettes between courses in Rhineland. A reader adds, "The wonder rather is that in many restaurants (and even a few clubs) no diners have arrived complete with pyjamas and toothbrush as necessary adjuncts to an undisturbed siesta." Cases, he says have even been reported of waiters in Cologne restaurants burying grandmothers in the interval between the soup and the fish.

A Regretted Departure.

I hear regret on all sides that Lieut.-Col. E. P. A. Riddell, C.M.G., D.S.O., is leaving Rhineland. His command of the 52nd Rifle Brigade since it came into Germany in February has been marked by efficiency and thorough good feeling.

Creeping Things.

Have you ever penetrated into the Insect House at the Cologne Zoo? It contains a remarkable collection especially of creatures that simulate leaves and twigs. Then, too, there is a fascinating colony of ants at work.

Friend or Foe.

I asked a man the other day what he had missed most since being in Rhineland. "The drone of aeroplanes overhead at night, and wondering whether they were ours or Jerry's. Going to bed is too humdrum now" he said.

RHINELANDER.

WHY HANDKERCHIEFS ARE SUARE.

Ask your friends why their handkerchiefs are square. Round, oval, or oblong would be just as useful. At one time they were made in various shapes, but this irregularity displeased Queen Marie Antoinette, who suggested one evening at Versailles that a uniform shape would be an indication of good taste. The result was a decree by Louis XVI., issued in the early days of 1785, enacting that all pocket-handkerchiefs should have right-angle edges hence-forward.

SPANISH DANCES COMING.

The dancing season brings with it a whisper that a Spanish element will be noticeable in the new measures. One of these is the Paso Doble, which is described as a fascinating one-step. It comes from Spain via Paris, where it is immensely popular. A modified version of the shimmy-shake (the savants say) is a pleasing movement, neither vulgar nor sensational, as the name undoubtedly suggests. As regards accompaniment, Hawaiian music is out-favouring the jazz. Its peculiar haunting sweetness is irresistible.
